PICNIC TRAIN DISASTER.

Twenty Killed and Twenty-five Hurt at Glenwood, Ill.

CHICAGO, July 14.—Twenty persons were killed and about twenty-five injured last night in a collision on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad at Glenwood, Ill., twenty-three miles south of Chicago.

The collision occurred between a picnic train from Chicago which was returning from Momence, Ill., and a freight train, into the rear end of which the excursion train dashed at high speed. The picnic train was coming north, and the freight train was on the southbound track. A misplaced switch threw the picnic train over on the southbound track, and before the engineer could apply the brakes it ran at forty miles an hour into the rear of the freight. The locomotive, the baggage car and the first coach of the picnic train were demolished, and all of the killed and injured were on the locomotive and in the two forward cars.

TRAMPS IDENTIFIED.

Men Held at Portsmouth Wanted For Ressler Murder.

NORFOLK, Va., July 14.—Acting District Attorney Magee and Officers E. E. Lane and E. L. Mowery of Chester, Pa., came to Portsmouth and positively identified John O'Brien and Joseph Day, white tramps, as the men wanted in Lancaster county for the murder of Jacob Ressler, an aged bridgekeeper, who was foully done to death some weeks ago.

Sheriff Zeigler and Detective George E. Berger of Lancaster county went from here to Richmond today to get requisition papers from Governor Montague. No trouble is anticipated in delivering the men over to the Pennsylvania authorities, inasmuch as a capital charge has been preferred against them.

Policemen Chase and Collier of Portsmouth, who arrested the tramps, will get $1,100 reward which had been offered for their apprehension.

Nordica's Divorce Valid.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The appellate division of the supreme court has handed down a decision denying a motion for the appointment of a referee to take evidence in a suit to determine whether an interlocutory decree of divorce obtained by Lillian Nordica from Zoltan Doehme on Jan. 29 last was obtained by fraud and collusion. Judge McLaughlin wrote the opinion of the court, which was unanimous, that Mme. Nordica's divorce had been properly granted and that the allegations of fraud and collusion on the part of either of the parties to the action or of their counsel could not be sustained even by inference. In view of this decision, which declares the opera singer's divorce valid, the final decree will probably be awarded at once.

Presidential Candidate Arrested.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., July 14.—William P. Scott, candidate for president of the United States on the National Liberty party ticket, was arrested here on account of an unpaid fine and taken to Belleville, the county seat of St. Clair county. Several months ago Scott, who runs a saloon and summer garden at Denverside, was convicted of conducting a disorderly place, and his fine and the costs amounted to $149.80. He paid $50 and was given time to pay the balance.

ROOSEVELT DID NOT KNOW.

Central Labor Union Men Were Held Up by Secretary Loeb.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 14.—Concerning the visit to Oyster Bay of the committee representing the Central Labor unions of Lackawanna and Luzerne counties, Pa., Secretary Loeb has received the following telegram from John E. Barrett, editor of the Truth of Scranton, Pa.:

"Did President Roosevelt personally refuse to see a committee of miners yesterday, as reported?"

In response to this inquiry Secretary Loeb sent to Editor Barrett the following telegram:

"Many thanks for your telegram. The committee came here and insisted on seeing the president to present a petition at a time when I could not arrange it for them. The president did not know they were here. If they had sent word that they desired to see the president I should have been glad to arrange for them at some convenient time. As it was I offered to bring the petition to the personal attention of the president. The statement that the president had any knowledge of the committee's presence in Oyster Bay is not true, and he did not refuse to see them."

Copies of the photographs of the president and Senator Fairbanks taken at Sagamore Hill have been received here. They will be used extensively in the campaign. The set of photographs includes some artistic views of the interior of the president's home; the first, except of the library, ever authorized by the president.

CLOUDBURST NEAR MANILA.

San Juan del Monte, a Suburb, Destroyed.

MANILA, July 14.—A cloudburst over the hills northeast of Manila caused a flood which has destroyed San Juan del Monte. Two hundred lives were lost.

The low lying districts were inundated. The homes of Americans and foreigners are isolated. Transportation through the streets is carried on in boats only.

Rain has fallen for twenty-seven hours, totaling 17 1-5 inches. This is unprecedented. Communication with outside places is interrupted.

The damage to property is estimated at $2,000,000.

San Juan del Monte is a suburb of this city.

American Athletes at Queenstown.

QUEENSTOWN, July 14.—The White Star line steamer Teutonic, from New York July 6, having on board the Harvard-Yale team who are to compete in field sports with Oxford-Cambridge in London July 23, has arrived here. The American athletes appeared to be in excellent form for the forthcoming contest. They enjoyed their trip immensely and were all in the best of health and spirits. The team did not exercise much during the voyage, but will go into training immediately at Brighton. They disembark at Liverpool.

Official Report of Slocum Wreck.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The total dead in the destruction of the excursion steamer General Slocum is given as 958 in the final report presented to Police Commissioner McAdoo by the inspectors in charge of the investigation. Only 897 of the dead were identified, 62 were reported missing and 61 unidentified, while 180 were injured and only 235 out of the nearly 1,400 on the steamer escaped uninjured. Assuming that the unidentified dead are among the missing, all but one person has been thus accounted for.

The Anglo-German Agreement.

BERLIN, July 14.—The Anglo-German agreement, signed in London, does not apply to the larger political differences that may arise, but is confined to legal questions, like the interpretation of treaties. It is substantially identical with the arbitration arrangements which Great Britain has made with other countries. The present agreement is not the outgrowth of the Kiel festivities. Negotiations on the subject of the treaty had been in progress for a long time.

Body That of J. H. O'Connor.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 14.—There is very little doubt in the mind of Coroner Dolen that the body of the man picked up off the Bridgeport light is that of J. H. O'Connor, seventy-eight years old, who jumped from the Norwich line steamer Rhode Island on June 21 while off Stratford shoals. The coroner recently received a letter asking him to look out for such a body if it came under his notice.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

"Nat" Strong, manager of the Murray Hills, who recently arranged with Manager Johnston, of Alis, for the signing of four of the strongest Murray Hill players, has filled up the vacancies by signing several members of the Poughkeepsie team.

Some ball fans are bemoaning the fact that neither Smith, Courtney or Dietrich, the new Alis players, did not get a hit in the Murray Hill-Trenton Y. M. C. A. contest on Monday. This is nothing. Other good players have fared a similar fate this season.

Arrangements were completed by Manager Johnston last evening, whereby Alis will meet the New York Colored Giants on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. The colored men are considered one of the strongest teams in the metropolitan district, and is the one which defeated the Westfields two out of four games.

There is an apparent feeling among the baseball fans here that "Lefty" Davis is not strong enough for the Alis team, and they have been asking Manager Johnston to secure a stronger twirler. This, no doubt, is partially due to the fact that "Lefty's" face is becoming too familiar. For several seasons he pitched for Scotch Plains and during that time he was seen more or less by the local cranks. This season, Manager Johnston has used him in a majority of contests.

When the Westfield-Aeolian five-game series was arranged it was generally conceded that it would be easy picking for Westfield. The Aeolians, however, didn't go into the matter half hearted and at a fancy price engaged Jack Doescher, of the Brooklyn Nationals, to do their pitching. In the two game played the Westfields fell down, 10 to 3, 4 to 0. The third game is on at Westfield Saturday and it is the one ambition of the Aeolians to make this contest the third straight and a win of the series. The loss of the Alis series by the Aeolians has set the organ makers on edge and Saturday's game at Westfield will be the real thing in rivalry.

In view of the warm pace to be set by Westfield in the coming series, it will be necessary for Manager Johnston to improve his pitching department and get the best available talent. Davis is too well-known among the Westfield bunch and those players are liable to do all sorts of things, even with a strong team behind him. It is said that the services of an American League twister are being sought after. There are good ones to be had and if the Alis Club wants to make a reputation for itself as well as the town, the best pitcher they can get will be none too good for the series. If the town is going to have fast ball, the faster it is the better. The cranks have confidence in Johnston and believe that he will produce the goods when the two teams clash in the series of eight contests scheduled. Let is be fast and furious and the baseball public will support it.

GOLF.

The initial play in the Governor's competition together with a scratch event, will be the attractions at the Westfield Golf club on Saturday.

During July there will be music at the Hillside Tennis and Golf club every Saturday night, and stages will be run between the trolley and clubhouse.

Hurt While Scuffling.

While scuffling with a fellow workman in the Plainfield Cab Company stables this morning, Dennis Outlaw, colored, struck his hand against a projection and received several bad cuts. The wounds bled freely. Dr. Pittis inserted several stitches in the lacerations.

Rev. Francis A. Whiteside, of New York, who has been visiting friends in town, has returned home.

JERSEY'S SHOW AT FAIR

STATE'S EXHIBITS OF MINERAL PRODUCTS ATTRACT MUCH ATTENTION.

The most striking feature in the Mines and Metallurgy building at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis is the exact reproduction of the skeleton of one of those prehistoric monsters, half fish and half fowl, which inhabited the earth centuries ago.

The cretaceous dinosaur from a distance, at first glance, strikes one as the skeleton of an elephant. It measures forty feet from the tip of the tail to the tip of the mouth. It was discovered at Merchantville, Camden County, N. J. The reproduction of the skeleton is in plaster-paris tinted the natural color, which approaches that of smoked ivory.

The work of Henry B. Kummel, State geologist of New Jersey, is in evidence here. Mr. Kummel has constructed a relief map of the State in copper. It is eight by sixteen feet in size. Probably no map of the State has ever been made that indicates its topography so well as this. The mountains, valleys, rivers, lakes and canals of the State are indicated in a scientific and accurate manner. There is also a complete set of topographical maps of the State arranged in a cabinet so that when the door is open each one will swing outward. These maps were prepared by the New Jersey Geological Survey.

There is also a petrological microscope machine which was designed in the office of the New Jersey Geological Survey. It shows sixty-five specimens from the State, such as sandstone, gneisses, granites, trap, conglomerate and diabase, in their different varieties.

Jerseymen who have visited there express surprise that the State contains such a variety of stone as shown by the specimens on exhibition. The State Geological Survey first secured the chips or slices of the different varieties to be shown. The next step was the grinding and polishing.

After being cemented to a glass plate the rock chip is again ground on the revolving disk, forming a surface parallel to the first one, the slice becoming thinner and thinner until the desired transparency has been secured. The thin section is then immersed in turpentine and carefully heated, when the section may be transferred to a thin glass, imbedded in fresh balsam and a protecting cover glass placed above it. It is then ready for miscroscopical examination.

In addition to these exhibits in the building of Mines and Machinery is a fine display of the clay and sand products which add so materially to New Jersey's wealth. It is shown that the conversion of these natural products, with which the State is so abundantly endowed, gives employment to many thousands of our citizens.

Near the New Jersey geological exhibit a great New York jewelry house has an attractive array of gems and precious stones which are deposited at night in a vault of manganese steel made in Plainfield. This particular manganese is a product of Morris County, N. J. It is the hardest and toughest steel compound that has ever been discovered. The manganese is added to the steel and, unlike other steel, it is not worked with the drill, lathe and planer, but has to be ground and shaped by emery wheels, an exceedingly slow process.

New Jersey has a wonderful display of brick terra cotta and fancy brick. There is an exhibit from Atlantic City which is attracting much attention. It is made from the ordinary sand from the seashore and New Jersey has limitless quantities of this sand extending along the coast line from Cape May to Staten Island. It is manufactured by a secret process, which may be said to be one of the newest industries of the State.

The sand brick is manufactured at two factories in the State at the present time, one of them being Winslow Junction and the other at May's Landing. The brick is so hard and close grained that it might be more properly called artificial stone, in fact, it can be cut and carved with chisel and maul, thus lending itself to much more artistic and decorative effects than can be obtained by means of molds and kilns.

Welcome Fund Distributed.

The failure of Governor Murphy to arrive when he was expected from his recent European trip led a big welcoming party to end the jollification with a balance of $600. The money was distributed to hospitals in six counties, Essex, Hudson, Bergen, Morris, Mercer and Camden.

Frank Heimerly Made President.

Frank Heimerly, formerly of this city, was made president of the Hall Signal Relief Association at an election of officers Tuesday evening. The membership of the organization comprises many Plainfielders and they are greatly pleased with Mr. Heimerly's election.

C. W. Holland and family, of West Seventh street, are home from an automobile trip to Atlantic City.

5,000 AT BAND CONCERT

"BILLY" MURRAY MADE A BIG HIT LAST NIGHT.

Last evening's band concert in Concert Park proved another good drawing card and the excellent programme prepared by Leader LaVere was enjoyed by a crowd almost as large as the one on the previous occasion. In round numbers it was fully 5,000 people, of which a good portion were on the grandstand.

"Billy" Murray was the vocal soloist and he was accorded a flattering reception. He made a big hit with the new song "Oysters and Clams" and when he followed it up with "I've a Feelin' for You" half the crowd hummed the chorus through with him. He is without doubt the best of the many concert singers who have appeared locally. Cornet selections by L. R. Anderson were a feature and the remainder of the programme was excellent, popular selections prevailing. The "Gondoliers" and the descriptive "Hunt in the Forest" were easily the favorites.

Next week's concert will be given on Friday evening as has been the custom and another popular programme will be rendered. The soloist has not yet been selected.

ROUNDING UP STRAY DOGS

LOCAL POLICE CAPTURE SEVERAL UNMUZZLED CANINES.

The police have been especially vigilant regarding the enforcement of the muzzle ordinance in the past few days. Wandering dogs have been gathered in or shot in the streets, and the town should certainly have no mad dog scares during the hot weather months.

John G. Bantle and Nathan Meyers, of Watchung avenue, were brought to justice this morning at the city court to answer charges made by neighbors regarding their dogs. Bantle affirmed his intention to keep his little pet muzzled or tied in days to come, but Meyers said he didn't own the dog complained of at his house. On being warned of results to the dog at capture, Meyer said he would have it transported from the city to serve as a farm watch dog. The police took no action in either case.

MAY CALL REV. ANDERSON

GRACE M. E. CONFERENCE COMMITTEE TO SELECT PASTOR.

The committee recently appointed by Grace M. E. church to confer with the presiding elder in the selection of a pastor to succeed Rev. E. L. Earp, met last evening and discussed the candidates mentioned. There were twelve in all but these were narrowed down to two. They will be submitted to the presiding elder and the appointment will be made by him within the next few weeks.

While it is in no sense certain, the choice of the committee, which consists of Dr. H. K. Carroll, John Valiant and E. E. Winckler, will probably rest upon Rev. Mr. Anderson, of Whitehouse. He is a clergyman of many excellent qualities and by all who have heard him is said to be possessed of more than ordinary ability.

BOROUGH TAXES THE SAME.

Promise Made Last Campaign Will be Kept.

It is now certain that there will be no increase in the borough tax rate for the present year. As predicted by Mayor Smalley many months ago the cost of the new paid fire department and other improvements will be more than offset by increased valuations, non-exemption of firemen and veterans and from other sources. Assessor J. H. Cooley has worked hard to keep the rate down and has been very successful.

The borough will also derive a considerable amount from the sale of the former West End engine house which has been placed on the market.

Family Ousted From Barn.

Health Inspector William Pangborn, of the borough, yesterday dispossessed the family of William McIntosh from their home in a barn at the corner of Mountain and Westervelt avenues. The building was condemned by the Board of Health some time ago and McIntosh was notified to leave it. He failed to do so and yesterday's ejectment followed.

Rev. A. E. Finn to Lead.

Rev. A. E. Finn will be in charge of the meeting at the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, this evening. Those from the Park Avenue Baptist church who intend going are asked to take the 7:30 trolley from the Watchung avenue terminus.

Nathan E. Titsworth, of Madison avenue, will return this week from Utica, N. Y., where he has been conducting a test for the Babcock, Wilcox Boiler Company.

COAL PRICE SOON TO RISE

DEALERS UNABLE TO AGREE ON PRESENT RATE OF ANTHRACITE.

During the past few weeks many Plainfielders have taken advantage of the present price of coal and have had their bins filled with anthracite for the coming winter. The retail price is now $6.25 and it will not be long before there will be another raise to $6.50. This will probably be the prevailing price for the fall and winter unless the miners make trouble, which is hardly probable.

Of late, the local dealers have had less trouble in getting their usual supply and the quality of coal is much better than formerly. Last winter in some instances a poor quality reached this city and not a few consumers experienced difficulty in keeping their homes comfortably warm. The coal thus far received is much harder and is likely to give far better satisfaction.

It is understood that some of the dealers have been unable to agree on present prices, although several conferences have been held. It is quite likely though that some agreement will be reached before long and all will be selling at the uniform rate. Ever since the last big coal strike there has been a feeling among some dealers and it does not take much of an effort to renew hostilities.

IN THE CHRISTIAN FIELD

WORK IN THE CHURCHES OF THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, is planning to take his annual vacation in August.

As a result of the offering taken at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Sunday night the sum of $80 was received for the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home. The home is now in full swing and the host of children and mothers from New York are having a good time in the country.

Rev. Dr. J. L. Hurlbut, formerly of this city, but now of South Orange, has been one of the principal speakers at the ten days' course of lectures given at Ocean Grove under the auspices of the Sunday-school Assembly, and according to his words a Sunday-school teacher must be a believer, a church member, bible student and a friend of scholars. These he considers as absolutely necessary for successful teaching.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

The officers-elect of Star of Plainfield Lodge, Shepherds of Bethlehem, were installed last night.

One candidate was initiated at last evening's session of Plainfield lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E. No further meetings will be held this month and only one during August. As a usual thing Elk lodges suspend all sessions during hot months.

Among the Plainfielders who are members of Salaam Temple, Ancient Order Mystic Shrine, of Newark, are Dr. D. C. Adams, Caspar Bolsterle, W. A. Coddington, W. R. Codington, B. Frank Cerieli, Matthew H. Fwart, Douglas Lane, George M. Macintyre, H. W. Marshall, F. L. C. Martin, Robert A. Meeker, Edward Sebring, H. M. Stockton, R. D. Williams, Henry Woodland and L. B. Woolston. There are a number of others who have recently become members, but their names have not yet been compiled.

MUST ANSWER GRAVE CHARGE

YOUNG MAN IS ARRAIGNED IN JUSTICE MATTISON'S COURT.

On a criminal charge preferred against him by Miss Romie Giles, of Grove street, Edward Grannatt, of West Fourth street, was arraigned before Justice Mattison, in the borough, today. The plaintiff was represented by William Newcorn, Esq., while Grannatt retained Francis J. Blatz, Esq. Following a conference of the counsellors, the court granted an adjournment in the matter until Monday morning.

Grannatt returned a few days ago after a trip to Panama as one of a guard for a government shipment of gold. He was placed under arrest soon after reaching home.

Off on An Auto Lark.

Edward Laing, of East Front street, took Detective McCarthy and V. W. Nash, Jr., for a pleasure outing to Lake Hopatcong in his big auto yesterday. Each member of the party was given opportunity to speed the machine on the excellent pike roads, but 'tis said Mac did his best to keep the car within the speed limit going through towns.

Farmer Orator Martine, of Plainfield, emerges from the corn fields long enough to predict that Parker will carry New Jersey. It will be remembered that Mr. Martine firmly established his reputation as a political prophet four and eight years ago, upon both of which occasions he confidently asserted that New Jersey would give its electoral vote to Bryan.—Newark News.

CAPT. MARTIN'S BOYS MARCH BY IN REVIEW

Co. K Takes Part in Governor's Day Attraction at Sea Girt Camp.

NOTES OF THE DAY

PLAINFIELDERS' CAPTAIN IS CHOSEN OFFICER OF THE DAY.

Franklin Murphy and Gen. Miller on the Scene—Corporal Whitney Reprimanded—Private Douglass' Leave.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Sea Girt, N. J., July 15—The Second Regiment distinguished itself yesterday, "Governor's Day," when the regiment was reviewed by Gen. Henry Miller, of the Pennsylvania National Guard, and Governor Franklin Murphy. There was a large contingent of politicians from all parts of the State, and the crowd which viewed the ceremony consisted of several thousand persons.

There were many in camp from Asbury Park, and a large number of residents of Plainfield were here to see the boys of Company K march in review in splendid line. The regiment presented a handsome appearance in khaki suits and the men marched as steady as veterans. Colonel Collins was more than pleased with the showing of the regiment, and he was highly complimented by General Miller.

When Colonel Collins wanted a good man to act as officer of the day he selected Captain William B. Martin, of Co. K, yesterday, "Governor's Day." This is a signal honor for the captain, which, of course, is shared by the Plainfield Company. Captain Martin is one of the most popular men in the regiment, and has hosts of friends

It has leaked out that the reason that Private Douglass has gone home is that he expects to be married Saturday night. His friends say they will serenade him upon their return home.

One of the most disappointed men in camp is Corporal Bilyeu. He came down expecting to do a lot of active field work, but he has been laid up and unable to do any drilling at all.

Corporal Whitney and Private Davis were at Asbury Park the other night and had to run the guards. Whitney was captured and reprimanded.

The regiment was formed in "line of companies" shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and Governor Murphy and his staff and General Miller rode along the front of the regimental line while the men stood as firm as statues. Then the regiment was faced to the right, and marched in review. The companies came to the end of their streets and stood at attention while "The Star Spangled Banner" was played.

It is expected that the regiment will leave camp on Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock, and Company K will reach home between 4 and 5 o'clock that afternoon.

Corporal Phillips reported for duty today as he was unable to leave his business when the company came down. However he has sent a can of fine milk to the company every day, and his generosity has been highly appreciated by the men.

The following former members of Co. K were in camp yesterday: Sergeant Robert M. Clark, of the First Regiment; Sergeant Masker, Privates A. E. Galloway, Frank Stiglitz.

Stir in Camp.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

State Camp, Sea Girt, July 15—Somewhat of a stir was caused in camp here Tuesday by a story going the rounds about a man formerly a captain in the Second who was compelled to resign from his command on account of being unpopular, his rank was reduced and he was made an officer in another department of the regiment. Now the story that he has been relieved from actual duty is being circulated though the camp by a good authority.

Alumni to Have An Outing.

Rev. Father Egan, of St. Mary's church, has arranged to give the alumni of St. Mary's school an outing at Lake Hopatcong some time next month. He will accompany the participants to the pretty water sheet and will have assistants to see that the day's programme is properly carried out.

Hello No More.

According to a new order, the telephone girls are not now required to give you the familiar "Hello" when answering your call. She simply says "Number?" or "Number, please?"

INCORPORATED AUTO GARRAGE

PLAINFIELD CONCERN STARTS WITH $25 000 CAPITAL.

The Plainfield Auto Garrage was incorporated yesterday, the incorporators being Joseph B. Loughead and Andrew Wilson and the capital stock is $25,000. The concern has leased the entire first floor of Washington Hall building in West Second street, where it will carry on a general auto business. Two stores in front, as well as the first floor comprising 100 square feet will be used. One of the stores will be handsomely fitted up as a waiting room for women, who have occasion to remain here while their autos are being fixed or cleaned.

It is proposed to make the place the most complete of any in the State, and there will be nothing in the repair line of autos or bicycles that cannot be done here. Special machinery has been purchased and the concern will be prepared to make all special parts for autos or bicycles.

A feature will be an independent electric plant, which will furnish lights for the establishment, and will also be used for charging electric machines. There will also be an equipment for charging gasolene machines. In the day time when the dynamo is not being used for lighting purposes electric machines will be charged direct.

Extensive repairs are now being made to the building and in a short time the new company will be ready for business. Mr. Loughead will have charge of the plant. A large space will be reserved for the storage of machines.

TOMORROW'S SPORT SCHEDULE

EVENTS TO TAKE PLACE ON THE DIAMOND AND ON THE LINKS.

There will be the usual programme of sports for tomorrow to attract lovers of baseball and golf, several strong events having been arranged. Alls will cross bats with the New York Colored Giants. The locals have been reorganized with four new players of recognized ability. Smith, Courtney, Cusick and Dietrich, all formerly of the Murray Hills, will be seen wearing the Alls uniform. Smith will be the new captain. He is rated as a fine player and as a coach he is believed to have few equals.

Davis will probably pitch tomorrow against the colored team. If he makes good, no doubt he will be retained.

This is the lineup:

Farmer, c; Smith, 1b; Cusick, 2b; Walton, ss; Courtney, 3b; Oregan, lf; McCoey, cf; Dietrich, rf; Davis, p.

Another contest of interest will be the one between Clinton Avenue and Garwood on the home grounds. Both teams are strong and a close game should result. At Westfield, the locals will meet the Aeolians for the third time this season. Thus far Westfield has lost all the contests.

In golf there will be the final play for the club championship at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup. The finals for the consolation cup will take place. The Saturday evening dances at the club have become so popular that the trustees have decided to continue them through July. A stage will meet the trolley cars in the afternoon and evening.

At the Park Golf Club there will be the weekly competition for the President's and Park Golf Club cups. Interest in this competition is constantly increasing and the contest for honors is very close.

The Governors' competition and a scratch event will be the attractions at the Westfield Golf Club. The Governors' competition is one of the events of the season and will continue until fall.

Chicken Thieves at Work.

Edward Schenck, of New Market, had nearly sixty chickens stolen from the coops at his hennery night before last. The thieves must have been in force or conducted operations most scientifically, for they made a clean sweep, leaving nothing in the coops but two roosters.

A New Creamery.

John I. Brokaw will open a first class creamery at 186 East Front street tomorrow morning. He has fitted this store up with all the latest improved dairy machinery and invites the public to call. See advertisement in this issue.

Miss Edna VanCleef, of East Millstone, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Walter C. Dobbins, of West End avenue, returned home yesterday.

CONEY ISLAND BOAT RAMS THE BOUND BROOK

The Cetus Crashes Into Central Jersey Railroad Ferryboat Off Liberty Street Slip.

WILD ALARM ABOARD

PASSENGERS ON FERRYBOAT RUSH FOR LIFE PRESERVERS.

Forward Cabin of Bound Brook is Smashed—Each Captain Blames the Other—No One Badly Hurt.

Heavily laden with homeward bound commuters, many of whom were from this city, the New Jersey Central ferryboat, Bound Brook, was rammed by the Iron Steamboat Company's steamer Cetus, just outside the Liberty street slip, New York, at 6:15 last evening.

Both vessels were under good headway, the Cetus particularly, and as a result the ferryboat was badly damaged. The Cetus' stem cut through her guard on the port bow and penetrated so far as to block the entrance to the women's cabin. A great amount of the frame hood along the cabin was torn away, leaving a hole of fifteen or twenty feet in length. The deckhouse of the ferryboat was also badly damaged but after backing away it was found she could proceed to Communipaw.

The only damage sustained by the Cetus was a sprung bow and it continued up the river. It was making trips to Coney Island, today, as usual.

When the crash occurred, the passengers were thrown into a panic and the majority of them rushed for the life preservers. The women's screams could be plainly heard on shore but the deckhands hurried about and informed them that there was no danger. So far as known, no one was hurt beyond a few bruises.

Captain Griffin, of the Bound Brook, declared he sounded the usual warning whistle as he drew away from the slip, but the captain of the Cetus and his pilots say they heard none. There is a long pier at this point and the ferryboat could not be seen until it swung out directly in front of the pleasure craft. According to marine rules, the Cetus should have been 500 feet out in the stream but she was instead hugging the piers and was also going twice as fast as she should.

The Bound Brook is regarded as the "hoodoo" boat of the Central's ferry fleet, having met with numerous accidents since she was placed in service.

SALE UNDER MARTIN ACT

WITH ONE EXCEPTION OWNERS OF PROPERTIES PAY TAXES AND ESCAPE.

Collector F. H. Smith concluded the Martin Act tax sale for 1903, yesterday afternoon, there being seventeen properties to be disposed of. In the case of sixteen of these properties the owners paid the taxes and retained possession of their homes. One property was sold, that of Mrs. Arabelle Collier, at 140 and 142 East Sixth street. It was bought by the mortgagee, Abram B. Dunlap, for $65.55.

The sale clears up the Martin Act business for last year. There was a small attendance at the sale and the business was transacted with dispatch.

Colored Educational Meeting.

Rev. R. D. Stimson, commissioner of Morris Brown College, Atlanta, Georgia, conducted an educational mass meeting at Mount Olive church last evening. Dr. Stimson was introduced by the Rev. H. C. Ashley, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church, of this city. The speaker of the evening, when introduced, spoke at length of the work of Morris Brown College as a manual training school for the colored people of the South. At the conclusion of the address, there was a prayer by the Rev. Mr. Ashley and an offering was taken.

FOXY GAME PLAYED ON PROPERTY OWNERS

West End Avenue Residents Claim to be Victims of a Clever Land Deal.

BUY IN THE TRACT

GROUND IN RESIDENTIAL SECTION ADVERTISED AS FACTORY SITE.

Rather Than Have Their Own Properties Depreciate in Value it is Said They Secure Control of Adjacent Land—No Danger Now.

Several well-known residents of West End avenue and owners of property on that thoroughfare have recently awoke to the realization that a short time ago they were made the victims of a very clever land deal. By means of an innocent advertisement inserted in a daily paper they were led to believe that their quiet precincts were to be invaded by factories which would naturally tend to depreciate the value of their homes. The more they became convinced this was to be done the more they determined to offset it and as a result they did just what was wanted of them—they banded together and secured control of the property They chuckled quietly and confided to friends that they had effected a clever move but the former owner of the sites slyly winked one eye and said nothing.

The land in question was advertised for sale and a small note suggested that it would be an excellent location for factory buildings. As there are many handsome residences nearby the aristocratic owners realized the only way to prevent its sale for such a purpose was to buy it themselves and this they decided to do. The price placed upon it was very fancy but spurred on by the thought of ugly, brick buildings and tall chimneys the residents soon came to terms with the owner. The money was paid over and to make doubly sure that no manufacturing plants would locate in that vicinity work was commenced on the erection of good-sized dwellings.

Now that the facts are out, the buyers are inclined to be a little chagrined but they are partially compensated for their over-zealousness by the knowledge that West End avenue is practically safe from factory invasion.

HIS SISTER-IN-LAW MUST PAY

BENJAMIN RUCKMAN WINS SUM CLAIMED FOR CARRYING MAIL.

Benjamin Ruckman, who brought suit against his sister-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Jane Ruckman, for the sum of $64 32, won his claim at Justice Huff's court yesterday afternoon. On the death of his brother, who was employed by the postoffice as mail carrier to Gallia and Watchung, Mr. Ruckman assumed the duties until the appointment of a successor, carrying the mail during the months of October, November and December.

The amount sued for is his wages for this work. Decision was rendered in his favor, but bond was put up for the appeal of the case at Elizabeth at the fall term of court. Coddington & Swackhamer represented the plaintiff and Hetfield & Hetfield the defendant.

ON RIOT DUTY.

Company A, of Trenton, Rushed to Burlington to Preserve Order—Serious Trouble Expected.

Camp Franklin Murphy, Sea Girt, July 15.

Governor Murphy ordered Co. A, of Trenton, to proceed at once to Burlington to prevent any rioting there Hurry orders were given at once and the soldier boys started under the command of Captain McCullough. Word comes from Burlington that there is eminent danger of enraged citizens lynching the negro fiends who assaulted Mrs. Biddle. The feeling has reached an intense stage and serious trouble is expected. A. T.

Successful Operation.

Miss Loretta Flanagan, of West Fifth street, who underwent an operation for appendicitis on Monday, is reported on the road to recovery. The operation, which was performed by Doctors Endicott and Boone, has been entirely successful and the young woman will be about again in a short time.

There is a rumor that Deegan, the deaf mute pitcher, is to join the twirling staff of the Alls team.

THREE MEN NARROWLY ESCAPE SUDDEN DEATH

Collision Between Big Van and a Trolley Car Nearly Results in Fatal Consequences.

TRIO ARE INJURED

TWO ARE PITCHED HEADLONG FROM WAGON'S SEAT.

Horses Badly Hurt and Van a Wreck—Responsibility for Accident Not Placed—Front of Trolley Car Ripped Out.

In a collision which took place on West Front street, opposite Lafayette place, shortly after midnight, last night, three men were hurt, car No. 44, of the Netherwood line, was badly wrecked, and a furniture van belonging to Max Kollman, of Paterson, was all but demolished. The impact was terrific as the car was on its way to the barn and was being sent along at a high rate of speed. The horses were thrown down and with the vehicle were shoved along 100 feet, being in under it when assistance arrived.

Motorman Henry Fleck saved himself from serious injury if not death by leaping back into the car after he had reversed the power, but as it was he received several very bad cuts. Kollman and his driver, Jacob Breem, who were on the front seat, were pitched headlong into the street and the fact that they escaped with their lives is considered miraculous. Kollman fell beneath the wagon and one wheel passed over his leg, but by presence of mind he avoided the car. Breem was thrown to one side and landed against the street curb. Both he and his employer were cut and bruised in a dozen places and Kollman's leg was sprained. Both horses were in a pitiable condition and although they were removed to a nearby barn it is possible they may have to be shot.

Responsibility for the accident has not yet been placed. Fleck declared last night that he did not see the truck until almost upon it and he then only had time to reverse the power and jump back after shouting a warning. Kollman and his driver stated that there was no bell sounded and the first they knew of the approaching car was when it was directly upon them. The conveyance is one of the small, closed affairs with a light on top and it is almost useless to the motorman.

The truck was on the way from Paterson to Belle Mead with a load of furniture and the latter was scattered all along the street from Lafayette to Oxford place. The entire front of the car was ripped off and the glass on all sides was shattered.

DELAY COURT HOUSE WORK

THREATENED STRIKE OF STEAMFITTERS CAUSES ALARM AT ELIZABETH.

Work on the new Union County court house at Elizabeth, is again in danger of being held up on account of strike of the National Association of team and Hot Water Fitters.

All the Elizabeth steamfitters are members of a Newark local because no local has ever been established there. Owing to a disagreement with employes Local No. 40 has ordered a strike. The fitters want a wage scale of $3 50 a day for forty-four hours a week. The bosses say this would be equivalent to an increase of $140 per year in wages to fitters and helpers. Local No. 40 has jurisdiction over the National Pipe Fitters of Newark and Elizabeth.

The Elizabeth fitters have not yet gone out, but the contractors are apprehensive of a strike. The superintendent said that he did not think there was danger of a strike in Elizabeth.

Enjoying Time Abroad.

Letters dated at Norway have been received from the members of Honeyman's European tour and show all members to be recovered from the effects of the sea voyage and ready for the land sight-seeing. From Norway, the tourists will journey to Scotland, where they will spend several days at Edinburgh.

Dilts Not Likely to Recover.

John Dilts, the employe of the Public Service Corporation, who fell off a car on East Front street, Wednesday morning, fracturing his skull, remains in the same critical condition. His chances for recovery are not considered good.

HELD HIM FOR GRAND JURY

JUSTICE HAND IS RELEASED ON HIS OWN RECOGNIZANCE.

On complaint preferred against him by John B. Hubbard in behalf of his wife, Kate Webster Hubbard, Justice H. K. Hand was arraigned in Justice Nash's court last evening, charged with assault. After a trial lasting several hours the defendant was held in his own recognizance for appearance before the Grand Jury.

The alleged assault was stated to have taken place in the accused's office on June 11 last but complaint was not made until July 2. To substantiate her charge Mrs. Hubbard's counsel, V. W. Nash, Jr., produced two witnesses, Game Warden C. M. Hawkins, of Elizabeth, and Andrew Love, Jr. Justice Hand entered a denial of the complaint and witnesses testified that the plaintiff was intoxicated at the time of the alleged occurrence and also that she had been acting in an unseemly manner with Hawkins and Love just previous to it.

Assisting in the proceedings was Paul Oliver, Esq., of Westfield, in the interests of Prosecutor English, who was personally requested by the defendant to investigate the charge. This is the first time on record where the defendant in a criminal case has asked for the prosecutor's action in order to fully clear himself but the charge was of such a nature that Justice Hand desired a clear vindication which he confidently expects from the Grand Jury.

Justice Hand was represented at the hearing by Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., and Assemblyman Swackhamer.

PHILLIP MAGUIRE PROMOTED

P. S. C. ADVANCES HIM TO POSITION OF DIVISION SUPERINTENDENT.

Phillip Maguire, of West Fourth street, who has been local superintendent of the Plainfield trolley lines, received word from the P. S. C. headquarters this morning that he had been promoted to division superintendent, succeeding Frank Brown. His office will be at Picton and he will have charge of the lines between Plainfield and Elizabeth and Westfield and Sewaren. The position is an important one and the fact that it was awarded Mr. Maguire shows how his services have been valued.

Former Division Superintendent Brown will have charge of all the P. S. C. lines in Union, Middlesex and Somerset counties and Mr. Maguire's place will be filled by Frank C. Southard, of Elizabeth.

INNOVATION AT TRINITY

Church Consistory Orders Individual Communion Cups at a Special Meeting.

In the entire membership of Trinity Reformed church only three persons signified any objection to the introduction of an individual communion service, the result of a canvas of the congregation on the question being laid before the consistory last night by the committee appointed to investigate the subject. This committee was composed of three members of the consistory and three members of the Ladies' Christian Work Society, an auxiliary of the church. Their work was done systematically and an opportunity given every member of the church to express his personal views.

As there are approximately 600 members in the congregation, the consistory did not hesitate to direct that an order be placed at once for a suitable service of individual cups. The design has already been selected and the cost will be borne by the Ladies' Christian Work Society.

It is announced the individual cups will be used for the first time at the communion service in October and the consistory is confident that the innovation will prove very satisfactory to the congregation.

Baseball Dispute Arbitration.

City Judge William N. Runyon, representing the Alls Club, and a representative from the Westfield Club, it is said, will meet at the Hotel Kensington, at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night, for the purpose of considering questions relative to the Alls-Westfield disputed contest of Saturday, June 11. It is now reported that the two representatives will arbitrate, instead of three, as called for in the agreement. According to the agreement the two representatives must choose a third disinterested party, but the present arrangement appears to be that if the two men cannot settle the trouble then a third man is to be called in.

PLAINFIELD LADDIES MEET CRUSHING DEFEAT

Team From City of Churches Beat Local Aggregation to the Tune of 17 to 2.

CROWD AT THE OVAL

SUPPER AT HOTEL WALDORF FOLLOWING THE GAME.

City Judge W. N. Runyon and Chief T. O. Doane Are Heard at the Feast—Prospects of Another Game at Brooklyn.

By the modest score of 17 to 2, an aggregation of ball players from the ranks of the local firemen was made to realize by a team of Brooklyn fire fighters yesterday afternoon, that they had lots to learn about playing the National game. The slaughter took place on Crescent Oval and not for a minute did the Plainfield end have a ghost of a show, greatly to the disappointment of a large crowd of sympathizers.

In the first inning the Brooklyn boys had an old-fashioned swatfest and the way they fell on "Tommy" Keeffe's curves was a caution. It must be understood at the beginning that "Tommy" was never a fireman until yesterday but neither was the Brooklyn pitcher or catcher, so it's all right as long as no one objects. Six runs were piled up before Chief Doane's rank and file stopped chasing all over the lot after the leather and came in for a try at batting. The visitors put a twirler in the box who said his name was Ward but forgot it two or three times and had to be reminded of the fact. He knew his business, however, and Plainfield only touched his delivery up for three hits, two of them made by Captain Townley and the other by "Cy" Jaeger. But two men got all around the bases and nobody knows just how they did it.

When it was Brooklyn's turn at the bat, the ball was out in the hay field most of the time and "Chuckie" Cline, "Dory" Larew and Frank Kesselring, who were supposed to cover right, center and left garden, complained of overwork. Kavanagh, of the Brooklyns, was especially hard on them and one time made a circle of the bases before the ball was returned. There were some plays made that set the rooters in a high state of glee and all in all they got their money's worth.

The two teams were made up as follows: Plainfield—Young, ss; McCabe, c and 3b; Daly, 1b; Townley, 2b; Keeffe, p, Jaeger, 3b and c; Cline, lf; Larew, cf; Kesselring, rf. Brooklyn—Stamm, ss; Kavanagh, 3b; Ward, p; Alphonson, cf; Norwood, 1b; DuFlon, 3b; Weber, lf; Hederman, rf; Atwood, c. "Doc" Doyle officiated as umpire and so far as known made no enemies.

Following the game, victors and vanquished adjourned to the Waldorf Hotel, where Plainfield acted as host for the visitors. An excellent supper was served and at its conclusion there were songs and speeches galore. Among those who lifted their voices in vocal melody were City Judge William N. Runyon, John Todd and Frank McCabe. Chief Doane, Captain Townley and other Plainfielders made addresses and the Brooklyn response was undertaken by Captain DuFlon, who accepted Captain Townley's challenge. It is probable that the teams will meet again in the near future over in Brooklyn.

J. H. TIER, SR., HURT.

Thrown Against Flywheel of Machine and Received a Scalp Wound.

John H. Tier, Sr., of Bank place, is suffering with a severe scalp wound received in an accident at his ice cream manufactory a few days ago. He considers himself fortunate in getting only this injury as for an instant it promised to be much more serious.

Mr. Tier was walking about the place wearing rubber boots and had occasion to step in a pool of water near the machine used in making cream. His feet slipped and he was thrown headlong against the flywheel which was revolving at a high rate of speed. Fortunately he struck in such a way that he was thrown back instead of being drawn in, otherwise he might have lost his life. The injury bled freely and Dr. Jenkins, to whose office he was hurried, found it necessary to insert a number of stitches.

Mrs. Josiah Browne, of Watchung avenue, is spending the summer months at Hensonville, Greene county, N. Y.

Somewhere in this paper it says something about going to the Y. M. C. A. for a swim and a shower bath after playing tennis. After this cooling treatment, you'll find that to be perfectly cool and comfortable again you need a glass of Hodge's soda. Right down stairs at the corner fountain, you know.

It will surprise you to know that at Roth & Co.'s meat market on East Front street you can get fresh fish and the best cuts of meats, as well as poultry at the lowest market prices. Take a look at his line of men's furnishings.

AMUSEMENTS.

The great Baltimore fire which laid waste acres of city blocks, destroying millions of dollars of valuable property and throwing out of work thousands of people, has been made the subject of a theatrical production and is now a new feature of entertainment at Dreamland, Coney Island. No catastrophy since the Chicago fire of years ago aroused public interest and sympathy to the extent that did the Baltimore fire. In two days the entire business section of the city was laid bare by the flames and to prevent the fire from entirely wiping out the city dynamite was used to raze buildings and stay the progress of the flames.

—If you go with the Trinity Reformed church Sunday school on its annual excursion to Asbury Park on Thursday, July 21, you will have one of the best times of your life. A full day at the popular seashore resort will greatly benefit you and the bracing salt air will be a fine tonic.

MADE HIS MARK OUT WEST

S. C. LINBARGER HAD ARISEN TO POSITION OF PROMINENCE IN CALIFORNIA.

Silas Clark Linbarger, a brother of Walter Linbarger, of the borough, whose death occurred on Monday, July 4, at his home in San Jose, Ill., was well-known here, having been born at Martinsville, March 8, 1856. He went to San Jose in 1876 and a year later entered the employ of Cunningham & Chestnut, proprietors of a general store. On October 21, 1879, he was married to Miss Rose C. Leoni and to this happy union were born five children, four sons and one daughter. Miss Leo and Master Carl, with the devoted wife, an aged mother, one sister and three brothers, all except the immediate members of his family residing in the East, survive him.

Mr. Linbarger was a man of exceptional judgment of matters pertaining to business and his advice was much sought after. He held many responsible positions in public trust and for individuals. His relationship as the cashier of the San Jose State Bank has shown his marked ability as a financier. He was the leading man in organizing the bank and has had most of the management of it ever since. As a citizen he was always looked upon as the best, always having the welfare of the public at heart.

For several years Mr. Linbarger was Mayor of San Jose, and while in that office managed the affairs of the city as he would his own private business. At the time of his death he was a consistent member of the M. E. church and he was also a member of several lodges, including the Masons. At the funeral services held on the Thursday following the day of his death the Masonic lodges were in charge.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile a minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths, leading to cool and delightful places. On July 17 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:50 and the round trip will cost but $1 50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes. 7 15 2

SIX CARLOADS CAME

Democrats Celebrate Parker's Nomination at His Home.

BELMONT, COCKRAN, M'CARREN, RODY

Rosemount En Fete — Judge Gets Great Ovation—Senator Linson Made a Speech of Congratulation.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 15.—Congressman Bourke Cockran, August Belmont, William S. Rody, Senator McCarren of the Democratic state committee and six carloads of enthusiastic friends and admirers of Judge Alton B. Parker came down to Rosemount to celebrate the judge's nomination by the Democratic party for the presidency of the United States.

Most of those who came were Democrats, but there were not a few old Republican friends of the judge, and the celebration was designed to be nonpartisan in character. There were many women in the crowd.

Headed by the First regiment band of Kingston, the visitors marched to Rosemount and gave Judge Parker a rousing ovation. The speech in behalf of the visitors was made by former State Senator John J. Linson of Kingston.

The feature of the occasion was the visit of Belmont, Cockran, McCarren and Rody. The subject of the conference, which was held after the arrival of the visitors, was not largely disclosed.

Congressman Cockran was asked if he would take the stump for Judge Parker.

"Is it necessary to ask that?" he replied.

He said that he would support the ticket with his whole heart any way that appeared likely to help toward victory.

The conference of Judge Parker with Senator McCarren was held at the end of the veranda, and they were together in close conversation about an hour, after which Senator McCarren was driven back to the station with Mr. Hudson.

"It is only a question of the majority as I see it," said Senator McCarren after the conference. "The question of campaign funds will not play the part it has played in the past two campaigns. This time it is more a question of the man than of any issue, and the decision lies with the people absolutely. The sordid element will not be so much a feature as in the past.

"The minute I saw the gold dispatch, and I was with Mr. Sheehan when he received it, I said it was the right thing under the circumstances."

Asked about the Bryan utterances, Senator McCarren said that Bryan had pledged himself on the platform in the convention to support the ticket and that he believed Mr. Bryan would do so. This was all that Senator McCarren would say for publication.

Mr. Belmont would say nothing except that he was heartily for Judge Parker.

From what was said after the conference there is a strong impression here that Mr. Sheehan is no longer to be thought of in connection with the Democratic national chairmanship and also that those in the position of leadership do not regard the national committee as in any way bound to Thomas W. Taggart of Indiana.

It may be said with authority that the situation in New York city was not discussed in any of the conferences; also that if any one has been selected for the national chairmanship there is no reliable clew obtainable here as to who he is.

Before he left Senator McCarren intimated that he would return to Esopus some day next week.

French Shore Question Settled.

LONDON, July 15.—It has been learned that an agreement has been reached between the British and Newfoundland governments regarding the fishery regulations under the provisions of the Anglo-French colonial treaty. The final draft of these regulations, it is expected, will be signed today by Premier Bond in behalf of Newfoundland. The regulations constitute a compromise between the provisions enforced over the North sea fisheries and those now imposed by the Newfoundland government.

Miss Astor to Marry Guardsman.

LONDON, July 15.—The engagement of Mr. Astor's daughter, Pauline, to Captain H. H. Spender-Clay, formerly of the Second Life guards, is announced. Mr. Spender-Clay resigned his commission in the guards after the gambling scandals at Windsor in September, 1902. His father was one of the largest stockholders in the Bass Brewing company and left an immense fortune.

Police Saved Peter Maher.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Peter Maher and Jack Williams started a six round bout at the Broadway Athletic club last night, but it lasted less than two rounds. Maher was knocked down four times in the first round and in the second was so wabbly and so badly used up that the police stopped the bout.

DEATH OF KRUGER.

Former Transvaal President No More an Exile.

OOM PAUL WAS A BORN FIGHTER

In Many Fierce Combats With Native Warriors of South Africa—He Was a Crack Shot — Will Be Buried in Transvaal Colony.

CLARENS, Switzerland, July 15.—Paul Kruger, former president of the Transvaal republic, is dead here from pneumonia and supervening heart disease. Mr. Kruger lost consciousness Monday. His daughter and son-in-law were with him at the time of his death. He had been out only once since his arrival here at the beginning of last month.

On several occasions Mr. Kruger expressed a desire to be buried beside his wife in his own country.

The ex-president's body was embalmed, and the remains will be placed in a vault pending funeral arrangements. Application will be made to the British government for authority to transport the remains to the Transvaal.

Stephanus Johannes Paulus Kruger, affectionately called "Oom Paul" by his fellow countrymen, was born at

PAUL KRUGER.

Rustenburg, South Africa, Oct. 10, 1825, and was therefore nearly seventy-nine years old at his death. His father was a typical Boer farmer of what was known as the "Dopper," or ultra conservative, class, and but little has even been published of the early life of the son. What education he possessed he obtained in the elementary schools of South Africa, and at no time did he care to add to his learning by reading.

He knew all about guns and hunting, and the "great trek" across the Orange river region in 1836-7, in which he and his father took part, taught him much about the land in which he lived.

From early youth Kruger was a fighter. He saw some of the bloodiest fighting that South Africa has ever known while still a boy, including battles between the Boers and the Matabele tribes under Maselikatse, father of the late Lobengula, as a result of which the natives were driven across the Limpopo river. In these fights young Kruger won a reputation for bravery and long headedness. While still in his teens he became a crack shot, and his running powers were the wonder of his companions.

In 1882 he was elected to the presidency of the Boer republic and was twice re-elected. He administered affairs with a power almost absolute and mainly with keen judgment and foresight. Up to the time of the last Boer war he held a record of never having committed a serious administrative blunder. It has always been an open question whether his rule resulted in good to the people or whether it established in the Boers the desire to hold all foreign settlers in subjection. The young men of the republic looked upon him as their leader for life, and even the uitlanders, who disliked him, had to admire his character. He has been called at various times "a saint," "a hypocrite," "an unselfish statesman," "a tricky politician," "a pure patriot," "an unscrupulous demagogue," "a devout Christian," "an old humbug," "a godly man" and "a tainted bribe taker."

To Rest In the Transvaal.

PRETORIA, Transvaal, July 15.—The flags on all the government buildings are at half mast. Mr. Kruger will be buried beside former presidents of the Transvaal unless his will has provided otherwise. Memorial services will be held next Sunday in all the Dutch churches. General Botha has ordered that all the Boers shall wear mourning until after the funeral, which it is expected will be attended by representatives of every district in the Transvaal colony.

Sultan Released Anghera Captives.

TANGIER, July 15.—Mohammed El Torres, foreign minister, has released the Anghera tribesmen who have been held prisoners at Tangier and Tetuan. The Anghera tribe is pleased with this action, which minimizes the danger of the kidnaping of Europeans.

Natural Gas at Branchport, N. Y.

PENN YAN, N. Y., July 15.—A remarkable flow of natural gas has been struck at Branchport, a short distance from Penn Yan. A pressure of at least 150 pounds was secured through a six and a half inch pipe.

JAPS' LOSS REDUCED

Russians Report 2,800 Killed and Wounded.

VLADIVOSTOK FLEET IS OUT AGAIN

General Kuroki's Scouts Have Appeared South of Liaoyang, Indicating a General Flank Movement on Haicheng.

LONDON, July 15.—Advices from St. Petersburg say that the people of St. Petersburg retired last night in a happy frame of mind. The absence of a dispatch from Lieutenant General Stoessel, commander of the military forces at Port Arthur, regarding the reported disaster to the Japanese is generally attributed to the delay in communicating official news owing to the absence of the emperor.

Private dispatches received in St. Petersburg from Russian sources in the far east confirm the reports from Mukden and Chefu. According to a usually reliable source the Japanese losses were 2,800 and the Russian losses 1,800.

The city remains in a ferment of excitement, and extras are eagerly bought up in the hope of finding the long expected dispatch from General Stoessel.

It is quite certain that there is no disposition in any quarter in St. Petersburg to question the truth of the news. There is a general conviction that as Viceroy Alexeieff decided to communicate the report to the general staff it must be true.

The war office had some hesitation in giving out the dispatch owing to its dubitative wording. It is contrary to the custom of the war office to publish statements made with such reserve as Viceroy Alexeieff thought fit to adopt.

The rejoicing in the Russian capital is increased by a foreign dispatch confirming the Japanese reverse. The question is eagerly asked if the Russians took advantage of the Japanese discomfiture to follow up the blow and inflict a crushing defeat, with possibly the capture of the siege guns.

The news that the Vladivostok cruisers and torpedo boats were out again filled the Russian cup of joy.

Emperor Nicholas and Grand Duke Michael have arrived at Samara and were cordially welcomed. The emperor reviewed the troops under orders for the far east and then visited the cathedral.

The Russian outposts apparently are not offering serious resistance on either of the Siuyen roads or along the line of General Oku's advance. There may be a slight collision at Tangchi, where General Kuropatkin probably has stationed his left wing rear guard. The Japanese are utilizing Kaichow to land supplies.

General Sacharoff also reports the appearance of General Kuroki's outposts considerably south of Liaoyang. This is an indication of a general flanking movement on Haicheng.

The Japanese northern outposts are falling back on Saimatsza, probably due to pressure on the part of General Rennenkampff.

A Tokyo report says that the Japanese have occupied Yinkow and that the 300 Russians who were in the town escaped with difficulty.

Robber Killed In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—One burglar was killed, another surrendered and a third made his escape and an eleven-year-old boy was wounded in the back late last night as the result of an attempt of the three men to rob the house of Harry Miller, 644 North Fifty-second street, West Philadelphia. The dead man is Frank Robinson of New York, and the captured burglar is Harry Smith of this city. Both are well known to the police.

Airship In Mediterranean.

MONTPELLIER, France, July 15.—Count de la Vaulx, the aeronaut, came to grief while attempting a flight in his dirigible balloon over the Mediterranean. Owing to a faulty start the balloon fell into the sea, and the motor was swamped. De la Vaulx is experimenting under the auspices of the government, which placed a torpedo boat at his disposal as a consort. The mishap followed successful trials made by the aeronaut.

Mayor Jones' Body Lies In State.

TOLEDO, O., July 15.—Thirty thousand people viewed the remains of the late Mayor Jones. The body was taken to Memorial hall and was viewed for ten hours by a constant throng of people moving two abreast. The hall was opened at 5:30 this morning, and the remains will lie in state until noon. A delegation of Cleveland city officials will be here to attend the funeral.

Injured by Boiler Explosion.

CANAJOHARIE, N. Y., July 15.—Fred Beard, the engineer in charge of an engine on the new sewer work here, and James Rose and Joseph Paranuchi, workmen, were severely injured by the explosion of the boiler of the engine. Paranuchi is probably fatally injured. Beard is terribly scalded. The engine was blown 300 feet from where the explosion occurred.

Death of Mary Boone.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 15.—Mrs. Mary Constantine Boone, a pioneer of Kansas City, is dead here at the age of ninety-one years. She was born in Quebec and came to Missouri in 1825. When seventeen years of age she eloped with Daniel Boone, a grandson of the Kentucky frontiersman.

Chinese Emperor Has Dysentery.

Plainfield, N. J., July 15, 1904.

The ferryboat Bound Brook figured in another accident yesterday. Ever since she was first put into commission the boat has been a hoodoo.

After Dr. Parker gave Miss Democracy the gold cure it was hoped that she was through, once and for all, with silver sprees, but judging from some reports from the West the Esopus man's remedy has not been entirely effectual.

Phillip Maguire well deserves the promotion given him by the Public Service Corporatoin. As local superintendent of the Plainfield lines he has worked hard early and late, and as a result the system has been considerably improved.

There is no particular reason why the Riverton Gun Club should not be allowed to go ahead and test the constitutionality of the pigeon law. It will be profitable to New Jersey, which will collect the amount of the fine, and to the Philadelphia "sports," who will receive a lesson in Jersey justice.

Hurrah for Captain Martin and Company K! Plainfield is justly proud of the ovation given the local militia at the Sea Girt review. For two seasons these soldier boys have won the regimental trophy for marksmanship and now they are winning applause for their drilling. It's the youngest company under Col. Collins' command and at the same time it is the best.

Responsibility for the accident on West Front street last night has not been placed but there is a strong suspicion that the motorman of the car was at fault. The head lights on the Netherwood cars are very poor and for that reason it is absolutely necessary that there be no attempt to make high speed, which in itself is a violation of the city ordinance. Just how fast the car was running at the time is not known, but the effect of the impact conclusively proves that it was moving swiftly. It was indeed fortunate that there were no passengers in the car at the time. A thorough investigation should be made and responsibility placed.

Celebrating His Return Costly.

William Wainwright, who formerly lived in this city, made a trip to town from his present home in Carteret, yesterday. The familiar old scenes must have had a powerful effect upon him for Detective McCarthy found him struggling along Watchung avenue hopelessly drunk. At court this morning, he pleaded guilty, acknowledging that he had taken too much, but pleading that he did not know its results. He was discharged with a warning, and immediately left for Carteret.

T. E. Edwards, of East Second street, is entertaining his brother, F. C. Edwards, of Bennington, Vt.

Judge Parker's now famous message to the Democratic National Convention insures for him the vote of all sound money Democrats. He will carry the Eastern States at least. With Parker on the national ticket, New Jersey has bright prospects of electing a Democratic governor, that is, if the right man is nominated."—Assemblyman Joseph T. Hague.

Ex-Senator Edward C. Stokes, the acting chairman of the New Jersey Republican State Committee, when asked yesterday what he thought of the nominations made at St. Louis, said: The personnel of the Democratic ticket seems to be unobjectionable. There is nothing that can be, or need be, said against the personal character of Judge Parker or ex-Senator Davis. Asked what he thought of Judge Parker's unnecessarily delayed telegram to the convention, Mr. Stokes replied: I know of no reason why Judge Parker, as the candidate of the Democratic party, should not publicly declare his views on any current question. General McClellan, when the candidate for President on the Democratic ticket, practically repudiated the platform in his letter of acceptance.

If stern moralists insist that Judge Parker could not have done less it may be pointed out that no man in like place in all our history has done so much, and none could have done it more simply and nobly. You, gentlemen of the convention, are silent upon the gold standard. I am irrevocably committed to it, and shall act upon that conviction if elected. If this be not to your liking you must choose another candidate. That, in effect, is what he says. It reveals the great strength of the man's character, the high quality of his mind. Above all, it shows that he has a conscience. He renounces the proffered distinction if it cannot come in honor and on conditions that leave his convictions unfettered. Judge Parker is today the object of the world's admiring attention. Whatever the convention may do—and at this hour it has not acted upon his telegram—Judge Parker stands before the country as a man whom every just-minded American must admit has proved himself worthy of the Presidency. He has won the confidence of the people.—New York Times.

Grand Trunk Express Derailed Near Gorham, N. H.

GORHAM, N. H., July 15. — The Grand Trunk express train from Montreal for Portland was derailed about one mile west of Gorham village owing to the spreading of the rails, the engine and four cars plunging down a thirty foot embankment. Mail Agent Thomas Johnson was probably fatally injured, his back being broken, while Conductor Delano sustained severe injuries, but is not believed to be fatally hurt. Two or three other trainmen suffered minor bruises, and all of the sixty or seventy passengers were badly shaken up, although none received serious injury except Joseph Howard, a circus bill poster, who had two ribs broken.

The train was a few minutes late and was running at a high rate of speed. Nearly all the cars had passed safely over the bridge which crosses Moose brook, when the engine, baggage, mail and two passenger coaches were thrown from the track, while the Pullman car at the rear of the train clung to the rails by its rear truck. The baggage and mail cars turned completely over in their descent, but the other two cars and engine remained upright, thus probably preventing a more serious result.

Johnson was buried under the wreck of his car, which, together with the baggage car, was completely demolished.

President Elmer H. Capon of Tufts college was a passenger on the wrecked train, but was uninjured.

KINGSLEY'S SAD FATE.

Body Identified Beyond Question. Death Due to Excesses.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The body of Henry Baxter Kingsley, who disappeared mysteriously on Nov. 14, which was found in the Harlem river at One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, has been identified beyond question by two men who viewed it at the Harlem morgue. Neither would give his name, one saying he was a relative of Kingsley and the other stating that he was attached to the office of the district attorney.

It is said that Kingsley's disappearance was due to a partial derangement as the result of drinking to excess. In this condition it is believed that the missing man wandered about until he fell into the water. Suicide may have been a possible cause of the man's death owing to his state of mind.

Mob After Ressler Murderers.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 15. — John O'Brien and Joseph Furman, alias Day, who, it is alleged, murdered the aged tollgate keeper, Samuel Ressler, near Lehman Place, on the night of July 1, after a sensational raid upon the village of Gordonville, arrived in Lancaster at 10:10 o'clock last night in the custody of Deputy Sheriff Zeigler and Detective Borger. A crowd of a thousand or more people had gathered at the Pennsylvania railroad station, and there was a remarkable popular outburst when the prisoners were taken from the train. The crowd made a rush for the murderers. A squad of policemen with drawn revolvers formed about them and clubbed their way to a waiting trolley car. The crowd attacked the car, pulling the trolley pole from the overhead wire. Excitement was at a high pitch, and it was only after driving back the angry crowd at pistol point that finally the car was got under way.

Blood Poison From a Bolo.

STERLING, Ill., July 15.—A poisoned Filipino bolo with which Mel Donichy of Sterling accidentally wounded himself as he was giving an exhibition in an amateur minstrel performance, has caused blood poison in a virulent form. The young man cut his hand slightly with the bolo, and the wound was dressed by a physician, nothing further being thought of the matter until Donichy began to lose flesh and to suffer from large eruptions on his body. The bolo was found to be covered with a poison, the exact nature of which has not been determined. The young man's condition has become serious.

Bryan on the Platform.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 15.—W. J. Bryan has made public the following statement relating to the Democratic platform adopted at St. Louis: "The plank on imperialism is positive, strong and satisfactory to the entire party, and this question becomes the paramount issue of the campaign. The tariff plank is good, but it was made so on a close vote in the committee and largely against the opposition of Mr. Parker's adherents."

Seven Drowned Near Meter, Va.

RICHMOND, Va., July 15.—A Warsaw (Va.) special says the Misses Helen, Ada and Harriet, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kemmon of Washington, together with Mrs. James Hubbard and child of Meter, Va., were drowned at Edgewater, near Meter, Westmoreland county, yesterday afternoon while bathing.

Refinery Destroyed In Jersey City.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Fire in the plant of the Uvalde Asphalt company in Jersey City last night destroyed the refinery building and caused a loss of about $50,000. One hundred and fifty men will be temporarily out of employment.

Fighters to Fight Mayor Weaver.

PHILADELPHIA, July 15.—Counsel for the Philadelphia Baseball Exhibition company, Ernest H. Crowhurst, sporting editor of the Evening Telegraph; Robert Fitzsimmons and Joseph A. Hagan, better known as "Philadelphia Jack O'Brien," have filed a bill in equity in common pleas court in their behalf against Mayor Weaver and Director of Public Safety Smyth, who is at the head of the police department, praying for an injunction restraining them from interfering with the Fitzsimmons-O'Brien bout, which is scheduled to take place Saturday, July 16, or Saturday, July 23. The bill was presented to Judge Audenreid in chambers, and he fixed 11 a. m. today for a hearing.

Racing at Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 15.—Hard fought finishes marked the third day's racing at the spring half mile meeting over the Narragansett park track. Two of the favorites captured first money, and in the second heat of the free for all The Bishop, 2:06, traveled the fastest race heat of the season over a half mile track, stepping in 2:09¾ and killing off his field yards before reaching the wire. Mart Demarest drove Truthful Chimes to the front in the 2:32 trot, but in no heat did he have a walkover, Belle C. and Nevina contesting the race right up to the wire. B. S. Dillon won a close race in the 2:16 pace, but was hard pressed by Captain Sampson.

All Favorites Won.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 15.—All four favorites, Liska, Ira Band, Jr., Kitty Glitner and Lizzie McCord, won their races at the closing day of the July meeting here. In each of the races the favorite had the speed of the party, and straight heats would have prevailed throughout the programme had not the horses that were picked to win made breaks in two of the heats. At the conclusion of the meeting the judges announced that May L. C., winner of the 2:32 class pace on the opening day and upon whom identification was asked, had not been identified to the satisfaction of the judges. Payment of the purse money was suspended.

Tradition Got the Winged Foot.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Six favorites won at Brighton Beach, and the ring suffered a heavy loss. The Winged Foot handicap, for two-year-olds, the feature of the card, was won easily by the favorite, Tradition, while Tongorder, coupled with the winner in the betting, ran third. Buttling and Bill Bailey II. made the pace to the stretch, where Burns brought Tradition up and won by four lengths. Bad News captured the fifth race easily by ten lengths from South Trimble.

California Colt Beaten.

CHICAGO, July 15. — Bearcatcher was defeated in the third and feature race at Harlem. The California colt had an unusually strong following and was a close second choice in the betting at 5 to 2. He took the lead at the start, but after going six furlongs quit badly and was next to last at the wire in a field of six. Phil Finch, closing favorite at 6 to 5, proved easily the best and won by two lengths. Emperor of India was second, a length in front of Edward Hale.

Just So Won the Feature.

ST. LOUIS, July 15.—Just So, on a track to his liking, easily won the feature of the racing card at the fair grounds. Jumping into the lead at the start, he showed the way home, passing the wire six lengths in front of his field. Copperfield, the odds on favorite, finished third, twelve lengths back. Copperfield pulled up lame after the race. Argosy, Colonel White and Leenja were the winning favorites.

Tennis Doubles at New York.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The invitation men's doubles round robin tennis tournament of the Country club of Westchester was continued. Kreigh Collins and R. D. Little defeated William J. Clothier and Edgar Leonard 6—2, 6—4, 1—6, 4—6, 6—2.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

MODES AND FANCIES.

Skirts Are Growing Fuller—Dainty Shoes Worn With Short Skirts.

Skirts are growing fuller than ever, and the train is gradually giving way to the round length even for dressy gowns.

Hats are either very small or else large and flat. The straight brim sailor trimmed simply with a crown of small flowers or a bunch of feathers is very smart.

The picture hats now in vogue go with the modes in dress. For instance, there is the cavalier shape, with the curious straight brim and the high crown, the whole trimmed with a single long feather. The black lace picture hat is very pretty both for blonds and brunettes. These black lace hats are decorated with flowers or feathers or, better still, twists of tulle. The idea seems to be to make them look as airy as possible.

Red shoes are being worn with morning gowns of linen and serge of the same color. Soft suede shoes in pale gray, tan and mouse color are also smart.

The coiffure of the moment is low and waved a trifle. It is simple and for that reason elegant. The hair is either worn divided or in a moderate pompadour.

The picture shows a wide French hat trimmed with large roses and applique laid crisscross on the brim.

WHAT IS WORN.

Blouses of Embroidery—Long Waisted Children's Frocks Revived.

Blouses composed of bright canary colored embroidery is a decided novelty, and these waists are most effective when supplemented by a black silk stock and a wide belt of black leather.

Nearly all children's frocks are fashioned with the long waisted effect, the little skirt being composed of a couple of frills headed by a sash. These sheer gowns are miracles of hand needlework and embroidery which often suffer cruel treatment at the hands of the small wearers. A more satisfactory garment is the dress of blue and white linen, embroidered just a little in the center of the front and caught in with a wide kid belt.

Tussore silk blouses embroidered with pale blue and white spots are likewise among the season's novelties. They are usually trimmed with tinted lace and strapped with blue or white silk.

The long coat of the moment is made of pongee, strapped with the same material or taffeta matching in shade. The collar and cuffs are of black silk or else some contrasting shade, either pale blue or green being particularly effective.

The hat of ecru lace trimmed with flowers or fruit is one of the smartest of the season. It is useful to wear with many gowns, also because separate wreaths may be made and attached lightly to the crown.

The picture shows a dotted grass lawn gown trimmed with black velvet bows. The hat worn with it is a particularly chic French creation.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

CHAPTER III.

It is a far cry from the African veldt, with its tragedies and its strenuous struggles for Nature's crude wealth, to the neighborhood of the most respectable Old Lady of Threadneedle street, yet under her beneficent shadow there are equally fierce strivings for financial prestige and power.

In a richly and newly furnished suite of offices in Mincing Lane there sat one morning a man whose word and fiat had in less than a year become a power in the "city." Upon the outer door was emblazoned in severely plain script the name "Rossiter Kane."

His outer office was besieged, even as early as ten o'clock, by a motley crowd—stock-brokers, promoters, solid men, with here and there a titled name, speculators, clerks, and messengers. The air teemed with suppressed excitement, and rumors of vast deals, enterprises of monetary pith and moment, flew from lips to eager ears. The weekly press printed the wildest gossip concerning the man, and even in the West End clubs one caught his name tossed and bandied about from group to group.

"Most astonishing personality," said the veteran stock-jobber, Marmaduke Ashby, to some of his cronies. "How much is he worth? Ask me something easy, dear boy; I know he cleared a hundred thousand in Tires alone. Everything he touches turns out well. Kane's lead is good enough for me!"

"Who is he, and where did he come from?" querried another, not so well informed.

"Says he's an American," was the answer, "but I know he came here direct from South Africa. He must have been in the diamond fields, for he marketed some of the finest uncut stones ever seen in Europe."

"Yes, and that makes me think of another funny thing," broke in young Lord Appleby; "he doesn't seem to know any of the African gang. Wonder if he was ever an I. D. B.?" these cabalistic letters standing for "illicit diamond buyer."

"Rot!" rejoined Ashby. "He doesn't belong to the Barney Barnato crowd, that's all. Everything he does is well done, and there's none of their heathenish display and barbaric 'push' about Kane. He's a gentleman at heart, whatever his origin, or I miss my guess. Why, he goes everywhere, and you'll find his name on the subscription list of every hospital and charity in London."

"I'd like to know how he does it," sighed young Appleby, who took an occasional flyer in stocks.

"Why don't you ask him?" said one of the group jokingly.

"I did," was the naive reply. "Says he, 'I've starved, I've tramped, I've almost begged, but things came my way at last!'"

"Sort of Orphic revelation, that," laughed Renniss. "Do you suppose it can be true?"

"Shouldn't wonder a bit; I'll wager a hat that those cool eyes and that smooth face have looked on some rare doings."

When Kane threw open his Park Lane mansion all the world and his wife flocked thither, no less to be seen than to see the enigma of a man who had literally captured the realms of fashion and finance single-handed.

As he stood to receive his guests, with polished ease, as though to the manner born, one saw a man five feet ten inches in height, of rather spare yet hardy frame, delicately chiselled features cleanly shaven as an abbe's, with hair closely cropped, slightly tinged with gray at the temples, and a pair of blue eyes that had a curious trick of dilating and contracting, of darkening and lightening, according to the mood that possessed their owner. In age he might be anywhere from 35 to 50.

On being presented to his host old General Scarlett remarked—

"They tell me you have been quite a traveler, Mr. Kane?"

"I have seen quite a little of the world," was the smiling reply, "but very few know the ups and downs that have fallen to my lot. I was born in America, but my father I never saw to remember him. I was a waif, an outcast of the Sierra camps, adopted by an old miner who had nothing to give me but his name and surname."

But for the interruption occasioned by the arrival of more guests Kane might have added that he had been a veritable Jack-of-all-trades—teamster, mail carrier, prospector, miner and gambler in that free-for-all country known as the "West." Drifting around the world to South Africa, he successively clerked in an up-country store, dealt faro and played the piano in dance-houses in Kimberley and Johannesburg, where he had also picked up some knowledge of the diamond country.

"How had he come by his wealth in diamonds?" Found them, like many another man, of course. Success had come to him very suddenly—a "strike," he called it—and then changed the subject.

Men sought his society for the market "tips" he could give; women liked him for the air of quiet power which pervaded every word and action.

Said one titled dame to some intimates over their afternoon tea:

"My dears, his house is a marvel of chaste elegance, and his weekly dinners are a dream! In his waking hours he is surrounded by crowds of clients, guests, or dependents. How he stands the pace is more than I can fathom, yet he is always smiling and debonair, cool and collected, and never at a loss for a timely word or a suitable remark. De Lacy says he seems equally at home with dowagers or debutantes, with dukes or cab-drivers, with money-kings or crossing-sweepers."

And it was true, every word of it.

One episode, widely reported at that time, throws a flood of light upon the character of this much-canvassed personage.

Kane had manipulated a big corner in "Cochineal Consols," one of the fancy stocks of the day, and had the market at his mercy. Among the "shorts" was a small speculator named Ackerly, who on more than one occasion had run foul of Kane and his schemes. When "settling day" came, Ackerly stood to be ruined if Kane chose to force matters. It so happened that his daughter, Rose Ackerly, who had been studying music, was to make her professional debut the same night at Queen's Hall.

Upon the eventful morning that would seal her father's fate she drove up to Kane's office and besought an interview with the great man. Her eyes suffused with tears, and her voice trembling with emotion, she begged the financier's indulgence for her father.

"Women should not meddle with such matters," was Kane's curt and stern comment. Then—

"Does your father know of this visit?"

"No, oh, no, sir," was the tremulous but evidently truthful reply.

"You must understand, I am sure, Miss Ackerly, that it is merely the fortune of war, and ordinary usage in the city is no respecter of persons," said Kane quietly, and then with a sudden change of manner and a genial smile he went on: "But such a sweet supplicant must not go unrewarded. You may leave it to me—your father shall not suffer."

He stopped her thanks with a wave of the hand, and then inquired:

"And how is your recital coming along? Can I be of any assistance there?"

"If you only would!" the girl began, timidly. "One needs so much influence in London, you know."

"Say no more," said Kane, quickly. "I see how it is; you shall have a good house."

Hardly was she gone, a new light shining in her pretty eyes, than Kane dispatched a messenger for 50 guineas' worth of seats, and put his secretary at work addressing notes to the more influential of his friends, begging their acceptance of the tickets enclosed, and bespeaking their attendance at the musicale. As a consequence, Rose Ackerly's fortune was made.

"I can be hard as nails," Kane said when taxed with soft-heartedness anent this performance; "Ackerly's a cur and richly deserved to be made to squeal; but every man should know how to temper justice with mercy. I've been in too many tight places myself not to realize how it feels to be jumped on!"

So there you have the unique personality, outward and inward, then newly launched in the cream of English society.

No smart function was complete without him, and in response to his own lavish entertaining in town during the season, he was deluged with invitations to visit some of the most exclusive country houses in England for the shooting season. Being a bachelor, "with not a relative in the world," as he said, he was naturally regarded as a big fish in the matrimonial swim, and might have married a titled beauty before the summer was over, thus reversing the accepted Anglo-American procedure in recent years.

In course of time Rossiter Kane's round of autumn visits brought him to Denecroft.

Three years had passed from the date of Richard Dysart's self-expatriation. Time had brought no outward change in the lives of those hitherto concerned in this story. Stella Dysart was still reigning mistress at Denecroft. Sir Arthur, as may be imagined, lost no time in putting the all-important question to Marcia Churchill, only to be met with a gracious but kindly refusal and the tidings that his brother had been beforehand. Thenceforward he remained single, nor showed no signs of transferring his affections elsewhere.

Marcia kept her troth, although little had been heard from the absent lad. A brace of letters in the first six months; then a long silence; finally a single impassioned appeal, enclosing his picture, for which she had asked, reiterating his undying love, begging her to wait for him, hinting at all sorts of bad luck, but intimating that a certain venture then impending would make or break him. After that, silence and suspense.

True to his word, Sir Arthur paid in £2,000 to Richard's credit at the family banker's, but it was never drawn against. Whatever he was doing, the boy was clearly determined to sink or swim by his own unaided efforts. The Baronet, on his part, felt too deeply wounded to write or make any overtures at a reconciliation.

So Marcia waited, her beauty enhanced and spiritualized by her faithful love and daily hope.

"He will come back," she said for the hundredth time.

"Of course he will," echoed Stella, for Rick had been her favorite brother, and in these latter days she and Marcia learned to love each other as sisters, and jokingly vowed to live together as old maids to the end of the chapter.

Rossiter Kane had met Stella Dysart in town, likewise Marcia Churchill. With the former he appeared to be at once empresse, and it would be hard to say which of the two girls liked him best. With Sir Arthur, too, he got along famously, for his was the happy faculty of adapting himself, chameleon-like, to the surroundings or the person with which or with whom he happened for the moment to be brought in contact. He could interest himself in Sir Arthur's old manuscripts and early Italian canzonets, although, as he quietly confessed to Stella, he had no personal appreciation of their beauty or their value.

"I started too late in life, Miss Dysart," he would say, "and what I need most is some kind person to take pity on me, become my mentor, and lick me into shape, as we used to say out west."

It needed no oracle to interpret the inference. Rossiter Kane, had the nomination been left to him, would have chosen his mentor then and there, and the post would have possessed a life tenure.

Evidently Kane's time had come at last, and he was hard hit. He had escaped the meshes and the machinations of managing mammas all through the season, only to surrender at discretion to this motherless girl whose thoughts were more for her absent brother than for the chances of picking up a husband.

And, then, of course, she had not known him very long or very well. But this was a matter that could readily be remedied by a mastermind, and Kane took care that Stella Dysart should have plenty of chance to become acquainted with him in the two weeks he spent under the Baronet's roof.

Day after day, although a splendid shot, he would decline to go out with the other guns; morning after morning found him at her side in long rides through the Dorset woods and uplands; night after night in the drawing-room he strove, like Othello, to awaken her interest by recounting strange tales of adventure by flood and field of which, it is but fair to say, he was only occasionally the hero.

Nor were his efforts wholly in vain. Stella Dysart was half-won when her curiosity was excited and her expectation aroused by the many moods of this extraordinary man.

From the instant of their first meeting, Rossiter Kane determined to win her for his wife. Thenceforward life had but one object for him, and if ever a pure and unsullied affection for a spotless maiden could redeem a man and lift him out of his lurid past, here was certainly such an occasion.

Akin to every other man born of woman, Rossiter Kane was a compound of good and evil, with the evil predominating at times, not from love thereof, but from force of circumstances.

A modern satirist has registered the truthful saying that it is easy to be virtuous on five thousand a year. Kane the pariah, the outcast, forced to live by his wits, took life at a vastly different view-point from Kane the millionaire. A change of fortune killed off the weeds, and gave the innate and dormant good in his character a chance to fructify.

If he could only have blotted out certain cruel memories of stratagems and spoils his present outlook would have been serene and full of promise.

NOTED FOR CONSERVATISM.

Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen Believes in Upholding Laws of the Country.

Cleveland (O.) Special.

The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen is the strongest numerically and the most aggressive of the various railway labor organizations. Although it has always worked along conservative lines, and endeavored to avoid strikes, on several occasions it has shown itself ready to fight if that became necessary. In that respect it may be said to be more of a trade union than any of the other railroad brotherhoods.

It was organized at Oneonta, N. Y., September 23, 1883, and in the 21 years of its existence it has probably as much to its credit as any organization of labor in the country. On a conservative estimate, when the reduction of hours of labor is taken into account, it may be said that the wages of men in the train and yard service controlled by this organization have been increased 50 per cent. since the organization was formed. It has agreements with every railroad in the country with the exception of four, with an aggregate mileage of 7,000 miles. Although the organization has insurance features which protect its members, it also maintains a defense fund of $300,000, to be used in case a strike becomes necessary.

P. H. MORRISEY.

The name is broad enough to include in membership any person connected with the running or handling of railroad trains, and there are those who look forward to the time when some of the other railroad organizations will be absorbed by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. No such step is contemplated by the officers themselves, as they work in perfect harmony with the other brotherhoods, but it may come about, nevertheless, with the more thorough organization of labor.

P. H. Morrisey, grand master of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, is admittedly one of the greatest labor leaders in the country. His orders to the men on the Wabash road last year, when a federal injunction was issued restraining them from going on strike, brought forth the approval of the whole country. "The law must be obeyed," was the substance of his orders, and the men remained at work until the injunction was dissolved, and by that time the management of the road decided the trainmen meant business and granted the demands. His speech at the Denver convention last year was much commented on, when he said he hoped the day was not far distant when the contract breaker would be looked on with as much disfavor as the strike breaker.

The headquarters of the organization are in Cleveland. It has 705 local unions, with a membership of something over 70,000. The amount paid out in death and disability claims during the month of April last was $101,783.95. Since the formation of the organization it has paid out in benefits, $9,460,118. The amount of insurance carried by the members in the organization is approximately $75,000,000.

St. Petersburg (Russia) Special.

The battle on the Yalu, like every other battle of moment, has not failed to mar reputations and to offer opportunity to new blood. Gen. Sassulitch, who is held to be responsible for the Russian defeat, has been relieved of the command of the Second Siberian army division. He had been replaced by Lieut. Gen. Count Keller, who recently resigned the post of governor of Ekaterinoslav in order that he might be able to go to the front.

STRIKE ARBITRATION.

Proposition From Strikers Brings Out a Counter Proposal.

CHICAGO, July 15.—The proposal made by Michael J. Donnelly for the strikers, in connection with arbitration conference, contains the following demands:

"That all employees who struck shall be employed in their old positions within three days; that the packers pay the wages prevailing prior to the strike, pending arbitration; that the arbitration board be composed of one representative of the packers, another of the strikers, the two to select a third, the three arbitrators to be practical packing house men; that the award in wages to be made by the arbitrators shall take effect from the time of the resumption of work, but that the award shall not involve any reduction in wages."

The representatives of the packers replied to Mr. Donnelly as follows:

"In reply to your note and your explanation of what you are willing to arbitrate we cannot accept the same. We are willing to arbitrate the whole matter, covering wages and working conditions of all employees out on strike. We will retain all now at work and will re-employ all the men now out as fast as possible, giving preference in the order of application at the wages received when going on strike, pending the decision of the arbitrators."

The note was signed by Armour & Co., Swift & Co., Nelson, Morris & Co.; Schwarzschild & Sulzberger, National Packing company, Cudahy Packing company and Libby, McNeil & Libby.

This counter proposal of the packers was submitted to the members of the executive committee of the union for their consideration.

Strike Breakers Smuggled In.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 15.—Between 100 and 200 men were smuggled into Swift & Co.'s plant at South St. Paul before daybreak, and 550 hogs and 75 cattle, about 15 per cent of an ordinary day's kill, were slaughtered. The company is hiring all available men to take the places of the strikers.

Davis Nominated For Governor.

WATERVILLE, Me., July 15.—Mayor Cyrus W. Davis of Waterville was nominated for governor of Maine at the Democratic state convention held in city hall here, notwithstanding the fact that when his name was presented he protested and announced his withdrawal. Samuel V. Gould of Skowhegan, who headed the Democratic state ticket last year, also was a candidate. The delegates declined to relieve Mr. Davis, and with great enthusiasm they placed him in nomination by a vote of 377 to 80 for Gould. On motion of Mr. Gould the nomination was made unanimous, and Mr. Davis, after conferring with the party leaders, announced that he would accept it.

Escaping Prisoners Kidnap Guard.

ESSEX JUNCTION, Vt., July 15.—Three prisoners at the military prison at Fort Ethan Allen have escaped and are now at large. A sentry who was in charge of them has also disappeared, and it is believed the prisoners overpowered him and carried him away with them. All of the men are privates in the Fifteenth United States cavalry. The prisoners are R. E. Catelle, F. P. Alien and D. A. Powers. The missing sentry is Lee Brown. Two of the men were sent to the military prison for "general worthlessness," while one of them was a recaptured deserter awaiting trial by court martial.

SPORTS AT CAMP CAHOONE

STUART FREEMAN WINS AQUATIC EVENTS AT LAKE HOPATCONG.

Camp Cahoone,
Lake Hopatcong, July 15.

The Y. M. C. A. boys are in the best of health and by the experiences of a fortnight, thoroughly hardened and adopted to the routine of life in the tents. The weather has been fine all along by day, though there have been heavy falls of rain at night. Life on the lake is of special attraction to the boys, and swimming, boating and fishing are the most popular pastimes. Bass, pickerel and perch are biting well, and several times the boys have turned excellent catches over to Kingslow, the camp cook.

A contest in aquatic sports was held on Wednesday. The events were a distance swim under water, swimming races, high dive, dive for form and dive for distance. In these events, Stuart Freeman won 18 out of a possible 25 points; Howard Freeman, 13; Byron McClintock, 8; Gus Stysheny, 4, and Edgar Freeman, 1. The quoit tournament resulted in victory for Arthur Perrin, with George Rittenhouse a close second. The boys are planning for an athletic meet to be held next week, and there will also be a rowing contest.

New arrivals at the camp are Victor Houston, Arthur Jeffery and Phillip VanArsdale. These will stay until the camp breaks up on next Tuesday. Among the visitors of the past week have been Mrs. Bellows and son, Stanley, Mrs. C. B. Leggett and daughter, Margaret, Mrs. Houston, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Pray, Mrs. Smith and son, John, Mr. and Mrs. Hart and daughter, Marjorie, Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. VanArsdale, and others from Plainfield.

TARGET PRACTICE AUG. 9

CO. K MARKSMANSHIP TRIALS AT SEA GIRT NEXT MONTH.

Camp Franklin Murphy,
Sea Girt, July 15.

Dates for the target practise of the Second Regiment on the camp rifle range have just been announced by Colonel Collins as follows: Companies C and I, August 8; K and M, August 9; A and B, August 10; D and E, August 11; F and L, August 12; G and H, August 15; field and staff, non-commissioned staff and drum corps, August 16.

William J. Browning, of Camden, the chief clerk of the House of Representatives, and a former major on General Cooper's staff, spent Wednesday in camp with Mrs. Browning. W. Kempton Browning, a son of Mr. Browning, is an assistant surgeon, ranking as first lieutenant in the Second Regiment.

Colonel Collins has been holding a tactic training-school for the regimental officers each evening in front of his headquarters. The colonel said he established the school at the camp two years ago, and that the results which followed them were most gratifying, and have been even better this year.

The quarterly meeting of the regimental board of officers was held Wednesday afternoon in Colonel Collins' quarters, with the colonel presiding and Adjutant Rogers acting as secretary. It was decided to affiliate with the National Rifle Association.

A school for the battalion officers is held each morning at the headquarters of the respective majors. These are informal, at which the work for the day is discussed, suggestions exchanged, and a course of action adopted.

Y. M. C. A. LIGHT PLANT.

Board of Directors to Own Their Electric System.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. last evening, it was decided to install an electric plant in the building in order to provide power for lights, fans and other purposes.

It will result in a great saving to the association as the building is in use every night and the lighting is an expensive item.

Death Followed Short Illness.

Following a short illness, Mrs. Mary E. Stelling died early this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Peter Merquilin, of Dunellen avenue. She was in her eightieth year and had resided in this vicinity for a long time. She is survived by one other daughter, a resident of Brooklyn. Funeral services over the remains will be private and interment will be made in Fairmount cemetery, Newark.

Mrs. D. N. Kapalje and daughter, Miss Winifred, of Carlton avenue, left today for Oxford, Chenango county, N. Y., where they will visit relatives.

Mrs. F. T. Woodhull, of West Front street, has returned from a stay at Atlantic City, much improved in health. Mr. Woodhull and sons have been spending this week at Lake Hopatcong. They will return home tomorrow

NO FUNDS TO MEET CHECK

PLAINFIELD BEEF COMPANY FOUND WM. FISHBAUGH'S CHECK "N. G."

The action of the Plainfield Beef Company against William Fishbaugh, of Westfield, brought in Justice Hand's court some time ago, will probably be settled on Monday. The complainant company declares that the defendant secured meat under false pretences, offering a check in payment when there were no funds in the First National Bank to meet it.

It is also reported that the defendant had no account with this bank at the time the check was given. Mr. Fishbaugh has promised to settle the claim on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

Mysterious Midnight Prowler.

Strange, disturbing sounds issuing from the rear of Dr. VanHorn's premises, on East Fifth street, late last night, caused him to imagine the presence of marauders in the vicinity. The sight of a strange woman in the garden and a continuation of the sounds resulted in his calling up police headquarters and telephoning that there was a crazy woman on his premises. The department patrol wagon, with a delegation of the police, proceeded to the house and a search was made of the mysterious localities. No person could be discovered anywhere, and having removed the cause of alarm, the police departed.

Discussed Mosquito.

The Somerset County Medical Society held a regular meeting at Somerville, yesterday, during which a paper on "The Mosquito As a Propagator of Disease" was discussed. Dr. Buchanan, of the borough, was in attendance.

NO CHANGE IN MEAT PRICES

WHOLESALE RATES 33 1-3 PER CENT. MORE THAN A WEEK AGO.

The meat situation in Plainfield today remains practically the same beyond the fact that the wholesale prices are 33 1-3 per cent. more than what they were last week. The supply of beef at the wholesale houses is practically sold and it will be impossible to get any more while the trouble lasts.

In Elizabeth yesterday fifteen retail markets had to close their doors, not having any meat to do business with.

The same prospect confronts local dealers, as once their supplies are gone it would prove too costly to keep open for the sale of smoked meats or fish.

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

Three candidates will be received at the meeting of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., this evening. The customery social evening will follow installation.

Perseverance lodge, No. 74, K. of P., will entertain a delegation of New Brunswick Knights this evening. A feature of the programme arranged will be an amateur minstrel show.

Extending Rural Delivery.

A rural free delivery which covers the territory from Gallagher's corner and Sebring's Mill to Centennial avenue on the river road, is quite probable. The route is twenty miles in length and will be served by the Bound Brook office.

DIAMOND DUST.

Probably one of the greatest baseball exhibitions of the season in the State was played at Doylestown, Bucks county, Pa., on Wednesday, between Doylestown and Lambertville. The home team won by a score of 4 to 3 after seventeen innings were played. It required three hours to complete the contest.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

George McVoy, of East Front street, Clifford Smith, of Madison avenue, and Edward Slingland, of East Seventh street, left yesterday for a two weeks' outing at Green Lake. The boys took fishing tackle along, and will camp on the shore of the lake while they seek to entice the members of the finny tribe to their hooks.

IN THE CHRISTIAN FIELD

WORK IN THE CHURCHES OF THE CITY AND BOROUGH.

The Young People's Association, of the First Baptist church, will meet tonight.

Rev. Dr. W. O. Snodgrass, of the First M. E. church, has recovered from a recent indisposition.

Rev. Dr. Lemuel Morse, a well-known Baptist clergyman, who has occupied the pulpit at the First Baptist church on several occasions, died at his home in New York, this week. At one time he was a professor at Crozer Theological Seminary.

Charles L. Brownell, of Elmwood place, who has been ill, is still unable to go to business.

MERCHANTS MADE TO SUFFER

UNPAID BILLS CARRIED THROUGH SUMMER HURTFUL TO SHOPKEEPERS.

That many residents of the town will leave here early in the season, remain away all summer and fail to pay their debts before going, is getting to be a serious question with a number of the local merchants. In fact nearly every merchant of any importance has been obliged to experience this sort of thing, until it is now a well established habit among some persons.

A reporter for The Daily Press, in conversation with a member of a local firm today, learned to his astonishment that the firm would be obliged to "carry" certain well-to-do persons during the summer to the extent of about $1,500. The concerns of which this firm buys will not wait for their money, they must have it within a certain time, yet the customers of the firm think nothing of contracting bills to the amount of several hundred dollars and then let them stand for two or three months.

This practice is not found among the people of moderate means as a rule, but among those well able to pay cash. The firm mentioned the names of at least a half-dozen prominent families who have gone away for the summer and who are on the books for good sized amounts. Families depending on the weekly wage of the man or men of the house have been found to pay promptly and more regularly, while the wealthier class are extremely negligent about paying their bills.

One family leaving town early this season received a bill for goods purchased a month ago, and in reply stated that some of the goods were not satisfactory, using this as an excuse for delaying payment on the same. No one particular business is affected, but all the merchants have been forced in one way or another to oblige their customers in this way.

Just what course the merchants will pursue to offset this matter, cannot be determined upon now, but if the practice continues something will have to be done as some merchants depend upon this money to meet their bills and if they fail they are apt to lose the usual credit given retail houses by large concerns.

This Present a Jewel.

Retiring Chancellor Commander T. O. Smith, of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., was presented with a past chancellor's jewel by the members last evening. The presentation was followed by a smoker and social period.

SCHEME TO AVERAGE PHYSICAL MEASUREMENT

Director C. E. A. Heywood to Procure Statistics Here to be Used in Making Chart.

GUIDE FOR EXERCISE

ALL ASSOCIATIONS IN UNITED STATES AND CANADA WORKING ON SCHEME.

Report of Committee, of Which Mr. Heywood is a Member, to be Made in August—How Work is Being Done.

During the next two weeks, Physical Director C. E. A. Heywood, of the Y. M. C. A., expects to take the physical measurement of some thirty or forty members of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium classes for statistic purposes. This measuring will be done in accordance with a plan of the committee of physical directors at Y. M. C. A. gymnasiums all over the United States and in Canada to secure average statistics which shall be a guide to them in prescribing physical exercises in the gymnasiums.

In order to make accurate physical development charts for average girths and lung capacity of a man for each year of life between the ages of sixteen and thirty-five years of age, this committee, of which Mr. Heywood has been appointed a member, wishes to receive the girth measurements of one thousand men at each age between sixteen and thirty-five. Accordingly, Y. M. C. A. physical directors all over the country have been asked to contribute measurements of young men between those ages to be a guide to the committee in preparing the charts.

Physical Director George W. Ehler, M. D., of the Chicago Y. M. C. A., the chairman of this committee, will receive the measurements at the report of the committee at the St. Louis Exposition early in August. As soon as prepared, these charts will be distributed to all physical directors at Y. M. C. A. buildings throughout the country.

With the aid of this change, the taking of measurements will form a record more valuable and more accurate than under the old system. The development charts in use in recording physical measurements at the present time are prepared on the average scale of development between the ages of sixteen and sixty. Under the new system, when a boy of seventeen is to be examined, his measurements will be recorded on a special chart for seventeen year old boys. This chart will be prepared from the average measurements of a thousand seventeen year old boys in the United States and Canada. Under this arrangement of a separate chart of averages for each individual year measurements can be compared with a remarkable degree of exactness and far more valuable treatment can be prescribed.

TO TRENTON EVERY HOUR

FOURTEEN CARS ARE TO BE RUN EACH WAY DAILY.

Traffic has been so heavy over the fast line recently inaugurated by the Public Service Corporation between Jersey City and Trenton that more cars are to be added to the service. It was announced yesterday that as soon as the schedule can be adjusted, hourly trips will be made by the fast line cars.

The first car will leave Jersey City at 6 o'clock in the morning. The last car will leave Jersey City for Trenton at 7 o'clock in the evening. On the eastbound trip the first car will leave Trenton at 7 o'clock. The last car will leave Trenton at 8 o'clock in the evening. This arrangement means fourteen cars each way on the route between Trenton and Jersey City.

The headway at present is every two hours. Only four cars are running each way. The trip has rapidly become popular, and as each car passes through this city it is filled to its capacity.

Another Trading Stamp Store.

Another trading stamp company has come to town. The Gold Trading Stamp Co. held the formal opening at their East Front street store this morning. The usual variety of premiums is offered. Twenty-four town merchants are giving the stamps.

Miss Mabel Lefler and Mrs. Hannah Nelson, heirs of the late Mrs. Charles G. Fair, are spending some time at Union with relatives.

FANWOOD CONTRACTS FOR ITS NEW SCHOOL

John Bornman Successful Bidder to Erect Building in the Willow Grove District.

TO COMMENCE AT ONCE

HOPE TO HAVE IT READY FOR OCCUPANCY BY SEPT. 15.

Two Room Structure to Accommodate 100 Pupils—Site on Raritan Road, Adjoining Darby Farm.

At a meeting of the Fanwood township Board of Education, last evening, John Bornman was awarded the contract to build the new school in district No. 2, known as the Willow Grove district. His bid was $3,800, which was well within the appropriation, the voters having placed a total of $4,500 at the disposal of the School Board. The site was secured at a good figure and there will be a small balance remaining.

Work on the structure will be commenced at once and it is hoped to have it ready for occupancy on September 15. This will be after the beginning of the fall session, but owing to delays in securing the appropriation it was impossible to award the contract sooner.

The specifications call for a modern one story building, Colonial in architecture. The plan of the structure as far as possible will be on a line with the plans recommended by the State Board of Education. The building will be a commodious two room school capable of accommodating one hundred pupils. The two school rooms will be separated by folding doors, so that when the occasion demands it the whole floor can be thrown into one large room.

For the present only one teacher will be employed as in the past, but the gradually increasing attendance, the board believes, will soon make it necessary to increase the corps. The location of the building will be on Raritan road, adjoining the John L. Darby farm. This will be a central location for the majority of the pupils and meets with the demands made by the taxpayers from this district when they petitioned the board last winter for better school facilities.

FRONT STREET IMPROVEMENT

DR. PITTIS AND OTHERS TO BUILD ONE OR TWO STORES.

Dr. Albert Pittis and several other joint owners who control the plot of ground on East Front street between Powlison & Jones' store and the residence of Ephraim Compton, have combined their interests and contemplate the erection of one or two stores on the site. The interested parties own 22 feet, or one-third the entire width of the lot, and it will be possible to place two buildings in this frontage, similar to those erected by Dr. Pittis just west of it on the former VanName site.

The erection of the buildings will complete another step in the closing in of the north side of the block between Somerset street and Watchung avenue. It will leave the Compton residence and Dr. Probasco's home the only frame structures remaining and Dr. Probasco's lawn the only open space. Dr. Pittis is the owner of six buildings in the block.

Fresh Air Home Meeting.

Rev. E. M. Rodman will address the outdoor service at the Netherwood Fresh Air Home tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. The choir of Trinity church will lead the singing and render special music, including a solo by Miss Florence Bennett. Cordial invitation extended to all.

Sprained Ankle.

While walking about her home on Lee place, yesterday morning, Mrs. Robert Gow tripped and fell, receiving a severely sprained ankle. Dr. Tomlinson was called and after making the patient comfortable declared she would not regain the use of the foot inside of three weeks.

To Visit Home in England.

John T. Green, of Somerset street, will sail next Friday on the Cedric for his former home in England to spend a month with his mother. It will be his first trip to the other side of the "pond" since he left sixteen years ago. He will be accompanied by his son, Robert Green.

CAUGHT TRYING TO SELL STOLEN JEWELRY

Police Arrest Young Italian Who Evidently Burglarized Home of F. A. Clark.

DENIES THE CHARGE

SAYS TRINKETS WERE GIVEN HIM BY A FRIEND.

Will be Arraigned Before Justice Huff Today—May Have Committed Other Netherwood Burglaries.

Flaviana Longo, a young Italian who resides in the Lake street colony, was arrested by Patrolman McCarthy, of the local force yesterday afternoon, while he was attempting to sell a quantity of jewelry to Charles Vail, the Park avenue jeweler. When taken to headquarters the trinkets were identified as part of a large number stolen from the home of F. A. Clark, on Hillside avenue, Tuesday night. A further search of Longo's home turned up as many more pieces as those found on his person and it is believed the entire number will be recovered.

When locked up Longo stoutly denied having stolen the jewelry, claiming it was given to him by a friend whose name he could not recall. He was remanded for a hearing before Justice Huff this afternoon.

Mr. Clark and his family are away for the summer at Plainfield, Conn., and the only occupant of the house is a servant girl. On arising Wednesday morning she found the various rooms in great disorder, showing that they had been ransacked during the night. Many pieces of jewelry, two gold medals won by Mr. Clark at Yale College and other small articles were found to be missing. The matter was reported to the police and a sharp lookout was kept for the stuff.

Yesterday Longo entered Vail's jewelry establishment on Park avenue and drawing several rings and pins from his pockets asked the proprietor if he wished to buy them. The fellow acted in a suspicious manner and believing that something was wrong Mr. Vail called a clerk to keep him engaged while he quickly walked out and hurried to police headquarters. He informed McCarthy of his suspicions and the latter accompanied him back and placed the Italian under arrest. He was inclined to resist at the start but was speedily placed in submission.

The police have questioned him closely and they believe he is guilty of more than the Clark robbery. Several houses in the Netherwood district have been entered and the circumstances were all identical with the Clark affair.

GEORGE KEIDELING BRINGS SUIT AGAINST CENTRAL RAILROAD.

George Keideling, who lives at the corner of Washington and Fourth streets, has brought suit against the Central Railroad of New Jersey for injuries received by him while boarding a train at the Newark Ferry Street station on November 14. His claim is for $10,000 damages.

On the day mentioned, Mr. Keideling was in the act of boarding the train for Jersey City at the Ferry Street station when the train started, throwing him violently. His jaw and nose were broken and he was seriously injured about the head and face, for in some manner, he slipped through the station platform railing and fell nearly thirty feet to the road beneath. Internal injuries rendered his condition serious for a time and he underwent a long siege of illness.

The action will come up at the State Supreme Court at Trenton in two weeks' time. William Newcorn, Esq., represents Mr. Keideling.

Sue to Recover Property.

While making a levy of household goods in accordance with judgment rendered to Charles Hand to secure $28 on contract several months ago, Constable Manley is stated to have levied on effects which did not belong to the defendant. Accordingly Mrs. Helen Grant and Mrs. Kizzie Hand, who live at the house, have brought action through William Newcorn, Esq., for the recovery of property which they allege to have belonged to them. The case will come up at Justice Huff's court next week.

Louis Bennett, of Watchung avenue, will spend next week at Vineland,

PLANS COMPLETE FOR CHURCH ENLARGEMENT

Committee of Congregational Church Ready to Approve Designs for Improvement.

MORE ACCOMMODATIONS

ARCHITECT KARR PREPARES TWO SETS OF PLANS.

When Approved by Committee, Design Will be Submitted to Congregation for Action—May Require Eighteen Months Work.

Arrangements have practically been completed by the building committee of the Congregational church to formally adopt plans for the alteration and enlargement of the present structure, previous to submitting them to the congregation. Acting under instruction, Architect Karr has prepared two sets of plans and these will be gone over next week. In the main they call for the same work only some portions are not as elaborate in one as the other and makes a difference in the cost.

The plans call for the enlargment of the seating capacity, the beautifying of the front with a tower and large, open vestibule and the changing about of the interior. At present the pulpit is on the east side of the building but it will be changed to the north side. On its left will be a large room to be used for classes and as a club room for younger members of the congregation. The seating capacity will be almost doubled and there will be many accommodations that are now lacking.

With the approval of the plans by the building committee, a church meeting will be called and the contract for the work will be awarded. It is possible the preliminaries and actual construction will require eighteen months.

After July 1 rural carriers are not permitted to solicit business or receive orders of any kind for any persons, firm or corporation. No mailable matter may be handled by rural carriers while serving their routes, unless the proper postage has been prepaid, with the single exception of county newspapers, which, under the law, are permitted to be carried free throughout the county in which they are published to actual subscribers.

The hire for merchandise carried in request of the patron or rural free delivery must be paid by the patrons. Carriers will not be permitted to receive any compensation from the seller of such merchandise. Articles or packages, which are mailable, which are handed to the carrier or deposited in the postoffice or in a rural letter box or in a collection box located on a rural route, with request that the rural carrier deliver same, as subject to the rules regulating mail matter, including the payment of postage thereon.

PROBATION SYSTEM WORKS WELL IN UNION

Much Good Accomplished in County Since Passage of Probation and Juvenile Act.

SOME STATISTICS GIVEN

MRS. EMILY E. WILLIAMSON AS PROBATION OFFICER.

Capt. Irwin Rendering Assistance—Offenders Are Brought Before Judge Vail—Provisions of the Laws.

Since the passing of the probation act by the New Jersey Legislature and its approval on March 23, 1900, great things have been accomplished. Mrs. Emily E. Williamson and her assistant, Captain Charles W. Irwin, since Mrs. Williamson's appointment as Union county's probation officer in 1902, have done a great deal for the betterment of the criminal branches of society in Elizabeth and in the entire county.

The probation system in New Jersey is too well known by this time to need much explanation. The act passed in 1900, chapter 102 of the State laws, providing for a probation officer to take prisoners who have some chance of reform and improvement into his charge and thereafter to keep a vigilant eye on him, see that he reports regularly and leads a proper, upright life, was amended on April 8, 1903, by a supplement which permits justices of the peace and police magistrates to probate prisoners.

The law provides a probationary term of three years for each prisoner placed in the probation officer's care. At the same time the officer is empowered to discharge probationers for good conduct.

Since February, 1903, thirty-six probationers have been discharged by Mrs. Williamson. These include twenty-one from the city court and fifteen from the county court.

The county offenders handed over by Judge Vail have been released under suspended sentence for breaking and entering, 4; embezzlement, 1; assault and battery, 3; larceny, 7. There have been five from Plainfield; Rahway, 1; New Brunswick, 1; Hartford, Conn., 1; Elizabeth, 5; West Orange, 1.

These thirty-six discharged probationers have served probationary terms from 1903 to 1904 in nearly all cases. Three served from 1902 to 1903. All depended on good behavior.

All probationers discharged are now doing well, and Mrs. Williamson and Captain Irwin frequently receive voluntary letters from them. One of the former probationers is clerk in the Allen House in Hartford, Conn. Another secured a position as clerk on one of the Standard Oil Company's sailing vessels, and has cruised about the world for a year and a half. Still another is a clerk in a St. Louis hotel and now a respectable citizen. There is no doubt that the system has done great good.

The recent juvenile court act, approved by the Legislature April 8, 1903, and labeled chapter 219, has increased the functions of the probation officer. This law provides that youthful prisoners under 16 years of age charged with any offense except murder, manslaughter, disorderly conduct, or habitual vagrancy and incorrigibility, shall be paroled in the charge of the probation officer and later tried by the county judge in a juvenile court, sessions of which shall be held once a month. Two sessions of this court have already been held in Elizabeth by Judge Vail.

Martine's Prediction.

Farmer Orator Martine, of Plainfield, has issued his usual prophetic manifesto that the Democratic candidate for President will be elected. He risked his reputation on Bryan in two campaigns and now thinks there is no doubt about Parker. It was Bryan's trust smashing inclinations and his free silver policy which were going to make him a sure winner four and eight years ago. It must be Parker's gold standard views and his alliance with the wicked Wall street brokers that makes his prospect so good now. The Farmer Orator has not told us. He is for the Democratic ticket, that is all. — Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

Water Plant Sold.

The Somerville Water Company plant was sold yesterday to Horace J. Supers, of Jersey City. Just what this deal means is not known, but it is understood he has purchased for the East Jersey Water Co.

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS HAD A JOLLY TIME

Friendship Lodge, of New Brunswick, the Guest of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74.

GAVE MINSTRELSY

CHANCELLOR COMMANDER PHILIP JAHN WAS MASTER OF CEREMONIES.

Alex. Muir Acted as Interlocutor and City Judge Runyon Was Accompanist — Committee in Charge.

In honor of a visitation of Friendship Lodge, No. 30, of New Brunswick, Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, turned out en masse last evening, and accorded their brethren from the "banks of the Raritan" a royal welcome. The visitors came by special trolley and after they had received greetings in the lodge room from Chancellor Commander Philip Jahn all other matters were dispensed with to make way for the entertainment.

The latter comprised a complete first part minstrel show with the participants in costume. The troupe made a big "hit" as it was primed with jokes and songs adapted to the occasion and for an hour the large audience was kept laughing. City Judge Runyon looked after the "orchestra" accompaniment and Alex. Muir acted as interlocutor. The end men and chorus consisted of M. D. Sweeney, William L. Holbert, John H. Cose, Elmer D. Cutting, George B. Cose, William Feiring, Thomas M. Muir and B. C. Firstbrook.

Soon after the finale refreshments were served and during their disposal addresses were made by leading members of Perseverance and Friendship and Judge Runyon gave several vocal selections that were enthusiastically applauded. The New Brunswickers started for home shortly before midnight.

The affair was arranged and in charge of a committee comprised of Chancellor Commander Philip Jahn, Asa D. Pope, B. C. Firstbrook and Elmer D. Cutting.

Y. M. C. A.'S LIGHTING PLANT

DIRECTORS HAVE PLACED ORDER FOR WORKS WITH WESTINGHOUSE CO.

As told in yesterday's Daily Press the Board of Directors have decided to establish an independent electric light plant at the Y. M. C. A. Contracts have been awarded for the work, the Westinghouse Company being the successful bidder for the dynamo and engine.

At present it costs the association between $600 and $700 a year for electric light and an additional $200 for water. If the independent light plant is a success, no doubt steps will be taken to furnish water for the building from a driven well. This can be done at far less expense than the present cost, it is believed.

Considerable light is used throughout the building, especially during the winter months and John Valiant and George H. Batchelor, the latter a practical engineer, have been considering the change for some time. Mr. Batchelor has produced facts and figures to show that an independent plant would not only be practical, but very economical. The estimated expense of installing the plant is $2,300 and it would take but a few years to pay for the cost of it.

In connection with this plan, several persons who have become interested, have thought it would be an excellent idea to establish independent plants for lighting their own homes. Already there has been talk among residents in certain parts of the city and borough of combining interest and establishing a plant to light the houses in a certain block. Those who have investigated the matter claim that the light would be much cheaper than in buying it from the local light company.

Fear Scarcity of Cars.

Metuchen is fearful that a through trolley service from Perth Amboy to New Brunswick will mean a scarcity of cars for the principal part of the borough, and can hardly be blamed for holding up the through car plan. The matter will adjust itself, however, when the Metuchen-Plainfield line is completed. Then, no doubt, Plainfield cars will be run to connect with the Perth Amboy-New Brunswick cars at Metuchen Junction.—New Brunswick Home News.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT BEGINS ON AUG. 15

Winfield Scott Post to be Represented at Great Gathering of Civil War Veterans.

PROGRAMME IN DETAIL

PARADE OF 25,000 OLD SOLDIERS TO BE A FEATURE.

Camp Fire and Trouping of Colors—River Carnival as An Attraction—Battleships and Historic Places to be Visited.

The programme of the week of August 15 next, as laid out for the entertainment of the Grand Army of the Republic at the National encampment to be held in Boston, Mass., has been announced. Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, of this city, will probably appoint a delegation at its next meeting.

The usual parade of the ex-prisoners of war, naval brigade, naval jackies and marines will take place on Monday. On Monday evening the Women's Relief Corps will gave a grand reception at the Hotel Vandome to the commander-in-chief. Tuesday it is expected to have in line 25,000 to 30,000 veterans of the Civil War.

On Tuesday evening there will be held, in Mechanics' Building, a monster campfire, a unique feature of which will be the trouping of the colors, a spectacle which, in the language of the lamented Commander-in-Chief Shaw, of New York, was the grandest sight his eyes had rested upon since the war. Wednesday the convention opens, at the close of which the entire delegation from all parts of the United States, together with invited guests, will be invited to go to Waltham and witness one of the handsomest spectacles ever seen upon the water, which is called a "river carnival," gotten up with much splendor as to design of fleets and individual exhibits, all surrounded by an electrical display. Thursday, August 18, the convention will continue its session.

Thursday evening, August 18, will be presented a most unique electrical parade. It will be a parade of illuminated floats proceedings over the surface railroads, representing sixteen important and principal events of the country. Friday, August 19, the entertainment committee offers a fish dinner on the North Shore, Bass Point. On Thursday, the 18th, from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m., the Daughters of Veterans will keep open house at the Royal House at Medford, an old colonial mansion built in 1690, with its colonial furniture still intact. This place was occupied by General Stark as headquarters in 1775, and is one of the finest colonial houses in Massachusetts.

Saturday, August 20, steamers will be provided to take visiting delegations to view the battleships on the bay and for a beautiful sail along the South Shore.

PECULIAR FACIAL TROUBLE

G. A. CLARK RECOVERS FROM ILLNESS CAUSED BY GATHERING ON HIS FACE.

George A. Clark, a well known resident of Scotch Plains, will resume his position in New York Monday after undergoing a very serious illness which for a time threatened to end fatally and which was brought about in a very odd way.

Clark was annoyed by a small gathering on his face about a week ago and abstractedly picked it with his finger nail. The next day the face began to swell and there was every indication of blood poisoning when the sufferer was examined by Dr. Westcott. Prompt measures were taken to offset its effect but for several days the trouble refused to yield to treatment and Clark was in a serious state. Gradually the physician's skill proved effective and the man was placed out of danger. He is now all right and no return of the trouble is anticipated.

No Concert Next Week.

It is announced by Leader Ben LaVere that no band concert will be held in Concert Park next week. The next will take place on July 29, when another strong, popular programme will be presented. It is practically certain that "Billy" Murray will be the vocal soloist.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

READY REFERENCES FOR THE LOCAL BARGAIN SEEKERS.

Going away? Have Weirenga take your trunks to the station. Leave the order at Sattel's music store on North avenue. Weirenga's men never miss train connections.

For first-class plumbing and heating as well as all kinds of sanitary work consult J. J. Leahy, of Richmond street. He guarantees all his work to stand the test of time.

When you are hungry go to Timbo's restaurant on North avenue and you will be able to appease your appetite for a small sum. The food and service is the best and everything in season is on the bill of fare.

But one visit to The Fair store on West Front street is needed to show that the lines of women's skirts, waists and suiting compare and surpass any in the city. The July clearing sale is now on and will continue for the next two weeks.

Kirshbaum's smart suits for men can be bought just as well in town as at any of the New York stores. Werner has all the styles at his clothing store on West Front street. The hot weather comforts for men folks can be bought there, too.

The City National Bank guarantees absolute security for trunks, boxes or valuable packages placed in its storage vaults. It also has safe deposit boxes of all sizes. Persons contemplating going away for the summer are especially reminded of this fact.

Putnam & DeGraw, the West Front street dry goods merchants, have a superior line of seasonable goods that are sure to please the women folks. They come from the best manufacturers and as for the price you cannot beat it. A full line of men's furnishings are always in stock.

If meat is going to be high now, you can resort to the staff of life and eat plenty of bread. More healthful anyway this hot weather. Warnock, the West Front street baker, will send a wagon to your door every morning with a supply of all kinds of bread if you leave word at the store.

When the heat is oppressive and you feel weary stop at L. W. Randolph's drug store and refresh yourself with any one of the delicious drinks served there. The list is complete and all the latest concoctions are on it. The best ice cream soda in town with pure fruit flavors, including fresh peach.

While you are away at the country, you can have your house painted without that customarily attendant confusion within. Woolston & Buckle are the leading painters of Plainfield and any painting, outside or inside, is right on their line. Paper hanging and decorating. North avenue store.

"The store of pretty things," is the term women apply to Jos. W. Gavett's West Front street china store. Look in sometime and see if this isn't a good characterization of the wares. Gavett is making specialty of dinner sets this week. The dishes are beautiful and artistic and the prices are fair. The store is the headquarters for birthday and wedding gifts.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile a minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths, leading to cool and delightful places. On July 17 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:50 and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes. 7 15 2

Racing at Narragansett Park.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 16.—Annabel W. made her second win of the week at Narragansett park in the 2:19, which developed into a six heat contest with Jimmy Michael. The final heat was never in doubt, Jimmy Michael breaking repeatedly and Laundry Boy being unable to push the Ashland Wilkes mare. Harry Van, favorite in the 2:27 pace, dropped out after winning the first heat. Five heats were required to decide the contest, but in the last three Azure won handily. The 2:24 trot went to Lucky Jim, the favorite, in straight heats.

Hetty G. Clipped Record.

UTICA, N. Y., July 16.—The record of 2:09¼ for the mile on the half mile track at Utica, made by Prince Alert six years ago, was beaten here by Hetty G. Hetty G. is one of the three strings owned by James Butler of New York. In a free for all, purse $400, she won the event by three straight heats. In the last she clipped the record two seconds, going around in the following time: Thirty-three and one-quarter, 1:05, 1:36¼, 2:07¼. She thus captured the prize of $50 offered for any horse that would beat the track's record.

Ring Was Hard Hit.

NEW YORK, July 16.—By the winning of Hatchet in the first race, Dinah Shad in the second and Humo in the last the ring suffered the hardest blow it has probably received in some time. The big plungers began by backing Hatchet down from 6 to 2 to 1, Dinah Shad from 20 to 8 to 1 and Humo from 6 to 1 to 13 to 5, and a fair estimate places the winnings at $100,000. Hildebrand rode three winners. Travers, who had the mount on Bound Brook in the first race, fell, but the boy fortunately escaped injury.

New World's Record.

COLUMBUS, O., July 16.—Favorites won in all the races at the Columbus Driving park. The track was very fast, and the 2:16 pace, every heat of which was a race, was characterized by sensational speed performances. China Maid won the first two heats in driving finishes, the time for the first being 2:06¼ and for the second 2:05¼. Baron Gratton, the Geers entry, took the third heat in 2:08¼. The first heat of this race, 2:06¼, is a new world's record for a green pacer in a first winning heat.

Floral Wreath Won the Feature.

ST. LOUIS, July 16.—Floral Wreath won the feature of the fair grounds card on a heavy track, beating such good performers as Charlie Thompson, Otto Stiefel and Elastic. Floral Wreath ran in third place to the stretch turn, where she came on and won easily by two lengths from Charlie Thompson. Thane again found a track to his liking and won the fifth race easily. Dishabille was doing her best to beat Loretta M. in the third.

Another Victory For Burleigh.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Burleigh added another purse to his already long list of victories by winning the second race at Harlem. Incidentally he ran the fastest six furlongs of the year on local tracks, his time being 1:12 3-5. Burleigh was a prohibitive favorite at 2 to 5 at post time. Van Ness, at 10 to 1, was second, two lengths in front of Princess Tulane.

Won Silver Tennis Trophy.

MAGNOLIA, Mass., July 16.—By defeating H. J. Holt and H. I. Foster in a challenge match here R. C. Seaver and A. S. Pier won the silver trophy emblematic of the Massachusetts lawn tennis doubles championship. This victory being the third won by Seaver and Pier, the trophy now becomes their personal property.

Tennis at New York.

NEW YORK, July 16.—There was but one match played in the round robin tennis doubles for men on the courts of the Country club of Westchester. Kneigh Collins and R. D. Little defeated G. L. Wrenn, Jr., and R. D. Wrenn 6—3 6—4, 7—9, 6—4.

DULUTH DOCKS ABLAZE.

Fire Swept Away Railway Property to the Value of $400,000.

DULUTH, Minn., July 16.—Four hundred thousand dollars worth of property has been destroyed at the docks and warehouses of the Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis and Omaha Railway company, and one man, a cook named George Smith, on the tug Abbott was drowned in an attempt to make his escape from the craft as the flames swept over it from the docks.

The fire started in the northeast corner of the building and swept through the long sheds like a tornado, taking everything that stood in its path. In three minutes after the flames were discovered almost the entire length of the sheds was a fiery furnace. It was the most disastrous fire witnessed in Duluth in years and the most spectacular.

Losses entailed in the fire are estimated as follows by the officials of the interested companies:

George M. Smith, general agent, places the value of the contents of the freight shed at $200,000 or more and the value of the shed itself at $50,000. Two hundred tons of package freight had been taken from the steamer Muncy just previous to the fire, which is not included in the estimate. Manager Inman of the tug company values the tugs, which he thinks will be an almost total loss, at $20,000 for the Inman, $15,000 for the Excelsior and $10,000 for the Abbott. In addition to this was the damage to ten Northwestern freight cars, amounting to $5,000.

A BUFFALO TRAGEDY.

E. T. Washburn Killed Wife and Daughter Before Shooting Himself.

BUFFALO, July 16.—Edgar T. Washburn, a member of the firm of Heathfield & Washburn, grain dealers, murdered his wife, Janella Pomeroy Washburn, and their daughter Gladys, fifteen years old, and then committed suicide some time between midnight and daybreak. The tragedy was discovered by a relative who called at the Washburn home. Business troubles are said to have been the cause of the tragedy.

When the police arrived they found Mrs. Washburn and her daughter lying dead, side by side, in bed. Washburn was lying dead on the floor at the foot of the bed. Evidently Washburn shot the girl first as she lay in bed in a position of repose and apparently did not move after the bullet crashed into her brain. When Mrs. Washburn, aroused by the shot that ended the life of her daughter, partly raised herself in the bed Washburn fired the second shot, the bullet entering Mrs. Washburn's left temple and causing instant death. Washburn then picked up a mirror and, taking careful aim, shot himself in the head, the bullet entering the right temple and coming out just above the left ear.

The news of the tragedy had the effect of practically closing the Grain Exchange for the remainder of the day.

Both Sentenced to Death.

BELMONT, N. Y., July 16.—The whole story of the murder of John Van Gorder and his half sister, Anna Farnham, at the Van Gorder homestead, near Angelica, on the night of May 3, was told on the witness stand by Giuseppe Versacia, one of their slayers. For an hour and a half Versacia sat in the witness chair and told the story of the murder. He made a desperate effort, by putting the brunt of the crime on Antonio Giorgia, who was convicted yesterday, to secure a life sentence, but the jury did not believe he told the whole truth. After fifteen minutes' deliberation they returned a verdict finding him guilty of murder in the first degree. While the jury was out Antonio Giorgia was sentenced to death. Following the verdict of the jury Versacia was also sentenced to death.

An Ideal French Duel.

PARIS, July 16.—A duel was fought yesterday by Francis de Pressense, Socialist deputy, and Louis Lucien Klotz, Radical deputy, the outcome of a violent dispute in the corridors of the chamber of deputies last Wednesday night, in the course of which violent epithets were used, such as "Dog of a Jew" and "Blackguard." Only two shots were fired, and neither deputy was injured.

New York Naval Militia Camp.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The annual cruise of the New York naval militia will be held July 23 to 31. About 460 members of the two battalions will proceed on the United States steamer Dixie to Buzzards Bay, where the commands will go into camp. The Massachusetts battalion will be encamped there also, and the two state bodies will alternate in daily ship duty aboard the Dixie.

Federal Inquiry on Slocum Wreck.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The federal commission appointed to investigate the steamer General Slocum disaster will commence its inquiry in New York city next Tuesday. It will seek to ascertain as fully and thoroughly as possible the nature and causes of the disaster and the circumstances surrounding the case and will consider any additional matter that may be suggested.

Schooner Sunk In Collision.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The schooner before reported sunk near Norwalk island proves to be the schooner Zemna, Captain Berry, from Port Liberty for Calais, Me. A barge in tow of the tug Luther C. Ward collided with the schooner. The latter was struck on the starboard side abreast of the main rigging and sank in a few minutes. The captain and crew were rescued.

FORTY-NINE YEARS.

Negro Assailants of Mrs. Biddle Convicted.

WERE GIVES THE EXTREME PENALTY

Military Guard Sent From Sea Girt Camp to Prevent Any Mob Violence — Sheriff Feared an Attack.

MOUNT HOLLY, N. J., July 16.—Guarded by Company A of the New Jersey militia to prevent attempts at lynching, the three negroes, Aaron Timbers, Jonas Sims and William Austin, who confessed to attacking, robbing and ill treating Mrs. Elsie Biddle of Burlington, were brought here by special train from Camden.

They were taken to the courthouse, where Judge Gaskill sentenced them to forty-nine years each in the state prison.

When the negroes were brought before the court Judge Gaskill appointed counsel to defend the men. A brief consultation was held between counsel and the three men, and it was announced that they would plead guilty. Judge Gaskill accepted the plea and in pronouncing sentence said:

"The sentence of the court is that for the charge of assault, to which you have just pleaded guilty, each of you be confined in the state prison at hard labor for the term of fifteen years, upon the charge of robbery fifteen years, upon the charge of assault with intent to kill an officer twelve years and upon the charge of robbing the house of William Streaker seven years, making a total of forty-nine years."

This is the maximum penalty under the law, including the penalties for the several crimes of which the men were guilty.

In Camden the prisoners appeared to be much frightened when they saw the crowd of persons anxious to get a look at them. The soldiers and the police had little to do, however, as there was no demonstration. The prisoners were handcuffed to detectives.

After leaving Mount Holly courthouse the culprits were hurried to the Trenton prison.

The sheriff of Burlington county telephoned to Governor Murphy at the state camp at Sea Girt explaining that the people of this place and vicinity were still in an angry mood and asking that troops be sent to Camden, where the sheriff was to take over the prisoners from the Pennsylvania authorities. The sheriff said he feared that there would be a violent demonstration should the prisoners be unaccompanied by troops.

He told the governor that the prisoners had already been indicted, and it was understood that they were ready to plead guilty, so that the trial would take but little time. The troops, he said, could act as escort to the state prison after conviction.

Governor Murphy held a hurried consultation with Colonel Collins, Adjutant General Breintnall and Major Frank Gulkyson, and then the entire party drove to the quarters of Brigadier General Gilmore. A further consultation was held, and it was decided to comply with the request of the sheriff and send a company of soldiers to Camden, where the start for Mount Holly would be made.

Shortly after the orders had been issued to the company commander an orderly from Captain McCullough appeared before General Gilmore and stated that his captain has asked for blank cartridges besides ball ammunition. General Gilmore looked hard at the orderly and said:

"Tell your captain to use bayonets on any mob he may encounter as long as possible. When cold steel does not avail he is to shoot ball cartridges. There is to be no blank cartridge business in this little maneuver."

British Government Consents.

LONDON, July 16.—At a meeting of the privy council at Buckingham palace, at which King Edward presided, the request of the relatives of the late Mr. Kruger, former president of the South African Republic, for the interment of his remains in the Transvaal was considered, and it was subsequently announced that the desired permission had been telegraphed to Clarens, Switzerland, where Mr. Kruger died, through the British minister at Berne.

Celebration at Stony Point.

NYACK, N. Y., July 16.—The one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of the capture of Stony Point by General Anthony Wayne in the Revolutionary war was celebrated at Stony Point by the State Scenic and Historical society. There was a large attendance. General Horatio King of New York delivered the principal address. Stony Point was purchased two years ago by the state.

No Settlement at Panama.

PANAMA, July 16.—No settlement has been reached of the questions pending between the republic of Panama and the authorities of the canal zone. The Panama government is firm in the belief that the only correct interpretation of the canal treaty is that until the canal shall be constructed all parts of the isthmus are under the direct jurisdiction of Panama.

Died Trying to Save Her Son.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., July 16.—Mrs. Katie Miller, thirty years of age, sacrificed her life here in an endeavor to save her two-year-old son Angelus, who had run on to the Boston and Maine railroad tracks at the rear of their home and in front of an approaching passenger train. Both mother and son were struck by the locomotive and instantly killed.

Failure of Packers and Striking Butchers to Agree.

DISAGREEMENT CAUSES MEAT TO SOAR

Employers Are Willing to Arbitrate the Whole Scope of the Strike, but Want No Limitations—New York Supply Is Short.

CHICAGO, July 16.—The purport of the meat packers' reply to President Donnelly's overtures is identical with the answer to the union proposals—that is, that the packers are willing to arbitrate, but will do so only on condition that the arbitration committee comprehend the whole scope of the strike and be not subject to any restriction or limitations.

The executive committee of the union is now in session considering this communication.

The attempt of Arthur Meeker, general manager for Armour & Co., to show the office force and "inside help" how to slaughter a steer produced not a little excitement as well as some good natured chaffing of the general manager at the Chicago stockyards. The steer did not succumb until Assistant Superintendent Shaw had twisted the animal's tail around a post and Mr. Meeker had dealt the victim a second blow on the head with the heavy sledge hammer.

A New York dispatch says that the failure of the packers and representatives of the striking butchers to reach an agreement has caused another upward tilt in the prices of meat and poultry there. The wholesale price of beef was advanced a cent a pound; pork went up a cent; mutton rose to 12½ cents a pound; fowls jumped to 16 cents; lamb to the same price; corned beef was hitched a bit higher; hams and tongues went up 2 cents a pound.

Many retail butchers experienced difficulty in getting an adequate supply of meats.

A nonunion workman at Chicago, assailed by a crowd as he emerged from the entrance to the yards, was beaten, kicked and stoned, but managed to reach a street car and escaped. The crowd threw stones at the car and injured a striker who was aboard.

A Sioux City dispatch says that the Cudahy Packing company has bought 500 hogs and is killing on a small scale. The strikers are still firm.

Meat Strike Affects the Spa.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 16.—The meat packers' strike is making itself felt here. Local branches of Swift Bros. and Armour & Co. are practically sold out. It is doubtful if they can meet the demands of customers more than forty-eight hours longer. Meat has advanced wholesale 40 per cent within a week, and boarding houses and householders are chiefly affected. The large hotels procure their meats from New York city.

Parker Had to Draw the Line.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 16.—Judge Parker has drawn the line on photographers and announced that this would be the last day of promiscuous photographing of himself and his family. "I reserve the right," said he laughingly, "to put my hands in my pockets and assume comfortable attitudes without being everlastingly afraid that I shall be snapped by some fellow with a camera." The fact is that the judge has been exceptionally patient with the photographers and has been caught on foot and on horseback scores of times. The only man who has been peremptorily refused was the one who tried to catch him in his bathing suit early one morning. Esopus is fairly overrun with photographers.

King Broke His Neck.

BUFFALO, July 16.—The central New York circuit meet brought out a large crowd. C. G. Whitehead's pacer King stumbled and fell, breaking his neck. His driver, George Turley of Selkirk, N. Y., was badly injured. In the 2:17 trot Thomeboy won first money, Redwood second and Louis Purcell third; best time, 2:16¼. Honest Joe won the 2:17 pace, Donnal second, Bonnie Patchen third; best time, 2:16¼.

Loop the Loop Fatality.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 16.—Miss Ethel Boyd of Cleveland died last night as the result of injuries received in an accident on the loop the loop at Celeron. Miss Irene Broadwell, also of Cleveland, another victim, is in a dying condition. The coroner and the district attorney have begun an investigation.

Murderer Wanted at Bayonne, N. J.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The president has issued a warrant for the delivery to officers of New Jersey of John Klinojo, alias James Stoselewicz, wanted in Bayonne, N. J., on a charge of murder. He was arrested on board the steamer Island on her arrival from this country at Christiansand, Norway.

Intercolonial Trade Duties.

CAPE TOWN, July 16.—The Gazette announces that the South African states will in the future grant preferential customs treatment to Canada, in exchange for which Canada will extend to South Africa the same customs preference that she gives to Great Britain.

At Their Summer Home.

SANDWICH, N. H., July 16.—Former President and Mrs. Grover Cleveland reached here over the Boston and Maine railroad at 9 o'clock last night and immediately after were driven to their summer home at Whiteface.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Good Prospects For All Industries.

NEW YORK, July 16.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

Trade conditions were gradually becoming more normal after the conclusion of political conventions when a new disturbing factor appeared in the strike of packing house employees and allied trades. This enhanced prices of meats and added many thousands to the already large army of unemployed, weakening the purchasing power of the people still further. Aside from this unfavorable development, the news of the week contained much encouragement.

Crop prospects improved, and the general level of prices for farm products promises a large return to agriculturists, which means better business for all industries. Confidence grows with the crops, retailers showing more disposition to prepare for the future as the season advances with no serious setback to the farms.

Confidence is returning in the security market, the average price of sixty active railway shares showing an advance over the level a year ago for the first time in 1904. Bank exchanges at New York for the week were 2.5 per cent smaller than a year ago, while at other leading cities the loss was only .9 per cent.

Liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for July aggregated $3,565,356, of which $1,192,552 were in manufacturing, $2,169,552 in trading and $203,042 in other commercial lines. Failures this week numbered 225 in the United States against 213 last year and 20 in Canada compared with 16 a year ago.

Grand Cross of Legion For Hay.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Secretary of State Hay has received notification from the French embassy that on the occasion of the French national festival of the 14th of July the government of the republic had conferred upon him the dignity of the grand cross of the Legion of Honor in recognition of the services rendered during the last six years by the American department of state toward the maintenance of the peace of the world. The secretary of state, who has hitherto declined all propositions of this nature, felt that he could not refuse so signal an honor from the great European republic, considering the motive which prompted it. He thereupon sent to the French embassy a note expressing his grateful appreciation of the offer, which he accepted subject to the approval of congress.

Benimsuar Did Not Attack.

TANGIER, Morocco, July 16.—Walter B. Harris, the Tangier correspondent of the London Times, who had been notified by the British legation at Tangier that tribesmen intended to capture him, was not attacked, as his residence was guarded by 120 soldiers. The tribe to which the intention to attack Mr. Harris is attributed is the Benimsuar, which, like all other tribes, wishes to imitate the bandit Raisuli, who captured the American, Ion Perdicaris, and his son-in-law, Cromwell Varley.

HOW NERVES ARE SPLICED.

Latest Wonder in the Line of Surgical Accomplishment in the Medical World.

Among the many remarkable operations which have lately been attracting universal attention throughout the medical world, that of restoring dead nerves to life is, perhaps, one of the most daring. Though still in its infancy, at least three cases are said to have resulted in absolute success, and it is believed in surgical circles that in the near future nerve-splicing, as it is called, will become as ordinary as trepanning or any other delicate operation.

The object of the operation, of course, is the curing of paralysis and palsy, and it is due to the daring of Drs. Alfred S. Taylor and L. Pierce Clark, of New York, and Dr. James E. Young, of Philadelphia, that these experiments have been carried to a successful issue. In the case of young children palsy is generally due to some accident at birth which compresses the nerves that radiate from the upper part of the spinal cord and produces paralysis in the arms. This terrible complaint is known in the medical profession as "birth-palsy."

In the case of old people or those who are getting on in years paralysis may also be due to accident, though it is more usually attributable to decay of the principal nerve. So far no experiments on the lines originated by Drs. Taylor, Clark and Young have been made with adult patients, but it is firmly believed that, if a continuance of success is met with in the cases of children, there is no reason why the operation should not be equally successful when performed on the old.

For a year or more Drs. Taylor and Clark have been conducting experiments on two children who were victims of birth-palsy, and so successful have they been that the little patients are now as active and healthy as the most anxious mothers could wish. How this remarkable operation is performed was recently explained by Dr. Clark before an audience of medical men in New York. The nerves, he stated, which supply motion to the affected limbs were severed as close to the spinal cord as possible and then grafted on to the nearest trunk line. So successful was the operation that no complications arose, and in course of time the delicate threads united and the paralyzed parts took on fresh life.

The nerves which radiate from the upper part of the spinal cord are so great in number, and they cross and recross each other in so complex a manner, that the operation of grafting one nerve on to another is an extremely delicate one. Another thing which adds considerably to the difficulty of the operation is the fact that anaesthetics must be used very sparingly, for the longer the patient remains under their influence the harder it is to follow the nerve threads.

Of the five children who have, up to the present, been operated on for palsy and paralysis all are said to have been successfully treated, though two died from childish ailments after use of their limbs had been restored. The other three children, who have also regained the free play of their limbs and are otherwise robust and strong, will shortly appear before a meeting of the New York Medical society, when they will be used to illustrate a lecture on the successful results of these experiments in nerve-grafting.

BIRDS WITHOUT VOICES.

The Greeting of Storks Consists of Clapping Their Long Bills Together Noisily.

Storks are not often seen on the American continent, but are commonly found in nearly all the countries of Europe. In Holland, says a London paper, where they are particularly numerous and are protected by law, their nests are generally on the summit of a tall post, put up on purpose for them, on which is fixed an old cart wheel. A Dutch gentleman has one such post on his grounds within sight of his library window, but he improves on the cart wheel by having an iron framework for the reception of the nest. The first year it was put up, toward the end of June, a solitary young stork used to come daily to inspect this framework. He was seen there one day standing in an empty receptacle, exactly like a would-be benedict inspecting an empty house, contemplating the view and wondering if the drains are all right.

The verdict was apparently favorable, for next season saw the nest occupied by the newly-wedded wair. Their power of wing is very fine, and on hot days they ascend spiral circles, hardly moving their broad, black wings, till they look no bigger than flies. After the young are hatched they appear to be suspicious of one another, and unwilling to leave the nest unguarded.

Storks have no voice. The only noise they make is "klappering" (snapping their red mandibles rapidly and loudly). Thus they greet one another, generally by throwing back the head until the upper mandible rests on the back, but occasionally "klappering" is performed with the head and bill in the former position.

An Awful Threat.

"News from the war?" queried the managing editor in the tone of a forlorn hope as he entered the telegraph room at midnight.

"Many rumors, but nothing doing," returned the boss of the wires with resignation. "The Yalu still separates them."

The managing editor's face grew grim with determination. "Cable this," he cried. "Cable this in duplicate to the czar and the mikado: 'If you fellows don't get together and mix it up by a week from to-night 'The Universe' will take you both off the front page.'"—N. Y. Tribune.

JAPS DRIVEN OUT.

Russians Occupy Heights In Rear of Port Arthur.

FIGHT IMMINENT AT TATCHEKIAO

A Naval Battle Is Reported Off Port Arthur Yesterday—Japanese Column on Mukden Road.

LONDON, July 16.—A Tatchekiao dispatch says that the latest reports regarding the storming of Port Arthur place the Japanese losses in killed or wounded at 25,000 and those of the Russians at 5,500. The Japanese were driven out, and the Russians occupied the position in the rear of the town.

The Japanese have now changed their frontal position, and a big battle is expected at the eastern portion of the defenses owing to the Japanese turning movement. In the fighting at the right flank of the line of defenses of Port Arthur the Russians drove back the Japanese and occupied the east bank of the Lunsantan and the heights commanding Lunsantan pass.

A Japanese spy has been captured who was dressed in the garb of a Chinese and was remarkably cool and defiant in demeanor. He said he was a Korean by birth, had lived in Japan for twelve years and loved that country. Thousands like him, he declared, were convinced that Japan eventually would be successful, and he advised the Russians to sue for peace as soon as possible.

Fighting is imminent at Tatchekiao and Haicheng. The Japanese are intrenched six miles south of Tatchekiao. Much skirmishing is taking place.

The weather is favorable for the movement of troops. No rain has fallen for a whole week.

It is rumored that a Japanese column has appeared on the Mukden road.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that a Russian correspondent in the field repeats the story of a Japanese disaster at Port Arthur, but does not add any details except the statement that after the repulse the Japanese fled in great disorder, pursued by the Russians.

He says that an aid to General Rennenkampff and seven Cossacks were wounded in the skirmish in which the general was shot (between Liaoyang and Saimatza, in which the Japanese were repulsed).

Two divisions of Japanese re-enforcements are landing at Dalny, the correspondent says, and he adds that wounded Japanese prisoners captured on Black mountain who died subsequently were buried with military honors.

A Shanghai dispatch says that a naval engagement took place yesterday off Port Arthur.

It is reported at Shanghai that the Chicago Daily News' dispatch boat Fawan has been seized by the Russians and towed into Port Arthur.

A Liaoyang report says that General Samsonoff seriously checked the Japanese advance in the direction of Yinkow. His Cossacks have ambushed the Japanese column and put 1,000 out of action.

The Japanese attempted to advance to Yinkow along the coast, but they were hindered by the marshy country, which also increased their difficulties in carrying off their dead and wounded during the retreat.

The Russians had expected a movement in this direction, and a company of cavalry, with two guns, lay in ambush in the high grass, catching the Japanese in the most difficult part of the coast road and shattering their advance column. The artillery fire of the Russians was splendid, and the Japanese were unable to make an effective reply. They were forced to retreat.

The Russian losses were six killed and seven wounded.

Americans' Coolness Under Fire.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 16.—A correspondent, describing incidents at the battle of Vafangow, says: "Lieutenant Vokoulin stood beside two American attaches, Lieutenant Colonel Walter S. Schuyler, United States army, and Captain William V. Judson, United States engineer corps. He was greatly impressed by their soldierly bearing. They did not leave the firing line a single minute, but stood calmly observing the battle raging around and unconcernedly smoked cigars, although shells were bursting and bullets whizzing."

Beeman Indicted For Murder.

WINSTED, Conn., July 16.—An indictment charging murder in the first degree has been returned by the grand jury against Sherman Beeman of West Cornwall, who shot his wife and then attempted suicide in North Canaan last Memorial day. Beeman and his wife had been separated for some time, and he is alleged to have been angered over her refusal to return to live with him.

Train Struck Handcar.

EMPORIA, Kan., July 16.—A freight train ran down a handcar on which four young persons were returning from the country near here. John Owens was killed and Arthur Denham, Mae and Pearl Miller were fatally hurt. The freight train, after striking the handcar, passed on without stopping, and Owens' body and the injured were not found until two hours later.

New Governor For Newfoundland.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 16.—Sir William MacGregor, recently governor of Lagos, who has been appointed governor of Newfoundland in succession to Sir Cavendish Boyle, is expected to assume his office next month.

Plainfield, N. J., July 16, 1904.

Vice Presidential Candidate Davis was baptized Henry Gassaway. It remains to be seen what's in this name.

The Plainfield firemen may not be able to win fame as baseball players but when it comes to fighting fires they bow to none.

Henry Watterson continues to sip his mint julip and is incidently dreaming of Democratic victory. If the Kentucky journalist will add a dash or two of absinthe to his drink he may be able to imagine himself as Secretary of War under Parker.

Governor Franklin Murphy sums up the Democratic record in this fashion: "Conspicuous failure to deal with emergencies." There is something about Mr. Murphy's administration of affairs in this State that leads us to believe that the chief executive of New Jersey was thinking of his own regime.

Don't neglect to applaud the Company K boys if you chance to see them as they pass through the streets from the train to their armory this afternoon. They are due here about 4 o'clock. Captain Martin's company won fresh laurels at Sea Girt by fine drilling and the boys deserve some recognition.

A Puritanical minister made a bold attempt to prevent the delivery of ice in Philadelphia on Sundays. The magistrates were humane enough to refuse him a warrant, but the matter got into the courts somehow and now Judge Audenreid has declared that such work is a necessity. The Quaker City people should make it so warm for that misguided minister that he will be convinced that ice is a necessity in his own case.

William Jennings Bryan, former Congressman, twice Presidential candidate, editor of The Commoner, and proprietor of political delusions, is possessed of cunning to a marked degree. Shrewd enough to realize that his pet theories have become far removed from the arena of current political discussion by the action of his party's convention, he sets about to reorganize his badly routed forces at no distant day by declaring his allegience to the Democratic standard and then proceeding to defeat the chances of victory under the present leadership. The plot is one that can be seen at a moment's glance. The Nebraskan comes out in an interview in which he declares his loyalty and at the same time furnishes abundant material to the enemy for campaign argument against the platform. One by one he dissects the planks, exposing to the public gaze whatever he deems to be particularly weak. He intimates that Parker is Wall street's man and can not be depended upon to curb the encroachments of the trusts. About the only thing he likes in the entire platform is the plank on the tariff and he is not very enthusiastic over it. He has some favorable comment for other features of the platform but on the whole he gives the impression that it is not by any means what it should be. His policy is to

"Damn with faint praise, assent with civil leer,
And without sneering teach the rest to sneer;
Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike,
Just hint a fault, and hesitate dislike."

—Abram Nelson, of New Market, who has been in Los Angeles, Cal., for his health, is expected home any day. The trip was not a beneficial one for him.

—The inmates of the Children's Home are now fully established in the nurses' old home, which building will be occupied while improvements are being made at the Children's Home.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Some of the boroughites are agitating the appointment of a dog catcher. They say that the number of useless and troublesome curs which infest the street is entirely too great and that measures should be taken to get rid of some of them. A dog catcher is something Dunellen has never possessed and the dogs have never before been troubled.

Mrs. Hannah Nelson, mother of the late Mrs. Charles Fair, has so far recovered from her recent severe illness that she is able to move about with the aid of a cane.

A big crowd of New Market rooters will accompany their favorites to Dunellen today to watch them battle for the second game of the championship series.

The two baseball attractions this afternoon which are of interest to the local followers of the game are the Alls-New York Colored Giants at Crescent Oval and the Twilight F. C.-Orange F. C. game on the local diamond.

One of the prettiest parks along the line of the Central is the park at Fanwood. The improvements made by the company last fall on the east side of the station removed an eyesore to the residents of the borough.

GOSSIP OF NEW YORK

MODERN BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION AMONG THE RICH.

WALL STREET SPECULATION

The Price of Seats on the Stock Exchange Is Declining—The Home of Boss Tweed Sold—Other Items.

NEW YORK—A young man had a birthday the other day. As he is the kind of young man for whom life holds many privileges and few duties it occurred to him that it needed celebrating.

One hundred guests were invited. You might say a quarter of the "400." They were the gayer, younger set, the Hempstead hunters and the yachtsmen, in both of which categories young W. A. Brokaw is reckoned. The celebration took place at Nirvana, his handsome country place at Great Neck, which he has of late been increasing by the simple expedient of buying up one side of a village street. There was an outdoor fete in the Italian garden, a great orchestra from New York playing soft music behind a veil of shrubbery.

Later the guests entered the house. It is a palace, rivaling the great French and English country places in size, but created in the impatient flat of a couple of years where many generations go to the building bit by bit of an old-world mansion. The gem of the house, for the purposes of entertainment, is a beautiful little private theater, all in white and gold, where, on the night of Mr. Brokaw's birthday, a performance was given by clever artists brought from New York for the purpose.

This is nothing new. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish and others have taken whole troupes from New York to Newport to give single performances to while the ennui of a fashionable summer. Such lavish entertainment will be in future less characteristic of Newport than of the new country homes like Mr. Brokaw's, which are becoming so much more "correct." The private theaters recall those in French chateaux in the times of the "grand monarch." In New York city itself, owing to the excessive cost of land, the great ballroom and picture gallery which every great house must have takes its place.

Busy men often forget all about their birthdays until they are past. Women, too.

Stock Exchange Doldrums.

THE recent sale of a stock exchange seat for $58,000 has set Wall street to thinking. For there is a moral.

In 1878 a seat in the great gambling place of the country was worth $4,000. Membership being limited to 1,100, the price naturally rises as the city grows and as securities multiply. But 20 years later, in 1898, the ruling quotation was still only $30,000. It jumped to $40,000 in 1899, doubled to $80,000 in 1900. From that point it crawled more slowly up to high water mark at $82,000 last year. The drop since then, a decrease of $24,000, is pretty nearly the entire price five years ago.

The biggest speculative year was 1901, when 265,000,000 shares of stocks were "sold." Assuming that these shares were all on the $100 par basis—and most of them were—the sales represented in nominal valuation the incredibly great sum of $26,500,000,000—or just double the entire capitalization of all the railway companies in the United States. But this was taking no account of bond sales, or of sales in other cities, or of speculation in the other exchanges of New York—those devoted to gambling in cotton, real estate, produce—or of the Consolidated exchange, or of the "curb." No wonder a seat that gives a man an eleventh-hundredth share of such a business has a value.

Consider the commissions merely. Most of the "sales" are mere gambling transactions between members. If the sales were all made by outsiders they would net to brokers under the inflexible rules of the exchange one-quarter of one per cent—one-eighth each way, for both buyer and seller pay commission—or $66,000,000 in commissions alone. Divide this by the 1,100 members, and we have the respectable average of $60,000 apiece as a yearly income.

Boss Tweed's House.

THERE is a house in Madison avenue that has a history. And it has just been sold, history and all, to the Sire brothers, dealers.

This place was in his palmy days, the home of Boss Tweed. It is worth over now $[illegible], mainly for the [illegible] in its day it was a palace for New York, and filled with all that money could buy and that total lack of taste did not prevent a man from buying. After Tweed's arrest as a common thief he was permitted to revisit his home in custody of a keeper from Ludlow street jail. There was quick work. He shaved off his beard, cut his hair, put on a wig and a pair of gold-rimmed spectacles, jumped out of a rear window and made off over the fence. He went to Florida, to Cuba, to Spain, where, as he had been so incautious as to let his beard grow, he was at last recognized by Spanish reproductions of Nast's cartoons.

The house adjoins others that have been bought for the site of a great apartment house by the Madison Avenue Real Estate company. In a few months it will be no more.

In this way a number of houses of historic interest upon New York's darker side are disappearing. The home that Madame Restell made infamous is torn down. The house so long visible from West side elevated trains, from whose rear windows Banker Hatch leaped to his death while trying to grasp at the branches of a little stunted tree to escape from a "badger," has been torn down. For not a little while the house of the negress Hannah Elias, where Millionaire Platt was cajoled and browbeaten out of three-quarters of a million dollars, will take the place of these time-worn examples.

The Arthur Mansion.

HISTORIC in another way is the Chester A. Arthur mansion at 123 Lexington avenue, which has just been bought by William R. Hearst as his New York home.

His wealth has not induced Mr. Hearst to "splurge" in the selection of an abiding place. Arthur's old home is a modest four-story house, rather narrow, of brown stone. He lived there many years, and died there in 1886. Mrs. Arthur died there in 1881, the day after President Garfield's death at Elberon; unquestionably anxiety on the president's account aggravated her illness. In the parlor of the house Gen. Arthur took the oath of office before Justice Brady of the supreme court.

The constant rebuilding of New York sweeps away most of its well-known landmarks. The Stewart mansion, built with what painstaking care and at what considerable expense, lasted 20 years. A big bank and trust company's structure now stands upon its site. Even club houses far uptown do not last longer. The Progress club is 15 years old. It is being vacated, is to be torn down—a splendid structure costing half a million—to make room for a private house.

The old New York Athletic club had the oddest fate. It was bought for a board of health headquarters. Looking over the place to see where the records of the department could be kept, the "commish" concluded that the swimming tank was just the place. And so it is. A fireproof "lid" was fitted to the tank, and now the health records of the great city are safely kept; they never were before.

The "Roof Garden" Season.

NEW YORK, with a summer thus far rather cool, but averaging pleasant, is just in the middle of the roof garden season.

This type of hot weather entertainment seems to be fated to a long life, to judge from the fact that a great church is to be built over in Brooklyn with a roof garden; the biggest public schools already have them. Roof garden restaurants are common.

The roof garden theater is, however, typical. New York readily enough pays a dollar or a dollar and a half for a trashy entertainment, if it is short enough, and well broken up by interludes that permit of wandering forth into an open air cafe where little tables are spread for refreshments. The plan of serving refreshments in the auditorium itself is found to interfere with the performance, though some of the largest "roofs" follow it.

The New York "roof" covers two great theaters; it is nearly 200 feet square, and that means that it will hold an enormous number of people. The new "aerial garden" of the New Amsterdam theater is rather unique. One is whisked by an express elevator ten stories aloft with magic swiftness. There is a pretty little auditorium; behind and at the sides are wide spaces where drinks, and perhaps something to eat, if anyone is so eccentric as to require it, are served. Each side of the stage a broad passage leads out to the garden, gay with potted plants and fortunate as yet in furnishing an uninterrupted view right across the Hudson to the twinkling lights on the distant Palisades.

The roof of the Madison Square Garden has been famous for years. The most beautiful tower upon any house of amusement in America rises above it, and Diana perches ever drawing her arrow to her ear in spite of protests. For the present, however, the interest at the Garden centers rather within than upon it. Dunn, the eccentric Dunker band leader, gives there his nightly "Venice." New York is not dull in summer, if one sees a stage amusement.

HE HAD DONE SOMETHING.

Not What His Father Wanted Him to Do, But It Suited Mother All Right.

As the son of the house went out of the front door in festal raiment and swinging a stick with a satisfied air the father of the family growled savagely and turned his paper with an impatient movement. "There is some satisfaction in raising chickens," he said, gruffly. "If it's a hen it lays eggs and if it isn't it makes a fair substitute for an alarm clock—or a broiler."

"What do you mean?" inquired the elderly lady occupied with the stocking basket, relates the Chicago Daily News.

"I mean Clyde isn't ever going to arouse a slumbering world. I wish I could wake him up and make him do something."

"Why, he goes down to the office every day, and I'm sure nobody could want a steadier boy. If he does go out in the evening he tells me where he goes."

"Oh, yes. I know all that. And he'll be home before half-past ten o'clock. He's never even asked for a latch-key. Why doesn't he do something?"

"Do what?"

"Oh, anything. There are boys that haven't had half his advantages pushing themselves right to the front. He goes plodding along, plodding along, just in the same old rut all the time. He hasn't any initiative—any force. He doesn't do things."

"You're too severe with him, father," said the elderly lady. "You ought to be thankful that he doesn't. I read the other day about a young man robbing a bank. Clyde might do that, but he doesn't. I don't suppose you'd like it if he went out murdering people. He might do that, but he doesn't. He might set fire to a house, but he doesn't, and he might do all sorts of wild and dissipated things. I'm grateful, the more I see of other young men, for the things that Clyde doesn't do."

"Well," said the father of the family in a softened tone, "I suppose negative virtues are better than active and positive vices, but, all the same, I wish he would do something."

"He has," asserted the mother, rather indignantly. "He dug up and raked the whole of the flower bed along the fence for me before dinner."

EUROPEAN FARM PROGRESS.

Modern Methods Have Been Adopted by Agriculturists of Various Countries.

British experts who have been trying to discover what is the matter with the English farmer assign as one of the causes of his having fallen behind his brethren in other European countries, that he has not followed their example of cooperation with his neighbors, says Youth's Companion.

In Denmark, France, Holland, Germany and Belgium, within 25 years, the farmers have adopted modern methods of doing business, and by so doing have raised agriculture from a low estate and made it profitable. In France, for instance, in 1880, a professor of agriculture, convinced that if farmers could be persuaded to buy artificial fertilizers their lands would be made much more productive, succeeded in inducing a group of farmers to club together and send a large order to the manufacturers. The wholesale price and a low freight rate brought the fertilizer within their means.

From this small beginning "agricultural syndicates" have grown until they contain nearly 600,000 farmers, who purchase every year fertilizers, seeds and machinery worth $20,000,000.

Combinations for selling their produce have not yet succeeded in France, but in Denmark, Holland, Belgium and Germany the farmers have united to raise produce of uniform quality and for securing favorable markets for what they raise. The market-gardeners in Holland have cooperative societies which inspect the goods, reject those not up to the standard, and label with a registered trade-mark those that are passed. In this way they have established a reputation for their product.

The Danish butter-makers and chicken-raisers have adopted a similar plan, and their produce has risen materially in price in the London market since it has been forwarded in uniform packages and of uniform quality. Cooperation in Belgium, both in purchase and sale, has resulted, according to one authority, in increasing the return of each 25-acre farm by $500 a year.

The National Farmers' exchange, recently incorporated in South Dakota, is evidently not the first "farmers' trust," nor will it be the last.

Chinese Burial Customs.

When a rich and important Chinaman dies, his funeral is conducted with much pomp and splendor. His friends and relations, instead of sending wreaths, send innumerable banners. These are made of white silk, with inscriptions beautifully worked in black velvet, and express the senders' good wishes to the deceased himself or to the members of his family for many generations. On the day of the funeral these banners are carried by hired men, who are all dressed alike for the occasion. After the funeral, which lasts for several hours at the cemetery, is over, the banners are all brought back, and eventually grace the rooms of the late Chinaman's house.

Wounds Dressed with Burnt Straw.

At a cost of one shilling Japanese doctors can dress the wounds of 500 men. They use a finely-powdered charcoal obtained by the slow combustion of straw in closed furnaces. Sachets filled with it are applied to the wounds, and its antiseptic and absorbent qualities generally effect a rapid cure.

VANITY'S MIRROR.

Voile Dresses In Every Color Are Ultra Smart—Skirt Styles.

Voile dresses in every color are ultra smart. They are trimmed with taffeta ruchings, applications of dyed lace and velvet ribbon of a deeper shade. The most effective colors are lavender, gray, ecru and rose pink. For really dressy hats chip and rice straw are most favored, and a commingling of hair braid, chenille and satin straw is also accounted very smart, while very effective headgear is formed by the addition of a frill of plaited mousseline to a hat of drawn lace work. One of the newest millinery shapes is an exact copy of a man's felt chasseur shape.

LAVENDER VOILE GOWN.

the novelty consisting in the shape of the brim and the cockade shaped bow on the right instead of on the left.

For the plump girl there is only one skirt, that having a plain hip yoke or the upper half laid in plaits. The shirred effects are for the thin, tall girl whose outlines need filling out or whose height can stand the additional fullness and clumsiness.

Even the simplest dresses show such a deal of workmanship that it is impossible for the ordinary amateur to undertake them. While the outlines may be simple, there is such an amount of elaboration that even the plainest yoke is covered with bits of lace and hand work, the whole forming an appliqued design of beauty.

The tiniest hats are being worn in contrast to some of the picture shapes. An instance of the fickleness of Mme. La Mode is the revival of the turban carried through in tulle, with a single ostrich feather falling on the hair in the back.

The picture shows a gown of lavender voile. The jacket effect is trimmed with bands of Persian silk, and there are pipings of the same.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SUMMER DRESSES.

Some of Them Are Made Collarless. Chiffon Used Everywhere.

The collarless effect will be seen on a good many summer gowns as the season advances.

The Dutch neck slightly cut out in a round shape is especially trying to those who have not good necks. It is one of the fashionable dress features of the season.

Tulle toques are much worn, and a toque recently ordered from a Fifth avenue millinery shop is of burgundy red tulle having an edge of currants with dull tinted leaves.

Shirred yokes of chiffon are much used with veiling gowns, and this chiffon also appears to eke out the sleeves and to give them an airy appearance. Chiffon plays such an important part in the dress of the moment that it is impossible to reckon without it. In fact, a dress without a touch of chiffon either in the lining or the exterior is apt to present a hard, unfinished appearance.

A SIMPLE BLOUSE.

Some very picturesque hats with high crowns are being seen in Paris, but high crowns for some reason do not seem to take well on this side of the water.

The picture shows a silk or lisse blouse with an odd sleeve [illegible]

By FREDERIC REDDALE.

CHAPTER IV.

Over the Karroo Desert the stars paled and the dawn broke swiftly. From every kloof there floated pale wisps and wreaths of silver mist, out of which the flat-topped kopjes rose like islands in a ghostly sea. The surface of the Mooi river was hidden by a thicker pall of this same fog.

With the coming of the sun there came a merry breeze, which swept kloof and kopje clean as with an invisible besom, and anon the waters of the little river sparkled and rippled in the glorious sunshine of a new day.

But it was yet cold—horribly cold—reminding one of the hill country of North India. Gradually the sun gets in his work, and the chill of the air gives place to a genial warmth which before the meridian will turn to an oppressive heat.

An antelope and its mate came trotting to the water's edge to drink, but ere quenching their thirst sniffed the air suspiciously, and then galloped off down-stream, their hard little hoofs rattling like castanets over the stones. A hundred yards off the wild creatures halted and gazed timorously back.

On the bank, by the gray embers of a dead fire, lay a ghastly thing, huddled shapelessly in a heap, the clothing soiled and dusty, a great reddish-brown stain on the khaki jacket, the ends of a waving brown beard matted and clotted with the blood which had dripped and oozed and discolored the light, clayey soil.

Richard Dysart! Alive?—perhaps. Dead?—if not, he surely soon will be unless succor comes.

Down the little kloof through which the old wagon had creaked so cheerfully the day before there stole like shadows two dusty Kaffir boys. Timidly they gained its shelter, and cautiously peered through the spokes of the heavy wheels.

They point eagerly at the recumbent figure, and chatter to each other in their queer, clicking speech. Then, looking fearfully around and over their shoulders, they advance, and Joey drops on his knees beside his master.

"Baas, Baas!" he whines, and with thumb and forefinger raises an eyelid to see if there be left any life.

The blue and parched lips move, and there is a whispered moan:

"Water! Water!"

The other boy looks on stupidly and stolidly, but Joey dashes to the wagon for a tin cup, which he fills at the stream, and raising the head of the sorely wounded man, manages to tilt some of the blessed liquid down his throat.

Catching sight of the neck of a flask protruding from the sufferer's pocket, Joey sends some brandy chasing after the water, and the vivifying effect of the cordial is almost magical.

Dysart opened his eyes, drew a few shuddering breaths, and then managed to sit up, supporting himself with one hand while he pressed the other to his wounded side.

At sight of the blood-stained jacket and the dark pool which discolored the ground there were more excited Kaffir clicks, while the poor, faithful, half-famished blacks watched their master anxiously.

Slowly and painfully the details of the tragedy came back to his throbbing and fever-parched brain. His gaze sought the ground on either hand, then he groaned:

"Robbed! The damned hound!"

Reaching out his hand for the precious flask, he took another gulp of its contents, and then made as if he would rise, but fell back, helpless as a child. His limbs were cramped and stiff with the night's exposure, to a freezing temperature, and he was besides, awfully weak from loss of blood.

But Dysart knew what must be done if he would save his life, and so he whispered—

"Strip me, Joey."

Tenderly as women the boys did his bidding. Slowly and amid many smothered exclamations of pain they got his belt and jacket off; then his heavy flannel shirt, and a silk undershirt—the last refusing to budge until all around the wound had been well wetted. Then was disclosed an angry red puncture just below and a little to the left of the right armpit. There was a larger and more jagged wound at the back, where the heavy-calibre bullet had ploughed its exit, lodging between the flesh and the clothing, whence it dropped to the ground as the last garment was removed.

Joey picked it up with a click and a grin of astonishment and handed it to Richard, who coolly slid it into his trousers-pocket. Under his directions the wound was washed clean, and then carefully bandaged with the silk shirt torn into strips.

By this time the warming sun had done its genial work, and Dysart's legs were thawed out. So, by dint of both boys bracing themselves and tugging on his sound arm he managed to stagger to his feet and totter to the wagon, where, after much boosting and groaning on their part and his, he was made fairly comfortable on the heavy mattress which covered the bed of the conveyance. Then the wounded man collapsed.

The days ran into weeks, and the weeks mounted into months before the lonely adventurer began to mend. Fever wasted him to a skeleton; malaria sapped his vitality. Help there was none within a hundred miles; he could not stand the jolting of the wagon, and in his lucid moments he sternly vetoed Joey's offers to go for help. He knew what that would mean—a rush of strangers to his claim.

So there, on the banks of the Mooi river, he fought his second fight with death, tended and nursed only by his faithful Kaffirs—and won out at last!

All through those weary weeks, in the intervals of delirium and the tedium of convalescence, he planned and plotted vengeance on the miscreant who had robbed him. He would chase him round the world and back again if need be! Daily and hourly he looked for a rush of diamond seekers to the new field. That they did not come proved that the unknown robber must have kept his own counsel, and was doubtless far enough away enjoying the fruits of his unholy spoil.

But there were enough shining stones left on the beach to make another fortune—several fortunes, in fact—and Dysart was still a rich man.

The first thing was to get to the coast, and easily divining that the criminal would make for the nearest seaport rather than for Kimberley or Pretoria, Richard determined to strike for Ladysmith, at that time the nearest town whence ran the railroad for Durban.

It was on a bright morning late in the South African spring when the word was given to inspan and trek once more, to the huge delight of Joey and his brother. The oxen had waxed fat over their long idleness, and good speed might be looked for.

The little party reached Ladysmith without mishap further than the loss of two of the cattle from drinking "red water." There Dysart disposed of some of his smallest stones, so as not to excite too much inquiry, suitably rewarded Joey and the other boy with a handful of yellow sovereigns apiece, made them a present of a new wagon and a dozen oxen, entered and proved his claim to the new field on the Mooi, replenished his wardrobe, got a shave, a haircut and a bath, and then was ready to turn amateur detective.

He stumbled on his first clew by accident.

"A middlin' fine passel o' stones, Bister Dysart," said one of the dealers, a little Houndsditch Jew named Moses Plish, to whom he sold a small part of his find, after the purchase was concluded. "There vas another gent 'ere avile ago vith jest sich a lot; in a steamin' 'urry 'e wos too!"

"Indeed?" said Richard, as nonchalantly as possible, keeping his eyes averted lest old Plish should espy their angry gleam.

"Yessir; a cool an' 'aughty customer 'e was! 'Ow much for the lot,' sezzee, 'an' no qvestions arsed?' I 'ad done a leetle business vith 'im afore, an' I knowed 'is vays!"

"That's curious," said Richard. "I wonder if I have ever met your man? I don't mind telling you, Plish, that I've located and proved a new claim, and I supposed I was first on the ground. But you can never be sure. What did you say his name was?"

"I didn't sy, Bister Dysart," said Plish, with a cunning grin, "'cos I never 'eard it—leastways 'is genooine nyme; ven I see 'im afore, a matter o' two or three years back, 'e useter play the pianner in a dance 'ouse in Durban."

"H-m-m," mused Dysart, drumming on the dirty table. "What was this chum like, Plish?"

"Tall an' thin, sorter grizzly 'air, with vite 'ands and long fingers like a voman's. But all this 'ere's strickly confidenshul an' atween ourselves, Bister Dysart, like as vun gent to another."

"Oh, certainly," asserted Richard, quietly pocketing the invidiously impudent classification. "It doesn't really matter, you know. Thought I might know the beggar," and he rose to go.

"'Ere's somethin' 'e left be'ind 'im, sir," said Plish, who had been rummaging in a drawer, displaying a dirty canvas bag.

Rick seized it and went to the open door to examine it.

Sure enough, it was the canvas bag of which he had been looted on the bank of the Mooi! Turning to the Jew, he inquired as carelessly as possible:

"You don't mean to tell me he had this full of stones?"

"Oh, no, Bister Dysart, not by no manner o' means; I only saw abart a 'andful," was the reply.

"I'll keep this bag, Plish, if you've no objections," said Richard, stowing it away carefully.

"Don't bention it, Bister Dysart, sir," was the affable reply.

"One more question, Plish, and I'm done," said Richard. "Which way was your friend traveling, do you suppose?" He had risen, and stood carelessly flicking his boot with his riding-whip, yet much depended upon the reply he should receive.

"I 'appen to know 'e vent 'round to Cape Town by the first steamer," said Plish. "But all this is strickly pers'nal an' privit, Bister Dysart, sir," he whined, for something in Richard's manner told him he had been talking too much.

"Quite so," was the terse answer, and with a parting nod off he swung down the wide and sunny street.

A week later he landed in Cape Town, where, in the process of forming a company to work the new claim, and arranging for the shipment to London and the insurance of the remainder of his stones, he was able to make a few cautious and casual inquiries about the man of whom he was in search. Not much could be gleaned, yet enough to convince him that the trail led in the direction he was himself most anxious to pursue—namely, to England.

He left Cape Town nine months and more behind the other. For clews he possessed a rather hazy personal description which might or might not be trustworthy, a dirty canvas bag and a 44-caliber bullet.

On board the steamer running around from Durban to Cape Town Richard Dysart still further added to his stock of information.

He was accosted on deck one morning by a certain Sergt. Cupples, one of the special force detailed to patrol in plain clothes the various steamship lines on the watch for contraband diamonds and smugglers thereof.

To his surprise, he learned that his own movements since arriving at Ladysmith were perfectly well known, and this led to some confidential talk concerning the devious ways of the I. D. B., which proved especially interesting to our friend.

"What moonshining is to the southern states of America, what counterfeiting is at home and abroad, what the slave trade was a few years ago, so is the present day illicit trade in diamonds in South Africa," said Cupples. "In the estimation of legitimate mine owners and traders it may be set down as 'the sum of all villainies.' Despite the utmost vigilance of the Cape police and an army of secret agents, stones are annually smuggled out of the country to the tune of thousands of pounds."

"How can the authorities manage to cover such a vast field with any degree of success?" inquired Rick.

"Well, you see, the camps and productive fields are all known, mapped and located. These outlets are watched and their output is pretty accurately known from month to month. So also with the towns inland and the coastwise cities like Durban, Delagoa Bay, Port Elizabeth and Cape Town itself. The 'fences' are also known and kept under closer surveillance, and there is one of our men on every outgoing steamer."

Dysart nodded; much of this was already familiar to him.

"But suppose a new field is discovered—a man might become legitimately possessed of stones in that way?" he ventured.

"You are referring to your own case," said the police agent with a smile; and then, in answer to the other's mute query: "We know all about you, Mr. Dysart. In the first place, you declared and proved your claim according to law; in the second place, Moses Plish 'gave you away' before you'd been out of his place an hour!"

"The devil he did!" exclaimed Richard. "I wonder if he did as much for my predecessor?"

Sergt. Cupples looked at him narrowly from under the peak of his steamer cap, took a few turns along the deck, and then said quietly:

"I'm on that case myself. Better let me have the whole story, Mr. Dysart. Being a mine owner, you are as much interested in this matter as I am."

"And a good deal more," said Richard quietly. So, in the seclusion of a little nine-by-twelve stateroom on the Lanark Castle, the story of the grim tragedy on the Mooi river was for the first time told to the ear of a white man.

At its conclusion:

"We can run him down, Mr. Dysart—that's certain. But whether we can hold him is another matter. You can charge highway robbery with intent to kill, and it's 20 years in Portland prison if he's convicted. But I question whether the loot would come under the statute of illicit diamonds, because at the time of the seizure the claim had not been entered and proved."

"That's quite to my liking," exclaimed Richard, who had begun to fear that his private vengeance might be balked. "It's a personal matter between him and me, and I'd like to deal with the rascal myself in my own way. You have no clew as to his identity?"

"Not a particle beyond the personal description of old Plish," was the regretful reply.

LUCK IS ONLY FORESIGHT.

So Said the Humble Man, But He Heard Something Somewhat Contradictory.

"You think, then," said the gentleman who stood on the marble steps leading up to his $700,000 palace, "that your present condition is due merely to the fact that you have been unlucky?"

"Yes," replied the humble one who leaned upon the handle of the lawn mower, relates the Chicago Record-Herald. "I have made up my mind that I must have been born under an unlucky star. I've worked hard all my life. A dozen times after saving carefully and getting ahead a little I've tried to become a leading citizen, but something has always happened to spoil my plans. Once I started in the milk business and had just begun to see my way clear ahead when somebody brought into the neighborhood a cow with a contagious disease. Mine all caught it before I had time to discover the presence of danger, and I lost everything I had.

"I opened up a grocery in a manufacturing district next, and then a panic came on and they closed all the shops and the people moved away, so that I lost all I had saved again. Then I went to work and hoarded up every cent I could until I had $500 in a bank that was supposed to be as sound as the government itself. The cashier looted it one day, and I was penniless again. Then I thought I would buy real estate. After saving again I bought a lot that everybody supposed would rapidly increase in value. The day after I made the last payment on it the city decided to locate a dog pound on the adjoining lot, and I couldn't even get anybody to take the land as a gift."

"And you think all this has been mere bad luck, eh?" said the rich gentleman, with a smile of mingled pity and contempt. "My good fellow, there is no such thing as bad luck in this world. We succeed or fail according to our abilities. You lack foresight, that's all. You should before going into the dairy business have taken precautions to prevent your cows from being contaminated. You showed poor judgment in opening a grocery in a district that was liable to be affected by business conditions, and you should have known better than to put your money in a piece of ground that adjoined a suitable site for a dog pound. People never get rich or great through mere luck. Bad luck is always the excuse of people who lack the ability to rise. It's as old as the world and as foolish as the belief of the man who thinks he can lift himself by his bootstraps. Go ahead now and finish mowing the lawn. After you're through I'll see about giving you a regular job for the summer."

The humble one went on with his work. As he was pushing his mower past the turreted stable the coachman emerged.

"Do you know how the man who lives here got his money?" asked the stranger.

"Haven't you heard the story? Thirty years ago when this city was a strugglin' village and nobody thought it would ever amount to anything a man who owed him $75 had a ten-acre lot here. It was mostly swamp and couldn't be used either for farmin' or buildin'. He couldn't pay the $75, and the boss here had to take the land. He tried to trade it for a mule, and I guess would of done it all right only the mule died just before they came to an understandin'. A little while after that the boom struck the place and he wanted to sell out for $30,000, but the people that were goin' to buy busted up, and he had to take his swamp back. He was so disappointed that he took sick and was out of his head for three weeks. When he got so he could set up and recognize people again his land was worth $4,000,000." The man with the mower then went on about his work, for he was cutting the grass by the job and couldn't afford to waste time.

Was He Game?

A young curate in England was once asked to take a class of girls of about 15 or 16, which had formerly been taken by a lady.

After a time the young clergyman consented, but insisted upon being properly introduced to the class. Accordingly the next Sunday the superintendent took him to the girls for this purpose, and addressing them, said:

"Young ladies, I wish to introduce to you Rev. Mr. Chirp, who will in future be your teacher. I should like you to tell him what your former teacher did, so that he can go on in the same way."

Immediately a demure young miss of 16 rose and said:

"The first thing teacher did was to kiss us all round."—Christian Endeavor World.

A Farmer on Farmers.

An Iowa farmer who was born in Maine, but went west many years ago has been revisiting the east. Now he writes to say that in his opinion New England farmers would not complain so much of poverty if they would work harder. He thinks the western agriculturist could give his eastern brother some pointers on real toil. The New England men ought to take him the rounds of the old stone walls, which contain a good many hundred backaches to the rod, and challenge him to duplicate them in Iowa.—Springfield (Mass.) REPTILES ON GUARD.

EMPLOYED AS WATCHMEN BY BIG MAINE CORPORATION.

Valuable Tools Are Left in Charge of the Companionable Snakes During the Warm Months of Every Year.

"Although there are steel tools valued at nearly $500,000 in the stone sheds of the Mount Waldo Granite company at Frankfort, Me.," said Edwin Batchelder, the boss blacksmith on the works, to a New York Sun correspondent, "the company never has to employ a night watchman during the warm months.

"There are plenty of hoboes and others who would be glad enough to steal and sell the points and chisels and hammers, but from the middle of May until the middle of September every year the aged watchman, who has been on duty winters for more than 25 years, goes home and spends his vacation raising crops on his farm, while the sheds filled with expensive tools and machinery are left open to anyone who has a mind to call around.

"Fact is, nobody cares to call more than once after sunset. Several have tried it, but the first attempt satisfied them, so they had rather remain poor and honest than get rich by walking in and carrying off enough at a single load to furnish a house.

"I don't say that the sheds are not guarded, for they are. What I say is that the Mount Waldo sheds are the only ones that cost the owners nothing for protection.

"More than 50 years ago, when Dr. Charles T. Jackson, of Boston, one of the claimants to the credit of having discovered the anesthetic qualities of ether, and at that time state geologist in Maine, came here and was frightened out of his wits almost by the number of big ringneck snakes sunning themselves among the white rocks which had been thrown out from the sheds. He asked John T. Rowe, one of the owners, why he did not kill the reptiles and make the place fit to work in.

"Mr. Rowe replied that so long as the big snakes were plenty the sight of them would keep the hands from getting drunk. He found that ringnecks six feet in length were more potent as temperance advocates than signing the pledge or 30 days in jail.

"As new contracts were taken and the sheds were enlarged, the heap grew bigger and bigger, and the snakes, being protected by Mr. Rowe's favor, just overran the whole premises. They were quiet enough in the day time, as they kept on top of the hot rocks and took sun baths most of the time; but as soon as it became dark they came out and swarmed to the sheds by hundreds, picking up the discarded bits of noonday lunch thrown away by the workmen, and gathering in all the toads and insects they could find.

"After the death of Mr. Rowe the boss stonecutter kept up the protection of the reptiles, so that if an employe killed one he was discharged from the works. The owners of the quarry, having endured the presence of the snakes so long, became accustomed to them and used to boast about having the largest collection of reptiles in the country.

"One night about six years ago, while the night watchman was drowsing, a band of tramps crept into the open sheds and began to pack up a kit of tools in readiness to take it away, when the watchman was rudely awakened by hearing bloodcurdling yells coming from the stone works. He hurried to the spot and found three of the most frightened men he had ever seen.

"One fainted from the scare he had received, and all begged to be flogged or taken to jail or put to work, provided they could escape from the reptiles. Since then a few strangers have attempted to steal from the exposed kits, but no one has succeeded in carrying away anything.

"A ringneck snake is as harmless as a kitten and could not injure anybody if it tried, but the appearance of the great creatures squirming among the stone chips and wriggling through the sheds is enough to give one the creeps. Anyway, they are good enough to save the company from paying $30 a month for a watchman for six months every year."

Mistook Dog for Burglar.

Mrs. Fred Eichler, of Belleville, Ill., always sleeps with a revolver under her pillow. On a recent evening she imagined she heard a man breathing beneath her bed. Being blessed with a keen ear, she did her best to locate the exact spot occupied by the interloper. Then she fired through the mattress, and fatally wounded her pet Newfoundland dog.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

It is said that Merity will umpire the Alis-Westfield contests on Crescent Oval.

A younger brother of Charles Walton, the Alis shortstop, is one of the best players on the Clinton, Hunterdon county, team.

The Bound Brook ball team will cross bats with East Millstone at the latter place this afternoon. George Dupee will pitch for Millstone.

Richard Watt, of Garwood, has been secured by Manager Denman, of Westfield, as an umpire, succeeding Kinzie. Watt formerly managed a team at Garwood.

Jimmie Montross, formerly of Scotch Plains, has failed to get a steady job twirling. Since leaving the 'Plains he has pitched for New Brunswick and Garwood.

Among the local baseball fans who frequently witness the big games in New York, is Thomas Rafferty, of Sandford avenue. Tom saw the New York Americans and Clevelands play on Wednesday and he says it was the greatest exhibition of batting he ever witnessed.

"Snorty" Hickman, who played short-stop for Manager Denman and about whom there has been considerable trouble, has left Westfield and gone to Rhode Island. "Nat" Strong, of the Murray Hills, was making things warm for the little player and he decided to seek new fields. It is understood that Denman has signed Battam, formerly of Orange A. C., to play short.

ON THE TRACK.

The valuable thoroughbred horses owned by Charles W. McCutchen, of the borough, have been brought home from the country, where they have been during the absence of the owner and his family.

GOLF.

Several local golfers being unable to play their favorite game here on Sunday find it convenient to journey to the Westfield Golf Club on that day.

Mrs. Harry Marshall, of Grant avenue, who has been very ill, is now recovering rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Symons, of East Third street, leave today for Belleville to spend several days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williams, of East Front street, are entertaining Mrs. Robert Scott, of Cadiz, Ohio.

It will benefit you mentally and physically and give you renewed strength for the succeeding warm days. There are also many improvements at Asbury Park which you will thoroughly enjoy.

H. S. KELLY SEEKS DIVORCE.

Former Plainfielder is Separated From Wife Who Lives Here.

Petition has been filed in the Court of Chancery at Trenton by Hugh S. Kelly, of Roselands, for absolute divorce from his wife, Mrs. Edna Barth Kelly, of Orchard place, and summons were served to her this afternoon by William Newcorn, Esq., for the plaintiff. The application is made on statuary grounds. The co-respondent in the case is a resident of this city.

The marriage took place January 10, 1902, Mr. Kelly being but eighteen years of age. Two weeks after the wedding he left his wife and moved to Roseland Park, Essex county, his wife remaining an occupant of the home on Orchard place.

Midnight Prowlers.

William H. Bennett heard mysterious noises in the vicinity of his residence on South avenue, and upon investigation observed two men prowling around Mr. VanHerwerden's residence next door. His telephone message to headquarters brought Patrolmen Overbaugh, Gorman and Saunders to the house but no traces of the men could be found.

Claim Big Damages.

Suit for $10,000 damages in tort has been started by Mildred O. Currier and I. Lewis Currier against Mary G. Shoemaker and William A. Shoemaker and the case will be taken to the State Supreme Court at Trenton. William Newcorn, Esq., representing the plaintiff, issued the papers in the case yesterday.

Head Gashed by Fall.

While trimming trees on Manning avenue in front of St. Joseph's church, yesterday, Patrick Regan, of Myrtle avenue, lost his footing and fell to the ground a distance of thirty feet, receiving several bad gashes in the head.

—Walter Thompson, who figured in the case of Jerry Garretson and Edward Martin at the city court last week, is now bringing action against Edward Martin for rough treatment received at his hands in that case. The hearing will be Monday, at Justice Hand's court.

Miss Bessie Wappler, of Raritan, has been spending a week with friends here.

TROLLEY PLANS ARE READY

P. S. C. TO PASS UPON ENGINEER VANEMBURGH'S WORK MONDAY.

The plans, specifications and other drawings necessary for the construction of the trolley between this city and Metuchen have been completed by H. O. VanEmburgh, civil engineer, and this week were approved by Col. Hine. They will be presented to the Public Service Corporation at a meeting to be held on Monday. If approved then, it will be up to the corporation to build the line after the consents are obtained.

H. O. Runyon, Esq., and Ollie Kelly, the latter of Metuchen, are now busily engaged in securing the necessary consents and it is reported that they are meeting with excellent success. It is stated that just as soon as the consents are secured the work of construction will be commenced, if the plans are approved, and there seems to be no doubt but what they will be.

When this line is built it is proposed to operate trolley cars every fifteen minutes between this city and Metuchen. With such service there is no doubt but what it will result in a building boom along the line and it will benefit both Metuchen and Plainfield, more especially this city, where the bulk of the trade is likely to come.

CONTRACTS FOR NEW JAIL

BOROUGH COUNCIL ARRANGES FOR ALTERATION OF ENGINE HOUSE.

The police committee, of the Borough Council, met last evening and awarded the contracts for the alterations to the former engine house. Ambrose Smalley's bid of $579 for the carpentering, mason work and painting was accepted and he was ordered to commence work immediately. The Commonwealth Roofing Company, of Newark, was awarded the contract for placing a tar and gravel roof the entire length of the building for $170. Bids were received for installing four iron cells on the first floor and one private cell to be for women's use on the second floor, but they were considered too high and all were rejected.

'PHONED IMPORTANT MESSAGE

SCOTCH PLAINS MAN STARTLED NATIVES BY CALLING UP ROOSEVELT.

Bristling with importance that was felt by no one but himself, a dapper little man bustled up to the telephone in a Scotch Plains pay station, last night.

"Gimme President Roosevelt's house at Oyster Bay," he said, when Central had answered his ring, with decided emphasis on the title. There was evidently a flutter at the other end of the line because he gave expression to a great number of "yes" and "no's" and the more he talked, the greater the interest spread among his hearers. Word was passed outside that the Nation's chief executive was soon to get in touch with the 'Plains and before the connection was made the group in the pay station had increased three fold. It numbered several politicians and there was considerable buzzing in one corner as to whether or not they should take up the wire after the stranger got through. Visions of fat jobs being distributed direct from Oyster Bay were floating before the eyes of more than one when the whispering was stopped by the man at the 'phone straightening out. After a few interruptions it finally became apparent that the President's 'phone had been reached and the following one-sided conversation ensued:

"Say, is this the President?"

"Oh, it's his secretary. Well, I don't want you, I want Mr. Roosevelt himself."

"He's not in. All right then, but say, I want to speak to his cook."

"She's not allowed to use this telephone, eh. Well, can you take her a message?"

"You can. Well, you just say to her then that Bennett will be down tomorrow. Hear that, Bennett will be down tomorrow. Hear that, don't forget. Good bye."

Exiles John Giles.

John Giles, of Hyland avenue, arrested on the complaint of his wife, for being drunk and disorderly was warned in the city court today to leave town immediately and will go to Bound Brook this afternoon.

Waller Got Too Strenuous.

Wilson Waller, colored, of West Second street, paid a fine of $3 for abusing his wife and discharging fire arms at his home while in a drunken condition last night. Patrolmen Hamilton and McGinley made the arrest.

FIX K. OF P. FIELD DAY

SOMERVILLE SECURES ANNUAL MEET OF FRATERNAL ORDER.

Although Point Pleasant had been previously named as the place to hold the annual Knights of Pythias field day on Labor Day, September 5, head officials in the order met yesterday and changed it to Somerville. Through the efforts of Lodge of the Castle, of the latter place, the matter was taken up and the change was made by agreement of all concerned.

Somerville wanted the meet, however, and continued asking for it until it met with success yesterday. A committee of citizens has been appointed and great preparations will be made to entertain the thousands of Knights and their friends.

SEWER CONNECTION ORDERED.

Street Commissioner's Order Causes Some Disappointment.

There is some objection among the property-owners on East Third street regarding a notice served yesterday by Street Commissioner Gavett instructing them to connect their properties with the sanitary sewer. In some instances the owners do not object, in fact they are perfectly willing to make the connection, but in other cases there are strenuous objections on account of the extra expense forced upon the owners. Some of the properties are small and the owners cannot see the necessity of making the improvement.

Captain Smith Takes Charge and Introduces System of Signals—Great Improvement in Play—Detailed Score.

It was the Alis Club's turn on Saturday and the reorganized aggregation with F. L. Smith, as captain, whitewashed the New York Colored Giants, the score being 11 to 0. This is the team that defeated Westfield twice this season. About 500 persons witnessed a contest that was remarkable for heavy hitting.

The new combination secured by Manager Johnston worked to perfection. In all eighteen hits were made off Dawson and Landing. Dawson held Alis down to two hits until the fourth inning, when the locals landed on the leather for three singles. This was a forerunner of a merry-go-round in the fifth inning, when Alis got seven hits, including three two-baggers by Cusick, Oregan and Smith. In the sixth Dietrich hit for three bases. Neither side made an error.

Davis only allowed the Giants two hits. Nelson got a two bagger in the third and Kelly a single in the seventh. The latter kept the crowd in good humor by his coaching. The colored players fielded well, making some phenomenal stops.

YOUNG ARTIST HOME FROM PARIS WITH NOTABLE PAINTING.

Miss Caroline Minturn Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Prescott Hall, of Madison avenue, has returned from Paris, where she has been studying art and is now at the home of her parents. She will shortly visit her grandmother, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, at the latter's summer residence at Newport, and in the fall will return to Paris for a year's additional study. At its completion she will return to Plainfield to make her home with her parents.

Miss Hall brought with her the picture which received such favorable notices last winter and several other canvasses, all of which have attracted attention.

CRANFORD STATION TUNNEL

AT LAST THE JERSEY CENTRAL DECIDES TO BUILD NEW PASSAGE WAY.

The officials of the New Jersey Central have decided to build an underground tunnel at Cranford. For a long time the matter has been under consideration by the company, and the citizens of Cranford have been particularly anxious that either a tunnel or an overhead bridge be constructed at that point to lessen the dangers attendant upon grade crossings.

Now that the tunnel will be built, the town of Cranford is quite happy. It will be somewhat on the style of the ones at the North Avenue Station and at Elizabeth, although not quite so elaborate. It will answer, however, in every particular the purpose for which it is intended. Plans for the improvement will soon be adopted and work commenced.

WORK AT CAMP WOOLFE

SUBJECT OF ADDRESS AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN ENDEAVOR SERVICE.

At the Christian Endeavor service at the First Presbyterian church last evening, Miss Clark, of Westfield, spoke at some length of the work and needs at Camp Woolfe, the Endeavor Fresh Air Mission at Westfield. The leader of the meeting was Fred Lounsbury.

There are now one hundred children and twenty-three mothers at the institution, but this delegation will be replaced by others from the city at the lapse of eleven days. Miss Shaw, a mission worker on the East Side at New York, is now the matron at the camp.

Despite the fact that a donation of $1,000 has been received from James Clark, of this city, Miss Clark emphasized the fact that this money was subscribed for a special purpose and does not go to swell the general fund at the camp. The Christian Endeavor Society at the church has done much to support this camp, by financial contributions, and its members will conduct a service there on August 1, at which time many Plainfielders will visit the camp.

SERVICE AT NETHERWOOD HOME.

Rev. Mr. Rodman and Mr. Torrey Speak at the Exercises.

The regular Sunday afternoon services at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Camp at Netherwood, yesterday afternoon, were held under the trees on the east side of the grounds. A platform was erected and the melodian carried out to be of assistance with the singing. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, rector-emeritus of Grace church, was the speaker of the afternoon and addressed the children upon the Bible verse of the afternoon. Mr. Torrey, Miss Curry's co-worker, also made an address, in which he told the large number of visitors something about the New York homes of the children and their life in the city. There are now 160 children and 23 mothers at the camp.

The singing of the afternoon was led by the choir of Trinity Reformed church with Horace J. Martin as leader. Miss Florence Bennett sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" as the offertory.

Improving Grant Ave. Station.

Work was started this morning on the improvement at the Grant Avenue station, which will include the erection of an iron fence dividing the east and west bound tracks and the erection of a waiting shed on the west bound side. Similar work will soon be started at Clinton avenue. Steps will also be built leading from the street to the east bound station.

GALVIN'S PARK WIDE OPEN YESTERDAY

Dancing Introduced as An Attraction for the Patrons of the Resort.

BARKERS' ACTIVITY

CATCH-PENNY SCHEMES RUNNING IN FULL BLAST.

Residents of Embree Crescent Up in Arms Against the Place—Another New Park Said to be Just as Noisy.

Instead of a further cessation of amusements at Galvin's yesterday, the "lid" was removed entirely and every attraction conducted on week days, was open for business. A new feature was the introduction of Sunday dancing and the floor of the hall was crowded until late last evening. The barkers tuned up their voices and sang the praises of their catch-penny schemes loud and long while the organ on the carousal beat out an accompaniment.

The Park is situated in the extreme easterly boundary of the township of Scotch Plains and being far removed from the village has aroused no complaint. Indignation, however, has been expressed all along by residents of Embree Crescent, which is in Westfield, and through them an attempt was made to have the place conducted quieter on Sundays. A few weeks ago the organ was not played on the Sabbath day and the barkers were not so boisterous, giving the impression that more toning down was to follow. Yesterday's "wide open" aspect upset this idea and it is now thought that no restraining hand will be placed on the management by the Scotch Plains police.

The residents of Embree Crescent never took any legal action but through the establishment of another park in their vicinity they may resort to it. The new place is being conducted by colored people who have been barred from Galvin's, and is said to be more of a sleep disturber than its predecessor.

FRESH AIR HOME EVENTS

LIST OF SERVICES TO BE HELD AT INSTITUTION DURING THE WEEK.

Services will be held at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home at Netherwood every evening this week. Tonight the service will be in charge of the Washingtonville Christian Endeavor Society. Rev. Edward Love will address the meeting tomorrow evening and Mrs. Love, of the Mountainside Mission, North Plainfield, will conduct the service the following evening.

Saturday afternoon will be known as Park Avenue Baptist Day, and at that time a delegation from the Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor Society of that church will visit the camp. George E. Hall has provided for a magician to entertain the little people and there will be games and singing. The women of the church will supply refreshments and ice cream later in the afternoon.

Mr. Murray Merited Honor.

John W. Murray, Jr., of Plainfield, has been reappointed by Governor Murphy as one of the Republican members of the County Board of Elections and Registry. He was recommended by Hamilton F. Kean, and the County Republican Committee, with the further endorsement of ex-Senator Stokes. The honor was well merited by Mr. Murray, who has proved himself a most competent and faithful member of this important department of public service. The intelligence and accuracy with which he has performed his services has given him a reputation among those who have charge of the machinery and conduct of elections that extends beyond the county.—Elizabeth Daily Journal.

TWO MEN STABBED IN DRUNKEN BRAWL

Italians Fight With Deadly Weapons and One is Probably Fatally Injured.

POLICE MAKE ARRESTS.

CARMAN VANNANZE CONFESSES USING A KNIFE.

Mike Ricarda Slashed in the Abdomen—Giovani is Wounded in the Breast and May Die.

Knives, axes, stones and clubs were used with disastrous effect in one of the worst Italian brawls the borough police have yet had to contend with, which took place in the Italian colony in Hudson's lane, yesterday afternoon. Two men were injured, one of them probably fatally, and a dozen more are bearing bruises and bumps today as a result of their participation in the affair.

The borough police have two prisoners, Carman Vannanze, who admits doing some stabbing, and Dominie Felocci. The injured men are Giovanni Colucci and Mike Ricardo. The former was stabbed in the breast and both wrists, all of them deep cuts, and he is in a serious condition. Ricardo has a deep knife thrust in the abdomen but fortunately the blade missed the vital parts and he will recover. Dr. Dundon attended both men but did not reach them until they had lost a great deal of blood.

The Italians belonging to the colony were having some sort of a celebration all yesterday morning and countrymen from the city and borough came dropping in on them until there were about fifty in the crowd. Beer and wine flowed freely and everybody was just in the mood for an altercation when Vannaze said something that didn't meet with popular approval. A few words served for an introduction to the brawl and then it was on in earnest. According to witnesses it was a case of wherever a head showed up it was to be hit or stabbed and the rule was fairly well followed out. The cries which went up were heard for many blocks and Chief Weiss and two of his marshals were attracted from Somerset street.

Their arrival put a stop to hostilities but it was some time before they could pick out the ringleaders. Vannanze was pointed out as the stabber but there is a question as to the guilt of Felocci. Both were locked up but were released later on $35 bail each through the efforts of Francis J. Blatz, Esq., who they retained as counsel. At the time it was not thought that Colucci's injuries were serious but since it has been learned differently the bail will probably be increased. Their hearing was set for Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

Vannanze is well known to the borough police and at the present time is under indictment by the Somerset County Grand Jury for illegal liquor selling. He resides on Grove street, near Greenbrook road.

TROLLEY CAR IN FLAMES

SEVERAL PASSENGERS INJURED IN ACCIDENT NEAR PICTON.

A load of passengers on a trolley car bound from Rahway to Westfield Saturday night, was thrown into a panic by an accident near Picton. Contact with a live wire which fell across it, enveloped the car in flames and the occupants jumped in every direction. Several received slight burns and many whose names could not be learned were hurt by throwing themselves off.

The headlight of the car received a heavy charge which wrenched it from its fastenings and was thrown many feet into a field.

MRS PITTENGER DEAD.

Funeral services over the remains will be held from her late home Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock and from the Stockton Baptist church, near Flemington, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30. Interment will be made in Rosemont cemetery, Hunterdon county.

POLICE FIND BOOTY IN LONGO'S HOUSE

Property Belonging to S. A. Cahoone Found in Home of Man Arrested for Burglary.

GOODS IDENTIFIED

LONGO BELIEVED TO BE LEADER OF A GANG.

Man Under Arrest Refuses to Speak—He Has Been Taken to Elizabeth—Only in This Country Three Months.

Flaviano Longo, the young Italian who was arrested Saturday trying to dispose of some of the loot from F. A. Clark's Hillside avenue residence, robbed last week, may be one of a gang of burglars which has been operating in empty houses throughout the Netherwood district.

Upon the search of Longo's home on Lake street by the police Saturday, a considerable amount of silverware and jewelry was discovered, only a part of which proved the property of the Clarks. Stephen A. Cahoone, who has been spending the summer with his family at Jamestown, R. I., reported Saturday that his house on Watchung avenue had been broken into and jewelry, clothing and silverware, valued at about $35, had been taken. Mr. Cahoone identified much of the stolen goods among the property taken from the Longo house. A valuable ring and several pairs of imported French gloves have been recovered, along with the lids of a couple of valuable solid silver tea pots. These lids had been torn off, as the thieves were evidently chary of making the attempt to sell the entire tea pots.

When summoned before Justice Huff to answer the charge of the Clark robbery on Saturday afternoon, Longo was positively non commital, refusing to speak. He was taken to the jail at Elizabeth and was held without bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Statistics show that Longo, who is about twenty years of age, has been in this country but a little more than three months. His record in his native land is not known by the police.

MISS ROBERTA THOM WEDDED

MARRIED TO GEORGE L. BIRD, OF WEST SECOND STREET, ON JUNE 5.

To the great surprise of their parents and many friends, Miss Roberta Thom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thom, of Summit avenue, and George L. Bird, of West Second street, yesterday announced that they had been married. The ceremony was performed in the Epiphany Baptist church, Madison avenue and Sixty-fourth street, New York, June 5, by Rev. Howard L. Jones. There were no Plainfield witnesses and although the young people had previously told of their engagement, they decided to keep the fact of the marriage a secret. They first made it known to their relatives yesterday.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bird are very well known in the city, having been prominent in social affairs during the past two seasons. The former is an employe of the New Jersey Central in the civil engineering department. Mrs. Bird has been one of the operators at the local telephone exchange but resigned her position Saturday.

PLEAD HIS CHURCH MEMBERSHIP.

New York Colored Man Begged Justice Clark to Dismiss Him.

On the plea that he was a church member and only a visitor in town, John Jones, colored, of New York, begged Judge Clark at Scotch Plains, yesterday, to dismiss a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct against him. He was arrested early in the morning by Officer Pangborn at the Park avenue trolley crossing on compliant of John Miller, who said Jones and his friends were making sleep an impossibility. The fact that Jones was a church member had no effect on the court as a fine of $5 was imposed.

Frank Caroff, of this city, was arrested at the 'Plains yesterday, on a similar charge. He was fined $5 and costs in default of which he will go to Elizabeth today for thirty days.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thom, of Summit avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jennie May Davenport to Charles Rellberge, of Inwood, L. I. The wedding will take place in the fall.

WESTFIELD GETS DECISION

IN DISPUTED CONTEST WITH ALIS BASEBALL TEAM.

The Alis-Westfield baseball contest of Saturday, June 11, which terminated in a row in the ninth inning, must stand forfeited to Westfield by a score of 9 to 0. This decision was announced Saturday night by City Judge William N. Runyon, representing the Alis Club, and Robert H. Sumner, representing the Westfield Club.

The abitrators met at the Hotel Kensington. Manager Johnston and then Manager Denman had his say. The latter relied entirely on baseball rules, while the Alis manager recited the many questionable and suspicious circumstances in connection with the contest and in the name of good clean sport urged that the contest be thrown out. The committee retired for a consideration of the facts.

Mr. Sumner made the specific statement that he was in the grandstand and distinctly remembered hearing Umpire Kenzie call "time" and later declare the game forfeited to Westfield 9 to 0. Accepting Mr. Sumner's statement and basing the decision on a strict interpretation of the baseball rules, there was nothing for Mr. Runyon to do but agree that the contest should stand.

The decision is final. The series between the teams will be resumed on Saturday, Westfield playing Alis on Crescent Oval.

SNEAK THIEVES GET $40

JACOB KRINEY MINUS A SUM THROUGH LEAVING DOORS UNLOCKED.

A generally lax attention to bolts and bars at the home of Jacob Kriney, on West Front street, made it an easy matter for thieves to effect an entrance sometime yesterday afternoon between the hours of 2 to 5 o'clock. Nearly forty dollars in money, which Mr. Kriney had in the house for the payment of some bills today, was taken from his clothing.

The cautious thieves confined their looting to money and a valuable watch belonging to Mr. Kriney may have been purposely left behind. Some disturbance, perhaps, caused the robbers to leave about four dollars on the floor near the door in the haste of departure. Mr. Kriney states that the door is never kept locked either by day or night, and the key is always hanging on a nail near the entrance.

Why Connections Are Ordered.

Some complaints have been made about the notices received by property owners from the Board of Health to make sewer connections, but it is explained that the ordinance requires such connections to be made and notices are sent out by the Board from time to time, so that eventually all buildings fronting on streets in which sewers are provided will be connected, and all vaults and cesspools will be abolished. The Board is now giving its attention to East Third street.

Allentown Man Stranded Here.

Howard Arnold, who says he lives at Nazereth, Pa., spent yesterday at Coney Island but missed his excursion train back to Allentown. He was almost without capital, but managed to get as far as this city, where he was put off the train. He spent yesterday at the station house and the Chief is trying to make arrangements for his return home this afternoon.

Co. K Home Again.

The Plainfield members of Co. K reached home Saturday night at 9 o'clock in a special train. All were in good condition and report having had a fine week in camp. As the company marched through town great applause was given.

After the play the winners of the finals were congratulated by the members of the club.

McCutchen, who has been abroad for eight months, made his first appearance on the course and won first honors for the President's cup. T. U. Dudley won second honors and Nelson A. Miller third. For the club cup, Morgan T. Townsend won first, G. W. Faber second and T. U. Dudley also won third honors for this trophy.

An event of interest at the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday was the team match between the home club and the Arsdale Golf Club, of East Orange. The home team won by a score of 13 to 7, Nassau system. The summary:

Westfield—M. Whitlatch, 3; J. Sherman, Jr., 0; R. I. Townley, 0; C. E. Halsted, 2; J. A. Woodward, 0; W. M. Townley, 3; E. D. Floyd, 2; F. P. Condit, 3. Total, 13

A team from Perth Amboy styled the Emeralds crossed bats with the Clinton Avenue team Saturday afternoon. Clinton Avenue scored three runs and put up a very good game in the field.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

A novel way of spending a vacation has been planned by John Lynch, Michael Higgins, Henry Hansen, Frank Day and William Callahan, all of this city. Beginning with August 1 they will start out on a combined driving and camping trip that will require ten days or perhaps two weeks. Lake Hopatcong will be the ultimate destination, going and coming by way of High Bridge.

The trip will be made in a large wagon drawn by two horses. It is the intention of the party to go a short distance each day and then camp out at night, at no time going in houses or hotels for meals or sleep. They will guard against rain by placing an apparatus on the wagon comprised of a wooden framework and rubber blankets. The trip is to be made mainly for pleasure and since it has become known the originators have received many requests from friends who wish to go along.

The pedestrians of Front street were thrown into a state of excitement Thursday afternoon at about 4 o'clock by the actions of a woman, the loss of whose pocketbook caused her to do some amateur detective spying on a passer-by. The woman who gave her name as Mrs. Freck, of West Fourth street, missed her pocketbook while enjoying a glass of soda in a West Front street drug store. Immediately leaving the store, she espied on the sidewalk a pink check which she recognized as having been in the lost pocketbook. At the moment she spied this, a man who had been standing near, started to walk away, holding his hand in the left pocket of his coat. Mrs. Freck thought she had a clue, and leaving the baby with her sister, who followed her from the store, she stalked the man. Upon his entrance into Griffin's hardware store, she left her sister to watch and sped to police headquarters where she asked that the man be arrested and searched Chief Kiely sent Patrolman Meyers to the store and he asked the man to step to headquarters for a moment. At the station, the woman detective was proved to be floored, for the man easily showed that he was not the thief and that his hand had been clutching an innocent package of seed, which together with a box of matches, proved to be the contents of the suspicious pocket. After the man had gone, Mrs. Freck said that there was seventy-five cents in the pocketbook. Neither the money nor its case have yet been turned over to the police.

CUBAN LYNCH MOB.

Negro Had Narrow Escape, Though Innocent.

HAVANA, July 18.—A Jamaican negro known by the sobriquet "Americano," who was supposed to have assaulted and then murdered a nine-year-old Spanish girl, had an escape from lynching here. When the police went to the Jamaican's house he fled, and the crowd which had assembled, taking this for an admission of his guilt, pursued him. The police, however, captured the negro and took him to the office of a local judge.

Meanwhile a Cuban negro, who was later identified as the real culprit, was captured by a single policeman who was in citizen's clothes. The Cuban was on an outgoing stage, and his capture was made outside the city. The officer brought him through the frequented roads to the office of the local judge, in front of which a great crowd was clamoring for the lynching of the Jamaican, who was thought at the time to be an American. The two negroes were rushed across the city in a police wagon to the audencia court building, where the Cuban was identified as the perpetrator of the crime, one of the most atrocious of the kind ever known in Cuba.

Crowds gathered in the vicinity of the prison and at the morgue near by, where the body of the child was taken, but they scattered during the lengthy hearing of the case in the audencia court. The police guarded the streets approaching the court building.

After the examination the Cuban was taken to prison. The Jamaican will be released.

TWO HUNDRED WENT DOWN.

Brighton Park Stand Collapsed—Ten Had Broken Bones.

CLEVELAND, O., July 18.—Two hundred people were hurled to the ground here by the collapse of a stand at Brighton Park, a suburb of this city.

A ball game between amateur clubs was in progress, and the stand was crowded, when, without warning, the entire crowd was thrown to the ground in a heap. Other spectators and the ball players immediately set to work extricating the people from the wreckage, while calls were sent out for ambulances. When all were finally extricated it was found that ten persons had sustained broken arms or legs, while a number of others were otherwise bruised and cut.

It is claimed the collapse was caused by the removal of some underpinning, which had been carried off by people for firewood.

CYCLONE'S WILD RAGE

Chappaqua, In New York State, Badly Wrecked.

TOWN WAS IN COMPLETE DARKNESS

Many Houses Overturned and Destroyed—One Woman Killed, Many Injured—Property Loss, $100,000.

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y., July 18.—The village of Chappaqua, in the northern part of Westchester county, has been visited by a cyclone which killed one woman, injured four other persons and wrecked five houses and three barns.

During the fifteen minutes the tornado raged the inhabitants of the town, numbering about a thousand, thought that the place would be wiped out of existence, and many of them sought refuge in the cellars of their homes.

Besides the casualties reported many orchards and greenhouses were completely wrecked. The damage done by the storm cannot be estimated at this time. Hourly reports from the outlying districts tell of further devastation. The dead woman was Mrs. Mary Hibbs, eighty years old, of Philadelphia. Those injured are Mrs. Anna Washburn, daughter of Mrs. Hibbs; Mrs. Hester Cox, Miss Mattie Morrow and Cyrus Dodge.

Mrs. Hibbs was visiting her widowed daughter, who is a schoolteacher, living on Quaker street, Chappaqua. The two women were in the house when the tornado struck it. Mrs. Washburn managed to get out before the building turned over, but her mother was caught in the debris and was dead when taken out by a rescuing party.

Miss Mattie Morrow, daughter of Robert Morrow, was in her father's house when it was blown down. She was rescued by a party of neighbors after having two ribs broken by falling timbers. She is also internally injured and may die.

Cyrus Dodge, a farmer, who was another one of the injured, rushed out to attend to his cattle when he saw the storm coming. As he was returning from the barn to the house a large apple tree fell upon him and pinned him to the ground.

He remained under the tree until the storm ceased, when his son James heard his cries for help and went to his assistance. The son was unable to remove the tree from his father and had to cut it away with an ax. Mr. Dodge is suffering from internal injuries.

The first indication of the cyclone was a big black cloud which was first noticed by the residents shortly after 3 o'clock. It hung over the place like a parachute and finally burst.

Immediately after the cloudburst the town was in complete darkness and a terrific wind began to rage, while the rain and hail fell in torrents. Residents of the place became terrified and rushed to their cellars and other places of refuge. Many of the women fainted.

The people of Mount Kisco, five miles away, thought that Chappaqua was being wiped out, and after the storm scores of them drove to the scene of the disaster. All of the houses that were blown down were two and a half story frame buildings.

Mrs. Washburn's house, which stood opposite the famous Quaker meeting place, was the first to fall. It was lifted from its foundation and turned completely over. The schoolteacher felt the house sway and, grasping her aged mother in her arms, attempted to get out. Before they reached the door a gust of wind struck the house from the west side and capsized it. Mrs. Washburn jumped through the door out into the yard and escaped with slight injuries. Her mother, who was feeble, was buried under falling timbers.

Very soon a general crash followed, when the houses of Walter Sarles, a carpenter; Warren Tompkins, a farmer; Mrs. Hester Cox's boarding house and the home of Robert Morrow all collapsed within a radius of a half mile.

Mr. Sarles' wife and children were away at the time, and he was in the house alone. He felt the house going over and saved his life by jumping through a window. The house is a complete wreck.

A conservative estimate places the loss on property and crops at $100,000. This, it is believed, will be doubled when full reports of the disaster are in. A singular fact in connection with the cyclone is that the loss to property is confined within a space a mile square, while in many of the cities and towns in Westchester county it did not even rain.

Chappaqua is located about forty miles from New York city and is a prosperous farming community. It is also the summer home of many wealthy New Yorkers.

Slight Hope For C. D. Rogers.

FARMINGTON, Conn., July 18.—The condition of Charles D. Rogers, the millionaire printer of Chicago, who was injured in an automobile accident here, is about the same, the doctors having slight hope for his recovery. His skull is fractured as the result of an accident which threw him against a tree.

Wireless a Government Monopoly.

LONDON, July 18.—It is stated that the government will bring in a bill making wireless telegraphy throughout the United Kingdom a government monopoly. The postoffice officials have been experimenting with a new system of their own.

ON ENGLISH COAST

Body of F. Kent Loomis Found Near Plymouth.

WOUND ON HEAD SUGGESTS MURDER

Remains Taken From the Sea at Warren Point Badly Decomposed—Watch, Money and Papers Were Intact.

KINGSBRIDGE, England, July 18.—The body of F. Kent Loomis, who disappeared from the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. on June 20 as that vessel was nearing Plymouth, was found on Saturday at Warren point, adjacent to Thurlestone sands, some fifteen miles from Plymouth.

Mr. Loomis was a brother of F. B. Loomis, assistant secretary of state of the United States, and was on his way to Abyssinia to deliver the treaty of commerce concluded between the United States and Emperor Menelek. Mr. Loomis traveled with William H. Ellis of New York, who, in view of the disappearance of the former, took the treaty, which was found in Mr. Loomis' baggage, to Adis Abeba, the Abyssinian capital.

The body of Mr. Loomis was discovered by a laborer, Thomas Snowden, who sighted it as he was walking along a cliff. When Snowden first saw the body it was tossing among the breakers some thirty yards from the shore. He hurried down the cliff, and by the time he reached the beach the waves were washing the body against the rocks. Snowden grasped the clothing and dragged the body ashore. The remains were much decomposed. The body was bruised by contact with the rocks on which it had been hurled by heavy waves. It was dressed in a gray overcoat, dark blue suit and white shirt.

Snowden at once informed the police and neighbors of his discovery. When the body was searched a gold watch and a quantity of American and English money in notes and coins were found in the pockets of the deceased and also a card with the name "F. Kent Loomis."

The pockets also contained a number of private papers. These, together with the valuables, the police took charge of, and the body was removed and placed on a rude bench in a farm building at Thurlestone village to await the inquest, which will be held today.

It was a long time before the full significance of the discovery was grasped by the authorities of Kingsbridge, the nearest town, but the police of Thurlestone say there was no doubt that the body was that of Loomis. The features were partially recognizable from the description, but there was no one on the spot until a late hour who could positively identify the remains.

The American consul at Plymouth, Joseph G. Stevens, was notified, and he at once proceeded to Thurlestone for the purpose of making an official identification. After viewing the body the consul said he had no doubt it was that of F. Kent Loomis.

The consul said there was an abrasion under the right ear. There were no important papers on the body, and the deceased's watch had stopped at 6 o'clock. It will be remembered that the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II., from which Mr. Loomis disappeared, arrived at 2 o'clock in the morning.

The American consul has arranged that proper care be taken of the body. No medical examination has yet been made, but so far as known there are no signs of wounds or evidence of foul play.

A further examination of the body has given rise to grave suspicions on the part of local officials that Mr. Loomis met with foul play. The wound behind the right ear is described as being circular, large and clean, and it is thought that it was inflicted before death. It is surmised that Mr. Loomis' body fell into the water near the Eddystone lighthouse.

Secretary Favors Accident Theory.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Assistant Secretary of State Frank B. Loomis accepts the identification of his brother's body found near Plymouth, England, as authentic. He is of the opinion that his brother fell overboard in the darkness.

Cork Leg Floated Body.

TOLEDO, O., July 18.—Henry Yetter and his son Arthur, aged ten, were drowned in the canal near Grand Rapids, O. The boy was seized with cramps while bathing, and the father jumped in to save him. The father had a cork leg, and this proved such an impediment that he was unable to control his own movements, and both were drowned. The father's body was recovered nearly a mile below the scene of the drowning, where it had floated head downward.

Two Drowned In the Merrimac.

LOWELL, Mass., July 18.—Two of a party of bathers were drowned in the Merrimac river here. The victims were John Viakhas, aged thirty years, a mill operative, and Ferdinand Bousquet, aged sixteen years. The fatality resulting from cramps was followed within fifteen minutes by the second drowning from a similar cause.

Waterspout Near Nyack.

NYACK, N. Y., July 18.—A large waterspout, something never before seen in this region, formed on the Hudson river opposite Ossining and swept over to the upper Nyack shore, completely destroying a large new dock. It tore away many trees and bushes, and finally when it broke a large volume of water fell.

has only about a week more to run and then the very low prices made especially for this month will retire for another half year. Only in July and January do we reduce every furniture price. At other times we make special figures here and there in the department, but not on every article. Our price reductions are bona fide, and our patrons know them to be so. We have never been in the game of "mark em up so we can mark 'em down to regular prices." No New York or other store shows any greater variety---many not as great, and no other store gives such splendid returns for the money.

OUR SUPERB STORE is a most cool, comfortable and pleasing shopping centre in Summer. Only a few stores in America are a little larger than ours, but none so beautifully arranged, so completely stocked in every line of supplies for men, women and children and their houses. FATAL STRIKE RIOT

Meat Packers' Labor Trouble at Chicago Causes Death.

ALL NEGOTIATIONS ARE OFF.

Citizens Fear Mob Violence—Police Precautions Doubled—Sympathetic Strikes May Follow.

CHICAGO, July 18.—In a fight growing out of the meat packers' strike at the Chicago stockyards three men were injured, one fatally. A squad of policemen, summoned on a riot call, finally suppressed the disturbance after considerable difficulty.

All negotiations for a settlement of the stockyards strike here are off.

Chicago is in grave fear of the result. To what ends the irresponsible foreigners and roughs among the strikers and their sympathizers may go to obtain what they call justice is a matter of the greatest concern.

In the final conference between the packers and Michael Donnelly, head of the strikers, Mr. Donnelly offered to concede every point save one. He would submit the question of wages and labor conditions to arbitration, even though the decision resulted in a reduction of the wage schedule for the men. In this offer Mr. Donnelly gave away one of the two principal demands for which the strike was called. He expected the packers would yield the other point—namely, that they would take back all the strikers as fast as possible. He suggested seven days to complete the installation.

The packers did not yield. More than that, they said they never would concede the point.

"We will not let go of the men we have taken on since the strike to make places for those who have gone out. It is impossible and out of the question. You are wasting time discussing that point."

With that declaration the overtures came to an end. It would have been in all probability as much as Mr. Donnelly's life was worth had he yielded to the packers on this point also.

"I went to the conference," said Mr. Donnelly, "with the honest purpose of making the way clear for the packers to bring the strike to a speedy end. The concessions we made went as far as they possibly could. I did not insist on an immediate reinstatement of all the men. I proposed a week as the limit. The packers refused point blank and emphatically, and there was nothing to do but retire, our conference fruitless."

With the announcement of the failure of peace negotiations came increased apprehension of violence. Police precautions have been doubled and every safeguard taken to protect life and property. The temper of conservative strikers has been held in check by a sustained hope of settlement. Now that they are deprived of that peace stimulant the worst is feared. It is the opinion of the police that little is needed to precipitate one of the most disastrous labor wars in the history of the city. For that emergency they have made full preparations.

Just now there is fear that a sympathetic strike involving all the trades at the stockyards will be called. Aside from those already on strike, there are 12,000 men employed at the yards connected with unions.

Philadelphia May Be Shy of Meat.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—For the first time in years the West Philadelphia abattoir was in operation because of the threatened scarcity of meat due to the Chicago strike. During the day 500 head of cattle were slaughtered by independent dealers of this city. The Philadelphia houses of the western packing concerns have only a small supply of meat on hand, and the independent butchers of the city are striving to take up whatever business the western houses are unable to handle. The independents declare they can take care of the entire city. There is plenty of live stock in sight, but prices have been advanced about 2 cents.

Edward at Highcliffe Castle.

LONDON, July 18.—King Edward was a week end guest of an American hostess, Mrs. George Cavendish Bentinck, who was Miss Livingston of New York, at Highcliffe castle, Christchurch. He accompanied a house party which included several Americans. His majesty was entertained at luncheon by Sir Thomas Lipton on the yacht Erin.

Schenectady Has $40,000 Fire.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., July 18.—Early Sunday morning fire of unknown origin did nearly $40,000 damage here. A building owned by Louis Helm was completely gutted, and the New York Bazaar's stock of $32,000 was entirely destroyed. M. J. Kennedy, jeweler, in an adjoining building, suffered a loss of $2,500.

Pennsylvania Train Ditched.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 18.—Train No. 913 on the Pennsylvania railroad, with 500 excursionists from Emporium, Pa., to Portage Falls, jumped the track near Portageville, and two cars with the engines went into the ditch. Mrs. Harriet Coe of Bradford received a fracture of the skull and will die. Three other women were injured.

Italian Woman Murdered.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 18.—Antonio Nardezzo, aged nineteen years, shot and killed Mrs. Filomena C. Piedoladi, thirty-eight years old, of East Providence, last night. The shooting followed a street quarrel over $3 which Nardezzo claimed that the woman's husband, Michele Piedoladi, owed him.

Plainfield, N. J., July 18, 1904.

Brother Bryan may believe in the silver theory all right but just now he is dealing in gold bricks.

Speaking of Vice Presidential Candidate Davis, who is eighty-one years of age, an exchange says he has "one foot in the grave." Mr. Cortelyou is working hard to place a political tombstone over both feet.

Rev. Dr. Ballard, vice president of the Ocean Grove Association, declares that a brother minister's allegation about speak-easies at that place is "an infamous lie." The "fighting parson" is not yet a thing of the past.

BRUTALLY BEAT HIS WIFE

BUT CHARLES DILKE GOT OFF WITH A $10 FINE.

Returning to his home Saturday afternoon beastly drunk, Charles Dilke, who lives on Lyman place, commenced to beat and abuse his wife in such a brutal and violent manner as to attract the attention of the neighbors. The woman's screams were heard by passersby and rumor that Mrs. Dilke was being murdered was carried by some to the Clinton Avenue baseball grounds, where a game was going on between the Garwoods and the Clinton Avenue team.

The rumor spread fast and its announcement at the ball field brought a big delegation of players and fans to the Dilke home. The men broke into the house by sheer force and were attacking Dilke with bats and sticks when Roundsman Flynn prevented what might have been serious trouble by his official arrival. Dilke was placed under arrest and at the city court this morning was fined $10 by Mayor Jenkins. Mrs. Dilke was not seriously injured.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—John Stewart, an employe of the Rushmore Dynamo Works, who met with an accident a few days ago whereby he was obliged to lose several fingers, was discharged Friday from the hospital.

—Violation of the muzzle ordinance caused eight dog owners who reside on West Seventh street to receive summons to appear at court Saturday morning. While but one appeared, conditions will be improved by this vigilance of the police department.

—Instead of granting a public hearing this month on the Sycamore avenue widening project, the Common Council decided to lay the matter over until the regular August meeting. There appears to be so much objection to the plan that it is considered doubtful if the improvement is made.

—Chief Woolston is organizing a ball team from among the borough firemen to play Captain Townley's nine. It is proposed to have the winner play a team recruited from the ranks of the city and borough volunteers. The date for the first game has not yet been arranged, but it will probably be within two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris R. Duncan, of Madison avenue, are spending the summer at Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hatch, of West Eighth street, will spend their summer vacation in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Walker, of Jackson avenue, left today for Sayre, N. Y., to spend their vacation.

Mrs. George W. Marsh and children, of Sandford avenue, left Friday for Brimfield, Mass., where Mr. Marsh is recuperating from an attack of typhoid fever.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Orange F. C., which was to have played the Twilight team on Saturday afternoon, failed to put in an appearance. On account of the shower during the afternoon the visitors thought there would be no game. The local fans, not to be disappointed, organized a team composed of the "has-beens" to go against Manager Jahn's team. The line up found such old familiar faces as Town Clerk Edward L. Hand, Contractor Joe Schmidt, Charles Frentz, and many other of the old familiar faces, all of whom are old enough to know, better but they had hoped to win by prevailing upon Freeholder John Robison to take his life in his hands and attempt to umpire the game. No official score was kept as there was no one present brave enough to take this important position. When Umpire Robison declared the game closed each team claimed to have won by the score of 9 to 6. Umpire Robison reserved his decision for one week. This gave him a chance to retreat in good order and allow the excitement to die out.

A new park was opened in the woods near Embree Crescent on Thursday of last week. The new venture will cater to the amusement lovers among the colored people. A dancing platform has been built, booths opened and the management is encouraged by the patronage received. Since the colored race was barred out of Galvin's Park last season, several attempts have been made to have a place started where they could meet and enjoy themselves in a social way. The new park is over the line and will have to claim Westfield as home. We have one.

The local supporters of the Alis team are pleased with the showing the "new" Alis team made on Saturday, and especially so with the great game "Lefty" Davis pitched, only two hits being secured off his delivery.

William Sullivan, who has been manager of Earl's Hotel for several months, resigned his position Saturday night. Harry Ilisley, a former proprietor of the famous old hostelry, has been engaged to succeed him.

About twenty-five local lovers of the National game attended the game at Riverside Park yesterday between the New Brunswicks and a combination team of local and Plainfield players.

Philip Smith pitched ball Saturday for the winning Dunellen team against the New Market team.

Miss Laura Manning has returned from a two weeks' visit at Wilkesbarre and Scranton.

ANOTHER ELEVEN INNING GAME

DUNELLEN DEFEATS NEW MARKET IN A SENSATIONAL CONTEST.

Dunellen and New Market met in the second game of the series on Saturady afternoon, and, as in the first contest, eleven innings had to be played. Not a moment during the game did the excitement lag as there were sensational plays in every inning.

Dunellen scored first in the third inning when Garvey crossed the plate by clever base running. New Market evened matters up in the fourth and forged ahead in their halt of the ninth by hitting Smith safely three times. When Dunellen came to bat in the ninth excitement was at a fever heat. With two out Fletcher got to first on an error and by the most daring kind of base running got home safely, tieing the score.

In the eleventh inning Craig reached third and came home on Flether's sacrifice hit. Smith and Squiers were both in fine form but Smith had somewhat the better of the argument. The fielding on both sides was good, Fletcher and Craig, both making hair-raising catches of fly balls.

The lineup:

Dunellen—Matthews, 1b, rf; Craig, 3b; Davis, c; Smith, p; Fletcher, 2b; Alberts, cf; Giles, ss; Garvey, 1b, lf; Emery, lf.

New Market—Taylor, 3b; Mack, ss; Voorhees, rf; W. Nelson, 2b; Daly, 1b; Scott, lf; J. Nelson, cf; Squires, p; A. Nelson, c.

The only federal licenses in Ocean Grove are those issued to the two drug stores. I do not believe there is anything like the number in Asbury Park which Mr. Boom claims there is."

STOPPING FOREIGN SHIPS.

Action of Russian Volunteer Ships May Cause Complications.

LONDON, July 18.—Advices from St. Petersburg say that reports of the Russian volunteer steamships Smolensk and St. Petersburg, now cruising in the Red sea, stopping ships of neutral nations and searching them for contraband of war is causing the liveliest interest in all circles. Russia has evidently weighed the question, believes herself to be within her rights and neither fears nor anticipates international complications. Indeed, some of the powers may have been sounded by Russia on the subject. Nevertheless foreign opinion is awaited eagerly, and more or less criticism is expected.

Members of the diplomatic corps are keenly anxious to ascertain the views their governments will take of the passage through the Dardanelles of these vessels of the volunteer fleet as merchantmen and their subsequent conversion into ships of war. The general view in diplomatic circles, even where sentiment is not particularly friendly to Russia, is that while the passage of the Dardanelles might be considered a piece of sharp practice on the part of Russia it is an accomplished fact, and the powers will not now regard it as a violation of the treaty of Paris, but will guard against its repetition. The diplomats think that some of the powers might insist that henceforth all volunteer vessels shall be considered as warships within the meaning of the treaty.

An Aden report says that the North German Lloyd steamer Prinz Heinrich, which has arrived there from Southampton en route to Yokohama, reports that she was stopped by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk and compelled to give up thirty-one sacks of letters and twenty-four sacks and boxes or parcels, all intended for Japan.

It is also reported that the Peninsular and Oriental company's steamer Malacca, from Antwerp for Japan, has been seized in the Red sea by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Petersburg.

Lieutenant General Sacharoff has reported to St. Petersburg that the chasseurs are driving back the Japanese advance posts southwest of Siakhotan and east of Kanchi.

The Japanese, the general says, have reoccupied Kechinha. They are still fortifying the passes between Fenshui and Motien.

The Japanese near Liaoyang have evacuated Sekeyan and Yanlikan. The country from Siaossyra up to Sihu pass is free from Japanese, but the pass itself is occupied by a detachment of the Japanese advance guard.

A Fusan dispatch says that the steamer Manchuria, which is on a tour of inspection of the theater of war, with members of the Japanese diet, foreign attaches and press correspondents on board, has reached the Japanese naval base off the coast. As the Manchuria approached huge clouds of smoke hung over the land, while Admiral Togo's fleet presented a grand marine panorama as it lay at anchor in the channel, with the torpedo fleet outside.

A Tientsin report says that the Russian agent there has officially stated that the Japanese have not occupied Newchwang. The Russian officials are administering there as heretofore.

Japan "Counting Her Chickens."

TEINTSIN, July 18.—The Chinese minister at Tokyo has telegraphed the Chinese minister of foreign affairs that the Japanese government has presented a scheme for the administration of Manchuria, the principal clause of which is that the Japanese will govern the province with the number of Chinese troops now in the country. Information has been received here that unless China suppresses the rebellion in the province of Kwangsi the French government has threatened to land troops and put it down. The Chinese government is much perturbed in consequence.

Another Russian Warship Out.

LONDON, July 18.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Standard in a dispatch says, "The Russian guardship Chernomoretz passed through the Bosporus from the Black sea Sunday morning." The Chernomoretz is a gun vessel belonging to the Black sea fleet and carries two eight-inch guns, one six-inch gun and seven quick firing and machine guns. She is equipped with torpedo tubes and carries a crew of 160.

Newburg Trolleys Tied Up.

NEWBURG, N. Y., July 18.—The employees of the Orange County Traction company, which operates the Newburg and Walden lines, are on strike. They demand a recognition of their newly formed union, and this was refused by Manager W. H. Pouch. The entire line from Newburg to Walden is tied up. Crowds jeered the nonunion men, but there was no violence.

Raised $42,000 For Missions.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 18.—At the annual missionary services of the Christian and Missionary alliance for the districts comprising Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and the District of Columbia, held at Rocky Springs Park, over $42,000 was raised for foreign missions.

At Raisuli's Request.

TANGIER, July 18.—Kaid Benhiman, chief of police, has been appointed governor. General satisfaction is expressed over the removal of the late occupant of the governorship, which was one of Raisuli's stipulations.

Fairbanks Will Take a Rest.

MACKINAC, Mich., July 18.—Senator Fairbanks has arrived here, where he will rest for a fortnight.

EARL GREY IS APPOINTED.

Famous Nobleman Will Succeed Lord Minto as Governor General of the Dominion.

London (Eng.) Special.

It is announced that Earl Grey, lord lieutenant of Northumberland, has been appointed to succeed the earl of Minto as governor general of Canada. Earl Grey is a brother-in-law of Lord Minto. The latter's term does not expire until October, so the official announcement of Earl Grey's appointment will not be made for some time.

Earl Grey was once the government's commissioner and delegate to administer the vast territories of the South African Chartered company in conjunction with Cecil Rhodes. He was one of the founders of that company. He was a godson of Queen Victoria's prince consort and a favorite at court in her reign. When King Edward as prince of Wales visited America Earl Grey was the chief of his suite.

The earl is a handsome man under 50 and was known as Albert Grey until he succeeded to the peerage of his crotchety old granduncle.

The old earl was the most cross-minded man that it is possible to conceive. While he had no children of his own, his country seat of Howick hall was always filled with members of his numerous family of brothers and sisters, their children and grandchildren. A peculiarity about them, for which they are still distinguished, is their strange custom of calling one another by their Christian names, even the very grandchildren addressing their grandfathers and grandmothers as Charles or Mary.

Howick hall, now in the possession of the present Earl Grey, is one of the stateliest mansions in Northumberland and lies near the coast, surrounded by wooded estates of nearly 20,000 acres. Lord Grey's town residence is at Dorchester house, that magnificent palace facing the entrance of Hyde Park, in Park lane, a mansion which he owns in common with his brother-in-law, Capt. Holford. The two brothers-in-law inherited it from old Mr. Holford, who died a few years ago, leaving a fortune of $20,000,000.

The Earl and Countess Grey must not be confused with Earl and Countess De Grey, who are entirely different people, being the son and daughter-in-law of the marquis of Ripon, who was special ambassador to the United States in connection with the Alabama controversy.

TEXAN CHATELAINE CHARM.

It Is a Revolver, Made of Gold, But with All the Qualities of a Real Shooting Iron.

New York Special.

To take home with him as a souvenir of New York, a Texas man recently found nothing so attractive in the whole metropolis as a revolver, which he purchased at a jeweler's and for which he paid $50. It might seem to be taking coals to Newcastle to take a revolver to the big southern state, but the Texan said that the best woman-shot in his part of the country had never seen a revolver like this. It was a tiny one, barely two inches long, made entirely of gold, but with all the qualities of a regular shooting iron. Genuine cartridges accompany it, and it makes a decided pop and genuine flash of flame when it is fired. It is a novelty from Paris, and is put up in dainty little leather-covered, velvet-lined cases, like any other article of jewelery. It is, or can be worn as an ornament, and its possibilities are many. Mounted as a hatpin, a tiny chain attached to the trigger is pulled to set it off and suggest further hostilities to the ubiquitous masher; or, dangling from a chatelaine, it is used to intimidate the guilty man who buries his face in the paper while the pretty woman before him hangs to a strap in the street car. The uses of the tiny pistol are infinite, and the man from Texas says that there will be new ones discovered when he gets home.

TEXAS MAN'S CHATELAINE.
(Toy with All the Qualities of a Regular Shooting Iron.)

CZAR'S THRONE IN DANGER.

Russian Military Circles Said to Favor Grand Duke Vladimir for Regent of Empire.

Odessa (Russia) Special.

There is a persistent rumor here that a conspiracy is afoot in military circles to dethrone the czar and make his popular uncle, Vladimir Alexandrovitch, regent. The purpose of this rumor is closely similar to that which caused so much disquiet immediately after the demise of Alexander III. At that time it became an open secret that there was a court conspiracy for making the grand duke regent, the reason to be assigned therefor being the unfixed character of the present monarch.

The prompt action of the late Gen. Count Mussin-Pushkin prevented the succession of Vladimir Alexandrovitch. If the current reports be well founded a similar coup d'etat has quite recently been nipped in its hatchment. The depressed and nervous condition of the czar which has lately given such deep concern to his majesty's medical attendants, the confusion and dismay created at the war office and in the military council by the disasters at Port Arthur and on the Yalu and other contributory causes led to an incipient cabal in favor of making Vladimir Alexandrovitch regent. The grand duke, it is to be remembered, commands the metropolitan garrison, including all the guard regiments and all the troops within the government of St. Petersburg, and he has always been the favorite of the army. The wife of the grand duke, Maria Pavlovna, has ever been known as a born political intriguant, and shares her husband's ambition.

GRAND DUKE VLADIMIR.
(Slated for Regent of Russian Empire by Military Party.)

The late czar was fully aware of the trouble which his brother's ambitious inclinations might eventually bring about. Hence it was that during the last five years of his reign Vladimir Alexandrovitch was kept on leave of absence for nine months out of the 12, when he spent the greater part of his time in Paris, Biarritz and the Riviera.

FORTUNE OF ROCKEFELLER.

It Is So Enormous That the Ordinary Human Mind Can Hardly Comprehend It.

New York Special.

News that John D. Rockefeller has succeeded in starting a $2,500,000,000 mining combination naturally evokes the question: How much money is he worth and how much money does he control?

Well-informed gossip has credited him with a fortune of $1,000,000,000. He is the chief stockholder of the Standard Oil company. He has controlling interests in more than half a dozen other corporations of enormous dividend earning capacity. In addition he has heavy minority interests in nearly a score of other rich enterprises. According to well-informed financiers Mr. Rockefeller has controlling interests in the following corporations:

Standard Oil	$ 780,000,000 00
Amalgamated Copper	127,500,000 00

He has heavy minority interests in United States Steel, Colorado Fuel and Iron, United States Leather, Consolidated Gas, International Harvester, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Missouri Pacific, Wisconsin Central and others.

Among the officers of all these corporations the name of John D. Rockefeller figures only once—as president of the Standard Oil company. In Missouri Pacific, Colorado Fuel and Iron, and American Linseed stocks the name of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., stands in the directorate as the representative of the father. William Rockefeller is another name probably to represent his brother's interests on occasion. No one may guess how many names of confidential clerks do service in this capacity.

How to Make Over a Last Year's Skirt—Corsets For Evening.

It is rather hard to renovate an old skirt this season, but if it is very long it can be raised and gathers added around the waist to give a full effect.

Gowns of foulard are again used for utility wear, and a gown of this description can be altered by raising the skirt and letting down the hem. In the case of a taffeta gown it may be renovated by the addition of ruffings, ruch-ings and plaitings. In the case of a very handsome silk skirt the top may be raised by the addition of lace insertions. The lace insertion is sewed along its lower edge slightly above the knees. The silk is then cut close to the seam, and it is stitched on the upper edge of the insertion. Four or five of these insertions will allow considerable of the narrow part of the skirt to be cut away so that it can be gathered in to the belt band.

Evening gowns when worn low require special corsets, as a corset which is at all high or cut straight at the bust spoils the style of the bodice. The bust must be low and unconfined, and the little ribbon corsets are admirable in every way for slight and straight figures.

Brown is still worn, and we see stunning shirt waist suits of it combined with touches of gold or coral red.

The picture shows a fancy hat of rough straw. It is trimmed with a double garland of small roses, ribbon bands across the hat and a fall of leaves on the hair at the back.

Beautiful and Artistic Fans—Lace Coats Are Much Used.

There are several novelties in fans on view. A very dainty example seen recently was of exquisitely fine lace, imitating ostrich feathers. In the center of the fan was a medallion representing a beautiful woman in soft pink draperies in back, the feathers on either side. The fan was mounted in carved amber, with a design of ostrich feathers.

Lace coats are among the smartest this season. An exquisite coat seen recently in the corridor of a fashionable New York hotel was of white net and white English embroidery. The yoke and full sleeves were finished with frills of black and white lace, and down the center was a ruching of narrow emerald green satin ribbon. The body of the jacket was gathered below the yoke, while black and white silk cords supplied the finish.

An evidence of the craze for gilt buttons is shown in the new leather girdle, which is ornamented all over by rows of flat gilt buttons placed crosswise upon it. Another belt carried out in colored leather was overlaid with straps of white leather one inch in width adorned with tiny nail heads.

The picture shows a pink muslin dress having a fichu effect of yellow lace. There is also a trimming of deep pink satin and coral buttons.

THE OTHER MAN

CHAPTER V.

In due time Rossiter Kane attained the height of his ambition, and became a landed proprietor in a country where the possession of a few acres is the patent of solidity and gentility, and the "open sesame" to sundry other things.

A charming little estate in Hampshire, consisting of park and woodland, carved out of a corner of the New Forest, with a dainty old house built by Vanbrugh, was on the market, and he promptly secured it. Not the least of its attractions lay in the fact that, although in another county, it was within riding or driving distance of both Denecroft and Gatewood. "The Cedars" was its name, and to celebrate his new ownership Kane determined to give a "pheasant ball" in his accustomed lavish manner of entertaining. With the event itself we have not much concern, but it brought certain matters to a crisis, as he intended it should.

Other things fell out not so entirely to his liking.

On a bright autumn morning Kane rode over to Denecroft, ostensibly to announce the forthcoming function in person, and inquired for Miss Dysart.

"This is very kind of you, Mr. Kane," said Stella, after his salutations were made and the object of his call announced.

He bowed his acknowledgments over the little hand, and at her bidding seated himself near by.

"I trust your brother is well?" he inquired.

She started. "Oh, Sir Arthur, you mean? Yes, he is as usual, thank you. When you said my 'brother' it took me by surprise for a moment; all this morning I have been thinking of my poor brother Richard."

"I think I understand," he said simply, eyes and voice full of sympathy.

"We have had no news from him for more than a year," she went on. "Mr. Kane, report says you know South Africa like a book; is it possible you could have met Rick?"

There was a wealth of yearning in her tones, such as Kane would have liked to see evoked on his own account.

"South Africa is a wide country, Miss Dysart," he rejoined. "Where was your brother when you last heard from him?"

"At Kimberley, I think."

"Ah! I suppose he went by his own name?" he ventured, and then, in answer to her glance of surprise, implying that no Dysart would stoop to travel under an alias, "because, you know, lots of new chums out there do drop their civilized patronymics, and no one thinks the worse of them in consequence."

"I don't know, I am sure," she replied doubtingly. "Rick never said anything about it."

"You may be certain that if I had ever heard your name out there, Miss Dysart, recent events would prove an undoubted reminder. But I am morally sure I never met your brother. Tell me all you care to—I may be able to help you."

And thus invited, she briefly outlined for him the story of Rick's exile.

"It's a common enough story," said Kane. "Hundreds of young Englishmen leave the old country with no better excuse and no better prospects than he had, and after a few ups and downs become successful in one of a dozen ways open to men of courage and conviction. Take my own case," he concluded, smiling.

Her looks brightened, and his cheery words seemed to give her renewed confidence.

"Could you show me his picture?" he continued. "I never forget a face, and if we have ever met I can tell you in an instant."

"The only photograph I have was taken long before Rick left England, and I am afraid it would not assist your memory, Mr. Kane. But Miss Churchill has one which was done in South Africa less than two years ago, I should think."

"The very thing!" he exclaimed. "I purpose riding over to Gatewood, and will let you know the result."

"I—we—shall be so grateful to you, Mr. Kane, for any news or encouragement. When I sit here talking to you about the Cape it seems as if Rick were not so far away after all!" And she flashed him a dazzling smile through tears which would flow all unbidden at the memory of the exile.

Kane rose as if to go, and Stella rose too. He had started for Denecroft that morning of set purpose to propose to the girl, but the conversation was taking a turn that he had not foreseen, and one which might or might not form a propitious prelude to what he wanted to say.

However, he was not the man to shrink from a slight obstacle, and to leave Denecroft without having spoken his rede would seem too much like a repulse or a defeat. So he determined to make it now or never. But he must not be too precipitate.

Despite his supreme confidence in his lucky star, Kane knew perfectly well that in thus raising his eyes to an alliance with an English girl of rank and fortune the chances were dead against him. A year ago the world did not know his name. Had they met two years ago he shuddered to think of what their relative positions would have been. He knew very well that it was his wealth alone which now enabled him to meet her on even terms, and he realized clearly that unless he could impress his personality and his manhood upon her, mere money would profit him nothing.

Could he make himself indispensable to this gentle and high-born English maiden—he, the erstwhile adventurer and outcast? At least, he could try! It should be the fight of his life! If the way to Stella's heart lay through her regard for the absent and long-lost brother, why, Rossiter Kane could be counted upon to play the sympathetic part desired. So he deftly took up his cue, saying in answer to her last words:

"To say that I am highly honored by your confidence but faintly expresses my sentiments, Miss Dysart. Indeed, I am glad you confided in me, for it shows you do not regard me as an utter outlander."

He paused, and her eyes met his ardent gaze. In that moment, in that glance, the whole of life was changed for these two.

With woman-like intuition she divined his drift, and although up to that time she had not distinctly realized his passionate admiration of her, or that she was being wooed, the instant's discovery of it was, if anything, pleasurable rather than otherwise. But she did not—could not—reply, and Kane took up the burden of his tale.

"Fergive me if I speak of myself," he said. "My life has been a rough one, and I have had neither the leisure nor the desire for the society of women—until lately—until I met you. Then newer and sweeter hopes arose. From the very first moment I loved you with all the strength of my manhood, and I determined, if I might, to win the priceless treasure of your love."

He advanced a pace, and took her unresisting hand in his. It was characteristic of the man that at this crisis he indulged in no special pleading, but went straight to the point.

Stella's golden head sunk lower and lower, until he could not see her face. But the little hand was not withdrawn. Bending over her he went on:

"Miss Dysart," he said, "all that I am, all that I hope to be, all that I have, I lay at your feet, but they cannot outweigh my love. Will you be my wife?"

There was no answer. She stood before him, nervously clasping and unclasping her fingers, her head with its aureole of sunny hair so drooped that her face was hid from view. Kane could not see her eyes—a glance into their depths would perchance have apprised him how to proceed, but he was forced to "go it blind," as he would have said concerning some mere business venture.

"I know it looks like cool presumption for a man from nowhere in particular to aspire so high, Miss Dysart," he went on in a deep undertone that she alone could hear. "The prisoner throws himself unreservedly upon the mercy of his judge. I'm unworthy of you in every sense," he said, with that complete self-abasement which the strongest and most unscrupulous men feel when in the presence of a pure and innocent woman, "save that I love you, and you alone. I never said that to a girl before," he continued, as if the thought had just occurred to him that perhaps she might be hesitating for fear that a man of his years was not as heart-free as he was foot-free. "Cannot you give me a little hope?" he urged. "Will you marry me, Stella?"

Stella Dysart was no mere chit of a girl in her teens. Men had made love to her, and even proposed to her, before this, but never the right man. From the first she had been interested in Rossiter Kane. There was a strenuous air about him, the quiet insistence of a "masterful man" who will carry his point in the end, that appeals to every masterless woman.

Now that the question of questions was put and demanded an answer, she was surprised to find that what she had deemed mere friendly feeling and interest really deserved a much nearer and dearer name. She found in her own heart a smoldering response to his appeal which leaped into flame at his behest.

Quietly he waited for her answer. But still the little head was bent. He drew her to him, and caressingly tilted her chin so that she must perforce lift her eyes to his.

Her face was suffused with rosy color, and her eyelashes were wet, but surely they were happy tears, and it was with smiling lips that she whispered as she nestled to his side—

"If you wish it—yes!"

"Wish it! Oh my darling, my queen!" he exclaimed, and his lips met hers in love's first sweet caress.

He was in no haste to be gone now, but led her to a tete-a-tete and took his place beside her.

"I am the happiest man in England," he said fervidly, devouring her with his eyes. For answer she breathed a happy sigh.

"Sir Arthur must be told, I suppose," he said tentatively, after an interchange of sweet confessions and confidences.

"Oh, not yet, please," she pleaded. "Not for a few days. I feel so selfish, enjoying all this happiness, when at this moment poor Rick may be in trouble or in danger!"

"Counfound your Rick!" was Kane's inward objurgation, but outwardly he was all sympathy and interest.

"We must find him," he said, in quietly confident tones. "He is my brother now, you know." A rosy blush flooded face and forehead at these words, but timidly seeking his hand she exclaimed:

"If you want to make me sincerely happy and leave no cloud between us, you will find my brother! Then you may speak to Sir Arthur as soon as you like!" nodding her head vivaciously.

"It is a bargain," Kane returned, and with a farewell caress he took his leave, elated, happy, triumphant, a better man in thought and intention than he had ever been before.

Mounting his horse, he rode rapidly through the park to Gatewood, and found Marcia Churchill at home, by whom he was graciously received as a whilom acquaintance and now a near neighbor.

After presenting his invitation to the coming ball at The Cedars he broached the second object of his call.

"Miss Dysart was speaking about her brother Richard this morning," he said, "and she wondered if I had ever met him at the Cape. I could not recall him by name, but asked her for a photograph. She sent me here, saying you possessed one taken since he went abroad. May I see it?"

"Surely," she said. "I will get it for you."

The abrupt naming of Richard's name by a comparative stranger unnerved this usually strong and self-contained nature, and her agitation was perceived and noted by Rossiter Kane, who drew his own sapient conclusions.

Marcia rose and went to a side table, saying the while, to cover her show of feeling—

"We were children together, Mr. Kane, and we all love Richard very dearly."

She returned, bearing in her hand a carte-de-visite, which she gave him, saying simply:

"Here is his latest picture. It was taken in Cape Town, as you see, nearly two years ago."

Kane took the bit of pasteboard, and with a ceremonious "Pardon me!" went to the window the better to see.

It was lucky for him that he did this, and that his face was turned from Marcia's watchful eyes, quickened by love and eager with hope deferred, for, strong man and iron-willed as he was, Kane staggered and would have fallen but for a timely grasp of the heavy window-curtain.

He held in his hand the picture of the face he remembered only too well—the features of which, distorted in agony, were ever before him, branded on his eyeballs in hues of fire night and day, and which he had last seen for a few tragic moments in a ruddy glare by the Mooi river many months before!

The sweat stood on his forehead in great beads, and a mist clouded his vision. But the man's despotic will triumphed, and pulling himself together he faced inward again, his back to the light, and said as quietly as he could:

"No; it is as I thought, Miss Churchill, we never met."

The deliberate, cold-blooded lie scorched his soul, for if his surmise were correct, Richard Dysart was more than life to the proud beauty who confronted him.

"But I will have some inquiries made," he went on, "and perhaps I shall have good news for you soon."

How he managed to make his adieus and get out of the house decently and in order Kane never knew. He found himself astride his horse once more, and cantering down the chestnut avenue leading to the high road. There he let the animal down to a walk, and began to look the appalling situation in the face.

STRONG MAN AND IRON-WILLED AS HE WAS, KANE STAGGERED AND WOULD HAVE FALLEN, BUT FOR A TIMELY GRASP OF THE WINDOW CURTAIN.

"God in Heaven!" he muttered, "I killed him in cold blood, and those two women would hate me for life if they knew!"

Hell itself and the torments of lost souls, of which we read, may be nothing more than the pangs of a guilty and remorseful conscience. Kane's worst enemies—and he had many—would have been satisfied could they have seen him now, racked by unavailing regret, tortured by the thought that the dead body of Richard Dysart must effectually sunder him from the only woman he had ever loved.

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW.

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

NEW YORK DOWNED DETROIT.

An American League Championship Game at Newark, N. J.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The New York and Detroit American league teams played a championship game at Wiedenmayer's park, Newark, N. J., which the New York team won by a score of 3 to 1.

Griffith pitched a splendid game for the winners, holding the western players to three hits, and but for Keeler's error in the sixth inning the Detroit nine would have been shut out.

Both Elberfeld and Keeler atoned for misplays, each making two difficult running catches at critical stages of the contest.

Brooklyn Made Good Double Play.

CINCINNATI, O., July 18.—Two errors and two passes to first allowed Brooklyn to score four runs and win the game in the third inning. Dillon's sensational one handed catch of Seymour's line fly in the seventh inning, resulting in a double play, prevented Cincinnati from tying the score. Score: Brooklyn, 4; Cincinnati, 2.

Chicago Won Listless Game.

CHICAGO, July 18. — The locals bunched all of their hits with errors and ran up a commanding lead on Philadelphia in the first five innings, after which they let up and played a listless game. Evers' fielding was the feature. Score: Chicago, 9; Philadelphia, 6.

Boston Defeated In Poor Game.

ST. LOUIS, July 18.—Boston was defeated by St. Louis, 6 to 3. Poor ball was played by both teams.

OUR NEWEST PORT.

Pacific Mail Steamers Sail to Ancon, In Canal Zone.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—After sixty years of service the southern terminus for the Pacific Mail Steamship company's liners, the city of Panama, will no longer be the last port of call. Henceforth all vessels will clear for Ancon, canal zone, the port of entry recently established by the canal commission and American territory. Cable advices just received from the isthmus state that all American vessels would be entered and cleared at the new port under the same rules as those prevailing in other United States entry ports. As a result steamers in future will escape foreign port fees and tonnage dues, which have been comparatively high.

Ancon, the new southern terminus for the Pacific Mail steamers, is the old town of La Boca, close to the mouth of the Rio Grande and about three miles north of the city of Panama. It is the western entrance to the proposed canal and has a deep water channel, which the French company built at the time it endeavored to create the waterway across the isthmus.

Labor Unions Ask For Audience.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 18.—Delegates from the Central Labor unions of Scranton, Carbondale, Wilkesbarre, Pittston, Plymouth and Nanticoke met here to hear the report of the committee which was unsuccessful in seeing President Roosevelt to present the joint petition of the unions in behalf of the Colorado miners. Much feeling was shown, according to the report of the press committee, over the failure of the committee to secure an audience with the president, but after a deal of talk a telegram was sent to President Roosevelt asking for an early audience. When it is granted the same committee will call on the president and present the petition.

Roosevelt Junior Doing Good Work.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 18.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., has resumed the teaching of a class in Christ church Sunday school. At the conclusion of his school work this year at Groton, Mass., when he returned to Oyster Bay, he undertook of his own volition his work in the Sunday school. He and one of his cousins have each a class in the school and are much interested in the work. Young Roosevelt's class is composed of ten boys averaging about nine years of age. They are all sons of residents of the village, and several of them their teacher has known for years.

Mrs. Eddy's New Church.

CONCORD, N. H., July 18.—Several thousand Christian Scientists assembled here in the home city of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy to take part in the dedicatory exercises of the edifice of the First Church of Christ, Scientist. The services included reading of selections from the Bible and from Mrs. Eddy's work, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," an address by Irving G. Tomlinson and the reading of a dedicatory address prepared by Mrs. Eddy. The erection of the church was made possible by Mrs. Eddy's gift of $120,000.

To Fight Tuberculosis.

CLEVELAND, O., July 18.—The trustees of Western Reserve university have voted to establish an antituberecular dispensary in connection with the medical school. This is the second dispensary of the kind to be opened in the United States. In France and Germany the dispensary has already come to represent a most effective instrument in the crusade against tuberculosis.

Potters Strike at Trenton, N. J.

TRENTON, N. J., July 18.—About 800 men employed here in the three potteries of the Cook Pottery company did not go to work this morning because of a dispute as to the pay of the kilnmen for doing certain kinds of work. An effort to negotiate the matter has failed, and both sides promise to remain firm.

KRINEY WITHOUT COMMISSION

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE STILL SEEKS HIS PAPERS FROM STATE SECRETARY.

Justice of the Peace Jacob Kriney, about whose commission there has been some delay, because, as Secretary of State S. D. Dickinson says, the returns from the First district of the First ward were not filed with him, has as yet heard nothing about the matter. City Clerk J. T. MacMurray has written to Mr. Dickinson, but has received no reply.

Mr. Kriney now states that he does not believe that his failure to receive the commission is due to any omission on the part of the local election board, but is inclined to believe that the fault lies with someone higher up.

This week Mr. Kriney secured through J. B. Coward, Esq., a true copy of the returns from the First district, First ward, taken from the returns filed at the county seat, and if necessary this will be forwarded to Mr. Dickinson. If the returns in question were not filed with the Secretary of State, it is pretty late to announce the failure, according to those interested. Why the failure, if there was one, was not discovered soon after election, is something that the local officers cannot understand. It is generally believed that Mr. Kriney will get his commission.

CARLOAD OF CATTLE COMING

PERMISSION OBTAINED FOR A TEMPORARY SLAUGHTER HOUSE HERE.

Although the beef situation remains serious throughout the country there is a prospect that Plainfield may get relief this week. One of the local beef houses received word today that the Chicago house which it represents had shipped a carload of live cattle to it. Permit has already been secured to slaughter them in a place on the borough outskirts and when they are dressed it will go a great way toward furnishing a full supply for a long period.

The price of meat remains about the same in the city and it is possible no advance will be made during the next few days. In Chicago the strike is still on and all overtures for a settlement have been declared off. The strikers' ranks are daily growing larger and they are making a determined effort to keep non-union men from working in the packing houses.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. L. B. Griggs and Miss Lucy Searing, of Union, are visiting in the city and borough.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Murphy, of Waycross, Georgia, are visiting friends and relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Wright, of this city, are at their cottage at Easthampton, L. I., for the summer.

Mrs. Anna Barnett, of Reading, Pa., is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. George Pope, of Manning avenue.

FORT CLASSMATE OF PARKER

UNION CIRCUIT JUDGE AND DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE STUDENTS TOGETHER.

Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort, of East Orange, who was assigned to the Union County Circuit, to succeed Justice Bennet J. VanSyckel, of Trenton, was a classmate of Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, the Democratic nominee for President.

Judge Parker was graduated in the class of 1872 from the Albany Law School, and there were three New Jerseyites in his class. They were Supreme Court Justice Fort, of East Orange; William J. James, of Toms River, and the late Congressman Joshua S. Salmon, of Morristown.

There was considerable friendly feeling between the members of the class, and just before graduation they had a set of albums made, one for each member. In these albums the members of the class placed various mementos of their law school course, pictures and autographs, some their political and religious beliefs and others a quotation of some kind or else a motto.

An interesting motto was written in the album of the late Congressman Salmon by the man who has now become the most talked-of in the United States. Judge Parker wrote his signature in one corner of Congressman Salmon's album, and after it the word "Democrat." Then comes this motto, in Latin:

"The laws aid the vigilant, not the negligent."

Among the letters received by Judge Parker is one from Vice Chancellor J. J. Bergen, who writes from Somerville, congratulating Judge Parker, and regretting that his official position will prevent his taking an active part in the campaign.

While it is now probable that E. C. Stokes, of Cumberland County, will be the only one placed in nomination at the Republican State convention for the Governorship, it has not been long since the last of his opponents in the party gave up the hope of finding somebody to beat him. Ill-health has been the only thing that prevented Johnson, of Bergen, being a Gubernatorial possibility this year. There were not a few men through the State who wanted J. C. Briggs to become a candidate this year. The Mercer man, however, would have none of it. One of the most potent forces in uniting the party leaders and bosses throughout North Jersey for Stokes, passively at least, has been the Senatorial situation and the influence of United States Senator John Kean.

ICE DEALERS REPORT DOING BIG BUSINESS

Sales This Season Likely to be Greater Than for Many Years According to Reports.

AN ABUNDANT SUPPLY

BUT THERE IS DIFFICULTY IN SUPPLYING THE DEMAND.

Natural Ice is Said to be Preferred—How the Territory is Divided—Manufactured Ice for Family Use.

The ice business in this city this season bids fair to exceed that of any year for some time. In fact the demand is much larger than some of the dealers have been able to supply, not because there is a scarcity of ice, but because of the limited number of wagons and available men. One dealer told a reporter of The Daily Press today, that in several instances he was obliged to refuse to serve families because he was covering all the territory possible at present.

The quality of ice this year is the best and the supply is an abundant one. Consumers have their choice between the natural and hygeia ice and according to reports the manufactured kind is in greater demand for family use. Persons prefer it for use in drinking water. Large consumers, such as the butchers and restaurant people claim that the natural ice produces the greatest amount of cold air and keeps refrigerators cold for a greater length of time. Some claim that this is imagination and that the hygeia will do the same thing.

Owing to the large crop of ice last winter the price was put down to a point within the reach of all for the summer. The ice business of the town is done by the Plainfield Natural Ice Company and F. T. Ostrom, both selling natural and hygeia ice. The territory is divided up so that one wagon will not conflict with another. In this way the city and borough is covered every day. During several recent warm spells the demand for ice has been the means of taxing the horses and men to the limit, it being almost impossible some times to reach everyone wanting ice. As soon as the temperature drops it will give both horses and men a much needed rest. The dealers have no fear but that the crop on hand will last until cold weather comes again to replenish the stock.

ELECTRIC DISPLAY.

Heat Lightning Made the Heavens Beautiful Last Night.

An ominous black, storm cloud which crept up in the southeastern sky, early last evening, marked the confines of a vivid lightning display that lasted over an hour. The black mass was lighted up repeatedly by a bluish "snake" lightning which darted from end to end in a most fascinating way. At times the cloud seemed to simply glow with light and it stood out in contrast with the star-studded heavens.

Hundreds of people were attracted by the unusual sight and the city streets were crowded with watchers who followed the progress of the display until it gradually disappeared.

Sunday Trains for Asbury.

It is stated on good authority at Asbury Park that the question of Sunday trains has been satisfactorily adjusted and that trains will stop as usual next Sunday and thereafter. It is understood that the railroad officials have conferred with the Ocean Grove Association and that a satisfactory agreement has been arrived at. There is a feeling in Asbury Park that the trouble will ultimately force a constitutional fight in the courts which will involve the legality of the Ocean Grove charter. In Asbury Park the feeling is intense and the conclusion is expressed that now is the proper time to test the question of Ocean Grove's power over its neighboring municipality.

No Return Trolley Tickets on Sale.

The Public Service Corporation failed to supply its agents at Somerville with the regular return trip trolley tickets on Sunday and hundreds of passengers were compelled to pay double fares between that place and Bound Brook. The company, for certain concessions, entered into an agreement some months ago with the Somerville Board of Commissioners, to keep tickets on sale at all times. The agents are unable to account for the company's action, and the matter will be laid before the commissioners at their next regular meeting.

STAMP CANCELLING DEVICE

MACHINE MARKING 600 LETTERS A MINUTE IN USE AT POSTOFFICE.

Postmaster E. H. Bird has been successful in his efforts to secure a new cancellation machine at the postoffice. The device was installed a few days ago and is now in use. Its capacity is twice that of the old machine, it being possible to cancel between 600 and 700 stamps in a minute. The machine is operated by electricity.

A person not acquainted with the amount of mail matter passing through the local office, is surprised to learn that the letters and other mail matter runs up in the thousands, the heaviest mail usually being received the first part of the month. It was because of this constantly increasing mail that the new machine was obtained. This is the seventh machine of the kind put in use by the Postoffice Department and the fourth or fifth in this State.

Many friends of David Dreier, of West Front street, were royally entertained Sunday evening at the Willoughby Mansion in Brooklyn on the occasion of the engagement reception of Mr. Dreier and Miss Rose Freudenthal, of Brooklyn. The date of the wedding has not yet been decided upon, but will probably be set for some time in the late fall.

COMPANY K PLANS FOR SOCIAL ACTIVITY

Meeting Called for Tomorrow Night to Take Action on the Proposition.

TO HAVE CLUB ROOMS

LIBRARY AND POOL TABLES TO BE PLACED IN ARMORY.

Series of Entertainments May be Given—Co. K a Harmonious Organization Under Present Captain.

Steps have been taken by the older and leading members of Company K to bring the personnel of the organization closer together in regard to social relations than what has existed heretofore. A meeting has been called for tomorrow evening at which the matter will be discussed in detail and immediate plans made for the coming fall and winter.

Some time ago a social organization on a small scale was formed from among the militiamen and it attained no small degree of success. Its scope was limited, however, and the new plans will call for a great broadening out. Under Captain Martin the company has enjoyed the most harmonious year of its existence and the need of something to keep the members in touch with each other beside drills has been felt more and more. In the summer time the annual encampment does a great deal to promote close personal friendships and this is what the commandment wishes to preserve.

The present officers will be retained in the new social club and if needed at the start, a few additional will be named. Arrangements will be made for fitting up one part of the armory as a club room and installing small games, a library and possibly a pool table. Later on in the season a series of dances and entertainments will be arranged to be given during the winter. Last winter's series of dances were among the social features of the season and it is proposed to make the coming ones even better. There is considerable talent in the company and it will be no hard matter for the members to provide amusement either for themselves or outsiders on visiting nights.

ITALIAN HELD WITHOUT BAIL

VANNANZE TAKEN TO SOMERVILLE TO AWAIT RESULT VICTIM'S INJURIES.

Carman Vannanze, the Italian believed to have done most of the stabbing in the Hudson Lane brawl, Sunday afternoon, was re-arrested by Chief Weiss and County Detective Totten, yesterday, the injuries of Giovanni Colucci warranting the action. The prisoner was at once taken to Somerville and will be held without bail to await the outcome of Colucci's condition. Vannanze had been previously released on $35 bail as was Dominick Felocca, the other prisoner taken. The latter was not re-arrested.

Colucico is now at the colony in the lane and has even chances for life. The stab wounds in his chest are deep and in addition he was greatly weakened by loss of blood from the cuts in his wrists. Mike Ricardo, the other man stabbed, is doing very well and there is no doubt but what he will soon be around.

Trinity Excursion a Timely One.

Reports received from Asbury Park this week indicate a cool delightful temperature at the favorite seaside resort. Every arrangement has been made for the comfort and convenience of those going and you will always regret it if you fail to accompany this Sunday-school.

DR. YERKES OFFICIATES

CEREMONY ATTENDED ONLY BY RELATIVES AND FEW FRIENDS.

Bride a School Teacher—Upon Return From Honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Will Reside in This City.

In the presence of only relatives and a few immediate friends, Miss Clara Gaston Dunham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garret T. Dunham, of West Front street, was married yesterday afternoon to William Holmes, also of this city. Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor emeritus of the First Baptist church, was the officiating clergyman. The affair was simple in every respect, there being no attendants or any of the usual features.

The bride was attired in a very becoming gown of crepe de chine and carried a bouquet of bride roses. Following the ceremony a brief reception was held and at its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Holmes left on a wedding trip. They will make their home on West Front street on their return.

Mr. and Mrs. Holmes are numbered among the city's most prominent young people. The former is well known as a vocalist and musician and has appeared in many local amateur operatic productions which he himself arranged. He has been leader of the First Baptist church choir for several years and was in charge of several of its recent musicales. His bride also comes of a musical family and has sung in several local choirs. For the past two years she has been teacher in the school at North Branch.

THREATENED TO SHOOT WEBB

GEORGE BECKER FLOURISHES HIS REVOLVER WHEN ORDERED TO MOVE ON.

Justice VonMinden, of New Market, today issued a warrant for the arrest of George Becker, a resident of Avon Park, who has been mixed up in several cases during the past year. He is charged by Samuel Webb, also a resident of Avon Park, with hurling a club at him and pointing a revolver at him, threatening to shoot. The warrant was placed in the hands of Constable Pierce and Becker will be given a hearing this evening at 7 o'clock.

The trouble which led to the court proceedings took place yesterday afternoon in front of Becker's home just off Park avenue. Webb had been working on a farm in the vicinity and sat down on one of Becker's grass plots, he says, for a rest. He had been there but a few moments when a club was hurled at him, which he barely avoided, and then Becker rushed up pistol in hand. The weapon frightened Webb and he fled while Becker followed him yelling and flourishing the weapon. The fright left him in a nervous state but as soon as he recovered he drove to New Market and preferred the charge.

MARVELOUS GROWTH OF CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Dr. H. K. Carroll a Member of Board of Trustees Which Finds Society Prospering.

BIG GAINS REPORTED

IN ELEVEN MONTHS 2,264 NEW SOCIETIES ARE FORMED.

Total Number of Separate Organizations Aggregates 64,758 — Are Urged to Seek Originality in Methods.

Reports made at the recent annual meeting of the trustees of the United Society of Christian Endeavor show that this part of the young people's religious hosts is steadily growing in numbers and practical usefulness. Among the denominational trustees is Dr. H. K. Carroll, of this city.

Von Ogden Vogt, the general secretary, says that the total number of societies is 64,758. During the year the net gain in new societies was almost 2,000. The campaign for increase so widely blessed in the first months has gone on with unabated vigor. At the Denver convention, eighteen States were recognized for gains of ten per cent. or more. Since the report twelve other States have made a like gain, seven have added a second ten per cent., and one passed thirty per cent. The total number of new societies organized in the eleven months since is 2,264.

Mr. Vogt visited during the year twenty-five States and territories, in every great section of the country excepting the Pacific Coast States. In each of these States, New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois, the visit was for three weeks. Numerous small conferences of workers and their ministers gave abundant opportunity for careful inquiry.

He reports a much higher state of efficiency throughout the organization than he had expected to find.

"The majority of the unions visited," says the secretary, "are headed by a fine type of young business or college men, leaders of ability and standing as well as devotion. I was particularly pleased with the personnel of the delegates in the State conventions of Louisiana, Alabama, Florida and Kentucky. I note this in order that the small numbers of the South may not be mistaken for weakness. In some quarters, greater attention on the part of older church workers to the young leadership is needed."

Regarding State field secretaries the report states: "When the fall season of 1901 opened up, there was no such thing as a salaried Christian Endeavor secretary with anything smaller than National territory. Today, Ohio, Colorado, Missouri, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Nebraska and California, each enjoy the labors of a regular paid field secretary. Five of these are appointments of the year. Florida has a splendid gratuitous service. Virginia received an uplift from the two months' visit of Colorado's secretary. Alabama, Washington, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont are definitely considering the plan."

The general secretary urges that individual societies seek originality in their endeavors. He finds that too many of the young people are content to follow the lead of older societies and adhere to stereotyped methods of service.

At this annual meeting the following officers were unanimously re-elected: Rev. Francis E. Clark, president; William Shaw, treasurer; George B. Graff, clerk; Fred H. Kidder, auditor.

HILLAIRE BLATZ INJURED

HURT IN ACCIDENT ON SCENIC RAILWAY AT CONEY ISLAND.

Hillaire Blatz, of the borough, was numbered among a party of pleasure seekers who figured in a bad accident on one of the scenic railways at Coney Island, Sunday. The car in which he was seated became stalled in one of the dark caverns through the blowing out of a fuse and before an alarm could be given, a succeeding car crashed into it.

Several people were so badly hurt as to necessitate their removal to the hospital and all were more or less shaken up. Mr. Blatz escaped serious injury but was cut and bruised in several places. He had practically no warning of the second car's approach and when the collision occurred he was thrown headlong against a side wall. He was assisted to a train after receiving medical attention but still feels the effects of his fall.

WESTFIELD'S "KING" DEAD

OCHIETTO WAS HEAD OF BIG ITALIAN COLONY IN THAT PLACE.

Nicola Ochietto, known as king of the Italian colony at Westfield, died yesterday at the General Hospital in Elizabeth from peritonitis, following an operation for appendicitis. He was ill eight days, but was only removed to the hospital Saturday night and the operation immediately performed. Ochietto, who was well known here, was a contractor for several years. Lately he ran a hotel, also a beer bottling establishment and a large Italian boarding-house. Ochietto was known as the chief padrone of the Italians in Westfield and vicinity. He used to secure men for contractors in various parts of Union county. He was fifty-three years old and is survived by a wife and three children.

Some years ago a man was found lying stabbed to death in some bushes close to Ochietto's house. He was suspected by the county authorities and was arrested, but the State could not find evidence to hold him. The tragedy was never cleared up. His funeral will take place tomorrow, at Westfield, and interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery here. Ochietto is supposed to have left considerable money.

ITALIANS CELEBRATING ANNUAL CHURCH FEAST

Masses Are Said and Concerts Given in Honor of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel.

BIG CROWDS PRESENT

GREAT PYROTECHNIC DISPLAY IS SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT.

Columbia Band Renders Exceptional Programmes—President Salve Velard in Charge of the Affair.

Concluding with a band concert and small display of fireworks in Concert Park, last evening, the first day's celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel by local Italians, passed off successfully yesterday. The termination was witnessed by thousands of people from every part of the city and was as interesting as it was entertaining. The Columbia band, of New York, occupied the park stand and rendered a programme made up of the more familiar classical compositions and patriotic airs that lasted for over two hours. Every member of the band is an expert musician and the various numbers were applauded with great enthusiasm.

In the morning and afternoon the celebration consisted of attending mass in St. Joseph's church and holding impromptu band concerts in various parts of the city. This morning a further mass was held in St. Joseph's church and at 10:30 the Mount Carmel Italian Society paraded about the principal streets. The procession was headed by Salve Velard, the president, and his escort comprised many of the best known Italian residents.

The principal event of the celebration takes place in Concert Park at 8:20 this evening when there will be a grand display of fireworks and another band concert. Last year the pyrotechnics were the most elaborate seen in Plainfield for years and President Velard has made every effort to surpass them. The first bombs will be set off at 8:15 by an expert from the Paine company and there will be a succession of mines, rockets and set pieces until 10:30. The admission to the lot is open to the public, but as it will undoubtedly be crowded, seats will be sold for the grandstand, thus insuring a comfortable position and an excellent view of the display.

The decorations in honor of the feast are elaborate and very pretty, especially at night. Across Watchung avenue from Front street to Manning avenue and in front of several of the East Front street business houses long strings of red, white, blue and green tumblers, filled with oil, have been hung. These are lighted at night and the effect is striking, the illuminated tumblers giving an electrical effect. Italian and American flags and bunting have also been used in making arches over the streets.

Parker a Second Cleveland.

Former Senator Smith is far from being disappointed and sore over the outcome of the Convention. He is almost as enthusiastic as he would have been if a Cleveland cyclone had swept the convention off its feet. He declares that Judge Parker "is a second Cleveland," and professes to believe that he will carry New Jersey. Other Democratic leaders throughout the State share his views, and express great admiration for the sublime courage that Judge Parker displayed in tearing Bryanism's fatal grasp from the throat of the party. It has thrilled the Democracy from Sussex to Cape May, and filled it with a courage to which it has been a stranger for ten years past.—New York Herald.

WEAK MADE ROBUST.

PHYSICAL CULTURE TO WARD OFF DEADLY DISEASE.

Children's Athletic Club of Philadelphia Fights Ravages of Tuberculosis by Rational Gymnastic Training.

Philadelphia (Pa.) Special.

An athletic club, which fixes its dues at the extortionate figure of one cent a week, suggests an unusual departure in the world of clubs. Moreover, for many other reasons, the Children's Athletic club of Philadelphia, composed entirely of the children of the poor, organized to fight by physical training the ravages of tuberculosis, marks an important innovation in the charitable work of that city. Mrs. Florence L. Williams, the founder of the club, has certain definite objects to accomplish with the 60 little pupils under her charge. That she is able not merely to bring muscle and health in place of weakness and even disease through a careful system of physical culture, but also to develop a trick team capable of performing acrobatic feats of no little difficulty, proves the efficacy of her methods.

For her clientele Mrs. Williams depends entirely upon the children of the crowded quarters of the city, where poor food and unhealthy surroundings render child life unwholesome and make physical development impossible. From the children of these quarters of the city Mrs. Williams has organized her classes, the membership of which has grown from three to 60. But even here the selection of members is made from the weaker and the more anaemic; from the children who already show signs of the invasion of the "great white plague," whose tiny arms and hollow chests indicate lack of vitality.

With such subjects it is natural that at the outset the exercises of the classes should be of the mildest sort—five minute drills with the lightest of dumb-bell, interspersed with frequent rests. Special breathing exercises are prescribed for the new numbers, and they are expected to continue this exercise at home. One of these exercises consists in the usual exhaling and inhaling, but the method of accomplishing it is novel. The children are ranged in rows, with their hands on their hips, and each child puts a quill toothpick in its mouth. Then, at a word of command, they inhale deeply through the nostrils and then exhale slowly through the toothpick, this device making the exhalation slow and avoiding all chance of strain.

TRICK TEAM AT WORK.
(Three Little Athletes Sketched in Philadelphia Children's Club.)

The fire drill is another important exercise in the development of lung power. As the little arms and legs get hard and the chests are developed the more advanced pupils are taught to take the weaker ones across their shoulders and carry them out of the reach of the fancied flames. But the ideal of all the children who belong to these classes is to develop strength and skill enough to join the trick team, for when the danger of disease has been banished and the puny little figures with narrow chests and round shoulders have been developed into erect, sturdy bodies, then the gymnastic feats of the more pretentious athletes are attempted and achieved before admiring public audiences.

The development of muscle is attended with a similar stimulation of the moral side of the child, and it is to accomplish the latter that the penny weekly fee is charged, giving the children a sense of membership and rightful claim to the advantages of the club, which is lacking in the mere charitable work, which does not permit even the slight contribution of the children themselves. The results of this physical training are striking. Children who, when they joined the club, were too weak to endure even the least tiring of the exercises, under this regimen develop strong, healthy and even athletic frames. Moreover, the tendency to consumption is checked, and with the increase of physical strength there is a corresponding mental and moral development. Finally, the lessons of the gymnasium, the knowledge of the proper method of breathing and of walking, are remembered long after the actual class work has ended, and serve to keep the health the exercise has won.

A Beauty Parlor for Horses.

A beauty hospital for horses has been established on the continent. Here horses have their coats electrically massaged, their hoofs manicured, and their teeth filed and whitened; and here they learn to stand properly and to move in all the fashionable gaits. Probably the most interesting and novel operation to witness is the electrical massaging of a horse's coat. This has the same effect on the coat of a horse as on the scalp of a man, it makes the hair thick and fine and glossy and, where the skin has been rubbed bare, it brings on a new growth.

WON BY DUKE OF KENDAL.

Nautilus Stakes at Brighton Beach Race Track.

NEW YORK, July 19.—On a track that was heavy as a result of the rain Duke of Kendal, at 9 to 2, won the Nautilus stakes, one mile and a furlong, at Brighton Beach. Sweet Alice and Possession made the pace to the far turn, where Travers sent Duke of Kendal to the front and won by a length and a half from Possession, who in turn was eight lengths in front of the favorite, Sheriff Bell.

Spring, favorite, easily won the handicap at one mile and a quarter. Torchello, the winner of the third race, and Flammula in the first were the winning favorites.

Tokalon Won Pulled Up.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Tokalon, an added starter in the Premier stakes at Hawthorne, won all the way, being pulled up to a gallop at the finish. English Lad, with 127 pounds up and always the favorite, finished a distant third, being easily beaten by the 15 to 1 shot Miss Crawford for the place. The stake was worth $2,230 to the winner. Tokalon, although off next to last, shot to the front at the quarter and from that point gradually drew away until turning into the stretch she had twelve lengths to spare. Jockey Knapp then let her jog along and just reaching the wire pulled her up, still winning by seven lengths in the good time of 1:40 1-5. English Lad's showing was far below his caliber.

Baby Hall Fell at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 19.—Baby Hall, a "bush mare," brought here from Illinois especially for a killing, after being backed from 40 to 1 to 15 to 1 at post time, stumbled and fell shortly after the start in the second race at the fair grounds, thereby probably saving the bookmakers a severe scorching. Jockey Ivers, who had the mount on the mare, was badly hurt. Lucky Charm, Just So and Miss Mae Day were the winning favorites.

Ingomar Again a Winner.

DOVER, England, July 19. — The yacht race from Dover to Ostend was won by the American schooner yacht Ingomar, owned by Morton F. Plant of New York. The Navahoe, Therese and Valdora also started, the injuries to the Navahoe and Ingomar as a result of their collision off the Admiralty pier having been repaired.

VICTIM OF STRIKERS

Swift Employee Fatally Slugged at Chicago.

FIGHT AT STOCKYARDS EXPECTED

President Donnelly Claims Unions Have a Million Dollars In Hand to Carry on the War and That They Will Be Victorious.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Slugged into insensibility by a dozen men and left for dead on the tracks of the Ashland avenue trolley line at West Forty-seventh street, Anton Bartusiakovis, an employee at the Swift Packing plant, is dying at the County hospital. His injuries, in the opinion of Police Inspector Hunt, were inflicted by strike sympathizers and the wheels of a trolley car. The men, according to a witness who has talked to the police, set upon Bartusiakovis as he was going home from work. When they could not make him join the strikers, they broke his skull, fractured his jaw, kicked him about the face, head and body and then threw him upon the car tracks.

The motorman of a car approaching not long afterward saw the body in time to stop the car, but not before the wheels had crushed Bartusiakovis' shoulder. The injured man was taken to the County hospital. He has not regained consciousness. Mrs. W. Clifford, attracted to her window by the sound of men fighting, saw the attack and declares she can identify several of Bartusiakovis' assailants.

While a heavy addition to the army of police is massed at the stockyards in readiness for any renewal of rioting and both packers and men are preparing their forces for a desperate fight to the end, the leaders of the striking butcher workmen assert that the union is backed by a $1,000,000 fund to win the great struggle.

With both sides thus watching each other, the police are fearful of an outbreak of rioting like that of Sunday evening, when seven men were badly injured. Meat prices continue to advance, and a number of shops have been forced to close because they cannot secure meat from the packers.

International President Donnelly of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America has just returned from his trip to St. Louis.

"The men out here in the stockyards district," he said, "have enough money hidden away in the old family stockings that serve as banks to run a city for six months. They have enough money to build two savings banks.

"Why, the packers themselves have started to build two savings banks right here at the corner of Forty-seventh street and Ashland avenue to bid for these savings. But they will not get them. That money will go into safety deposit boxes. We have $1,000,000 behind us, and we will win."

A flank movement by the strikers has developed in the announcement by President Donnelly that in conjunction with William Sterling, vice president of the butcher workmen's union; John Floersch, secretary of the Packing Trades council, and Philip Murphy, "champion butcher of the west," recently employed by Swift & Co., will start a small packing house where union butchers may secure supplies at prices which will enable strikers to purchase meat without contributing to the profits of the big packers.

Strike Situation at St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 19.—The next step in the strike situation at South St. Paul will probably be an injunction to prevent the strikers from picketing the Swift packing plant. The governor, it is said, informed the committee of merchants and jobbers who called on him that he could not act until all other means had failed to disperse the strikers and intimated that an appeal to the courts had not been tried. It is understood from reliable authority that the United States court will be appealed to.

Y. W. C. A. Conference Closes.

SILVER BAY, N. Y., July 19.—Last night Miss Florence Simms of Chicago, extension secretary of the American committee, made the closing address at the Eastern City Young Women's Christian association conference. The conference has been very successful, there being 274 delegates in attendance from thirty-eight city associations. The Harlem delegation, numbering thirty-four, was the largest. Other speakers of the day were Rev. J. S. Kerrin of Jamestown, Dr. Howard Agnew Johnston of New York city, Miss Mary Babcock of New York city, Miss Mary Dunn of Chicago and Miss Mary B. Hill of Indiana.

Davis Will Fence Off Mosquitoes.

WASHINGTON, July 19. — General Davis, governor general of the Panama canal strip, has advised the Panama canal commission that he wants 100,000 yards of wire gauze to prevent mosquito invasion of the zone. General Davis says that this will be perhaps the largest order for mosquito netting ever given.

Foreigners Want Better Protection.

TANGIER, July 19.—The isolated residence of an Englishman named Levison at Bubana, two miles outside Tangier, was fired on ineffectually by Moors on Sunday night. Mohammed El Torres, the foreign minister, has sent a strong guard to protect Mr. Levison.

Well Known Astronomer Dead.

AN OPEN VERDICT.

Inquest on Body of F. Kent Loomis at Plymouth.

WOUNDS INFLICTED BEFORE DEATH

Dr. Webb Testified That the Deceased Died as the Result of a Blow, How Inflicted It Was Impossible to Tell.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Assistant Secretary Loomis has received a brief dispatch from Consul Joseph G. Stephens at Plymouth, giving the result of the inquest held on the body of his brother. Arrangements will be made promptly to bring the body of Mr. Loomis to the United States for interment.

London advices say that although a physician testified at the inquest that he believed the wounds in the head were inflicted before death, an open verdict was returned.

The autopsy on the body found two wounds which they believe were inflicted before death. One is a contused bruise below and behind the right ear, and the other a general bruise on the left side.

Dr. Webb, one of the medical men appointed to examine the body, testified that there was a contused wound below and behind the right ear. There was also a general bruise, involving the scalp and the integument of the brain on the left side above the ear. Both injuries, in the doctor's opinion, were caused before death.

Dr. Webb added that Loomis might have been stunned and have fallen into the water and been drowned. It was not a sharp wound, but possibly the result of a fall on his head. The blow was not inflicted after death. Supposing the deceased had ascended on deck at midnight to take the air and went to an unprotected space where the davits were, and he fell, that would account for the wound. He died as the result of a blow, but there was nothing to indicate how the blow, which was a heavy one, had been inflicted.

Mr. Loomis, who was a brother of Assistant Secretary of State Loomis, left New York on the Kaiser Wilhelm II. on June 14 last. He was commissioned to take a treaty to be signed by King Menelek of Abyssinia with the United States.

With Mr. Loomis was Mr. W. H. Ellis, a New York stockbroker, who had financial plans to further in Menelek's country. Mr. Ellis was also accompanied by his secretary, Charles Collins of Washington.

As the journey progressed a Miss Ivell, on her way to Germany to pursue musical studies, became friendly with the Loomis party. While the big ocean liner was passing Plymouth in the night, within a day of reaching port, Mr. Loomis disappeared.

The French authorities made some slight objections to his departure, but these were overcome by the American embassy. At the time of the mysterious disappearance of Mr. Loomis from the steamship Gustave Flamm, a fellow passenger and San Francisco merchant, placed a statement in the hands of the United States embassy in London stating that he had seen Mr. Loomis walking limply and apparently helplessly ill between a man and a woman on the deck of the Kaiser Wilhelm very late on the night of his disappearance.

Tragedy Again Marked Voyage.

PLYMOUTH, England, July 19.—Tragedy again marked the homeward voyage of the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. On the arrival of the vessel here almost at the hour that an inquest was being held over the body of F. Kent Loomis it was announced that a second class passenger, Mrs. Lipschitz, had committed suicide by jumping overboard when the ship was one day out from New York. Hundreds of passengers witnessed the suicide and watched the efforts of a lifeboat to rescue the woman. No trace of the body was found.

Will of Bertha M. Dolbeer.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—The will of Miss Bertha Marion Dolbeer, who jumped to death from a high window at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York several days ago, has been filed for probate. Most of her estate, valued at nearly $2,000,000, is given to her friend, Etta Marion Warren, to whom is bequeathed $300,000 in cash, $400,000 of the Dolbeer & Carson Lumber company's stock at par value, the home and personal residue of the estate not otherwise disposed of. About $125,000 is given to other friends and relatives. Eighty thousand dollars is given to charitable institutions, and $50,000 is set aside for the erection of a mausoleum in Cypress Lawn cemetery.

Cholera Ravaging Teheran.

BAKU, Russia, July 19.—Refugees from Teheran tell terrible stories of the ravages of cholera. They say that on some days the mortality reached 900. The Europeans are abandoning their property and are fleeing to a camp in the mountains. There is a pitiful condition of affairs at the quarantine stations, which are almost without food. The Russian government has ordered the closing of the frontier for the purpose of preventing the introduction of the disease.

Glass Workers Amalgamate.

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.—The two factions of window glass workers, who have been holding sessions in this city, have formally agreed upon amalgamation and today will meet as one body. The new organization will be known as the Amalgamated Window Glass Workers of America.

LEADERS CONFERRED.

No Chairman For National Committee Yet Selected by Democrats.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Leaders of the Democratic party conferred for more than two hours last night in the rooms of former Senator David B. Hill at the Hoffman House, and at the close made public a statement to the effect that the chairmanship of the national committee had not been discussed. Privately it was said the judgment of all present was that the interests of the party would be best conserved by leaving the committee absolutely free to elect its chairman. Judge Parker was said to favor this course. The conference resulted in an agreement to call a meeting of the national committee to be held at the Hoffman House on July 26. The question of fixing the time and place for the notification of candidates for president and vice president was left to the candidates themselves.

Present at the conference were the leaders who brought about the nomination of Judge Parker. There was also present Senator Victor J. Dowling of New York, who looked after the Tammany interests. Every one declared that harmony had been the watchword throughout.

SEALS MAY BE LYNCHED.

Threats Have Been Openly Made by Friends of Victim.

DANVILLE, Va., July 19.—It is generally feared that the Southern railway employees are preparing to make a demonstration against Roy Seals, the colored prisoner in the city jail charged with the killing of James L. Armes last Friday. R. B. Talbot, night watchman, who was with Armes when the fatal shot was fired, has positively identified the prisoner as the man who did the shooting. He says there is no doubt about Seals' guilt.

The Danville light infantry, the only military organization in the city, has left for St. Louis. It is generally believed that the fellow workmen and friends of the murdered man were only waiting for the soldiers to be out of town to make a demonstration against the prisoner. Threats were openly made on the day following the shooting that a lynching would take place if the guilty party could be captured. There is a feeling of uneasiness apparent in the city.

Charles G. Rockwood Dead.

NEWARK, N. J., July 19.—Charles G. Rockwood, for many years president of the National Newark Banking company, is dead at the age of ninety years. He was a descendant of Nicholas Rockwood, who settled in Midfield, Mass., in 1623. His grandfather on his mother's side, Ebenezer Hazard, was postmaster of New York from 1782 to 1789 and was later postmaster general. Mr. Rockwood was born in Boston. His father died when he was a year old, and his mother married Rev. Dr. Thomas E. Vermilye, for half a century pastor of the Collegiate Reformed church, New York.

An Ideal Location

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW.

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

RAISING THE MAINE.

Federal Government May Lay Claim to Wreck of Battleship.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Regarding the proposition that the old battleship Maine be raised in Havana harbor, Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has addressed the following letter to R. H. F. Sewell of New Orleans:

"Referring to your letter of July 1, stating that you have a contract with the Cuban government to float the wreck of the battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana and requesting information as to whether the United States government has any claims upon the wreck, you are informed that on July 1, 1902, the department stated its position respecting the wreck of the Maine in the following language:

"'This department is not at present engaged in and does not contemplate undertaking any work upon the wreck of the Maine. It is not considered, however, that the navy department can, with propriety, in such case, give a letter or other paper which would be in the nature of credentials to be presented to the Cuban government, nor is it understood that any executive department of the government has the power in behalf of the United States to abandon the wreck of a public vessel. The disposition of the public property of the United States rests with congress, and this department would not undertake to give an acquittance or relinquishment of any rights of the United States in the wreck of the Maine for the obvious reason that congress might thereafter at any time by enactment direct that a different disposition thereof be made.'"

TRACTION ALLIANCE.

Andrews-Stanley Syndicate Joins Vanderbilt System.

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.—The following official confirmation of the rumored alliance of the Andrews-Stanley traction syndicate with the Vanderbilts has been made public by President H. E. Andrews:

"The Cleveland interests controlling the Utica, Rome and Oneida Electric railways have acquired a controlling interest in the Syracuse Rapid Transit Railway company and propose to merge these properties into one system. The New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company has purchased an interest in these properties and will probably enter into a trackage agreement for the use of the West Shore railway, to connect the systems of which Syracuse and Utica are the centers. Further extensions east and west are in contemplation. The New York Central and Hudson River Railroad company intends to aid the new company in taking care to develop the short haul traffic to the fullest extent."

Beavers Held For Trial at Capital.

NEW YORK, July 19.—George W. Beavers, the indicted ex-postoffice official, was again before United States Commissioner Morle in the district court, Brooklyn, and again he was held for trial in Washington. Commissioner Morle remanded Beavers to the custody of the United States marshal, but later Judge Thomas released him, holding that sufficient bail had been given by Beavers under the Brooklyn indictments to warrant his appearance. Further motions are to be made by Beavers' attorneys next Thursday, and until they are decided he cannot be taken to Washington.

Collision In Portland Harbor.

PORTLAND, Me., July 19.—The United States revenue cutter Woodbury and the harbor steamer Sebascobegan of the Portland and Harpswell line collided in a fog in the harbor, both sustaining damage. The Woodbury struck the steamer on the starboard side, demolishing all the woodwork on the upper deck, and the cutter's bowsprit punctured the steamer's pilot house. Captain Morrill of the Sebascobegan had a narrow escape. The Woodbury lost her bowsprit and was otherwise damaged forward.

Nan Patterson's Sister Failed.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—It is stated that Mrs. J. Morgan Smith, sister of Nan Patterson, the New York woman held in connection with the shooting of Caesar Young, and who came to Washington recently for the purpose of having herself reinstated in her old position with the government, has been unsuccessful in her efforts and has left the city. Mrs. Smith is said to have joined her husband, though concerning his whereabout his family here disclaims any knowledge. He is now believed to be in Canada.

Ervin M. Smith Held For Murder.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 19.—The inquest in the Webster murder case has been closed and Ervin M. Smith, the dead girl's lover, held to await the action of the grand jury on the charge of murder in the first degree. The arrest was made by Sheriff Bailey, who brought the young man to Rochester and lodged him in jail. Smith took the matter very calmly.

Manager's Fatal Fall.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 19.—Arthur C. Wyatt, manager of the Mellen House, fell head foremost down an elevator shaft at the hotel here and sustained injuries from which he soon died. Mr. Wyatt stood at the entrance to the shaft on the third floor and lost his balance while attempting to lower the freight elevator from the floor above.

Results of Heat at Detroit.

DETROIT, July 19.—A number of cases of heat prostration were reported here. The case of A. L. Smith, a well known contractor, resulted fatally. The maximum temperature was 95 degrees.

Kuropatkin Reports Repulse at Motien Pass.

RUSSIANS ATTACKED IN DENSE FOG

After Stubborn Fight Japanese Drove Czar's Troops Off—England and Germany Protest Against Seizures In Red Sea.

LONDON, July 19.—A special dispatch from St. Petersburg says that General Kuropatkin reports that Lieutenant General Count Keller lost over 1,000 in killed or wounded in the attack on Motien pass on Sunday morning.

A Tokyo report says that General Kuroki, commanding the First army, reports a severe engagement in the Motien pass between Fengwangcheng and Liaoyang early Sunday morning. General Keller, with two divisions, taking advantage of a dense fog to cloak his advance, at 3 o'clock in the morning fiercely assaulted the Japanese positions at the pass and on either flank.

After a stubborn fight the Japanese repulsed the attack and pursued the Russians nearly to Tienshutien.

General Kuroki adds that he is making an investigation to ascertain the number of his casualties.

He compliments the army on its splendid behavior in the battle.

It is reported here that the Japanese right wing is making a rapid movement to the southward. It is not clear on which points the Japanese are concentrating.

Vigorous action by Great Britain and perhaps by Germany is expected to follow the reports of Turkey's violation of neutrality and the Paris treaty in allowing Russian armed vessels to pass the Dardanelles. The situation is today occupying the closest attention of official and diplomatic circles.

The passage of the volunteer cruisers Smolensk and St. Petersburg through the Dardanelles, some days ago, aroused much criticism, and this has now been changed to open condemnation of Turkey's course by the report that the Russian guardship Chernomoretz was permitted to pass yesterday. England is bound by her treaty with Japan to prevent such assistance to Russia, and several of the papers this morning assert that stringent measures will be taken to punish the offending Turk and prevent a recurrence.

A Berlin dispatch says that Germany has entered a vigorous protest at the seizure of mails on the Prinz Heinrich by the Russian volunteer fleet in the Red sea.

Not only is the seizure protested, but the right of search for contraband by a vessel not openly classed as a part of the Russian naval force is denied.

The Prinz Heinrich was stopped and detained four hours in the Red sea by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk. All the mail and packages, some fifty sacks, bound for Japan were taken off.

The German government demands a prompt disavowal of the Smolensk's action and the return of the captured mail.

It is reported that two more steamers of the Russian volunteer fleet, now at Odessa, have received confidential orders to leave for the Red sea and to seize British vessels which are alleged to be carrying contraband of war.

An Aden report says that the British steamers Woodcock and Dalmatia have been held up by the Russians in the Red sea and detained for three hours.

The captain of the Russian volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg has notified the British resident at Aden to wire the British consuls at Suez and Port Said that he would seize any British steamers bound for the far east if the contents of their packages were not clearly shown on their manifest, according to international law.

A correspondent at General Kuroki's headquarters has telegraphed as follows:

"A Russian force, apparently about 20,000 strong, attacked the front, left and right of the Japanese positions on the western slope of Motien pass at 2 a. m. Sunday under cover of a dense fog. The sudden onslaught drove in the Japanese outposts, but as soon as re-enforcements arrived the Japanese gallantly advanced to the attack and after severe fighting drove off the Russians and reoccupied the position. The Russians retired, their retreat being well covered. The fighting lasted until 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and when I left the scene desultory firing was still proceeding."

Mrs. Maybrick to Be Freed at Last.

LONDON, July 19.—An official of the home office said that Mrs. Florence Maybrick, the American woman who has been imprisoned in England for the murder of her husband, will be released on Thursday, the fifteenth anniversary of the commencement of her trial. When she is released Mrs. Maybrick will immediately join her mother, the Baroness de Roques, and will sail with her for America. The government hopes to conceal the fact of the release until they arrive in New York. After her arrival in America Mrs. Maybrick will proceed direct to Louisiana to appear in the land suit which Judge Yarrow of Washington is conducting for her.

Plainfield, N. J., July 19, 1904.

A ten dollar fine is not calculated to suppress wife beating. Brutes of this type deserve the heaviest penalty.

If the high price of meat continues much longer we may expect to see pictures of loin chops and porterhouse steak adorning the dining room walls.

It is not too warm to think of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home and the King's Daughters' Baby Camp. They are deserving institutions depending entirely upon the Plainfield public for their support. Any contribution is welcomed.

Before it is too late, Judge Parker had better place a guard on his lands at Esopus. Americans are great souvenir collectors and the Democratic candidate is apt to find that his beautiful estate is likely to suffer as a consequence.

Newspaper correspondents appear to be a little shy on stories about the actress who loses her diamonds, war in South America, the sea serpeant, man given up for dead returning home, and fortune left to one who befriended testator in his youth.

If the reorganized Alis team continues to play the kind of ball it put up on Saturday there will be a marked increase in the attendance. George Johnston is a capable man and should be given a free hand in managing the team. His announcement that there will be no further changes in the makeup of the nine is a sensible one.

It is said that Parker favors the selection of Senator Gorman for the National chairmanship of the Democratic party, and if it be true, it shows that the Esopus man displays unusual political sense for one who wears the ermine. The distinguished Marylander is one of the shrewdest politicians of the day and no better choice could be made for that most important position.

Elihu Root is mentioned as a likely candidate for the governorship of New York, and what better choice could be made by the Republican party and the people of the Empire State? Like Samuel Pennypacker, the governor of Pennsylvania, he is a learned and dignified man, far above the calibre generally chosen to fill the most important office in a State. During the last few years there has been a growing tendency in many of the States to select able men, of much higher standard than those usually found in practical politics, to fill the more important offices. Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Depew, of New York, might be cited as instances. There can be but one reason for this and it is that political machines, wherever found, realize at last that the independent vote is largely the deciding factor in great political contests and the truly independent vote will place the government in the hands of those who administer affairs to the interests of the people and not solely for the selfish purposes of the few.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The result of the ball game Saturday was eminently satisfactory to all boroughites although it was not at all pleasing to the New Market contingent. As usual, in cases where the rivalry is so keen, there were numerous disputes over decisions but the game was on the whole a fair trial as both sides were equally favored. It has not yet been decided whether the series will be continued as feeling is rather high on both sides but it is likely that cooler heads will prevail and that the games will go on. In view of the closeness of the scores in both games New Market is not disappointed and think they have a fighting chance yet.

The one-handed catch of a line hit which Howard Craig made in the opening inning of Saturday's game was a corker and received much applause. Craig is one of the best third basemen in the business and can always be relied on for a hit. Dunellenites are of the opinion that "Mayor Bill" Smith will hold on to that $50 a long time before the Y. M. A. get it by winning from Dunellen.

L. L. Block, of North avenue, cut himself quite badly in the head yesterday with an axe. He was chopping wood and the axe caught in a clothes line and came down on his head cutting quite a gash.

Messrs. Robert Lowrie and William Kennedy, of the Sioux Tennis Club, after a series of games, have proven themselves the champion team of the club and challenge any amateur tennis team in the State.

"Mayor Bill" Smith took a party of friends to Plainfield last evening, where they witnessed the Italian celebration. The trip was made in the Mayor's new auto.

The old Handren place, on Grove street, is being utilized as a summer boarding-house under the name of the "Ellsworth."

Walter Hazeltine, of Washington avenue, has returned from an extended business trip through the West.

A number of people from St. John's church enjoyed themselves at a picnic on Sunday.

Mrs. Sanford Staples, of Front street, is confined to her home by illness.

The young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Blaine is quite ill.

Daniel Gulick is ill with gastritis and is unable to be out.

Dr. Platt is entertaining his brother for a few days.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Judge Clark has a pleasant way of soothing a prisoner when imposing fines for being drunk and disorderly. Jones, the colored man who was before him Sunday morning, told His Honor that he had only been in New Jersey one day; that his home was in New York. "You were drunk, wasn't you?" "Yes sah." "$5 and costs. You should know better than to drink Jersey rum before becoming acclimated." Caroff, who was arraigned the same day. "Pretty drunk was you?" "Yes sir." "$5 and costs. Any friends?" "Yes sir." "Better see what they will do for you. I have done all I can." These and many similar cases in the past makes Judge Clark a terror to evil doers, as they know when court convenes at the 'Plains it means but few reprimands or suspended sentences.

The cash prize of $25 offered by Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., to the member bringing in the largest number of recruits between January and July, was won by Briant Johnston, who increased the council membership by five.

Nearly the entire Italian population in town has been participating in the two days' observance of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, which has been held in Plainfield. The fete closes tonight with a grand display of fireworks.

The regular monthly meeting of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company was held in the company parlors last night. Only the regular routine business was transacted.

The ministers' weekly conference meetings, of which Rev. G. M. Shott is corresponding secretary, have discontinued the weekly meetings until September.

Miss Hazel Morrison and Miss Nellie Crook, of South avenue, who have been spending several days with Miss Sadie Lee, have returned home.

Robert Walpole has returned from Brooklyn, where he has been spending Saturday and Sunday with his daughter.

No band concert in Plainfield this week. Scotch Plains will miss its usual weekly treat.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Weldon have been entertaining relatives from Rahway over Sunday.

John Falvey returned Monday from a visit of several days with relatives at Dover, N. J.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

While driving towards his home, about half a mile away, Monday morning, Edgar J. Boice saw a friend in the road beckoning him to make haste. On arriving there he found that one of his choice heifers had fallen into a pit where she seemed liable to be drowned. The animal was soon extricated without injury.

Hollis Cubberley, Alfred Dayton, Philip Smith and George Morris have pitched their tents at Lake Hopatcong for a week's encampment and fishing.

The usual Tuesday evening prayer service of the Baptist church will be held again on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Plans are being arranged by a committee of the Baptist Sunday-school for a Sunday-school excursion.

The result of the election will be foreshadowed in The World weeks in advance, exactly as Cleveland's election was foretold and as McKinley's triumphs were, The World giving the electoral vote by States with absolute correctness ten weeks before McKinley's election day. The World will not only strive to be right, but it will be bright and large; national in its news and views. Every one who is interested in this vital Presidential contest will need it every day. No Democrat or Republican should be happy without it. The regular price for the Daily Morning World by mail is $3 for four months, but for a special time The World will send the Daily Morning Edition by mail for four months for $1. Agents are wanted to take subscriptions. A liberal commission will be given. Address World Campaign Club, Room 49, Pulitzer Building, N. Y. Terms, subscription blanks, sample copies, printed matter, etc., will be sent by return mail.

New York's Roof Gardens.

Paradise Roof Garden.—Merian's dogs, in a "canine melodrama," have scored a hit, but there were many other features of interest in the show atop the Victoria and Belasco theatres. Rice and Prevost, after a week's absence, were back again and as amusing as ever in their comedy acrobatic act. Other features of the diverting warm weather bill include "The Mysterious Face," Charles T. Aldrich; the Gasch sisters, in their feats of strength; Willy Zimmerman, in his imitations of famous composers; Collins and Hart, and, of course, Mr. Hammerstein's "Parsifalia" is still to be seen.

AN HOUR'S FREEDOM.

IT SUFFICED TO MAKE THE PRISONER A MARRIED MAN.

Another Criminal Is Led to the Altar in Handcuffs—Nobleman's Young Daughter Becomes Wife of Convict.

Whether or not 1904 has brought much comfort to the leap-year young lady, it has certainly produced quite an epidemic of convict-weddings—indeed, since the year dawned it has been scarcely possible to take up a continental paper without reading of some dramatic pilgrimage from the prison to the altar and of the progress of the bridegroom, after a too brief honeymoon, back to jail.

A typical case was reported a few weeks ago from Buda-Pesth. A man named G—— had been sentenced to a year's imprisonment, and a pretty girl, Etelka S——, who had known the prisoner for some years, vowed that she would commit suicide forthwith if she were not allowed to marry him. In vain her father tried to dissuade her from her project. All his pleading was useless; and at last, through his lawyer, he made representations to the minister of justice to the effect that his daughter's mind would give way unless her wish was granted.

As the result of this request, the convict was granted an hour's freedom, and, with a warder for best man, and an escort of police, the marriage took place. As soon as the ceremony was over, however, the bridegroom was marched back to prison again, his wife bidding him an affectionate good-by at the door of the jail.

A week or so later Weggenstein, near Geneva, was the scene of a similar unconventional wedding. The bridegroom had been sentenced to two years' hard labor for burglary; but when sentence was passed he begged permission to marry before going to the central prison. On the wedding morning the convict in handcuffs was escorted to the office of the magistrate where the civil ceremony was performed, with a couple of uniformed warders as witnesses. After the ceremony the wedding party, warders and all, adjourned to the house of the newly-wedded pair, where a sumptuous breakfast awaited them.

More romantic was the recent union of a French convict to the daughter of a Brazilian nobleman. So attached was the young lady to her lover that, in order to be near him, she spent the weeks between his arrest and sentence as a domestic servant. When at last he was sentenced to transportation to Cayenne, she obtained permission to marry him, so that in time she may join him as his wife in the penal colony.

On the wedding morning the bridegroom drove from the central prison at Riom, in Auvergne, to the town hall with his bride and four warders, in a carriage and pair. The bride was soberly attired in black, and carried a bunch of violets. The ceremony was performed by the deputy-mayor, with a few local officials and municipal councilors as spectators, and at its conclusion the strange wedding party drove back to the prison. The bride had provided some dainties and a small wedding-cake for the occasion, but the governor of the prison was obdurate, and the utmost concession he would make was to allow the bridegroom to eat a slice of the cake. The bride at once returned to domestic service.

But the continent has no monopoly of prison marriages, as was proved a short time ago in Scotland. A plowman was arrested within half an hour of the time fixed for his wedding, on a charge of theft, of which, it is only just to say, he denied all knowledge. On learning the news the unhappy bride was distracted with grief, and called at the police office to beg that the marriage ceremony might be performed in one of the cells. The request was refused; but during the evening the accused was liberated on bail, and the couple immediately proceeded to the manse, where the marriage knot was tied.

An interesting case of proposal in prison was reported from Paris on the first day of this year. A young Parisian dressmaker, who had been abandoned by her lover under cruel circumstances, was charged with throwing vitriol at him. The circumstances of the case aroused wide sympathy, and led to an immediate offer of marriage.

The offer was accepted; but the marriage thus strangely brought about cannot take place until the young dressmaker has served her sentence of 12 months' imprisonment.

PLENTY OF PROOF.

From People You Know—From Plainfield Citizens.

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced in the face of evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Plainfield, of people who can be seen at any time. Read the following case of it:

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 732 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or overexerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

PARIS FASHIONS.

Dainty Linen Walking Costumes—Orange a Smart Color For Trimmings.

In Paris the little morning costume of linen is very popular. It is made walking length, of course, and a very favorite method is to treat it with strappings of a darker shade, the smartest color at present being a tawny orange of an oriental richness and depth. Many tan skirts of linen are trimmed with graduated bands of this, and touches of orange are seen on many gray gowns.

A good deal of blue is also worn, particularly an old fashioned shade known as watchet and an indescribable blue known as porcelain.

A smart hat seen recently was of manila straw rolled up on one side and trimmed with folds of orange and brown velvet, while under the brim either side was a huge shaded orange rose, with a sheaf of brown wheat. This was worn with a gown of ecru embroidered muslin having a belt of Paisley silk—that is, silk figured in the Paisley shawl patternings.

A pretty gown of india mull seen recently had its skirt made in three tiers or flounces, the upper one headed by tiny gauged tucks. Each flounce was edged with tiny accordion plaited frills of white mull, with pink stitching. The bodice was treated in much the same fashion, and where flimsy material is concerned the three tiered skirt is always the most advisable model.

Sampler trimmings are very smart, and some of these worked on canvas wash beautifully, so that they can be used for linen dresses.

The picture shows a dotted muslin dress having a cape effect of English embroidery edged with ruching. The skirt has a double flounce.

Fullness a Necessary Feature of Dress—New Evening Chemises.

A good many blouses are pouched both back and front, and they have a good deal of fullness. In fact, anything skimped is quite out of date as far as dress is concerned. The idea in some cases seems to be to get as much material as possible into the waist and skirt. The belts worn with these full waists are quite narrow in front, while they are wide in the back. Those who have slender figures can wear the belt of one width all the way around, and this is generally seen with the waist bloused both back and front. Suede and glazed leather belts are very popular, and they come in all the up to date tints.

The most up to date evening chemises are made without armholes, but simply two buttonholes, one back and the other front, through which a ribbon is run and tied in a bow. These chemises are also made with one or two flounces, to form an underskirt, thus reducing the number of garments which have to be worn. Sometimes these ribbon shoulder straps are removed when the toilet is complete, and thus there are no falling shoulder straps or turned down ones to spoil the costume.

The picture shows a white voile tailor made trimmed with fagoting and heavy lace. A band of scarlet silk holds the coat together in front and gives a smart touch.

CHAPTER VI.

The following nights were sleepless ones for Rossiter Kane. The Cedars was full of guests, assembled for the house-warming and the ball. Scarcely a minute could he call his own. It was only after the last bedroom candlestick had vanished from the hall table, and the final brandy-and-soda "peg" had been quaffed in the billiard room, that he might deem himself at liberty to indulge his thoughts. Then, in the silence and seclusion of his own chamber, he could face his trouble, and realize that his fondest hopes were smashed beyond repair.

Retribution in scarlet letters was burned in indelible characters upon his brain, and he, the envied of all his guests, was really the most miserable and the most to be pitied. Yet he presented a smiling front, and none amid all the gay and careless throng dreamed of the viper gnawing at his vitals.

"What shall I do? What can I do?" he groaned to himself in anguish. Confession, restitution, repentance—of what avail would these be?

Stella Dysart might forgive, but could she forget? Never would she take to her bosom her brother's slayer, of that he felt assured. And, to do the man justice, that innate sense of right and wrong which is implanted in the worst of our race made him recoil with horror from the consequences of such a union.

And yet he loved her—how deeply, how sincerely, he began to realize now that this bloody barrier was set between them. Could he give her up? Never!

So he began to temporize. Nothing was known. His crime could never be discovered. Richard Dysart was long ago food for the asvogels. Stella need never learn the truth unless he chose to tell it. Let her Rick be forgotten, as he would be in time, swiftly sinking out of sight in the maelstrom of life, merely another name added to the long roll of the missing.

Tossed and torn by such conflicting agonies of thought, the lurid hours went by for Rossiter Kane until it wanted but two days to the climax of the festivities. He had seen Stella but once since his declaration, and then she was not alone, but he knew that she would think it strange if he did not call.

Then arose another dilemma. She would be sure to ask him about Richard's picture, and what could he say? His soul shrank from the thought of more deceit; he had meant that their page of life should be henceforth white and unsullied by falsehood or guile.

So he sparred for time, and wrote her daily, urging his duties as host in excuse for not being where his heart was, and telling her also that, in fulfillment of his promise, he was going to London for a few hours to set on foot inquiries about her brother.

Not that he expected any news—the dead do not come back—but the man's death might possibly have been bruited at the Cape, in which case it would be well for him to know the precise nature of the reports. Then, too, he wanted to be able to say truthfully that he had actually set the sleuths at work.

Arrived in the city, he went first of all to Lloyds, where he spent a morning poring over the files of all the South African papers. Not a syllable, not a line, could he find bearing upon the disappearance of Richard Dysart.

One solitary item alone rewarded his close and anxious scrutiny, and that reported the locating of a new diamond field on the Mooi river.

"Ah," he said to himself, "then it has leaked out!" He knew the hateful spot only too well.

Then he visited a well-known private inquiry office in a street off the Strand, where he left minute instructions for prosecuting the search at the Cape.

"Spare no expense; use the cable freely send your best detectives; find the young man, alive or dead, and send me the smallest item of news!"

Such a commission, from a man of such social and commercial prominence, was safe to be worked up quickly and thoroughly. Kane felt that he ran no risk in thus displaying his personal interest in what was, after all, a very natural manner.

The mere act of being busy, even on this partially fictitious errand, served to steady his nerves, and he returned to The Cedars fortified for his interview with his affianced. With a sort of blind defiance of fate he determined to let matters drift for a few days.

Stella he saw on the morning after his return, and was lavishly rewarded for his quick compliance with her maiden request.

"How good and thoughtful you are!" she exclaimed, the love-light in her eyes. "If you were one of us—if you were Rick's own brother—you could not do more."

The bitter-sweet of her praises moved and thrilled him more deeply than he would have believed possible one short year ago, and again his conscience smote him. But he was none the less alert to seize the opening thus afforded him.

"Remember you have yourself given me the best of all rights to help you," he murmured, "and when you give me your sweet self I shall be a brother to Rick and something nearer and dearer to you."

She suffered his caress with an altogether happy abandon. Then suddenly:

"Marcia was here yesterday," she said. "She tells me Rick's photograph revealed nothing—suggested no one to you?"

He shook his head mutely, and inwardly thanked his stars that the form of the question he had been dreading made a verbal lie unnecessary.

"Rest assured," he said aloud, "that if your brother is anywhere on God's footstool we shall hear of him. These temporary disappearances are quite common in all the new lands. A man hears of a new diamond field or a new gold reef, or goes elephant hunting for ivory up-country, and only his immediate companions could tell you his exact whereabouts. Suddenly he reappears, sound as a dollar and rich as Croesus. Total disappearances are very rare occurrances, I assure you. Rick may return to civilization any day and laugh at us all for worrying about him."

She hung upon his words with parted lips and wide-open eyes.

"You give me new courage!" she exclaimed resolutely. "Until we hear the worst I shall believe and hope that all will turn out as you say."

Kane breathed freely once more. Another dangerous cape was weathered, and the episode of the photograph might be regarded as closed. Stella's confidence in him was supreme. A new hope shone in her eyes—or was it the reflex light of her own newly found happiness?

Now, it had been Kane's original intention to make the ball the occasion for announcing to society his betrothal to Miss Dysart, and at the same time to introduce her as the future mistress of The Cedars. But Stella's plea for delay frustrated this—and fortunately so in view of Kane's terrible discovery.

Nevertheless, he looked forward to receiving her in his own house, before all his guests, much as a debutante anticipates her coming out. But destiny was about to hurl another thunderbolt at his head.

Upon the morning of the eventful day a mounted groom galloped up to The Cedars requesting to see Kane in person. Being shown into the library, where the master happened to be alone, he delivered a letter marked "Urgent" underscored three times, addressed in Stella's hand, saying:

"Miss Dysart requests an immediate answer, if you please, sir."

With nervous forebodings he broke the seal, but the news it contained far outran his fears, and might have staggered a stronger mind than his. In his excitement he hardly noticed the affectionate beginning, which at another time would have filled him with delight.

"My Dearest Rossiter: Rejoice with us—my brother Richard has returned alive and well. He arrived in England two days ago, and reached us late last night. We were completely taken by surprise, as you may imagine. Richard has gone to Gatewood; can you guess why? Next to myself, of course, Marcia will be to-day the happiest woman in England. I am so glad, I can scarcely write coherently or legibly—but I know you will understand. Sir Arthur and he have made up their quarrel.

"Now, I have a favor to ask: May I—or we—bring Richard with us this evening? He has promised to come if you will ask him, although, as he says, he is 'not very fit.' But I do so want you to meet and be friends. You remember what you said the other day. I can imagine there will be plenty of things for you both to talk about.

"Send me a line to say 'Yes,' and believe me,

"Ever yours affectionately,
"STELLA.

"P. S.—I forgot to say that Rick says he is a very rich man, and he has shaved off that horrid beard.—S."

The presence of the man-servant alone restrained Kane from some insane expression of emotion.

Richard Dysart alive and in England! Then he had not killed him, after all! The thought brought with it at first a happy revulsion of feeling. He was not a murderer!

But Dysart was none the less his victim, and he none the less a would-be assassin and an actual robber. Why, the whole fabric of his fortune rested on those stolen diamonds! These thoughts opened up such a horrid vista of new troubles and perplexities that he shrank from them in terror. Yet so quickly and mechanically does the human brain work, that scarcely a minute had elapsed since the perusal of Stella's note before he had pulled himself together and drew paper and pen towards him to indite his reply. He even managed to say to the man, a decent, middle-aged fellow:

"There must have been great times at Denecroft last night?"

"Never see such goings on, sir, since Sir Arthur came of age," was the reply. "Master Richard, he walks in as cool and ca'm as if he'd only been away a month. But he have growed! And that rich. My! My!" shaking his head as one utterly unable to do justice to the subject.

"I judge Master Richard, as you call him, is an old favorite of yours," said Kane with a smile.

The man chuckled proudly.

"It was me as taught 'im 'ow to sit a 'orse and 'old a gun and cast a fly afore 'e was twelve, sir. 'Twas a sorry day when 'e went away, and there's a many'll be happier for 'is 'ome-coming."

"I have no doubt of that." was Kane's reply. Then he set himself to answer Stella's appeal. Those few minutes' pause while old Carthew was speaking had sufficed for Kane to decide upon his answer, and this is what he wrote:

"My Dearest: Your happiness is mine, and I do rejoice with you and yours. I shall reserve my congratulations for your brother until our introduction to-night—for, of course, he will be welcome. Pray explain to him why I send no formal invitation; nevertheless, the best robe and the highest seat at the feast shall be his.

"Devotedly yours,
"ROSSITER KANE."

When Carthew was dismissed with his answer, Kane found himself alone once more, and proceeded to confront this new dilemma.

Was there ever a more grotesque and puzzling or terrifying situation! The man whom he had shot, robbed, and left for dead at the other end of the world had returned to life and was that very night coming to dance under the roof of his assailant!

Kane laughed aloud at the bitter irony of the thing. Of course, he stood to be denounced on sight before all his guests as an assassin and a thief! A pretty ending to all his social strivings after honesty and respectability!

And Stella! What would she think of it all? How she would despise him! With what scorn would she lash the man who had dared to approach her with words of love upon his lips, while her brother's blood was upon his hands and her brother's property in his pockets!

A weaker man than Kane, physically, mentally and morally, would have turned tail and fled; a coward would have ended it all with a bullet. It was characteristic of him that he did neither; no thought of taking either course entered his mind. He would see it through—not in callous bravado or because he could not realize the full weight of his impending punishment, but from a sort of heroic determination to "take his medicine" like a man, and from a half-recognized feeling that therein might consist part of his expiation.

There was but one possible loophole for escape—though even that could be only a temporary putting off of the day of reckoning. It might be that Richard Dysart had not caught a glimpse of his features on that memorable night; and if so, there was little danger of recognition or detection from any other source.

It was a bare chance, yet, the more he thought of it, the more probable it appeared.

However, a few hours would settle it one way or the other. So, with the cool fortitude which had stood him in good stead in more than one tight place hitherto, Rossiter Kane proceeded to devote himself to his guests for the rest of the day, and at dinner that night he presided with more than his accustomed polished brilliancy and urbanity.

CHAPTER VII.

Richard Dysart's first act, after setting foot on dry land at Southampton, was to dispatch two letters—one to Marcia at Gatewood, the other to Stella to Denecroft. All his boyish anger with Sir Arthur had long since evaporated, and he rightly judged that his brother would meet him half-way on his home-coming, and let by-gones be by-gones. He would arrive almost as soon as the letters.

Ninety minutes later he was in the metropolis via the steamer train, and after breakfast at his old club, the Raglan, he made sundry visits to the tailor, the haberdasher and his bankers, and then drove to the identical private detective agency in Wellington street which Rossiter Kane had visited only a few hours before.

If the case had gone to Scotland Yard he might—we do not say he would, but he might—have learned that there was a sort of polite hue-and-cry out after himself. But the private-inquiry people do not do business that way; they have for one of their mottoes, "Let not your right hand know what your left hand is doing," and then proceed to collect backsheesh from both. Which is all in the way of business.

Being a straightforward sort of fellow, Richard wrote his name on a sheet of paper, intimated that he would like to see the manager in person, and was forthwith shown into the sanctum of the great man, when the following colloquy ensued:

"What can we do for you, Mr.—er—Dysart?" inquired the manager, as though he had not heard the name of his visitor in that very room considerably less than a week previously.

"I want you to undertake a little inquiry for me," was the reply.

"Connected with any particular person?"

"No one that I can name to you now—that is for you to discover."

"Quite sufficiently vague," was the retort, "but if you will give me your instructions we will endeavor to carry out your wishes."

"I wish to find out whether there has suddenly appeared in London—or in Europe, for that matter—within the last year any man of great wealth hailing from South Africa, and whether that person has been in any way connected with the diamond fields, or has marketed any considerable quantity of stones. That's it, I think, in a nutshell."

"The instructions are explicit enough, Mr. Dysart," said the manager, "but I may be allowed to point out that there are probably a dozen men in London or in Amsterdam at this moment who would come under your classification."

"Very good," said Richard, coolly, "and the person I want will be one of the dozen. If it lies within your province, send me a description of the doings of each."

"Very good, sir. Anything more?"

Campaign Against Savages in German South Africa Entrusted to Gen. von Trotha.

Berlin (Germany) Special.

Lieut. Gen. von Trotha, commander of the Sixteenth infantry division of the German army, has just sailed for German South Africa to take charge of the campaign against the kaiser's rebellious subjects—the Hereros. These warlike natives, 50,000 strong, have provided the kaiser's crack army with the toughest military nut it has been called upon to crack since the war with France, and after six months of blundering by leaders of lower rank the emperor decided to send an officer from the general staff to the scene of action. Gen. von Trotha, who enjoys a fine reputation as an organizer and tactician, is taking with him reenforcements of 1,500 men and horses, and he will assume the active command of the colonial army late in June.

LIEUT. GEN. VON TROTHA.
(Commander of the Imperial German Troops in South Africa.)

The new commander-in-chief is 56 years old. From 1894 to 1897 he commanded the kaiser's colonial forces in East Africa, and in 1900 he accompanied Count von Waldersee to China with the rank of major general.

Problems that will tax Gen. von Trotha's abilities to the fullest await him in West Africa. The Hereros have proved a crafty and stubborn foe. In the serious engagements that have so far taken place they have succeeded in defeating the kaiser's troops signally. Their resistance has, indeed, become so stanch that the Germans have practically declared a truce, pending the arrival of reenforcements from home. Armed with the Mauser rifles and ammunition supplied to them by German settlers in peaceful days, the Hereros have shown that they are strategists as well. On two occasions they have decisively outwitted their crack antagonists, killing and wounding more than 100 officers and men. There is considerable mystery about the result of one fight, and the whereabouts of a machine gun, with which the natives are believed to have got away. The Hereros, like the Boers, are all mounted, understand the art of fighting behind cover, and seem to have mapped out a comprehensive guerrilla campaign.

It Will Be Located in Chicago and Become a Center of Cosmopolitan Activity.

Chicago Special.

Although one of the youngest organizations of its kind in the city, the West End Woman's Club has the distinction of being the first in Chicago to erect a building for its own use. The club has recently broken ground for the construction of a beautiful home to be erected on the northeast corner of Ashland boulevard and West Monroe street, 47x153 feet. The building when completed will cost about $20,000.

It will be of three floors, in old colonial style, with red bricks laid in black mortar with trimmings of white stone and green blinds. The basement floor will contain steward's apartments, a gentlemen's lounging room, a dining room with a seating capacity of 400, and cloak, toilet and check rooms. The first floor will contain a large assembly room with seating capacity for 500. At the end of the room will be a stage, perfect in acoustics. There will also be a reception room, office, large parlor, check room and service rooms on this floor. The second floor has four large committee rooms, as well as a large service room. The interior is to be in the colonial finish and woodwor kin white enamel.

The membership of the club is over 300 and the work includes philanthropic, educational and municipal study. The club has at present over $10,000 in the treasury and it is expected that the full amount will be raised before the completion of the building.

MENACED BY RUSSIA.

WHAT WAR IN FAR EAST MEANS TO SCANDINAVIA.

Sweden and Norway Must Be Prepared for Muscovite Invasion—Some Kind Words for the Brave Japs.

Stockholm (Sweden) Special.

No matter how the present Russo-Japanese war may end, the Scandinavian countries must be prepared for all possible eventualities. This is the editorial counsel of Varia, the illustrated monthly of Stockholm. Swedes and Norwegians have been much exercised over the oppression of Finland. Says the Varia, in commenting on the increase in the term of military service in Sweden:

"Knowing only too well the unappeasable land-hunger of the Muscovite, the Swedish government has arranged for extensive mobilization, in order to assure the readiness of the army. One of the most important points, from a strategic view, is occupied by the Island of Gothland, situated in the midst of the Baltic, rightly known as 'the eye of the Baltic.' This island is now heavily fortified and garrisoned." Sweden must take still further measures to insure her safety, says this magazine, which is pleased that the harbors of Stockholm and other Swedish cities have been mined and garrisoned.

The Scandinavian press in general fears to give utterance to any convictions that might incur the hostility of Russia, but the Varia, in a rather unusual article, speaks out boldly about the war in the far east. The interests and sympathies of the European nations, it says, are more evenly divided than the rest of the world imagines.

"Those powers that desire the advance of culture, liberty and progress, as England (and America), sympathize with Japan, while those nations that stand for militarism, despotism and the repression of the rights and privileges of the masses—that is to say, the powers that still oppress and hinder the progress of liberty and enlightenment in the nations of Europe—are hoping for the success of Russia."

In the latter class, says the Varia, stands Prussia, whose "old-time friendship for Russia is not diverted, notwithstanding the latter's alliance with France." It continues: "Did not the German emperor send the autocrat of all the Russias a helmet as a token of encouragement, while his government shows an admirable partisan zeal in preventing the escape of Russian subjects from the rigors of deportation to Siberia or other hopeless confinement in Russian prisons?" Japan's success has been a most disagreeable surprise to Europe, the Swedish magazine declares.

"We have been long accustomed to regard foreign peoples with a sense of distinct superiority, and the easy victories that have been won over Asiatic races, such as the Chinese, have not served to lessen our contempt for their prowess. But now we are contemplating a development of which no European dreamed. . .

"What the present emperor of Japan, Mutsuhito, together with his counselors, has performed seems almost to surpass everything that one has been accustomed to admire in the greatest rulers and statesmen of the world. It serves to elevate him immeasurably above rulers of the stamp of Czar Peter I., surnamed the Great, who could not, with all his tyranny, elevate his people above that half-barbaric state in which it still remains even to this day."

Whether Japan wins or not, says this magazine, she has demonstrated her right to be classed as a world-power. "If, by the shortsightedness of the European powers, Japan should once more be robbed of the material fruits of her victory, her energetic and progressive people will in any event have established their position, and right to occupy a prominent place among civilized nations."

Jersey Heifer Went Fishing.

Peter Sutphen, a farmer living between New Brunswick, N. J., and Middleburgh, lost a heifer which had learned to stand in a brook and snap up the little fish which approached. He asked the police to help him find the heifer. They suggested that he look along the river, as she might have gone fishing. A few hours later Sutphen telephoned the police, thanking them for their suggestion and stating that he had found his pet knee deep in the Raritan river hunting for fish.

Have No Use of Their Feet.

Tribes of men with feet almost useless have been discovered in New Guinea. They live in the midst of lakes, moving about on little canoes, and possessing a few cabins built on wood piles. Their feet are so undeveloped as to be of little service for walking.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Henriques, formerly short stop for Alis, is now playing third base for Madison A. A.

Ramsay, of High Bridge, is pitching fine ball for Summit A. A. In a recent contest with Madison he allowed but four hits.

One of the most active members of the Alis team is Dietrich in centre field. He is a fast runner and is in the game from start to finish.

Courtney, the new third baseman for Alis, handles himself like an infielder, covering lots of ground. At the bat he seldom fails in hitting the ball.

During the contest on Saturday with the New York Colored Giants, Captain Smith, of Alis, continually coached his team, and he never lost a point.

In style of play, Cusick, covering second base, is not unlike Walton at short. Both are on the jump and they can take care of all the line drives or hot grounders that come their way.

Among those witnessing the Plainfield-Colored Giants contest on Saturday was "Nat" Strong, manager of the Murray Hills. He had no game on for that day and came here to watch Courtney, Cusick, Dietrich and Smith play.

Several local fans witnessed the New York American-Detroit contest at Newark on Sunday. "Matty" McIntyre, a local favorite, who is with Detroit, and who has been playing great ball, did not make a good showing before his many friends.

Richardson, who played first base for Alis last season, is now occupying a similar position on the Summit A. A., team, and a week ago he won the contest for his team against Madison A. A., by making a pretty drive and scoring three runs. In that inning he sustained an injury to his knee that will detain him at home several weeks.

Badgley left the Alis team on Saturday and for the rest of the season he will pitch for the Washington, Warren county, team. That he was unjustly criticised here there is no doubt, for he is a good twirler. There were some things about his work that Manager Johnston did not fancy. He was not released, however, but quit himself.

Now that Manager Johnston has collected an aggregation of ball players that are capable of putting up a fine article, let everyone in town support the team. Mr. Johnston says that he will not change his team again this season, that if the present team cannot play to satisfy the ball cranks he does not think it will be possible to please them.

The question of an umpire for the Plainfield-Westfield series of baseball contests is not wholly settled, but it is quite likely that Merity will officiate on Crescent Oval and the Westfield umpire at Westfield. Manager Johnston does not favor the double system and Manager Denman is said to be of the same opinion. It will probably not be necessary to have two umpires anyway as both teams are going to play clean ball, the kind above suspicion.

Trouble in Alis camp. More good things gone wrong. They are world beaters until beaten, then cubs. Lauder, Quinby, Roberts, Bradley and a host of others gone, now it is rumored that McGoey, Hickman, Ganven and Patience are to join the great throng of has beens. Al. Farmer next"—Westfield Standard.

Alis is not alone. Westfield has made just a few changes this year. Among the players who have been on Manager Denman's payroll and dropped are Stallings, Hickman, Radford, Beck, Burch, Supple, Goldberg, Robertson, while McLane, O'Brien and Duff were secured to pad the team on special occasions and as for Waller he left and was again taken into the fold later.

David Honeyman, professional at the Westfield Golf Club, has resigned to accept a similar position with the Arsdale Golf Club, of East Orange.

FAMILY QUARREL IN COURT

PARENTS BATTLING OVER CHILD'S FIGHT GET IN TROUBLE.

Nicolo Vasteno will be plaintiff and Antonio Ceree will be defendant in an assault and battery case before Justice Hand this evening and this is how it all happened:

John Vasteno, Nicolo's son, and Jimmie Ceree, three years old, were playing about a pond near Terril road when Johnnie became facetious and threw little Jimmie in the water. He resented taking a bath and setting up a "boo-boo" rushed home to his mother. Mrs. Ceree rushed over to the Vasteno domicile and told Mrs. Vasteno she and her children didn't know a whole lot, or words to that effect. This naturally was resented by Mrs. Vasteno and Mrs. Ceree was slapped in the face.

The indignant woman hurried home for re-enforcements and found her husband half through shaving. When the head of the house heard how his better two-thirds had been treated he rushed out with the lather still on his face and his razor in his hand and challenged Vasteno to mortal combat. The lathered face and flourishing razor terrified Vasteno for a few seconds but he finally plucked up courage and went out to uphold his and his wife's and their son's honor.

What followed will be told in Hand's court this evening, providing enough interpreters can be induced to leave off celebrating the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

GREAT BILL AT RIVERSIDE

VAUDEVILLE OFFERING AT TROLLEY PARK AN EXCELLENT ONE.

People who rode over to Riverside Park last week to witness the big vaudeville offering report that it was the best bill ever presented at the Park. The new management has decided to put forward such strong bills at the park for the balance of the summer that people cannot stay away from the park. The result has been great crowds.

The bill this week is promised to be better even than the one last week. A glance at the new advertisement of the park in today's Press will show a list of vaudeville performers who are known in all the leading vaudeville houses of the country. Pauline Moran and her lively picks, are the life of any show. Sherman and De Forest are clever entertainers. William Cahill is a well-known Irish comedian and song writer. He is the author of "The Mick Who Threw the Brick."

The park is an attractive place. There is dancing every evening except Sunday, from 8 to 11:30 o'clock. The grounds are open all day free to the public. Matinees are given every afternoon and are popular with women and children.

WOOD PAVE ORDINANCE TO BE INTRODUCED ANEW

Common Council to Pass Measure on First and Second Reading Again.

SOME FAVOR BRICK

BUT MAJORITY OF COUNCIL ARE READY TO FOLLOW MR. GAVETT'S ADVICE.

President Tolles Believes That Original Vote Was Legal—Work Likely to be Completed in the Fall.

It now seems an assured fact that the 5 to 4 vote taken at a recent meeting of the Common Council in the matter of providing wooden pavement for Watchung avenue, between North avenue and Second street, will not stand legally and that a new ordinance will be introduced and another vote taken. The last vote was 5 to 4 in favor of the pavement mentioned, but the city charter specifies that six votes must be recorded in favor to insure the adoption of an ordinance.

President Tolles, of the Council, is of the opinion that the 5 to 4 should stand. He argues that if there were six members present at a meeting it would be necessary to secure a unanimous vote to pass an ordinance, according to those who hold that the other vote was illegal. However, rather than cause any trouble, the Council appears to be perfectly willing to have a new ordinance introduced and another vote taken.

There are still many, if not a majority of those who have expressed opinions, that the brick pavement is preferable to wood. They have in mind the wooden pavement laid in Park avenue many years ago and which was not a success. It is hard to convince these persons that the present pavement, the kind proposed for Watchung avenue, is a great improvement over the old style. In fact, this improved pavement is to be laid on the Williamsburg (N. Y.) bridge and is now in use in a number of streets in New York and other large cities throughout the country.

Street Commissioner Gavett has made a special study of the proposed pavement and in his own mind he seems satisfied that it would be preferable to other pavements for Watchung avenue. The kind of wood block used, the method of preparing it and the manner of laying the same is such as to produce the greatest possible wear with the least possible objection.

Aside from the fact that brick pavement is known to be in favor among many private citizens, there are some of the Councilmen who favor it and it is possible that the wooden pavement may not be accepted. The Councilmen say that if the people want brick they are willing to vote for it. They are desirous of putting down the kind of pavement that will give the best satisfaction and they have no pet schemes to follow.

It is likely that a new ordinance will be introduced at the August meeting of the Council and taking the ordinary course, it would be possible to commence laying the pavement the last of August or first of September. The actual work would require but a few weeks and could easily be done before cold weather and frost arrives. This will probably be the course adopted as the Council is anxious to have some style of permanent pavement laid on Watchung avenue before winter arrives.

BAN ON SUNDAY BASEBALL

NO MORE GAMES TO BE PLAYED AT RIVERSIDE PARK ON THAT DAY.

The Riverside Park authorities have placed the ban on Sunday ball playing within its confines. It has been the custom since the pleasure resort was opened to allow opposing teams to meet on the diamond in the place Sunday afternoons but sentiment has been against the plan all along and the officials decided to accede to the wishes of the quiet-loving public.

Teams which had games arranged for succeeding Sundays have been notified that they will not be allowed the grounds and that they must make other arrangements.

—The Middlesex and Somerset Traction Company Employes Benevolent Association will hold its annual picnic at Riverside Park on Tuesday, August 2.

VAN ORDEN'S POCKET PICKED

BOROUGHITE LOST $15 WHILE AT ITALIAN CELEBRATION LAST NIGHT.

The Italian fireworks celebration at Concert Park last evening cost Daniel B. VanOrden $15, the money being taken from his pocket while in the crowd watching the display. VanOrden lives on Stony Brook place in the borough and last night went to the Park with his wife to see the celebration.

After having spent some time near the band stand listening to the selections, VanOrden took his wife to the soda stand on the edge of the grounds. After paying for this refreshment, VanOrden replaced his coin purse in his pocket, and after making sure that his large purse, which contained $15 in bills, was safe, started in with the throng which was moving toward the place where the fireworks were being displayed, in order to witness the "Santiago" set piece. That was the last he ever saw of the pocketbook or its contents. While moving through the dense crowd holding his wife by the arm, VanOrden says he felt numerous people jostle him, some, it seemed to him, intentionally.

Having gained the desired position for witnessing the display, VanOrden felt for the pocket book and found it missing. It had been in the right hand pocket of his trousers, where he had put it for special safety, and, on account of its size, was a noticeable bulk. Realizing the fruitlessness of action by the police in such a dense throng, VanOrden made no report of the matter.

ALIS SHOULD WIN MATCH

MANAGER JOHNSTON PREPARING FOR WESTFIELD'S DEFEAT ON SATURDAY.

The fans are now assured of the team that will represent Alis on the diamond Saturday against Westfield. After last Saturday's contest Manager Johnston announced that he would not change his team again this season, barring accident or some unforseen cause. The only possible change for Saturday will be a pitcher. That Manager Denman will strengthen his battery goes without saying and the locals will be prepared. Close observers of baseball feel sure that Alis will win this contest with Westfield, comparing man with man.

At any rate, Johnston's aggregation will give the down-the-line boys a great run for their money and he, as well as the team feel confident of victory. Since the two teams have played, both organizations have had their bumps, Westfield having undergone many changes and having lost several contests. The same is true of Alis. Both teams have reorganized and claims are put forth that each are stronger than ever. The disputed contest of June 11, while it will always be remembered by the cranks in both towns, is to have no direct bearing on the coming series. To be sure Westfield gets the decision, but it is a whole lot of empty glory.

MEAT NOT SCARCE HERE

FALLING OFF IN TRADE, BECAUSE OF PRICES, BUT SUPPLY AMPLE.

Despite the fact that there has been few shipments of beef during the past week on account of strike troubles in the West, the local beef houses are receiving meat, and there is no immediate fear of a famine along that line. There has been some increase in the prices. The proprietors of the beef houses, as well as those of the meat markets have noticed a falling off in trade, many families being frightened by the increased prices. This has had a tendency to keep the beef houses fairly well stocked. Those who handle the meat for the city are looking for an adjustment of the strike troubles within a short time.

In the meantime, reports received from the West indicate that cattle is being killed and there is about 50 per cent. of the usual shipment. Out of this Plainfield is sure to get a fair proportion. One meat dealer said today that in his opinion the increase means but little to the consumer, and as an illustration said that in an ordinary family where an average of ten pounds of meat is used a week, the increase in cost would not amount to more than $2 a month.

—Street Commissioner Gavett today commenced the work of re-macadamizing Madison avenue, between Second and Fourth streets. The preparatory work includes the laying of a heavy and substantial bottom.

GRANDSTAND FALLS, NONE HURT SERIOUSLY

Temporary Structure at Concert Park Collapses, Throwing Occupants in a Heap.

OTHER ACCIDENTS

FIREWORKS IGNITE THE DRESSES OF TWO CHILDREN.

Exploding Bombs Too Near the Spectators—Some Narrow Escapes From Being Injured by Fireworks.

Several minor accidents occurred during the progress of the Italian celebration in Concert Park, last evening, one of which all but resulted seriously.

The latter was due to a faultily constructed grand stand, put up for the occasion. Early in the evening when not yet filled it gave several ominous creaks and the more timid hurriedly left it. Their places were quickly taken by others and a second time there was a swaying and cracking that should have left no doubt as to the danger of the structure. Even this failed to warn those on it and in the midst of the celebration the center portion collapsed entirely, throwing men, women and children to the ground in a confused heap. They were extricated quickly and it was found that no one had sustained broken limbs or severe injuries, but many had bad bruises and contusions. That the crash did not result more seriously is considered miraculous.

On several occasions rockets and sparks from the fireworks dropped into the crowd and two children had their dresses set on fire. Prompt action was all that prevented a fatality. Toward the close of the celebration, an aerial piece which buried bombs in all directions, dropped one of these deadly affairs a trifle too soon and it burst just over the heads of the people in the main grandstand. The concussion was terrific and many were dazed for several minutes. The bombs contained enough dynamite to wreck havoc in a crowd and that this one did not get nearer is extremely fortunate.

LEADERS IN GOLF CONTESTS

THOSE IN THE RACE FOR TROPHIES AT PARK AND HILLSIDE GOLF CLUBS.

George T. Rogers is now leading with six points in the weekly competition for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club, and his nearest opponent is Arthur Peck with 5½ points, while Henry C. Wells and T. U. Dudley are tie with five points each. This competition is very close and exciting this season, the relative playing strength of the players being about even.

Morgan T. Townsend has a big lead for the Park Golf Club cup, scratch event, with fourteen points, while Arthur Peck follows in second place with 8½ points and Charles A. Reed is third with seven points.

At the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club there is much rivalry in the competition for the Golf Committee cup. C. B. Morgan by winning one point on Saturday, took the lead with nine points and Willard Wadsworth holds a close second with 8½ points. Robert Abbott is in third position with 5½ points. As the play this year has shown a decided improvement among the younger members this standing is liable to change any Saturday. From present indications no one contestant is likely to have any great advantage over another, as the handicap committee is closely watching the work and pairing accordingly.

Pythian Officers at Somerville.

The Grand Lodge officers of the Knights of Pythias were in Somerville yesterday and went over the ground where the annual Field Day is to be held there on Labor Day. They expressed themselves as being delighted with the town and the prospects of an enjoyable outing. They were entertained by the committee of citizens appointed and dined at Cawley's Hotel. In the afternoon a drive through the Duke estate was enjoyed. On Labor Day there will be a grand march over Main, High and Cliff streets and Altamont place in the morning and in the afternoon prize drills on High street in front of the schoolhouse.

Miss Ethel Titsworth, of West Fifth street, has gone to Westerly, R. I.

VANNANZE OUT ON BAIL

ITALIAN WHO KNIFED HIS VICTIM RELEASED ON FILING A $500 BOND.

Carmen Vannanze, the borough Italian lodged in the Somerville jail as the assailant of Giovanni Colucci in the Hudson Lane brawl, yesterday again secured his freedom. His wife placed a cash bond of $500 with the county prosecutor and he was released for appearances before the Grand Jury on a charge of atrocious assault.

In the borough court tonight, Vannanze and Dominick Felocci, the other Italian arrested after the trouble, will be arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct. When arrested they were let out in a short time by depositing $70 with Recorder Doud to insure their appearance.

EDWARD S. SIMPSON DEAD

SON OF FORMER PLAINFIELD CLERGYMAN SUCCUMBS AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Edward S. Simpson, son of Rev. Stephen P. Simpson, formerly rector of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, but now of New York, died Monday evening in St. Luke's Hospital, New York, where he had been since June 1. The young man, who was very well known throughout this city, had always been in delicate health and had been confined to his bed for nine months before removal to the hospital. The latter place was selected for him because of the skillful treatment given by its staff of physicians but it proved of no avail. Despite the long illness he was a patient sufferer and maintained his loveliness of character to the last.

Funeral services over the remains will be held from the chapel of St Luke's Hospital tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock and interment will follow in Woodlawn cemetery.

SCORE, 15 TO 14.

Firstbrook's Team Defeats Nash's Nine on Crescent Oval Yesterday Afternoon.

Two picked teams, one captained by V. W. Nash, Jr. and the other by George E. Firstbrook, played "fast and exciting" ball on Alis Field yesterday afternoon. The final score was 15 to 14 in favor of Nash's nine.

While not the grade of baseball generally witnessed on the Alis Field, both teams made runs in bunches for a few innings with such marked regularity that up to the sixth inning the score was a tie. At this juncture of the game, the Newspapermen weakened and their opponents began to pile up the runs on their errors. Though the last innings showed a brace on the part of the Newspapermen, the lead could not be entirely overcome.

George Firstbrook's playing behind the plate was of major stamp and "Archie" Hacqeur played his customary cautious game in the right meadow. Brose did some good work in his position at center field, George Cose played first base, Jack Hall, third, and "Bill" Feiring handled the ball adeptly at short stop. Henry Blaine was signed to shoot the leather over the plate, and made a great success of his work, keeping the spare six hits well scattered. E. Laing played second base and "Man Eater" Mullen was in left field.

The battery for the other team consisted of V. W. Nash, Jr., in the box and Banks as his assistant across the plate. Nash allowed but four bits through the entire game and fielded his position well. Fred H. Huff played center field and Harry DeMezzabedi a job on third. The other players were Edward Texier at first, Percy Vail at second, Bert Conover at short, Elmer Cutting in right field and Jack Todd in left field. Walter Hetfield umpired the game.

Mrs. Howe in Newport.

Society notes at Newport, R. I., in reporting one of the largest receptions of the season given on Monday by Mrs. J. Amory Codman, of Boston, at her villa on Bellevue avenue, makes the following comment on Mrs. Howe, the mother of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue: "The venerable Mrs. Julia Ward Howe drove in from her country home, some miles away, and was one of the conspicuous guests, holding a little court of her own in one corner of the drawing room."

—M. C. Ludlam, of Bound Brook, has tendered his resignation as superintendent of the New Brunswick line of the Public Service Corporation. He will soon leave for the New England States where he will identify himself with another trolley company. James Butler will succeed Mr. Ludlam.

J. B. DUKE'S ESTATE MANAGED BY A WOMAN

Magnificent Country Place, Near Somerville, Under the Supervision of Miss Smith.

GETS $5,000 A YEAR

FROM MILL GIRL TO SUPERINTENDENT OF 400 SERVANTS.

Beautiful Suburban Property Covers 2,500 Acres and She is Absolute Boss—He Call His Home a "Club."

From a mill girl to the manager of property valued at millions of dollars. From an employe at the call of the factory whistle to the virtual boss of a force of 400 servants on the largest "landscape farm" in the United States. From wages at the loom, which averages $40 a month under the most favorable conditions, to a salary of $5,000 a year and Christmas gifts of blocks of profitable stock. From a modest frame cottage to a granite palace, with servants at her command. And all within ten years.

This, in a nutshell, is the story of the meteoric career of Margaret Smith—or Maggie Smith, as she signs her name to checks for thousands of dollars every week—who runs James B. Duke's great farm near Somerville. Although the Tobacco King's suburban property covers 2,500 acres and nearly $2,000,000 already has been spent in beautifying it, he persists in calling it his "farm." He raises nothing there but sufficient hay and vegetables to meet the needs of his horses and servants, and rare flowers and shrubs to gratify his own sense of the beautiful; but he invites you to put in a week-end at his "farm."

Maggie Smith is the absolute manager of it. Mr. Duke has so much confidence in her that he authorizes her to draw all the checks for vast expenditures on the estate in her own name. All he cares to see is the balance sheet every month or so. Ask Miss Smith how she accomplished all this, and her terse reply is:

"By hard work and a will to succeed."

Maggie Smith would not be deceived by flattery that told her she had achieved the usual success that falls to the lot of a beautiful woman who knows her power. Miss Smith is not beautiful. She is an excellent type of the shrewd, observant American working girl, who sees all that is going on around her and understands how to rate it at its exact value.

She is somewhat short in stature and somewhat delicate in appearance. By dressing her hair in the prevailing pompadour fashion, she appears taller than she is. Her dress is simple—a black skirt and white pique waist with a bow of bright colored ribbon at the throat. It is quite in contrast with the magnificence of her office surroundings, which make even the comfortable quarters of Katharine Harrison, the Standard Oil kings' Cerberus in the Bowling Green fortress, look commonplace.

In 1892, ten years before Mr. Duke thought of building this garden spot in the heart of Somerset County, N. J., the Smith family moved from Easton, Pa., to Raritan, which is close to the Duke farm. There was quite a family of girls. They all worked in the silk mill. Maggie was not satisfied to remain a weaver at the loom. She went to Newark and studied accounts and bookkeeping. She arranged so that her sister Kate went to a cooking school and received instruction in the details of housekeeping. Neither of them knew anything about James B. Duke at that time or of the immense fortune he had raised from tobacco smoke. Just how Mr. Duke and the Smith girls "got together" it is difficult to ascertain. But the girls are there on the farm—Maggie as manager and Kate as housekeeper, under her sister's direction, of one of the finest bachelor establishments in this country. Miss MacWilliams, a cousin, assists Kate in the management of the house.

It is another fad of Mr. Duke's not to call his magnificent home a "house." He calls it "the club." But it is a club of one, for Mr. Duke is the only member. Although a Southerner, he has no colored servants around.

When he wishes to treat his guests to a mint julep a trim maid brings in the ingredients and Mr. Duke prepares the compound in a manner that gives himself and everybody concerned supreme satisfaction. Miss Maggie

POLITICS AND PROSPERITY

L. V. F. RANDOLPH THINKS THAT CROPS HAVE MORE TO DO WITH GOOD TIMES.

Under the caption, "What has politics to do with prosperity," the New York Sunday Herald in its last issue, printed the opinions of the leading metropolitan financiers. Among those quoted is Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, of this city, who is president of the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange. In detail he spoke as follows:

"America has not made history in spasms. The resources of the United States are so broad and its activities are so continuous as not to be seriously affected by any event except one of towering importance, such, for example, as was the Civil War of 1861-1865. In the main political agitations have had but limited influence on American prosperity. It is true that when the tariff was seriously in danger of being permanently reduced industries were affected by it.

"The important thing with us now lies not with politics but with crops. Winter wheat is turning out better than was expected. If the promise of spring wheat and corn and cotton holds good we shall be a happy people. Our prosperity will in that case go on for this year and next at least. We are a country at peace. We have no foreign complications or dangers. We are not supporting an extravagant military establishment. Our people are intelligent, capable, purposeful. All this tends toward and in fact insures prosperity if Providence blesses us with good crops. Other industries wa't only on crops."

BETTING ON BALL GAMES

MANY POOLS MADE ON CONTESTS IN THIS CITY EACH WEEK.

An exciting feature of the local baseball contests here this season is the system of pools made up each week by the fans. These pools are made on hits, the person holding the name of the player making the most number, wins the stake. The names of the players are written separately on slips of paper and are then drawn by those wishing to join the pool. Some of them cost from ten cents to $1, scarcely ever exceeding the latter amount.

In many instances persons in the various pool care little or nothing as to the winner of the contest so long as the player they have picked makes the greatest number of hits. There are several persons who have failed to make anything thus far, while on several occasions others have won the pool two or three times, making from $10 to $20, and some times less.

HURT IN RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

MRS. H. A. WOODRUFF, THROWN FROM CARRIAGE, SLIGHTLY INJURED.

Mrs. Hiram A. Woodruff, of Westervelt avenue, is confined to her home suffering severely with nervous prostration and slight injuries received in a runaway accident.

She was driving along Somerset street yesterday afternoon when at the corner of Fairview avenue her horse became frightened and turned into the latter thoroughfare at a high rate of speed. Before she could control it, the animal was running madly and at the corner of Watchung avenue the carriage was overturned.

Mrs. Woodruff was thrown out and received several minor hurts but fortunately escaped entanglement in the vehicle. She was taken home and Dr. Pittis furnished immediate medical attendance. The shock placed her in a high nervous state and she is now under the care of the family physician, Dr. Long.

The runaway was caught before it had injured itself or demolished the rig.

"LARRY" AT HOTEL DODD.

In Police Court Mayor Gives Him Twenty Days Board in Jail.

Larry Wallace, who does a weekly turn at police headquarters, will be Warden Dodd's guest for twenty days. He was in a fighting mood yesterday noon and after vanquishing several cronies he measured strength with Patrolman Higgins. Larry went "down and out" and when arraigned before Mayor Jenkins this morning, was asked to pay $10 or go to Elizabeth. He was financially embarassed and his friends were in no condition to advance a loan.

6,000 PEOPLE ATTEND ITALIAN CELEBRATION

Pyrotechnic Display the Attractive Feature, $1,000 Worth Set Off.

BAND GIVES CONCERT

ITALIAN MUSICIANS RENDER A SPLENDID PROGRAMME.

Set Pieces of Fantastic Design and Big Bombs Among the Fireworks Pleasing to the Crowd—Mt. Carmel Society in Charge.

The two days' celebration of the Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel came to a climax last night in a burst of fireworks at Concert Park that proved to be the feature of the observance. Fully 6,000 persons crowded the grandstands and enclosure to within a few feet of the uprights holding the set pieces. The band was in attendance and rendered a pleasing programme, but it was not enjoyed fully as well as it should have been owing to drawn out intermissions and the long delay in commencing the pyrotechnic display. It was almost 10 o'clock before the first bombs were fired and the finish did not come until 11:15, making a tiresome wait for mothers and children.

Practically $1,000 had been spent for the fireworks and the display was one of the best seen locally for many years. There were a dozen set pieces of fantastic designs and scores of bombs and aerial effects that kept the heavens reverberating with sound and blazing with light. The most spectacular piece of the lot was "The battle of Santiago" in which bombs and colored balls were hurled into the air with a deafening cannonade effect, from different directions, and at the close the American flag burst out in colors. It was greeted with prolonged applause and the band saluted it with national airs. A picture of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, surrounded by a framework of colored fire, aroused the Italian enthusiasm and brought the musicians to their feet to more effectively render an appropriate religious selection.

The Carabinieri band was in charge of Prof. S. Nardiello and the programme announced for the evening was as follows: March, "Sinfonica," Mancini; overture, "Cleveland," traviata, Verdi; "Mezzonnatte," opus, Carlini; "The Holy City," Adams; obligato for baritone and trombone, Vanucci; "Nabbucodonosor," Verdi.

The Mount Carmel Society, which arranged and had charge of the celebration, is fully pleased with the success of the affair, both from an entertainment and financial view. Last year Salvadore Velard, president of the society, individually sustained a $300 loss but through the admission fees last night and contributions made by business men and others, the cost of this celebration can easily be met. A great deal of credit of due Velard, who has been a Plainfieider for many years, because of his efforts to have a local celebration open to the outside public and from the fact that he assumed the entire financial risk.

PAT KEARNS A BANKRUPT

"WHITE WINGS" PLEADS LACK OF FUNDS AND GOES TO JAIL.

Patrick Kearns, a leading member of the city street cleaning department, filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy this morning. His straitened financial condition was made known when Mayor Jenkins asked him to pay a $5 fine because he had so far forgotten himself yesterday, to overestimate his drink capacity and get "barrelled," "jagged" and "bunned" as the arresting officer expressed it at various times.

"Five dollars," said Pat in amazement, "Your Honor, I haven't five cents to me name, nothing to raise it on or no credit."

There was nothing else for the court to do but equal matters up in days in jail and so the well-known "white wings" will rusticate for ten days.

Fig Bananas.

Alex Lusardi, the West Front street fruiterer, received yesterday a consignment of Spanish fig-picked bananas, the first that has ever come into Plainfield. The bananas are very small and have a distinct fig taste that makes them greatly sought after. They are quite rare and it is seldom that they are sent outside of New York.

AMUSEMENTS.

The change from the sultry shops and hot streets, to the cool and restful atmosphere of Keith's home like playhouse on Union Square is when taken in connection with the best vaudeville entertainment, that money can procure, which is going on, one of the many reasons why this popular resort is crowded alike summer and winter. To the tired shopper it is a veritable haven of rest these sweltering afternoons. It is at least twenty degrees cooler in the theatre than in the street and that this fact is widely known is manifested by the large audience always in attendance.

Mrs. A. M. Hanigan, of Duer street, left yesterday for Shawnee, Monroe county, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Mase Edwards, of West Seventh street, left yesterday morning for Caseville, Mich.

The Mist at Hawthorne.

CHICAGO, July 20. — The feature event at Hawthorne, a five furlong dash for two-year-olds, was won in a hard drive by The Mist. Flaxman was second, two lengths in front of Janeta, a 100 to 1 shot. The Mist got off flying, but barely lasted and won only by a short head. Flaxman was gaining at every stride and would have taken the lead in a few more jumps. The weather was clear and hot and the track fast.

Sunshine Stakes For Pasadena.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The Sunshine stakes, the feature of the card at Brighton beach, was won by the 5 to 1 shot Pasadena. The fight for the place was very exciting, St. Bellane, Austin Allen and Martha Gorman finishing heads apart in the order named. Monte Carlo, in the first race, was played down from 20 to 10 to 1 and won easily.

Shot Man and Wife.

SPARTA, Ga., July 20.—Mr. John Kimbrough of Shoulder, which is about twelve miles east of this place, shot and perhaps fatally wounded Jere Lawrence and his wife. Kimbrough had serious trouble with Lawrence and was in the act of shooting him when Lawrence's wife ran between them and received the wounds which will cause death. Lawrence himself received a very severe wound in the body, but the wound is not regarded as fatal. Lawrence was the tenant of Kimbrough, and the shooting was the result of some difficulty between them.

Thirty Dwellings Destroyed.

RHINELANDER, Wis., July 20.—Fire here has destroyed thirty dwellings, several big lumber yards and one sawmill. The wind carried the fire beyond the control of the firemen, and the entire city was threatened, but the wind suddenly changed, and the town was saved. The fire department was helpless in the face of the heavy flames. The loss is estimated to be nearly $1,000,000.

Prostrated by Heat.

CLINTON, Mass, July 20.—Martin Nacey, a carpenter, aged fifty-two years, who has lived in Clinton nearly all his life, was prostrated by the heat. He had worked out of doors all day and consumed large quantities of ice water.

Grand Exalted Ruler Elected.

CINCINNATI, O., July 20.—W. J. O'Brien, Jr., of Baltimore, was elected grand exalted ruler of the Elks by a majority of 370 votes.

GORMAN CHAIRMAN.

Marylander Asked to Manage Democratic Campaign.

TO VISIT ROSEMOUNT WITH DAVIS

Latest Doings at Esopus—Joint Notification Now Thought Unlikely. Iowa Democrats Send Congratulations.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 20.—United States Senator Arthur Pue Gorman of Maryland has been asked to become chairman of the Democratic national committee and has been invited by Judge Parker to come to Rosemount today with former Senator Davis, the vice presidential candidate, and until late it was taken for granted that he would come. The following telegram from him at New York has been given out here: "Regret that it will be impossible for me to accompany Senator Davis today. Will afford me pleasure later on."

The heat here was intense again and affected everybody and everything. Judge Parker had his morning swim, but did not take his usual horseback ride. His only absence from the house was during a walk in the field across the road from the gate where the haymakers were forking up a load behind the ox team.

The steam yacht Queen City brought up a party of the judge's Democratic admirers from Poughkeepsie. He showed them about the place, but the visit was entirely informal. The party included former Mayor Ellsworth and Edward L. Perkins, chairman of the Democratic county committee.

Mr. Sheehan has not returned home yet, but is expected today, very likely with Senator Davis. It was understood here that more conferences were to be held in New York.

The expected coming of Senator Davis brings up again the talk of a joint notification, but there is really very little reason to suppose any such thing likely. Judge Parker has at no time expressed any but a casual interest in the proposition and naturally would not feel that the initiative could properly come from him in any case.

It was reported that National Committeeman Taggart was expected in New York, but nothing definite could be learned here, and apparently there is no present expectation of his coming to Rosemount.

The following telegram was received from the Iowa Democratic state convention at Iowa City and signed H. J. Stiger as chairman:

"Iowa Democrats in state convention assembled congratulate you and the nation on your nomination and the prospects of your election. We wish you godspeed."

Judge Parker sent the following reply:

"I beg you to assure the convention over which you preside that its message of congratulations and good wishes is very greatly appreciated."

Armor Makers Meet.

LONDON, July 20.—Representatives of all the great armor making firms of the world have met in conference here. The Krupp company, the Bethlehem (Pa.) Steel company, the Carnegie Steel company, Charles Cammell & Co. of Birmingham and many European interests were represented. Charles M. Schwab was among those present. The question under discussion was the rearrangement of royalties, etc., rendered necessary by the Krupp company's latest improvement upon a patent armor process for which the Krupps under an agreement with various firms are already securing royalties. No new scale was determined upon, but that a friendly interchange of views led to the belief that an arrangement would be concluded within a few weeks. Mr. Schwab will proceed to the Krupp works at Essen, Prussia, to continue the discussion in behalf of his American interests.

Roosevelt Gets a Namesake.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. I. J. White of this city are in receipt of a letter from President Roosevelt through Secretary Loeb on the birth of their twelfth child, a son, on the 6th inst. All the children are alive and in good health. President Roosevelt's letter was in reply to a letter apprising him of the birth of a twelfth child to the couple. The president's letter reads as follows: "Your letter of the 7th inst. has been received, and I beg to thank you in the president's behalf for writing. May I ask you to be good enough to extend to Mr. and Mrs. White the president's congratulations and best wishes for themselves and the members of their family." The boy probably will be named Thomas Theodore White.

COLOGNE, July 20.—A company has been formed here with a capital of $1,750,000, subsidized by the German and Dutch governments, to lay a cable to connect with the Dutch settlement on the island of Celebes, through the island of Yap, in the Pelews group, and from Shanghai to Guam, where it will link the Commercial Cable company's Pacific cable.

HELD UP RACE NEWS

New Move by New York Police In Poolroom War.

MONOPOLIZED ALL TRACK WIRES

For Hours During Racing at Brighton Beach Track Detectives Prevented Pool Sellers From Sending Any Messages.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Police Inspector Brooks and forty detectives went to the Brighton Beach race track and blocked all racing news sent over the Western Union wires by filing scores of messages after each race. Between 2 o'clock and 4 o'clock the police had filed over 400 telegrams and sent a similar number of telephone messages. The poolroom men were frantic over the situation, and what little news they received had to be sent from outside wires and was very late. The service for newspapers was also delayed.

Inspector Brooks declined to explain his conduct, but some of the detectives were more talkative. They said that complaint had been made that commercial telegrams were being sidetracked by the Western Union in favor of racing messages. No one but the poolrooms had a chance at the race track telegraph office, it was said. A test was being made, explained the detectives, to see how much there was in the complaint.

The time of each telegram filed by the police was taken at the track, and the men at this end took the time that they received them. So far as could be seen no preference was shown by the operators. Each telegram was filed in its turn, and all the poolrooms in town were held up in payment of bets by the delay.

The poolroom men made a rush for the telephones when they saw how they were being held up, but in each booth they found a detective. It was then that they went outside to send their messages.

The Western Union people uptown were asked about the matter and this statement was made:

"There have been an extraordinary number of telegrams of a commercial nature sent from the Brighton race track. We do not understand it, but do not care why it is done. Each telegram is sent in the order that it is filed, and no exceptions are made to this rule."

New York Has Record Heat Spell.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The hot wave which struck the city, bringing death and destruction, has increased to the highest temperature of the year and added more victims to the list. Five deaths from heat occurred in Brooklyn between noon and noon. Four of the dead were infants, and the other was an aged man. In Manhattan there were ten prostrations, but all the victims will probably recover. The heat was greatest at 2 o'clock in the day, when the thermometers on the streets reached the 100 degree mark. The humidity was 43. Since early in the day the parks have been filled with women and children seeking escape from the oven-like tenements, and every public bath in the city has been crowded, with hundreds outside waiting their turn.

Trial of Bank President.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 20.—What the prosecution regards as a piece of strong testimony was brought out in the fourth trial of Major W. E. Breese, late president of the First National bank of Asheville, who is charged with taking $114,000 of the bank's funds and, together with two other officers, wrecking the institution, when it was shown that the defunct bank had collected drafts from other banks to the amount of $16,000 and that no remittance had been made. Colonel W. H. S. Burgwyn, the national bank examiner who took charge of the institution when the doors were closed, testified to this state of affairs.

Soldiers Called Out on Lynch Alarm.

DAWSON, Ga., July 20.—The Dawson guards were called out here by order of the governor to protect Will Nix, who is in jail charged as accessory to the murder of W. O. Chambless, a merchant at Graves, against a supposed attack by a mob. The entire town was thrown into a state of intense excitement by the sound of the riot call. It was rumored that a mob was en route to Dawson to lynch the negro, but it later developed that the rumor was false altogether. Nix narrowly escaped death on Sunday morning by the prompt appearance and pleading of Sheriff Christie and a few cool headed citizens.

Newburg Strike Ends.

NEWBURG, N. Y., July 20.—The strike of employees of the Orange County Traction company here has ended. General Manager Pouch of the company recognized the union and each side made concessions, and the old hands were re-employed. The strike was managed by W. B. Fitzgerald of Troy, a member of the national executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employees.

Harvard Student Drowned.

CHATHAM, Mass., July 20.—Unable to swim against the strong tide, Harry T. Whitmarsh of Somerville, a student at Harvard university, was drowned while bathing here, and a companion whose name is withheld narrowly escaped death. The two swam some distance out to a sandbar at low tide. On their return the tide had risen, and the strength of the swimmers gave out.

ASK FOR CONFERENCE.

Striking Meat Packers Send a Note to Employers.

CHICAGO, July 20.—Leaders from all unions that probably would be affected by a general strike at the stockyards have held a meeting and have drawn up a note to the packers asking for another conference. The note was sent to the packers.

The result was apparently a victory for the conservative element among them. The note dispatched to the packers, was said by Secretary Nockles of the Chicago Federation of Labor, to contain no reference to a sympathetic strike, nor was it an ultimatum. "It was a simple request," said Mr. Nockles, "in polite and peaceful language for a conference with the packers this afternoon."

There were present at the labor officials' meeting besides President Donnelly and Secretary Homer D. Call, John Floersch, vice president of the Meat Cutters' and Butcher Workmen; Barney Cohen, president of the State Federation of Labor; George Golden, business agent of the Stockyards Teamsters' union; Business Agent Joseph W. Morton and Treasurer C. L. Shamp of the Firemen's union; John J. Fitzpatrick, organizer for the American Federation of Labor; Edward Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, and James Kirby, president of the Carpenters' District council.

The meeting was the largest one of labor chiefs held since the strike began. Most of the officials present said that their men were ready to strike if the appeal does not bring a satisfactory answer.

The packers have expressed themselves as confident that there would be no important spread of the strike. They authorized this statement:

"Joseph W. Morton, business agent of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen, International Secretary and Treasurer C. L. Shamp of Omaha and Charles H. Wall of Kansas City, chairman of the executive council, have met a committee representing the packers at the stockyards with a view to ascertaining the actual status of affairs.

"The packers' committee went over the ground thoroughly with them, giving them the exact data from the commencement of the controversy until the end of the negotiations. It is understood that Messrs. Morton, Shamp and Wall indicated that they had not up to this time fully understood the matter and upon the showing made by the packers' committee admitted that the right was on the side of the packers. As a result of the investigation made by Messrs. Morton, Shamp and Wall it is not thought that the stationary firemen will strike."

"We still hope the packers will make a little concession in return for all we have made," said President Donnelly. "Men still at work are anxious to go on sympathetic strike, but I will not ask them to strike until all means for a satisfactory arbitration of the dispute has been exhausted."

TO REPRIMAND DUNDONALD.

Winston Churchill Said He Should Have Been Recalled.

LONDON, July 20.—In the house of commons Mr. Lloyd-George wanted the government to reprimand Lord Dundonald for his speech at Montreal while commanding the Canadian militia and to prevent him continuing his agitation against the Canadian government.

Winston Churchill seconded the motion and maintained that Lord Dundonald ought to have been recalled.

War Secretary Arnold-Forster, in behalf of the government, deprecated the raising of the question, especially as the Canadian government had not mentioned the subject and was well able to take care of itself. Nobody, he said, had suggested that Lord Dundonald was guilty of anything beyond want of judgment, and he declined to express an opinion on the matter until Lord Dundonald, who had been requested to return home, had been heard in his own defense.

Mr. Lloyd-George's motion was negatived without a division.

Affairs In Panama Canal Zone.

COLON, July 20.—John Barrett, American minister to Panama, has arrived here on the steamer Seguranca. The minister was met by Joseph W. J. Lee, secretary of the American legation at Panama, and a delegation of Panamaas whose spokesman was Porferio Melendez, civil and military governor of Colon. Minister Barrett briefly thanked General Melendez for the welcome accorded him and then left for Panama. Hopes are entertained that Minister Barrett is empowered to settle the vexed questions at issue betweeen the government of Panama and the authorities of the canal zone. The Seguranca also brought a number of engineers, nurses and sanitary officials, whose work will be confined to the canal zone.

Foreman Killed at Utica.

UTICA, N. Y., July 20.—James C. Hill, foreman of the freight house in the Central yards in this city, this noon went to the top of a freight car that was standing by the platform to set one of the brakes. At that instant another car struck against the car on which Mr. Hill was standing, and he was thrown to the track. The wheels passed over him, killing him instantly.

BUNKOED A MINISTER.

Two Men and a Woman Arrested at Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 20.—Two men and a woman are locked up at police headquarters charged with bunkoing Rev. John Rose, a retired Protestant Episcopal minister of this city, out of $5,450. They are William Hooper, forty-two years old, a native of Dorchester county, Md., a broker, with offices in this city; Miss Virginia Hamilton, forty-one years old, who claims to be a native of Nebraska, but who for the past year has been giving lessons in vocal culture in Baltimore, and John Lawrence, thirty-nine years old, who claims St. Louis as his place of residence.

They were committed for court by Justice Grannan.

Mr. Rose says he purchased from Lawrence a block of stock in the Cripple Creek Gold Temple Mining company at $1 per share, securing an option on a total of 10,000 shares at that figure. He paid Lawrence $5,450 in cash. Later he accompanied a "Mr. Bell," who negotiated the deal between Mr. Rose and Lawrence, to Philadelphia, where it was arranged to sell the stock at a handsome profit. Mr. Rose thereupon drew a check payable to Lawrence on a local trust company for $4,050. This check was found in Lawrence's possession when arrested.

Mr. Rose became suspicious that the deal was not straight and notified the police on Sunday. The police have complete descriptions of "Mr. Bell" and of G. H. Davis, who was visited in Philadelphia and said he would buy the stock at $3 per share.

ROOT FOR GOVERNOR.

If Ex-Secretary Consents to Run There Will Be No Contest.

NEW YORK, July 20.—Republicans have expressed much gratification over the prospect of securing Elihu Root's consent to stand as a candidate for governor.

The conference that the ex-secretary of war had with President Roosevelt at Oyster Bay was responsible for the renewal of the talk about Mr. Root as a gubernatorial possibility. Among Republicans there was a firm conviction that Mr. Root is the one man who ought to be nominated, and determination was expressed not to quit booming him until it is certain that he cannot be induced to accept the nomination.

Friends of the half dozen prominent Republicans who aspire to gubernatorial honors concede that if Mr. Root will consent to run there will be no contest in the convention. But if Mr. Root will not permit his name to be presented the rivals will fight it out, and, according to Senator Platt, the best man will win. So it is highly significant that all those who are "second choice" in the consideration of the governorship are willing to combine on the former secretary of war.

American Colonel a Suicide.

PARIS, July 20.—Colonel George Wilson, a retired American army officer, fired several shots from a revolver at Mlle. Charlotte Murmann, twenty-one years old. Colonel Wilson subsequently shot himself through the head and expired while being taken to a hospital. It is stated that Mlle. Murmann's wounds are slight.

JAPS AT TATCHEKIAO

Engagement With General Count Keller's Forces.

BRITAIN ROUSED BY SHIP SEIZURES

English Government Expected to Take Immediate Action Against the Course of Russian Vessels In the Red Sea.

LONDON, July 20.—A Liaoyang report says that a general engagement is reported between the forces of Lieutenant General Count Keller and General Kuroki. It is reported also that an engagement began simultaneously at Tatchekiao, from which the Japanese for some days had been only six miles distant.

The Fengwangcheng road, which is in the height of military activity, is offensive with the odor of dead animals.

The large Red Cross hospital at Tatchekiao was removed to Mukden in anticipation of the fighting. Consequently there is a large call for Red Cross trains to proceed to Tatchekiao.

The activity of the Japanese in the northeast caused a wider dispersion of troops and the consequent movement of the center of strength a little farther north in order to meet the Japanese demonstrations.

A Cossack report of an examination of the Japanese camp shows that the Japanese troops are suffering from dysentery, which is now at its worst stage.

The Chinese accuse the Japanese of organizing Chinese bandits, and they report that the bandits have attacked natives in the employ of the Russians.

A native from the village of Hungpoloyu, forty miles to the eastward, describes the Japanese there as being very orderly and as having the good will of the people, though they are not paying them the exorbitant prices for produce which are paid by the Russians.

The best information received here indicates that the siege of Port Arthur is now being much more closely pressed, and there are most extravagant rumors of losses on both sides.

No foreign correspondent has yet witnessed even the simplest military operation, but the correspondents have been notified that they may go to Tatchekiao.

A Tatchekiao report says that the Japanese seem to be moving their forces northeastward in the direction of Hiuyan and Simouchen. Fresh guns, mules and ammunition are being brought up daily and sent to points where the Japanese expect to give battle.

The movement northeastward is considerably impeded by Russian attacks.

At Siatziatun and Gaitziatun the Russian gunners shelled the Japanese camps and drove the troops out in disorder. Many were killed, and large supplies were abandoned.

Another Japanese party was surprised at Kaimahe and Tunchemalin while marching in the mountain defiles to join General Nodzu.

The Russians have advanced two miles and have occupied a position evacuated by the Japanese near Tunchemalin.

The surrounding heights are seamed with trenches. It looks as if the Japanese are prepared to take the defensive here while they attack the Russians at other points, or perhaps they may move on Yinkow.

International complications, the possible demand by Japan for British cooperation under the treaty of alliance and the likelihood of a vigorous policy as to Russia's seizure of British ships in the Red sea were regarded here as sufficiently within range to cause a sharp decline in consols and other gilt edged securities.

Some relief was afforded to public uneasiness when the foreign office authorized the statement that there was absolutely no truth in the story circulated in the United States by a news agency that Great Britain had informed Germany of the dispatch of a British fleet to Alexandria with the intention of checking Russian illegalities in the Red sea.

In official circles the recent seizure and overhauling of British ships in the Red sea by the Russian volunteer fleet steamers Smolensk and St. Petersburg are regarded as very grave international incidents. The seizure of the Peninsular and Oriental steamer Malacca by the St. Petersburg and her arrival in the Suez canal as a prize of war on her way to Libau on the Baltic, have come as a climax, and the cabinet is expected to take action as soon as full information is at hand.

A Suez special report says:

"The German steamer Sambia has been seized by the Russians and is expected here today."

A dispatch from Constantinople says:

"A Russian cruiser has just passed through from Odessa with several guns covered with canvas on her deck. She also carried torpedo tubes."

Detroit Has $50,000 Fire.

DETROIT, Mich., July 20.—Fire last night destroyed the new paint shop of the Michigan Central railroad at West Detroit and a car shed nearby and burned for more than an hour in the Michigan Central lumber yard. The buildings burned were frame structures, and there were a dozen or more box cars in the car shed. It is estimated that the loss will not exceed $50,000.

Osborne Hotel Burned.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 20.—The Osborne hotel has been burned at Oxford, N. C., and the progress of the flames was so rapid that some of the guests barely had time to escape. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Plainfield, N. J., July 20, 1904.

Had the falling of the temporary grandstand at Concert Park last night been attended by serious results, the North Plainfield policemen assigned to duty on the grounds would have been largely to blame. After the crowd had left the stand, on hearing distinct sounds of cracking timber, the police raised no objection to persons again taking seats there and in a short time the stand was refilled by spectators. Fortunately there was a timely warning before the final crash came and no one was seriously hurt.

A few weeks ago Secretary Shaw was prodding the officials of the St. Louis Exposition into a most energetic campaign of publicity, to make the features known all over this country and thereby to attract more visitors. Stunned by the rebuke implied, the officials are now whining, because as they say, the "newspapers have not done their part in advertising the fair." If the enterprise were for charitable purposes or were a venture of the government, there might be some reason for the newspaper publications of the country to give more space. From the time when the St. Louis Exposition Association held its first meeting to the present, there has been no concealment of the fact that the fair is a money-making scheme on the part of the leading merchants. And yet it has not occurred to them that they themselves, who are backing the scheme, should not receive advertising absolutely free.—Boston Advertiser.

Theodore Roosevelt has gained much reputation from his literary efforts and his works comprise a collection of rare value, but nevertheless the Republican campaign managers may find that it does not always do to have a Presidential candidate who has freely expressed his opinions in black and white. The Democratic newspapers are already quoting his book for political effect, among them being The Philadelphia Record, which by the way is owned by John Wanamaker, a Republican of the most pronounced type. This journal gives the following citations from Mr. Roosevelt's books, all of which it vouches for as authentic:

Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence and of the Virginia resolutions establishing religious toleration, and the maker of the Louisiana Purchase: He was "vacillating," "timid," a "shifty doctrinaire," "incompetent," "ungrateful," "intriguing against Washington," "constitutionally unable to put the proper value on truthfulness," and "the most incapable Executive that ever filled the Presidential chair." James Madison, the Father of the Constitution and the President who brought the war of 1812 to an honorable close: He was "timid, "incapable," "a ridiculously incompetent leader for a war with Great Britain," a man "of imbecile capacity" who brought "shame and disgrace to America." James Monroe, the courageous, wise and moderate President who hurled the great "Doctrine" in behalf of political freedom in this hemisphere in the face of the Holy Alliance, and whose eight years term is known in American history as the "Era of Good Feeling:" He was a mere "figurehead," and his administration as Secretary of War under Madison was a "triumph of imbecility to the last." Andrew Jackson, the hero of New Orleans and the President who throttled the United States monster: He was also a "figurehead," besides being "ignorant," "managed by politicians," and conducting an Administration that "corrupted the public service in every way."

George Baily, of 936 West Front street, has gone to Easton, Pa., for the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, of New York.

Philip DeHart, of the pattern shop at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant, is wearing the "smile that never wears off." A bouncing baby boy has arrived at his home.

There are about fifteen college students working at the Pond Machine Tool plant during the summer months. They seek practical experience. Some of them are in the machine shop and the foundry, while others are in the pattern department, blacksmith shop and the drawing room.

The $7,000 planer, which was in the wreck on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, near Cleveland, several days ago, was returned to the Pond plant in a dilapidated condition. The machine was on its way to a large plant in Cleveland, O. It will take several months to put it in good condition again.

TALK ON MANCHURIA.

HISTORY OF THE COUNTRY IS ONE OF RAPID GROWTH.

Now, However, the Hardy Courage of the Past Has Degenerated Into Lazy Parasitism and Lack of Patriotism.

New York Special.

The most interesting article in the July Century is one on "Manchuria," from the pen of James W. Davidson. From it we learn that Manchuria, though a part of China, is considered distinct from the empire proper in much the same way that Americans regard Alaska, though there is no similarity in their respective positions with regard to administration. Three or four centuries ago the southern part of what is now known as Manchuria was occupied by Koreans and was a portion of their territory. It is not known how far north their rule extended, but there are traces of Korean architecture as far as Liaoyang, which is 120 miles from the present Korean boundaries. At this early period the Manchu element consisted of a few powerful tribes, who, though of the same general Mongolian stock, possessed many ethnological points sufficient to distinguish them from the great Chinese race which occupied China proper. The roving life in a wild country where young braves thought it no extraordinary achievement to kill with bow and arrow, single handed, the fierce northern tiger, developed the Manchu into a hardy, fearless warrior, with a love for courageous deeds.

The history of the Manchus is one of continued and rapid growth. From a small tribe their influence spread over the great plains of western Manchuria until they became a force which even great China deemed it advisable to conciliate. Their ambitions knew no limit, and early in the sixteenth century they began an invasion of China. A century later, by methods which at times gave evidence of the most crafty and skillful diplomacy, and again were those of a most cruel tyrant, the greatest empire that the world has known was acquired by a race of half savage nomads.

A MANCHURIAN COLONEL.
(He Is Quite a Fighter, Although Not Much to Look Upon.)

As the home of the Manchu dynasty, Manchuria, in the eyes of the emperor, deserved honored treatment, and the followers of the standard—there was scarcely a Manchu who had not seen service—were specially cared for. It was declared by special decree that all Manchus for time unending should belong to one of the eight banner corps and receive a small monthly stipend. The great home country should remain the exclusive property of all Manchus, and Chinese were forbidden to hold land in it. The Koreans had now been driven to the south, and Manchuria extended virtually to the banks of the Yalu on the south and to the sea on the east.

The Manchu policy, which, in its conception, provided for the continuance and development of a great race of pure Manchus, who would always be at the beck and call of the Manchu dynasty and would be a safeguard against the restoration of Chinese rule, brought on results quite the reverse of those desired. The Manchu found his small wage sufficient at first to provide food, and there was no longer the necessity to live the arduous life of a hunter or herdsman. In a generation or two the race had degenerated into a lazy band of parasites who, in the absence of a strenuous life, had lost all the cunning and the warlike skill which had brought to them a great empire. They maintained a reputation for fierceness, however, and at the time of the late war with Japan it was predicted that the Japanese would find a match in the Manchu cavalry. The first engagement between the two dispelled forever this illusion.

Has Third Set of Teeth.

Sixty-year-old Miss Maria Williamson, of Owingsville, Ky., is attracting much attention because of a third set of teeth she is cutting. Two teeth have already made their appearance. She lost her second set of teeth several years ago and has since used false ones. Recently on adjusting the plate she found that the new teeth interfered with the plate. Her grandfather, who died many years ago, cut a third set of teeth after he had passed his sixtieth year, and it is said that other members of the family had similar experiences.

Electric Boots for Brokers.

Electric boots are worn by six members of the London Stock Exchange. Each man goes to business every day with a piece of copper in one boot and a piece of zinc in the other. The idea is that if a man is always standing on the two, a little electricity will pass through his continually, with beneficial results to his health.

SHE WAS TOO PREVIOUS.

Thought a Proposal of Marriage Was Coming, But It Failed to Come.

A few months ago a gentleman had the misfortune to lose his wife, a literary lady of some reputation. After grieving for a number of weeks a bright idea entered the head of the widower. He thought, relates London Tit-Bits, he could do something to lessen his sorrow, and for that purpose he called upon a lady of his acquaintance and requested to speak a word with her in private. Thinking she was about to receive a proposal, the lady prepared to listen with becoming resignation.

"Myrrha," said he, with downcast eyes, as he took her by the hand, "you knew my wife?"

"Yes."

"It is not good for man to be alone?"

"Perhaps not."

"Did you ever reflect upon that part of the marriage service which requires couples to cleave unto each other until death parts them?"

"I have.'

"I have often reflected upon it myself. Now death has parted me from my wife and I feel very lonely."

"I should think it likely."

"I think I must do something to restore to me her kind consolations and the memory of her many virtues."

He pressed the lady's hand and sighed. She returned the pressure, and also suffered a sigh to escape her.

"My dear," he said, after a long pause, "I'll come to the point at once. I have a proposal to make."

"A proposal?"

"Yes."

"Ah!" she said, blushing, and covering her face with her hands.

"I have concluded to write my wife's biography. Now, I have but little skill in literary exercises, and if you will correct my manuscript and write the headings of the chapters I will give you two guineas."

She sprang from his side, and her eyes flashed with anger.

"I'll see you hanged first, and then I won't, you—you—"

She left the room, not being able to express her rage. The widower sighed, took his hat and went home.

HOUSE WITHOUT STAIRWAY.

Ladder Was Used in Fine Mansion of an Eccentric Washington Man.

Years ago a story was told of a naval officer who wanted a house built to please his own taste in every detail. He drew plans himself, says the Washington Star, placed them in the hands of a builder and instructed him to see that they were carried out in every detail. Then he went to sea for a year's cruise. When he returned home the house had been completed with the utmost regard for the plans and specifications left by the officer. He was taken through the first floor and expressed the utmost pleasure in everything he saw.

"Now," he said, "we will go upstairs and see the second floor."

"Come right out this way, where we have a ladder," replied the builder.

The seafaring man was astonished. He had planned the house with the greatest care, but forgot to provide a stairway.

The story of the naval officer has never had a certificate of genuineness attached to it. But an actual case in which a house had been built without a stairway is on record in this city. It finally became the home of the late John Boyle, who was for many years chief clerk of the navy department, and died in 1854, leaving a very large estate. The house in question stood until ten years ago on the site now occupied by a brewery, below the naval observatory. It was a pretentious old mansion, located in what was a very stylish section during the days of the elder John Boyle, who came to this country in the early years of the nineteenth century. The record is not as clear as to why the house was constructed without a staircase, but there is no doubt about the fact.

Eventually and before it was purchased by Mr. Boyle a staircase was added to it by a side construction in such form that to the casual observer there was nothing to indicate that the entire structure had not been put up at the same time. Mr. Boyle had many descendants in this city, and they often refer to the house built without any means for ascending to the upper floors except by the use of a ladder.

Officers Set Fashions.

In the Japan of 30 years ago all classes except the officials adhered strictly to the old dress of Japan. It was as much the exception then to see a man wearing his hair in the European fashion as it is now to see the shaved front of the head with the carefully tended cue lying upon it. The government, however, red-hot with western notions, not only insisted that all officials should appear with heads like blacking brushes, and their bodies arrayed in western evening dress, but, in order to encourage the fashion among the country people, erected at the entrance of every considerable village a board displaying tailor's patterns of coats, waistcoats and trousers, every stitch and every seam in its place, which the local tailors were often to be seen copying with stern exactitude into notebooks.

As the Judge Understood It.

A lawyer, addressing a jury in a Billville justice court, quoted, in defense of his client: "Honi soit qui mal y pense," whereupon the justice, striking the desk a thundering blow with his fist, shouted:

"You'll never do it, sir—not in this court!"

"Do what, your honor?" asked the surprised attorney.

"Hit 'em a swat an' pitch 'em over the fence, sir!" replied the justice.—Atlanta Constitution.

THE STRIKE IN COLORADO.

Views of Noted Churchman Who Has Made a Personal Investigation of the Trouble.

Columbus (O.) Special.

Rev. Washington Gladden has made a personal investigation of the miners' strike in Colorado, and believes bad leadership is responsible for all the trouble, and he obtained from a man who is well-informed on the subject an explanation of the reason for this bad leadership, which he considers significant.

Said his informant: "It is largely due to the fact that when disagreements between the masters and the men have occurred, the people who have been brought up to take the striking miners' places have generally been ignorant, violent and brtual men. The miners have been compelled to take these men into their unions, and it is from this class now in the union that the worst disorders come. This class wants violent and headstrong leaders and gets them." Continuing, Dr. Gladden says: "The miners' union and the labor unions generally must learn to be reasonable and decent. If they insist on having the earth they will be wiped from the face of it. Tyrannies are not going to thrive in the twentieth century.

"The employers have got as much to learn as the unionists. They ought to be a great deal wiser, but they are not. They think they can put an end to labor troubles by force. And they never will. They have to learn to put as much brains and tact and good will and patience into the business of managing their men as they do in managing the mechanical or financial sides of their enterprise. Doubtless they must organize. No single employer or company standing alone can deal with a compact labor union. There will have to be collective bargaining on the part of the masters as well as the men.

"But this organization must keep in view the issues of peace and not of war. War, internationally or industrially, is simple idiocy. It settles nothing; it simply devours and destroys.

"Industrial disputes must be settled by reason, not by force, and no man is fit for large business, in these days, who does not recognize this as the end, and work toward it with all his might."

Princess Marie Bonaparte Is Considered the Richest Imperial Heiress in Europe.

Paris (France) Special.

Princess Marie Bonaparte, great-grandniece of Napoleon Bonaparte, is one of the richest heiresses in Europe, certainly the richest imperial heiress.

She was born July 2, 1882, and it is said that a grand match is designed for her.

Princess Marie's mother was the only daughter of Mr. Blanc, the founder of the famous casino at Monte Carlo, from whom she inherits a fourth share in the vast income derived from the gaming tables. The other shares are divided between Mr. Blanc's two sons and his daughter, Princess Batazzi.

The average net profits of the casino are about $6,000,000 a year.

Princess Marie's mother died at her birth, and her father, Prince Roland Bonaporte, who was descended from Prince Lucien, the emperor's youngest brother, has never married again. He is a great savant, and his daughter shares her father's taste, presiding with great charm over his salon, where all the savants of the world visiting Paris are made welcome.

FASHION HINTS.

Elaborate Styles In Muslins—Net Waists For Evening Wear.

Bands of little tight roses are very smart worn around the wide crowns of some of the new sailor shapes.

Never before has so much muslin been worn. This is perhaps because the elaborate styles encourage dressmakers to make pretty gowns out of this perishable material. Muslin is a material which demands a great deal of fussiness, and for that reason the styles this year are particularly suited to it. The deep gathered flounce skirt with an upright heading is particularly adapted to muslin at the foot of this flounce. There may be two or three frills lace edged or else clusters of graduated tucks. The waists are made up elaborately with much lace and chiffon.

The elbow sleeve is being revived and in a glorified form finds its way into nearly every pretty summer dress. The wide folded belt is another feature of nearly every smart summer dress. It is not usually made of ribbon, but rather of some fancy silk cut on the bias. A great deal of flowered silk is used, and this is very smart, especially if the groundwork matches the dress material.

The net waist trimmed with medallions and patternings of lace is still about the smartest thing in evening blouses. Whole dresses are also made of this net either plain or ring spotted, and they are very dainty.

The picture shows a blouse of plaid silk made in simple tailor fashion. The model shows a long strapped shoulder seam and a box plaited front.

COLORS AND MATERIALS.

Linen Costumes of the Latest Cut. Cotton Voile Dresses.

Pink is a favorite color in muslins this year, and it is shown in lawn, linen and batiste. The fancy muslins with pink designs are very pretty, while silk muslins are charming with pink or mauve designs on a black ground.

A good many of the linen costumes are made with the loose bolero coat, which is worn over a soft blouse, and the little fitted coatee is worn over a fitted vest front. Pelerine collars are very effective on linen coats, and some are beautifully embroidered, while others are inlet with heavy lace motifs.

Flounces are very popular, and muslin skirts have many gathered frills of different width, but linen skirts are usually shown plaited or with flounces of the gored order. The newest flounce has a wide gathered heading at the top, and it often starts at the knees, a fashion which is very trying to small women.

The black hat is not worn so much as formerly. The tendency now seems to be to match the hat to the gown.

Cotton voile, a species of canvas, is very effective when inlet with lace and lined with a color, but it is only pretty in light tones, as the darker ones make it look like cheap woolen material.

The picture shows a dress of dotted net. The waist has a coat effect of white and green striped silk trimmed with taffeta ruchings.

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

"I think that will be enough for a starter," said Richard, "except that I should like you to trek at once—I mean make haste, you know—and you need not worry about the expense," laying a fifty-pound Bank of England note on the desk.

"You will hear from us in a few days, Mr. Dysart. Have I your address?"

"Denecroft by Blandford, Dorset," and so saying he took his departure.

"We must give them both a run for their money," soliloquized the astute manager, "but it strikes me as a case of Tweedledum and Tweedledee. The first thing is to notify Mr. Kane that his man is in England."

But before the report was prepared in the customary verbiage of the agency, there arrived a dispatch from Rossiter Kane in these words;

"Discontinue search; the gentleman has been found."

CHAPTER VIII.

And now the quick march of events brings us to the night of the dance at The Cedars, which was to confront for the first time on one stage the chief characters in this little drama.

Dinner for the house party was over at 8:30, and by nine o'clock the invited guests from the nearby country-side began to arrive. Among the first flight was the party from Denecroft—Stella and Sir Arthur, Marcia Churchill and Richard.

The historic old picture gallery, which was to be devoted to the dancing, was already well-filled, and Rossiter Kane stood at the entrance to receive his guests in company with a young-old dowager, Lady Agatha Kin-gan, who had consented to chaperon the house party, seeing that the host was a bachelor.

A typical English butler, rubicund of face, portly in form, and with irreproachable natural underpinning, announced the arrivals, and when in pompous tones he vociferated:

"Sir Harthur Dysart and Miss Dysart, Mr. Richard Dysart and Miss Churchill," it needed all Kane's self-control to compose his features and his manner to the requisite standard of polite and genial interest.

A moment now, and he would know his fate—recognition, exposure, disgrace, or——

Sir Arthur, with Stella on his arm, came first, and passed under the arched door of the gallery, followed by Richard and Marcia. The first couple paused a moment after their greetings, and it fell to Marcia to introduce Richard to his host.

"Welcome to The Cedars and welcome home, Mr. Dysart!" said Kane.

There fronted him a tall, athletic figure, bronzed and tanned of face, as clean-shaven as himself save for a tawny mustache, and in the man's conventional evening dress bearing not the remotest resemblance to or suggestion of the unkempt and bearded wayfarer of the Karroo Desert.

The two men gripped hands in the hearty English fashion, and each looked the other squarely in the face. The first keen glance was what Kane feared most, but in the steady gaze of Richard there was naught save the utmost courtesy.

Kane's heart leaped. He was safe, at least for the present. But there was an expression of studied interest in Richard's glance as they exchanged a few commonplaces, as though asking "what manner of man is this?" which was to be explained a moment later.

Turning to Stella, Kane asked to see her dance-card, saying—

"My duties will not permit me to be selfish, but I claim the first waltz."

She handed him the enameled pasteboard, and while he was penciling his initials thereon the girl murmured in significant tones that none other could hear—

"Be on your best behavior to-night, sir," flashing him a dazzling smile across her snowy shoulder as she was led away.

Kane sent her an answering look, and breathed more freely. The fact that the brothers were both under his roof seemed a good omen, and argued no opposition to his suit.

For the first time in many days his inner mood lightened. All might yet go well, and he resumed his task of welcoming the remaining guests with almost boyish vim and abandon.

After all, the ball would be a personal triumph, as he had at first intended, with his affianced bride as its chief ornament and attraction for him.

That waltz with Stella Dysart, he told himself, the soft perfume of her hair floating upward like incense, was worth perilling a man's soul for. The while he held her in his arms he vowed to himself that he would go through the fires of perdition rather than give her up. Yet even at the thought there came to him the dread query, like a grinning demon in the midst of a feast, "What would she say or do if she knew the truth?" But he wilfully drove the thing away, and resolved, for that moment at least, to drink the cup of happiness to the last drop.

As he led her to a cool corner after the final crashing bars of the music he murmured:

"I shall call upon Sir Arthur in the morning, dearest. You can guess why."

"I will tell him to expect you," she said, lifting her eyes bravely to his, the love-light shining in their star-like depths.

"Will your brothers be likely to make any objections, do you think?" he inquired, the slight tremor of anxiety in his voice seeming perfectly natural to the girl's quick perception.

"I think Sir Arthur will be glad to get me off his hands," she said roguishly. "As for Rick, why, he does not know you very well, you see, and he must take my word for it that you are perfectly eligible, of legal age, and sound mind!"

"I'm not so sure about that last," he responded, catching at her gay humor, and answering in kind. "When a man is bewitched, you know——"

The rest of the sentence was unfinished, for at that moment Stella was claimed for the next dance, and Kane saw her no more until supper was served, when he had expressly reserved the privilege of taking her in, and she sat on his right hand with Richard on his left.

By all rules of social precedence these places of honor belonged to others, but at the last moment Kane gave orders which resulted in the arrangement named. The evening had begun and continued auspiciously, and with his customary cool hardihood he resolved to then and there test to the utmost the possibility of Richard's recognizing him.

During the repast the talk naturally drifted to the Cape. Nearly everyone knew that Rick had just returned thence, and he was kept busy answering questions as to his adventures, so that Kane was spared the necessity of originating or replying to any direct inquiries, but by a judicious remark here and there he showed his knowledge of the subjects touched on, nor seemed to manifest the slightest desire for concealment.

Every word he uttered had for its ulterior object the creating of a favorable impression upon Richard Dysart, but it was all done with such consummate tact that the younger and bluffer man was completely captivated by the elder, as was proved when, on kissing Stella good-night, after their drive home, he said—

"Well, Sis, your Rossiter Kane seems to be a trump!"

"Thank you, Rick," was her reply. "I just knew you would like him!" and, covered with happy blushes, she disappeared.

So the ball was an unqualified success, and the star of Rossiter Kane was in the ascendant house.

At noon the next day he cantered up to the entrance of Denecroft and inquired for Sir Arthur Dysart. On being ushered into the library he found the baronet alone and apparently expectant, for, true to her promise, Stella had expressly asked her elder brother to remain at home that morning.

"Eh—eh—what's in the wind now, Stella?" the baronet inquired, looking up from his letters, and blinking near-sightedly at his sister. "More surprises?"

Stella, to conceal her embarrassment, came around to the back of his chair and leaned over his shoulder, roughing and ruffling his hair in a certain tormentingly lovable way as was her wont.

"Aren't you glad Rick is back?" she inquired, woman-like talking of the thing that was farthest from her heart at that moment.

"Why, of course," assented Sir Arthur. "I believe we killed our fatted calf in proper fashion. It will be the happiest Christmas Denecroft has seen for many a year."

Stella sighed blissfully. "Yes," she said, "I am a very happy girl."

The baronet grunted an assent in preoccupied man-fashion, and opened another letter. Stella wriggled a little nearer, seating herself on the arm of his chair.

"Well, what is it?" asked her brother, leaning back with an air of resignation. "Let me know the worst, and get it over."

LINDEN, N. J.
Beautiful and Accessible

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad
Why Lots in those Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors
BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.
BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.
LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW
BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.
BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.
LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT
BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.
BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and, considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

BALL HITS A THIEF.

CHICAGO AMATEUR PITCHER'S AIM PROVES EFFECTIVE.

Fugitive Dropped in His Tracks When Hit by Anderson's Unique Missile and Is Safely Lodged in Police Lockup.

A ball pitched by the captain of a prairie "nine" brought a burglar to earth near Addison street and Racine avenue, Chicago. The burglar afterward escaped by a ruse from his athletic captors, who had surrounded him, but Lieut. McCarthy, of the town hall station, was so struck by the novel means of halting the fugitive that he is considering making a requisition upon the department and arming his men with the new weapon.

The struggle followed a raid by a well-dressed man upon the house of Mrs. Norman Staat, in which $500 worth of jewelry was taken, and interrupted a lively game of baseball which was in progress in a vacant lot at the rear of Mrs. Staat's home.

While excitement over the contest was at its height, Mrs. Staat left her house by the rear door and went to a market two blocks away. As she crossed the lot and turned the corner, a young man, who had been an interested spectator at the game, strolled away.

A few minutes later he was seen going up the front steps of the Staat house. He forced an entrance by using a case knife, but a real estate dealer saw him, and, running to the vacant lot, gave the alarm.

The game was adjourned in the middle of an inning, and John Anderson, pitcher and captain of the team in the field, led the other 17 players and a crowd of substitutes and spectators in a charge upon the house.

"Surround the house," shouted Anderson. "We'll keep him here until the police come." The players waited until the burglar showed himself at an upper window in the rear, and then set up a shout.

"Come on out! We dare you to! We'll fix you!" were the greetings that reached him. Apparently the array of sturdy young men, armed with bats and clubs, dismayed the marauder, for, after gazing at the crowd a moment, he vanished from the rear window.

By this time Mrs. Staat had returned from the market. She wondered that the boys should be so thick about the house, and thought she would have to complain to the police, but went up the front steps with apparent unconcern. As she reached the top step the burglar opened the door and rushed out, knocking Mrs. Staat down as he came.

With a yell, the players ran toward him, but he dodged the blows aimed at him, and passed his besiegers one by one. Just as he was clear and started to run down the street, Anderson, who had been watching in front of the house, drew himself back and pitched the hardest ball he had thrown during the afternoon. His aim was true, and the leather sphere struck the burglar squarely in the back of the ear.

The fugitive staggered and sunk to his knees with his hands to his head, and before he could rise again several men had seized him.

"Now we've got you," they shouted, pulling him to his feet.

The man gazed at them for a moment, still holding his head. Then his gaze became fixed, he tossed his hands above his head and fell back on the sod between the walk and the curb.

"He's fainted; get some water," cried Peterson. All three started, and then remembered that the prisoner should be guarded. They had barely left his side, but the breeze of their departure had revived the "sick" man, and he fled, to be seen no more.

He took with him jewelry of Mrs. Staat valued at $500.

Physical Exercise in Japan.

From an early age the males and females of Japan are instructed in physical exercise, with the result that at maturity the women are almost as strong as the men. It is not an unusual sight to see a company of girls, who are strolling along a country road, step back a few yards for headway, and then, following a leader, all nimbly clear a five-foot fence by leaping over it.

Sharks Killed by Explosion.

The engineers in the British navy have a very effective way of killing sharks. They seal up a dynamite cartridge in an empty can, and put the can inside a lump of pork. The pork is thrown overboard on a wire which has been connected with an electric battery. When the shark takes the bait, the engineer presses a button, which explodes the cartridge and kills the fish.

SUES FANWOOD TOWNSHIP

NEW YORK MAN THINKS HE WANTS DAMAGES FOR BEING LOCKED UP.

Claiming that he was unlawfully deprived of his liberty for twenty-four hours, John B. Walton, a resident of Sixty-fourth street, New York, has commenced suit for damages against Fanwood township. He has retained V. W. Nash, Jr., of this city, to look after his interests and push the matter to completion.

Walton was arrested at the 'Plains, Sunday morning, by Officer Pangborn, for disorderly conduct. He was arraigned before Judge Clark Monday under the name of John Jones, which he gave as his own, and was fined. He sent word to friends in this city and the amount was raised but when they went to pay it over, Walton claims, no one could be found to take it. After an unsuccessful search they placed the matter in the hands of Attorney Nash and it was not until Tuesday that the latter located the proper official to take the money and release Walton.

The plaintiff says he is an employe of the Hegemen Drug Corporation in New York and that his position was jeopardized by his detention.

The members of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., held a conclave Monday night. Laying aside their regalias they worked the Order of the Red Cross on four persons, two from Westfield and the others from here. It is customary for the commandery to call off in warm weather, but these persons desire to make the pilgrimage to California in August and for that reason the conclaves are held.

Martin Case Dismissed.

The much tried case brought by Walter Thompson against Edward Martin on charges of rough treatment and assault on the baggage platform at the North Avenue station, was lengthily discussed in Justice Hand's court yesterday afternoon, and finally dismissed. The judge summed up the affair as a mere instance of bad blood between the two men and dismissed the case with dispatch. William G. DeMeza, Esq., represented the prosecutor, and S. S. Swackhamer, Esq., was counsel for the defense.

Miner and Koons Won at Tennis.

Vincent B. Miner and Chauncey M. Koons defeated Paul R. Collier and Fred M. Letson in the Y. M. C. A. midsummer tennis tournament at the association courts yesterday afternoon. The scores of the play were 6-8, 6-0 and 6-2, three sets being necessary for the match. Owing to the small number of entries the winning team will not have to play against until the finals, which will be played off the last of the week, if dates can be arranged.

Big Excursion Tomorrow.

There is every indication that a large crowd will accompany Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school on its annual excursion to Asbury Park, tomorrow, and the weather prophets say that the day will be an ideal one at the shore. A day at the seashore is as good as a tonic. The excursion will take place rain or shine. The train will leave here at 8 o'clock and Asbury Park at 7 o'clock on the return, stopping at Long Branch both ways.

Of this sum $14,009.85 was forwarded to the grand secretary and $2,344 was sent direct to Baltimore before the general circular was issued. However, the Baltimore lodge determined not to use any of this donation, and the fund has been ordered distributed among the lodges that contributed it. The largest donation, amounting to $1,000, was contributed by the Allegheny, Pa., lodge.

W. J. O'Brien was elected grand exalted ruler, receiving 710 votes, while Samuel H. Needs, of Cleveland, Ohio, received 379. The election of the remaining officers continued until late last night.

NO OPPOSITION TO HOWELL

REPUBLICAN LEADERS DECIDE ON HARMONY PLAN IN THIRD DISTRICT.

It is that almost feverish desire on the part of the Republican State leaders to make things easy for E. C. Stokes for the gubernatorial nomination that, through the joint influence of Senators Kean and Dryden, has led to the announcement that Congressman Benjamin F. Howell is to have no opposition for renomination in the Third District, which includes Middlesex county.

A few months ago it was expected that the Middlesex machine, controlled by State Assessor Theodore Strong, would make a demonstration against Howell in the primaries in anticipation of the Congressman joining hands with the anti-Strong forces in the county to upset Strong's machine next year.

Now it is officially announced thath is demonstration has been called off, Howell will have hings his own way in the primaries, and in return will be asked to please not try to wreck the Strong machine next year.

Fireworks and Concert Aug. 29.

The success attained by the fireworks and band concert in connection with the Italian celebration, last evening, was noted by S. Nardiello, leader of Cardenieri's Harlem R.H. band, and he has decided to conduct a similar affair at the same place. To a Daily Press reporter today he said he would give a display of fireworks and band concert in the Park on August 29 that would exceed anything of the kind yet attempted locally.

Complaint Dismissed.

After hearing the evidence, yesterday afternoon, Justice Hand dismissed the charge of assault and battery brought by Nicola Vasteno against Antonio Ceree. The complainant's testimony did not show that he had been subjected to the violent treatment he alleged originally and Ceree denied striking him.

SOMERVILLE TO HAVE A NINE

OFFER MADE BY SCOTCH PLAINS TEAM TO DON COUNTY SEAT UNIFORM.

Negotiations are pending which may result in Somerville having a star baseball team equal to the nine that was there in the palmy days of the West Ends. The Scotch Plains team, which is composed of some of the best semi-professional players in the country, desires to finish its schedule in Somervill and has made the baseball association that was organized in Somerville last spring an exceptionally good offer. Some of the teams listed for games are such high-grade nines as the Westfields, New York A. C. and Aeolians.

If the citizens encourage this deal and will support the men who are interested in engineering it through Altamont Field will be put in good shape, the grandstand enlarged and covered and one of the most attractive ball parks in this section will be the result. The team will represent Somerville and Raritan on the diamond and the calibre of its members is such that it cannot help but give a good account of itself. Montross and Allen are the battery and while playing at Scotch Plains the pitcher shut out several teams in succession in the early part of the season.

Saturday afternoons are virtually a holiday in Somerville and for a long time there has been almost nothing to enliven them. With a great ball team here throngs of people would be attracted to town, and if this can be done those at the head of the scheme believe it would lead to business for the merchants. Surely, it would be a fine thing for lovers of the national game and those seeking entertainment.

I. O. O. F. Joint Installation Tonight.

The work will be in charge of Past District Deputy Grand Master, John Becker, of this city, assisted by the entire staff of District Deputy Grand Master Crowther, of Perth Amboy, who found it impossible to be in attendance. Following the installation there will be a smoker and a general good time.

JUSTICE ASSAULTS LAWYER IN HIS COURT

V. W. Nash, Jr., is Injured in Attack Made on Him by 'Squire Hezekiah Hand.

MAY LOSE COMMISSION

ATTORNEY ASKS GOVERNOR MURPHY TO INVESTIGATE THE AFFAIR.

Trouble Arises Over Lawyer Questioning Justice's Right to Sit in a Case—W. L. Hetfield, Sr., Passes Derogatory Remarks.

Bad blood arising from the recent case in which Mrs. John Hubbard preferred charges against Justice Hezekiah Hand, led up to a disgraceful scene in the latter's court room yesterday afternoon, when the aged justice handled Attorney V. W. Nash, Jr., in anything but a gentle manner. Roused to a fever heat of excitement by the young lawyer's questioning his right to pass judgment in a suit brought by William G. DeMeza, Esq., against Mrs. Carrie Carbone, Squire Hand pounced upon him and both rolled about the floor for a minute or more before they were separated. In the scuffle, Nash was scratched in the face, his knee was hurt and he presented a most woe begone sight. A fountain pen in his pocket was broken and the ink from it covered his features and spattered over his clothing. Hard words were passed and the place was in an uproar until Nash left and the justice was forced to calm down.

The suit which precipitated matters was instituted by DeMeza to recover from Mrs. Carbone $70, a balance of a bill rendered against her for legal services furnished when she was recently charged with conducting a "speak easy." Hearing had been set for 2 o'clock and as that time everyone interested was there except the defendant and her counsel, Nash. Harry C. Runyon, Esq., representing DeMeza, asked that judgment be rendered in favor of his client and according to the usual procedure, his request was granted. Fifteen minutes later, Attorney Nash and several friends entered the room and spoke of the DeMeza-Carbone suit. He was informed by Justice Hand that the matter had been disposed of and intimated that if no one had any business with the court it would be better if they left the room.

The young attorney quickly arose and declared it was customary for a justice to allow a half hour's grace in court matters but to his argument no reply was made. Continuing his remarks he informed Squire Hand that he challenged his right to sit in the matter, on the ground that his bondsman was dead and he had no legal right to serve as he had been doing. Hand was greatly nettled by this and consulting with Counsellor Runyon was informed that the challenge had no bearing on the case in question and he requested Counsellor Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., to explain why.

Mr. Hetfield, who is Hand's counsel in the Hubbard matter, quickly did so and his remarks resolved themselves into a severe arraignment of Attorney Nash and his father, Justice Nash, before whom the Hubbard complaint was sworn out. He denounced in unmeasured terms the part both father and son had taken in it and termed the move of the son in bringing up the bondsman matter, flimsy excuse to attack Justice Hand, a man of excellent reputation. At the conclusion of these remarks Attorney Nash prepared to present appeal papers for Mrs. Carbone and at this juncture, Justice Hand arose and ordered him to leave his court and never enter it again. Scarcely waiting for him to get his hat, the justice seized Nash by the shoulders and started to shove him. In an instant both had clinched and the struggle was in progress.

As they rolled about the floor there was considerable kicking and sparring, Nash exclaiming repeatedly, "I don't want to hit you, Judge." The struggle might have resulted seriously but for the interference of Counsellor DeMeza who pulled Hand to his feet and stood him off. Matters were just beginning to calm down when another bout was nearly precipitated by one of the spectators shouting out that Hand was "a big stuff." He was hustled out in short order and calm was restored by Nash and his friends leaving the room.

In speaking of the occurrence today, Attorney Nash said he would not take any legal proceedings but it was his intention to appeal to Governor Murphy to have Justice Hand's commission revoked. The justice preferred to say nothing about the matter.

"HAPPY JACK" IN A RAGE

CATER ALLEGED TO HAVE BEATEN HIS WIFE BECAUSE SHE HIT DOG.

"Happy Jack" Cater's devotion to his dog was the cause of a fast and furious scrap at the Cater home on New street late Tuesday evening. "Happy Jack" was peacefully seated on his porch in the late evening hours, when a yelp from within aroused him to an exploration of its causes. Within he found "Mrs. Happy" soundly cuffing the dog, and her explanation that the animal had snapped at their five-year-old child seemed only to rouse further wrath on the part of the animal's master.

"Happy Jack," it is related, promptly avenged what he supposed to be injustice to the dog by a brutal attack on his wife. In a fierce passion, it is said, he threw her to the floor, struck and beat her, scratched her face and pulled her hair. Mrs. Cater's screams attracted the attention of a neighbor, who promptly telephoned to police headquarters for an officer.

The arrival of the patrol wagon with a delegation from headquarters found man and wife as peace and as Mrs. Cater refused to press charges against her husband, no arrest was made.

MAY NOT ACCEPT BRIDGE

FREEHOLDERS TO TAKE ACTION ON BOILER COMPANY'S WORK.

Now that the line bridge on Girard avenue is practically completed, it is up to the Freeholders to accept the structure. It is understood that the officials are not altogether satisfied with the iron work as furnished by the Dover Boiler Works and that concessions likely to be asked for. The bridge committee from the Union County Board will soon meet the Somerset County members at the bridge, inspect the same and pass judgment.

The Dover Boiler Works has been the object of much censure ever since the work of building the bridge was commenced. The excuse for delay in finishing the bridge was that it was impossible to get iron. This excuse was accepted for a time, but later it was considered too weak to hold. After much prodding, the Dover concern came up to time and completed its contract. Just how satisfactory the work is will be determined at the meeting of the Freeholders.

It is said that the Somerset County Freeholders were inclined to be too easy with the Dover people and that for this reason the iron manufacturers were inclined to take undue advantage. When the bridge committee from the Union County Board got after them there was something doing and the contract was rushed along.

THROWN FROM AUTO.

New Brunswick Party Upset While Speeding Through Borough.

George Wiedenthal, of New Brunswick, accompanied by three friends, two of whom were women, met with an automobile accident on Wilson avenue in the borough, yesterday afternoon. The party rode through Harrison avenue and going down the hill on Wilson avenue, the machine ran into a ditch and upset the occupants.

Fortunately the machine was going slow and the men and women landed on soft ground, escaping injury. It required but little effort to right the automobile and soon afterward the journey was continued.

No Band Concert Tomorrow Night.

City and borough residents are reminded of the fact that there will be no band concert in Concert Park tomorrow evening. The next one will be given on July 29 and will be one of the best of the season. Leader La Vere received positive assurance today that "Billy" Murray would be the soloist and would sing "Oysters and Clams", "Blue Bell" and other selections.

The Next Excursion.

The next Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove will be that of the Plainfield and Dunellen Methodist churches, which goes on Thursday, July 28. The train leaves Dunellen at 7:35 and this city at 8 o'clock, and those who go will have a full day at the shore.

Death of An Infant.

Little Annie Thompson, the eight-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Thompson, of Grant avenue, died last night from acute cholera infantum. The funeral will be held this afternoon from St. Mary's church and interment will follow in St. Mary's cemetery.

KINSMAN'S INVENTION INSTALLED IN SUBWAY

Plainfielder's Block Signal Accepted by New York Rapid Transit Company.

PATENT'S DESCRIPTION

RAILWAY AGE GIVES ACCURATE ACCOUNT OF ITS WORKINGS.

Scores of Similar Devices Rejected—Mr. Kinsman's Invention Being Considered Preferable—Affords Greatest Safety.

The New York Rapid Transit subway, probably the largest in the world, which is to be opened for traffic in September, is equipped throughout with the Kinsman block signal, designed and built by F. E. Kinsman, of this city. It was selected after scores of similar devices had been tried and rejected and in preliminary tests has proved everything claimed for it by the inventor. Speaking of the subway and its many devices, the Railway Age has the following remarks and description of the Kinsman safeguard:

"Fulfilling the preconception on which the whole scheme of signalling is based, that nothing shall be omitted that shall contribute measurably to the safe operation of the subway, an automatic train-stop of a new form was designed and is installed under an agreement with the Kinsman Block System Company of New York. This, like every other moving part in the system of signals, is controlled by an electric valve, the position of which is at the bottom of the post that supports the block signal instruments, whence an inch pipe extends to the cylinder, about opposite the signal post, situate in a box in the middle of the track, which box also contains a counterweight, acting against the piston and maintaining the stoparm in an upright position above the top of the rail when its signal one block in advance stands at danger. The stop-arm is placed outside of the rail and is connected with its operating cylinder by a square shaft; the cylinder valve is controlled by a circuit breaker worked by the home signal arm which is in the circuit operating the safety-stop cylinder magnet. In the present arrangement a danger signal breaks this circuit, which cuts off pressure from the cylinder and permits the stop-arm to assume an upright position.

"On opposite sides, at each end of every motor car (two to each car) in the sub-way, an arm will project downward and connect with the air-brake train pipe, so that when a signal is in the danger position its stop-arm stands above the rail and will be struck by the downward arm of any car which attempts to pass, with the result of applying the air-brakes to the train. But in order that trains may not be delayed because of some derangement in the mechanism it is possible for one of the train crew to alight and lower the stop-arm until the train has passed it. This is a necessary provision, since the facilitation of traffic under proper safeguards is of the first importance in places of this sort. It is accomplished by means of a socket-key which fits the shaft in the automatic stop valve, the end of which is exposed; then, by turning this key, the automatic stop valve is mechanically opened, admitting pressure to the cylinder and so lowering the stop. The arrangement requires that the members of the crew who have cleared the stop shall hold the key until the train has passed, since upon releasing the key the pressure immediately escapes from the cylinder and the stop resumes the danger position."

WHOLESALE FINING IN THE BOROUGH COURT

Recorder Doud Imposes Penalties on Twenty-Seven Italians in a Single Clip.

BOROUGH $340 RICHER

CARMAN VANNANZE THE FIRST TO BE PUNISHED.

"Beer Parties on Sunday Must Cease," Says the Borough Recorder—Fracas at Hudson Lane.

"Sunday beer parties in the borough must cease," exclaimed Recorder Doud in the North Plainfield court, last evening, and he straightway proceeded to show what part he was going to take to bring about their cessation. Twenty-seven Italians who were implicated in the Hudson Lane brawl last Sunday, were arraigned before him singly and when he concluded fining them the borough was $340 richer. But one or two of the men suspected what was in store for them and though the majority demurred they paid up in preference to going to jail. Four of them spent the night in the lock-up but this morning they decided to do as the others had done and produced the amount of their fines.

It was thought all along that last night's hearing was called only to dispose of Carman Vannanze and Felocci, who were charged with disorderly conduct in connection with Sunday's stabbing affair. All the Italians who were in the house at the time were called, as they thought, as witnesses, and they crowded the court room. Vannanze and Felocci were arraigned and fined $30 each, and then the "witnesses" were called. Chief Marshal Weiss preferred a charge of disorderly conduct against each one and five more were fined $20, twenty were asked to pay $10 and one was discharged. The latter was Mike Ricardo, who got in front of Vannanze's stiletto and received several stabs that the court considered punishment enough.

Recorder Doud wasted no words in dealing out the fines but before and afterward he expressed himself in unmeasured terms on the Sunday disturbance question. There is altogether too much of it, he said, and he was going to do everything in his power to bring about a better state of affairs.

Counsellor F. J. Blats and Attorney V. W. Nash, Jr., appeared for several of the men who first refused to pay and in conversation the former declared the indiscriminate fining was "rank injustice."

COMPANY K'S CLUB ROOM

ARRANGEMENTS MADE TO USE ARMORY FOR SOCIAL ENJOYMENT.

At a meeting of Co. K last night it was decided to keep the rooms open every night and allow the members to use the armory as a clubroom. Various games will be provided with which the militia boys can pass the time away. On Sundays the armory will be open from 2 o'clock in the afternoon and in the evening as well, but no games will be allowed on that day, neither will the playing of the piano be permitted. Private Wilson was appointed janitor to look after the rooms.

This matter has been under consideration for some time, the soldier boys desiring a place where they can pass away the evening hours and Sundays. In having the place open on Sunday, the members do not propose to allow any thing that will in any sense become a nuisance and Captain Martin has given strict orders as to how the members shall conduct themselves.

Supposed Stolen Wheel Returned.

P. J. Hickey, who reported to the police a few days ago that his wheel had been stolen, informed Chief Kiely today that it had been returned to him. It had been taken from him in a joke, he said, but he was not aware of it when he informed the police.

Violated Bicycle Ordinance.

Sylvanus Searles, of this city, was arrested in the borough yesterday for violating the bicycle ordinance. Judge Doud let him go on suspended sentence, last evening.

CHAIRMAN STOKES FEELS PUBLIC PULSE

Head of Republican State Committee Finds Feeling of Unrest in Union County.

DISLIKE GOV. MURPHY

LEGISLATURE REPRESENTS CORPORATIONS AND NOT THE PEOPLE.

Failure of Legislature to Pass Equal Taxation Measure May be An Issue Here—Belief in Roosevelt's Honesty.

Edward C. Stokes, as acting chairman of the Republican State committee, has received a number of replies to the communications sent to the chairman of county committees some time ago in an endeavor to get as accurate reports as possible of the exact political conditions in the State. The requests were sent out by the State Republican committee in the form of six questions. The committee caused it to be understood that they wanted the answers based on the most reliable information obtainable, and all tendencies toward anything like rainbow chasing curbed. These six questions were:

"What is the general political condition in your county?

"Are the people satisfied with Republican policies and legislation or not?

"What legislation, national or State, that has been enacted or failed as likely to figure in the campaign?

"What influence will this have, favorable or adverse?

"How does President Roosevelt stand in your county; is he stronger than his party?

"What are the elements of strength among the Democrats?"

The chairmen of thirteen out of the twenty-one counties sent replies, all of which were written before the national conventions had made their nominations, which accounts for their answers to the fifth and sixth queries. The counties not heard from are: Atlantic, Cumberland, Essex, Hunterdon, Mercer, Ocean, Passaic and Warren. Essex, by the way, was not asked to reply to the questions because the conditions in this county were said to be thoroughly satisfactory from a Republican standpoint. Generally speaking, the answers have a ring of Republican confidence, but there are discordial notes from Hudson, Union and one or two other counties.

The report from Union cannot be accused of being over colored. The general situation is said to be fairly satisfactory. There is a feeling of unrest among the people and a great deal of discontent regarding Republican legislation is heard. There is a good deal of feeling in favor of the pigeon bill and that the Executive interferes too much with the Legislature, while the general feeling is that the Legislature represents the corporations and not the people. The failure of the Legislature to pass any equal taxation measure, it is said, will probably be one of the issues of the campaign. It is felt that something must be wrong when the Governor has to call the Legislature back so often.

"Were this not a Presidential year," says the report, "such things would have an adverse influence on our vote." Undoubtedly President Roosevelt is stronger than his party and his elements of strength among the Democrats are the relief of the people in his honesty, his freedom from control by corporations and his personal bravery.

Swapped Farm for Two Properties.

John Ross, of East Seventh street, acting as broker today completed a real state deal. He exchanged Calvin Drake's farm of seventy acres in Piscataway township for two properties, one on Somerset place and the other on Arlington avenue, owned by D. N. Force. Mr. Force is a speculator and he does not know at present what disposition he will make of his farm. The transaction in round figures amounts to about $14,000.

J. E. Gardner to Live Here.

J. E. Gardner, of New York, is having his property at the corner of Grove street and Linden avenue altered and thoroughly prepared with the intention of occupying it himself. Mr. Gardner is a millionaire who owns several real estate tracts in the city and borough and he has always been great admirer of both places. He will remove here in the fall.

W. A. Boone, Jr., Is Here.

A son arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Arthur Boone, of Hobart avenue, yesterday morning.

TOLD OF TENEMENT CONDITIONS

MRS. DIEHL DESCRIBED AWFUL SUFFERING OF NEW YORK'S POOR.

In the interests of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp, Mrs. Diehl, a New Yorker who has for many years been engaged in mission work among the poor of that city, gave a vivid description of the overcrowded conditions near her field of work before a large gathering at Hope chapel last evening. Mrs. Diehl is connected with the People's Pilgrim church of New York, a church which has for its field of operations the overcrowded tenement section on the East Side in the vicinity of East Eleventh street, between avenues A and B. She is a vivid speaker and presented to her audience many apt word pictures of the hot weather suffering among the poor in a section where ten thousand people are compelled to find lodgings in the compass of a city block.

Concluding the address, Mrs. Diehl made a strong plea for assistance of the beneficial work at Camp Woolfe and spoke in terms of praise of those who devote their time to the good work at the camp. The lecture was to have been accompanied by the display of stereopticon views from the field of work in New York, but through some mischance, these views did not arrive in time to be displayed.

TO ORGANIZE A BOYS' CLUB

LADS IN ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH PARISH TO BAND TOGETHER.

Several persons connected with St. Stephen's church have become interested in the formation of a boy's club in the church and all boys between the ages of 7 and 17 years are cordially invited to meet at the church tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock to take action in the matter.

Some of the local churches already have well-organized boys' clubs and they have been the means of interesting the boys in church work and eventually leading them to become active in other departments of the church.

The organization at St. Stephen's church is in no sense to be a religious organization and all fellows in the neighborhood of the church, if they have the consent of their parents will be eligible to membership. The minister in charge at the church will assist and be in charge of the organization.

"Rex" Entered in Race.

William J. McDonough, better known in the horsemen's world as "Handsome" McDonough, left today with Rex, Adam Blair's fast trotter, to act as that horse's driver in the Eastern Circuit Races, to begin at Bethlehem, Pa., on Saturday. "Rex" is well known in the speeding world for his time records and has been making creditable showings at local races in past seasons. "Handsome" drove the animal the mile in 2:21 last Saturday at the Driving Park, but better figures have been recorded and both driver and owner expect a good showing in the out of town races.

K. of P. Field Day.

The following entertainment committee has been appointed by the Lodge of the Castle, of Somerville, to arrange for the Knights of Pythias field day at that place: W. D. Quick, J. A. Maxwell, Jas. Q. TenEyck, W. J. DeMond, J. G. Gaston and C. D. McMurtry. A meeting of citizens will be held in Somerset Hall tonight to arrange details for handling the crowd. Arrangements were made for a parade over Main, High and Cliff streets and Altamont place. There will be prize drills on High street.

Tennis Tournament Play.

Tournament play in the Y. M. C. A. midsummer tennis tournament will be held this afternoon, when the Rogers brothers will meet Aalholm and Mundy in tournament play. This match will be the last in the semi-final round and Monday will probably see play in the finals, at which time the winners of this afternoon's match will play Miner and Koons.

"Klondike" Sold.

Neaf Apgar, the Somerville horseman, has concluded the sale of his noted trotter, "Klondike," who holds a record of 2:11¼ in race trotting. The purchaser, Walter Frothingham, of Somerville, is said to have paid $2,000 for the animal.

Return From Camp.

Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. returned from Camp Cahoone yesterday, accompanied by the eight leaders who assisted him in breaking camp at Lake Hopatcong.

MEAT STRIKE ENDS; PLENTY OF BEEF NOW

Two Carloads of Live Cattle Arrive Here and Slaughter Will Commence at Once.

VICTORY FOR MEN

SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE MEANS MUCH FOR WORKMEN.

Employes to Go Back in a Body—Republican Anxiety is Relieved—President Roosevelt is Pleased.

For two good reasons Plainfield may cease to worry about a further rise in beef prices or the prospect of a meat famine. First, the meat strike was declared at an end last night and second two carloads of live cattle arrived in the city last evening, consigned to one of the local beef houses. They will relieve the local situation until the usual shipments begin to arrive. A temporary permit has been granted the dealers to slaughter the cattle on the outskirts of the borough and in a day or so butchers will be enabled to make purchases.

Settlement of the strike was practically a victory for the men. Following a conference held yesterday afternoon, they agreed to return to work on a compromise. The wages and working conditions of all the men who went out will be settled by an arbitration board composed of three practical packing house men. The packers will reinstate all men as fast as possible without discrimination. If any man be not reinstated within forty-five days, he is to have the privilege of bringing his case before the arbitration board although the leaders do not believe that such a contingency will arise. The packers waived their original demand that the strikers should make application as individuals for reinstatement. The workers will go back in a body, with their organization intact. It is declared the hand of President Roosevelt was plainly evident in the conference, as government officials were in Chicago for several days reminding the packers that their every movement in the stock yards would be watched. When the news of the settlement was received by the chief executive at Oyster Bay last night he expressed great satisfaction but made no comment.

OFF FOR ASBURY.

Many Carloads Compose Trinity Excursion Bound for Shore.

The thirteen coaches composing one section engaged to carry the members and friends of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school to Asbury Park, this morning, were not sufficient, and it was arranged to put two extra cars on the train at Roselle. When the train left here every seat was taken and the aisles were occupied with standing excursionists. It was generally believed that the excursion would be about the largest of the season and it started under most favorable auspices.

Thomas Flanagan was in charge of the train as conductor, and William Dunham, of Dunellen, the engineer. The committee from Trinity Reformed church in charge of the excursion was composed of Elias H. Bird, H. E. Gayle, H. C. VanEmburgh, James A. Love, Chauncey F. Colthar, Charles Zimmer and F. A. Smith.

The train left here a few minutes past 8 o'clock. The excursionists are scheduled to leave the shore tonight at 7 o'clock and should arrive home about 9 o'clock.

Rev. Mr. Francis to Preach Here.

Rev. James A. Francis, formerly of Boston, but now stopping with his brother, Rev. George A. Francis, of Westfield, will preach at the First Baptist church on Sunday. Mr. Francis has occupied this pulpit several times this year and has been favorably received. Next Sunday will be his last for the present. He gave up his regular charge in Boston on account of ill health and it is not likely that he will preach regularly during the summer.

Dentists in Session.

In the auditorium at Asbury Park yesterday was begun the thirty-fourth annual convention of the New Jersey State Dental Society. The convention will be continued today and end tomorrow.

Miss A. Mason, of Plainfield, is included in the registration of guests at the Breslin Hotel, Lake Hopatcong.

SUFFRAGISTS CLOSE SESSION

LARGELY ATTENDED MEETING OF WOMEN AT ASBURY PARK.

The New Jersey Woman Suffragist Association resumed its semi-annual session in Asbury Park Tuesday. At 9:30 o'clock there was an executive meeting, conducted with much secrecy. As a matter of fact, "mum" was the password, and whether the women in star chamber agreed upon a campaign in behalf of the ballot franchise, or whether the meeting related only to pleasant detail, would not be ascertained. The proceedings were absolutely sub rosa.

At 11 o'clock there was a business meeting, not concluded until a late hour in the afternoon, at which a minor change in the constitution was discussed, empowering officers to transact business by correspondence.

After recess the women convened at 8 o'clock in the Young People's temple. Among the speakers Tuesday afternoon were the Rev. Leslie Willis Sprague, Mrs. Emma Bourne, president of the New Jersey Women's Christian Temperance Union; Miss Ida A. Craft, treasurer of the New York City Political Equality League; Dr. Mary D. Hussey, who talked upon "Laws of Interest to Women;" Mrs. M. G. Sexton, whose subject was "Fruits of Woman Suffrage," and Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, who gave an ideal of "A Suffragist Vacation."

The convention closed last night. Bishop Fitzgerald, of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, made an address, which gave the women great encouragement in their cause.

Thomas Woodcock, of West Seventh street, is entertaining relatives from Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Barton, of West Fifth street, have gone to Belmar to spend two weeks.

B. C. Firstbrook, of West Fifth street, has returned from a few days visit with relatives at Dover.

John T. Green and son Robert, of Somerset street, sail tomorrow for England to spend several weeks with relatives.

PLENTY OF PROOF.

From People You Know—From Plainfield Citizens.

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced in the face of evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Plainfield, of people who can be seen at any time. Read the following case of it:

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 732 West Third street, says: "For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that time on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was so weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or overexerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got little if any relief. I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name Doan's and take no substitute.

BOOK NEWS.

It is planned to issue on Thursday of each week items of library news. This will frequently take the form of book lists, such as lists of books recently added, lists on special subjects and like topics. Frequently the lists will be annotated, the aim being to make these annotations of real service to the reader, by giving him the opinion of a trustworthy critic as to the value of the books or a few words as to their scope. Borrowers should keep these lists. The Plainfield Public Library will furnish to anyone making application a list of its books on a given subject.

WATERBOY AT BRIGHTON.

Champion of Last Year Defeated Broomstick With Ease.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Waterboy, the champion of last year, won the fifth race at Brighton beach, defeating Rosetint and Broomstick, the latter the holder of the world's record of 2:02 4-5 for one mile and a quarter. Waterboy's victory roused as much enthusiasm as did Broomstick's nine days ago when he won the Brighton handicap.

Broomstick was always a favorite, closing at 4 to 5, while Waterboy, who opened at 7 to 5, was pounded down to 11 to 10, all the big plungers sending big commissions into the ring.

Broomstick showed in front as the horses passed the stand the first time, but in making the paddock turn Odom sent Waterboy into the lead. In the run down the back stretch Waterboy was leading by a head from Broomstick. Rounding the far turn Waterboy drew away, and a great shout went up from the stand as the black horse took a commanding lead. In the stretch Odom was looking back at the field and won easily by a length and a half. Rosetint, who was running last all the way, closed with a rush in the stretch and beat the fast tiring Broomstick for the place.

Lady Amelia, favorite, won the Glen Cove handicap by four lengths.

Racing at Rome, N. Y.

ROME, N. Y., July 21.—Three races were run over a fair track at Riverside park, which was the second day of the Mohawk Valley and Hudson River circuit meeting in this city. Sam Ryslyke, owned by Dr. Bean of Ganaanoque, Canada, and Single K., owned by A. B. Cummings of Reading, Pa., were favorites at long odds. Considerable money was lost in backing Alexander Campbell.

Loretta M. at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 21.—Loretta M., by winning the feature of the racing card at the fair grounds, stamped herself as one of the best two-year-olds on a sloppy track in training here. Loretta M. and Broomhandle raced like a team in front of their field until well down the run home, where the former drew away and won easily.

Happy Returns For Tilford.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Tomorrow Mr. Frank Tilford will celebrate his birthday by giving 750 little girls of the Little Mothers' Aid association a fresh air and pleasure trip. They will have a trolley ride to Coney Island. A lunch will be served on the grounds. Everything possible will be done to give the children an enjoyable day and make their hearts happy. This treat is an addition to his usual Christmas dinner which he gives to these children every year.

Revenue Cutter Saved.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—The United States revenue cutter Daniel Manning went ashore at Point Montara, about fifteen miles south of the entrance to this harbor. Two tugs and three life saving crews hurried to her assistance and pulled her from her perilous position. The Manning was on her way to this city from San Pedro, after having towed the disabled bark Willicott to the port.

Textile Workers Will Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 21.—By a vote of 1,510 to 396 the textile workers last evening decided to strike on July 25 in all of the so called union cotton mills of this city where a 12½ per cent reduction in wages has been announced to become operative next Monday. Thirty thousand employees are affected.

Murder Relics Burned.

BELGRADE, Servia, July 21.—The blood stained furniture and the wardrobes of the late King Alexander and Queen Draga have been made a bonfire of in the palace grounds, King Peter having refused to hand them over to the sisters of the murdered queen, fearing that they might be devoted to political uses.

MEAT STRIKE OVER

Chicago Packers and Striking Employees Settle Disputes.

MEN OUT TO BE TAKEN BACK AT ONCE

Agreement In Chicago Covers Employees Involved by Strike In Other Cities, Who Have Been Notified to Return to Work.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The strike of packing house employees, begun nine days ago and which has demoralized the packing industry throughout the country, was settled here last night at a conference between representatives of the packers, the officials of the Meat Cutters' union and representatives of all the allied trades employed at the stockyards. The whole controversy will be submitted to a board of arbitrators, both sides agreeing to abide by whatever decision this board may reach. Pending the decision of the arbitration board the men will be taken back to work as rapidly as possible by the packers, and it is agreed by the packers that all the old employees are to be reinstated within forty-five days from the date work is resumed. If any of the former employees are still unemployed at the expiration of that time, such persons are to have the privilege of submitting their cases to the arbitration board for settlement.

The strikers will return to work as soon as they can be notified of the peaceful adjustment of the trouble, and it is expected that by tomorrow morning everything will be in normal shape at all the plants in the different cities where the employees were on strike. Half an hour after the decision had been reached last night to arbitrate, M. J. Donnelly, the strike leader, had secured communication by long distance telephone with the leaders of the strikers in outside cities and had notified them that a satisfactory settlement had been reached and directed the strikers to return to work as soon as possible.

The settlement of the difficulty by arbitration was brought about by the allied crafts at the stockyards, who would have become involved in the controversy had it continued much longer. The representatives of these unions, which represent about 11,000 men, got together and sent a final appeal to the packers, asking for a three sided conference between the packers, the strikers and themselves in a final effort to get both sides of the controversy together again and arrange some sort of agreement.

Roosevelt Greatly Pleased.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 21.—President Roosevelt has received information regarding the settlement of the beef strike on the basis of arbitration. He made no comment for publication upon the news, but was evidently greatly pleased. Gifford Pinchat, chief of the division of forestry of the agricultural department, is a guest of the president at Sagamore Hill. Mr. Pinchat, who is a member of the commission that is investigating the laws relating to irrigation and government timber lands, is here to discuss with the president some features of the work of the commission.

Judge Muir Drowned In Surf.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 21.—Judge Upton Muir of Louisville, Ky., who was spending his vacation here, has lost his life in the surf while bathing. The judge entered the water directly in front of the Stockton hotel and had been enjoying his bath for about half an hour before he was drowned. He was in the water about knee deep and at a point where there are no gullies. Several persons on the beach saw him fall face downward, and as he did not immediately get up some of the bathers went to his rescue. He was unconscious, and every effort was made to resuscitate him without success. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental drowning, believing that the judge probably was taken with cramps, as the water was quite cool, or that death was due to heart failure.

Apache Lost Her Propeller.

NEW YORK, July 21.—The Clyde line steamer Apache, which sailed July 19 for Jacksonville and Charleston, has returned to port in tow of the steamer Comanche, having lost her propeller. The Apache was proceeding down the coast during the night, and was off Absecum when the accident occurred. Officers of the steamer could account for the accident in no other way than that the propeller may have struck a sunken wreck or other submerged object. The steamer was obliged to lay to and when the Clyde liner Comanche hove in sight she took the disabled steamer in tow and brought her back to port.

London Honors Curzon.

LONDON, July 21.—The freedom of the city of London, in a gold casket, was presented to Lord Curzon of Kedleston, viceroy of India, at the Guildhall with all the customary ceremonial. The old city hall was filled with a distinguished gathering of cabinet ministers, Indian princes, members of parliament and other notables.

Ship on Fire Off Eastport.

EASTPORT, N. Y., July 21.—A vessel was afire at sea off this place last evening. The fire was apparently about thirty miles out at sea, and a dense cloud of smoke towered high above it. The distance from shore made it impossible to tell even with the best glasses what sort of a craft was burning.

Emperor Does Not Approve of Red Sea Seizures.

MALACCA'S BRITISH CREW PRISONERS

Vessel Carried No Contraband of War—London Deeply Stirred by Outrage on English Ship and Flag.

LONDON, July 21.—A special from St. Petersburg says that the Emperor Nicholas, in an interview with Count Lamsdorff, the foreign minister, has expressed his displeasure at the turn events have taken and at the possibility of complications with Great Britain arising out of the detention of British ships by the Russian volunteer fleet steamers in the Red sea.

This pacific attitude will doubtless lead to an immediate and amicable adjustment of the difficulties.

A special Tokyo dispatch says:

"At 9:30 a. m. July 20 the Vladivostok squadron fired on and sunk a Japanese steamboat of 318 tons off the coast of Isoya, about twenty-five miles from Hakodate. All of the crew were landed safely at Cape Yesan."

A dispatch from Port Said says:

"The Peninsular and Oriental line steamship Malacca, which was seized in the Red sea by the steamship St. Petersburg of the Russian volunteer fleet, has arrived, flying the Russian flag and manned by a Russian prize crew, consisting of a captain, four officers and forty-five men.

"The ship is detained by the Suez canal authorities, who will await instructions before taking further action."

The British crew are prisoners and were not allowed to communicate with the shore.

The British captain protested several times against the Russians' action in seizing his vessel and was threatened with arrest.

Complaints of their treatment were made by the passengers.

Libau, on the Baltic, is the Malacca's destination.

The Malacca carried no contraband of war for Japan. Her cargo of 3,000 tons included forty tons of explosives consigned to Hongkong.

The Malacca's passengers have been transferred to the Peninsular and Oriental company's steamship Marmora. The company was not allowed to communicate with the Malacca.

It is said that the Malacca had been specially waited for by the Russians on secret information from Antwerp that she was carrying ammunition and ironwork for a crane at Moji, Japan. She was arrested when two and a half miles off Great Hanish island, near Jebel Zukour, in spite of her captain's protest that the ammunition on board was intended for the British navy at Singapore and Hongkong. The crew of the Malacca were kept under strict arrest, and when they arrived at Suez they were not allowed to communicate with the shore. The Malacca on arrival at Port Said asked for 400 tons of coal, 220 tons of fresh water and provisions for Cherbourg. The case was referred to the Egyptian government, it being the first time on record that an alleged prize had been taken through the canal under a different flag.

The German steamship Sambia of the Hamburg-American line, which was seized, is expected at Suez today.

A later dispatch from Port Said says that the captain of the Malacca protested strongly against the seizure of his ship by the Russians and refused to lower his flag, nailing it to the mast. Russian sailors, at the command of their officers, tore it down, the captain still protesting.

It was reported on the Baltic Exchange that the Malacca had been prevented from leaving Port Said by ships of the British Mediterranean squadron.

Sir Thomas Sutherland, chairman of the Peninsular and Oriental company, said that the company was entirely in the dark as to the cause of the Russian seizure of the Malacca.

There is growing here a remarkably hostile feeling against Russia, of a strength and a bitterness almost without precedent since the Crimean war. Even the most conservative who have been in the service of the government for many years and who openly deplored the haste with which they thought Great Britain had plunged into the Transvaal war, frankly declare for a policy of reprisal against what is regarded here as Russia's violation of treaties and her piratical attack on British commerce.

The warlike tone of such papers as the Times, the Standard, the Morning Post and the Daily Telegraph, which in national crises hitherto almost invariably advised caution, has had its inevitable effect. There has been stirred up a storm of indignation among all classes in the United Kingdom, the strength of which the government itself can scarcely gauge.

Those who deplored the outbreak of the war between Japan and Russia and insisted publicly and privately that Great Britain, crippled financially after her South African experiences, must not at all costs be drawn into the far eastern struggle are now among the most outspoken champions of a physical force that will prevent the repetition of the Malacca incident in the Red sea.

In the hotels and restaurants of St. Petersburg the war is temporarily forgotten and nothing excepting the possibility of complications with Great Britain is talked of. The old resentment against Great Britain, which had been much ameliorated of late, became revived at the mere suggestion that that country was again seeking to balk Russia, but the official world which is charged with the responsibility is keeping cool and calm.

Provided a blunder had not been made by the captain of the St. Petersburg in mistaking British government stores for contraband of war, Russia will probably be prepared to maintain the justice of the seizure, but if a mistake has been made the government doubtless will order the Malacca to be set at liberty and pay the bill for her illegal detention.

Both powers while standing on their rights will, it is believed, do everything possible to avoid cause for a rupture. Whether Great Britain has followed up the step taken here by making representations to the sultan of Turkey regarding his responsibility in allowing the volunteer steamers to pass the Dardanelles is not known in St. Petersburg, but there is the best reason for stating that such is not the case. Great Britain has no intention of reopening the Dardanelles question except possibly as a last resort.

There is expressed at the foreign office and elsewhere almost poignant regret that Russia, rightly or wrongly should have taken up the position evinced by the action of her volunteer cruisers in the Red sea.

Lord Lansdowne's policy since the first whisper of war between Japan and Russia reached Downing street has been one of consistent neutrality. When the outbreak came, it was a matter for no little congratulation, as frequently pointed out in these dispatches, that Great Britain had kept herself free from all entanglements thanks chiefly to the hurrying on of the Anglo-French entente, on the strength of which the diplomats of both nations concerned believed they would be able to be detached as spectators of the struggle in the far east.

The unlooked for developments in the Dardanelles and the Red sea embarrass Lord Lansdowne more than the circumstances themselves would indicate. The government, weakened by internal dissensions, could scarcely stand for a day against a popular demand for reprisals against Russia, and this very danger is being assiduously fostered by leading government newspapers.

The news that there may be an amicable adjustment of the difficulties as the result of an interview between Emperor Nicholas and Count Lamsdorff is not yet known to the British press and public. If such an adjustment eventuates, it will let Premier Balfour's government out of one of the most awkward and most serious crises it has had to face in its checkered career, but it will undoubtedly be several months before the British public can forget what has been described as the most humiliating incident in British history since the Dutch victoriously entered the Thames.

Special dispatches from Malta give alarmist accounts of the hurried departure from that port of the British cruiser and torpedo squadrons. As these movements were publicly announced before the seizure of the Malacca their significance does not savor of the sensational, though their presence at Suez or thereabout may eventually have no little bearing on the situation.

According to a dispatch from Port Said, the Malacca is in charge of a Russian midshipman, an announcement which gives rise to much British naval reminiscence, many present British admirals having helped to precipitate serious conflicts before they were admitted to the wardroom. The same dispatch declares that the union jack was torn down by the Russian prize crew, although the Russians treated the passengers and crew of the Malacca with every courtesy.

The captain of the Malacca asserts that the capture was made within the three mile limit.

The midshipman commanding this prize which has set Europe by the ears and almost threatens consequences more serious than the actual war in the far east, ordered 400 tons of coal at Port Said, but the officials refused to supply the coal on the ground that the vessel had a supply sufficiently ample to take her to the Black sea.

It is understood that the London officials of the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company refused to take a cargo of horseshoe nails and aluminium cooking utensils for the Japanese army by the Malacca and that these were subsequently taken by a German steamer which had already passed through the Red sea "flying the German flag, as this was found to give better protection."

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that the pressure on General Kuropatkin's southern front at Tatchekino is being relieved and that the Japanese are pursuing their favorite flanking tactics, working around to the northeast as if to threaten the communications between Mukden and Liaoyang or to make a direct attack on the latter place.

General Kuropatkin having developed the great strength of the Japanese at Motien pass by Lieutenant General Count Keller's attack, reports that a considerable column of Japanese is advancing along the northern Saimatsza-Liaoyang road. This column has come in touch with General Rennenkampff's cavalry near Sekheyan. The Russians fell back before the advancing column, some thirteen miles to Houtsiatze, twenty-five miles as the crow flies from Liaoyang.

A Yokohama report says that in consequence of the presence at sea of the Russian Vladivostok squadron the steamers Winghang, Hethdene and Lennox have been ordered not to leave Yokohama.

PARKER AND DAVIS.

Democratic Nominee For Vice President at Esopus.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 21.—Henry Gassaway Davis, the Democratic nominee for vice president, arrived at Esopus station at 12:17 to make his call on Judge Parker. He was accompanied by Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, national committeeman for this state; Daniel J. Campau of Detroit, national committeeman for Michigan, and his secretary, C. M. Hendley. The Judge's reception committee consisted of his son-in-law, the Rev. C. M. Bell, and his secretary, Arthur McCausland.

Mr. Mack was first to leave the train. He was greeted by Mr. Bell and introduced former Senator Davis and Mr. Campau. A horde of photographers was on hand, and Mr. Davis posed for a picture with Mr. Mack and Mr. Campau. Mr. Davis had nothing to say to interviewers. Mr. Mack said that the national chairmanship was not settled.

Mr. Campau was asked if he thought Senator Gorman was no longer a possibility.

"No," said Mr. Campau. "It looks like either Mr. Gorman or Mr. Sheehan."

Not a word about Taggart from the Michigander.

The party entered Judge Parker's wagonette and drove to Rosemount, preceded by vehicles full of photographers. Judge Parker, who was on the veranda, shook hands with Mr. Mack and Mr. Campau, who preceded Mr. Davis in alighting, and then the judge's running mate was introduced to him by Mr. Mack. The visitors were next presented to Mrs. Parker. All soon went inside except the two candidates, who sat down on the veranda and had an earnest talk, which only the call to luncheon interrupted.

Gorman's "No" Is Final.

NEW YORK, July 21.—Senator Gorman has left New York for Atlantic City after having convinced the Democratic leaders who gathered here to discuss the question of a chairman of the national committee that he was in earnest in his refusal to be conscripted for the work. Coincident with the departure of Senator Gorman was the appearance of Thomas Taggart of Indianapolis, who has been indorsed by the national committee for the place. He will remain here until after the meeting of the committee on Tuesday next. Friends of Mr. Taggart profess to believe that Mr. Gorman's final and positive "no" removes all doubt of the election of their man. In any event, it is said, they will make a contest before the national committee.

Barker Entertained at Triest.

TRIEST, July 21.—Count Goess, the governor of Triest, gave a dinner to the officers of the American battleship and European squadrons. The governor in a felicitous speech proposed a toast to the health of President Roosevelt, and Rear Admiral Barker of the battleship squadron proposed the health of Emperor Francis Joseph. Both toasts were warmly honored, and the dinner was characterized by marked cordiality. Later Rear Admiral Barker gave a banquet on board the Mayflower in honor of the governor, Rear Admiral von Jedina and other high Austrian officials.

TROLLEY CARS CRASH

Church Excursionists In Collision Near Hempstead, N. Y.

MINISTER IS FATALLY INJURED.

St. George Church Train Run Into by Working Car—Twenty Badly Hurt, Mostly Women and Children.

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y., July 21.—Twenty persons, nearly all of them women and children, were injured here when a trolley train carrying excursionists from St. George's Episcopal church of this village was run into by a working trolley car just beyond the Greenfield cemetery switch. Both the train, which was made up of three cars, and the working car were going at full speed at the time.

The point where the collision occurred is on a sharp curve, and the track there is lined with underbrush, so that the motorman of the excursion train could not see the approaching car until it was only a few feet away.

The most seriously injured are: The Rev. Dr. J. Meyer Cook, pastor of the St. George Episcopal church, internal injuries, may die; Mrs. Cook, wife of the pastor, right leg injured; Miss Marion Gildersleeve, thirteen years old, daughter of Undersheriff Gildersleeve of Nassau county, jaw bone broken; Miss Rebecca Lee Rochester, twelve years old, nose broken and face badly cut; Miss Rochester's maid, badly injured while trying to protect the child.

Sixteen other persons received serious injury.

The Sunday school excursion was on its way to Long Beach, and the intention was to take the railroad train at Freeport. The merry party had marched from the church to the cars singing and waving flags. Half of the town was down at the trolley line to see it off, and there were cheers and waving of handkerchiefs as the three cars pulled out. Motorman Rhodes of the excursion train said that he had the right of way, and the cars whizzed over the single track at top speed.

Near the Greenfield cemetery there is a switch where the cars pass. The three cars of the trolley train had passed this and continued on. Just below was the curve, the other part of the line being hidden by the thick growth of underbrush. As the picnic train was rounding the curve Motorman Rhodes saw the working trolley coming along. He wound his brake up hard and jumped. Few of those on the car had any sign of their peril. There was a great crash, and then the air was filled with the shrieks and groans of the injured.

The Rev. Dr. Cook was sitting in the rear of the first excursion car when he saw the wrecking trolley rounding the curve. It was at the same moment that the motorman saw the danger and jumped, after twisting his brake. With Motorman Rhodes was Frank Polhemus, the superintendent of the railroad. He jumped with the motorman and also escaped injury.

When the crash came the Rev. Dr. Cook had started for the front part of the car, and he was pinned down in the wreckage. The forward part of the car was almost entirely demolished, and the three children of Edward Townsend, who were sitting on the front seat, had a marvelous escape from injury. They were thrown from the seat by the force of the collision; but, although the Rev. Dr. Cook, who was near them, was severely injured, they escaped unhurt.

When the collision occurred Mrs. Rochester's maid threw herself in front of her young mistress and tried to save her from injury; but both were badly hurt.

The Rev. Dr. Cook was said to be in a serious condition, and it is thought he will die.

St. George's church is one of the oldest on Long Island, having celebrated its two hundredth anniversary last April.

Prominent Baker a Suicide.

CHICAGO, July 21.—The dead body of August Junge, who had been identified with the baking industry in Chicago for forty-three years and who founded the now wealthy firm of Heissler & Junge in 1880, was found in a pantry in the basement of his home. The gas jet had been turned on. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane. Ill health and suffering from the heat are given as a motive. Mr. Junge was sixty years old. He came to Chicago from Germany in 1861.

Carl Fleming, a Waltham lad, was stricken while bathing in the Charles river and had a narrow escape from drowning. He was rescued by companions.

Plainfield, N. J., July 21, 1904.

When the campaign "orator" begins to rant against the extravagance of the Federal government do not be misled by his hairbrained utterances. In the August number of Everybody's Magazine attention is drawn to the fact that the total expenditures averages $7.97. This may seem on its face a large sum when it is estimated that the population approximates about 70,000,000 people, but it is not the case. France, for instance, spends $17.84 a head and Great Britain goes far beyond this amount. The British government's expenditure averages $21.39. Just bear this in mind when you hear stories about reckless extravagance on the part of the Federal government.

In one respect at least conditions are similar at present to what they were in the last two Presidential campaigns. Not a breath of suspicion can be attached to the excellent moral reputation of either the Republican or Democratic candidate. William McKinley and William Jennings Bryan were pointed out as being good examples so far as personal character was concerned. The home life and business career of both of them were referred to as being exemplary. It is the same in the present campaign. Theodore Roosevelt and Alton B. Parker are model men. Pure and upright in every respect and worthy of being patterned after are the two men who represent the great National parties in the Presidential race.

Right here in Union county where people boast of the fact that the population is law abiding, an amusement resort is being run wide open on Sunday. Dancing is one of the attractions, while catch-penny devices are other allurements which draw the crowd of entertainment seekers to Galvin's Park, which is located on the trolley line between Scotch Plains and Westfield. The patrons of the resort do not seem to have any more regard for the day than does the management. The Sabbath is desecrated wantonly by those who are not satisfied to confine their pleasure hunting to the six days of the week in a way that shocks the better element. There is no just reason why dancing should be tolerated at Galvin's Park any more than it would be in this city. The fact that such amusement is allowed at Coney Island or any other resort of that type has no bearing. Simply because the law is violated elsewhere furnishes no excuse for it being done in Union county, New Jersey. True it may be said that Plainfield does not directly suffer, except by the boisterousness of the crowd returning by trolley late at night, but that does not alter the case. Plainfielders are proud of Union county and are zealous of maintaining its good reputation. That nuisance should be abated at once and it is to be hoped that if the neighboring residents do not take action that the county prosecutor will.

In carrying out its policy of retrenchment the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is brought face to face with a threatened strike that might tie up every freight train on the entire system from New York to Pittsburg. Following closely upon the cutting down of its clerical force, orders were issued on Monday laying off one brakeman from every freight crew of the divisions comprising the main line. Altogether upward of 1,000 men are directly affected by the order. On the New York and middle division this order went into effect on Monday at midnight. On the Philadelphia and Pittsburg divisions it became operative last midnight. The trainmen located at Altoona, the western end of the middle division, struck on receipt of the orders and refused to take out their trains from Altoona to Harrisburg Tuesday morning. Twenty crews from Harrisburg were telegraphed for to take the places of the strikers, and were "deadheaded" on a fast train to Altoona. On the New York division the receipt of the order was met with a notice from the Brotherhood of Trainmen that unless the men laid off were all put back in one week's time the entire division would go out on strike.

Among the recent arrivals registered at Colonial Hall, Arverne, L. I., are Mr. and Mrs. Ames, of Plainfield.

THE CITY NATIONAL BANK will pay interest on satisfactory daily balances, subject to check at sight, and will issue interest bearing certificates of deposit for large amounts of money.

AMUSEMENTS.

It is interesting to watch the hugh crowds and notice the satisfied expressions of delight all over the patrons' faces as they leave the Mont Pelee building at Coney Island, and there is no room for doubt but that they have been pleased, thrilled, startled and surprised at the showing of the most elaborate and costly electric scenic production ever introduced in this country, or, as a matter of fact, the world. In recent years nothing has proven more startling than the eruption of Mont Pelee on the Island of Martinique, which wiped out of existence the beautiful, picturesque old city of St. Pierre. Today you can witness this mountain pouring forth its burning destruction without fear or injury. It is indeed a magnificent electrical and scenic display without an equal. It is enough to say that this grand educational institution is under the same management as the great Johnstown Flood, which is a sufficient guarantee of its worth and merit.

E. H. Booth and family, of Central avenue, left yesterday to spend the summer on Long Island.

At the recent session of the National Division, Sons of Temperance, held in Philadelphia, the report of Most Worthy Scribe Jewell showed that progress had been made. The present number of members is 36,146, an increase of 1,267. This growth comes largely from Pennsylvania and Nova Scotia. The Sons of Temperance fountain in Independence Square, Philadelphia, is kept supplied with pure ice water by the Sons of Temperance of Philadiphia. It was originally located on the Centennial grounds in 1876, by Friendship Division, No. 19, of Philadelphia.

The grand lodge B. P. O. E. at Cincinnati yesterday elected William J. O'Brien, of Baltimore, grand exalted ruler, he receiving 710 votes to 397 for Samuel H. Needs, of Cleveland. Other officers elected were: John K. Tener, of Charleroi, Pa., grand treasurer; F. O. Tomlinson, Winston, N. C., grand esteemed loyal knight; Charles W. Kaufman, Hoboken, N. J., grand esteemed lecturing knight; W. W. McClelland, Pittsburg, grand tyler; R. J. Woods, Sioux Falls, S. D., grand esteemed leading knight; B. F. McNulty, San Antonio, Tex., grand trustee. The last vote for grand secretary resulted: Fred C. Robinson, Dubuque, Ia., 167; J. R. Burke, Richmond, Va., 155; David W. Watson, Terre Haute, Ind., 71; Charles Stager, Toledo, 6. Trenton Shriners expect that within a month the charter, laws and other requirements for the institution of the new Crescent Temple, nobles of the Mystic Shrine, will have arrived. The new temple will then organize. Dr. Edwin H. Ginnelley has already been elected potentate, but no other officers have been chosen. The location of a shrine in Trenton was somewhat in the nature of a surprise to the Trenton men. It was the desire of a goodly number to hold on to Lu Lu Temple, Philadelphia, because of the convenienc with which it can be reached from South Jersey. The imperial council, however, determined to adhere strictly to State lines. Under this ruling it would have been necessary for South Jerseymen to take candidates for initiation to Salaam Temple, Newark. But a large number of Trenton nobles anticipated just such action and petitioned the imperial council for a charter for a shrine in Trenton.

McMurtry Assistant Receiver.

Mr. Vredenburg and his assistant will take charge just as soon as the former's bond of $50,000 is approved. When asked what he would do Mr. Vredenburgh said he had made no decision and stated that he would not until he was in charge of the mills and had a chance to look over the stock.

TALE OF TWO FLATS.

FEMALE SOLOMON BRINGS ORDER OUT OF CHAOS.

How She Readily Solved What Seemed to Be a Serious Problem for Two Bachelor Maids and Two Bachelor Men.

In a cozy little flat two bachelor girls were keeping house, and somehow things seemed to go wrong.

Although each of the bachelor girls considered herself too far "advanced" to be bound down to a mere matter of housekeeping; nevertheless, each had her own ideas as to how things ought to be done. When one bachelor girl planned one thing the other was sure to plan something else, and there was a conflict of directions for the maid they employed.

In brief, says the Brooklyn Eagle, the cozy little flat suffered from too much supervision. So the two bachelor girls finally decided to alternate in assuming supreme charge of the household arrangements, but each invariably sniffed and criticised during the week that the other was in charge, and otherwise intimated disagreeably that her way was the better way. For, be it understood, neither of these emancipated girls could possibly avoid interfering in the management of a home to the support of which she contributed; in her home things had to be done her way, for no other way was the right way, and it just naturally distressed her to have a home managed in any but the right way.

However emancipated she might be, this was something that was ever on her mind, which may account for the fact that boarding house keepers do not look with favor upon women boarders.

Now, a short distance away there was another cozy little flat, which also suffered, but in a different way. In this flat two young men were domiciled, and it suffered from a lack of supervision. Here, too, an attempt was made to work the problem out on an alternate basis, and here, too, it failed. Just at the time when one of the bachelor girls was upbraiding the other bachelor girl for presuming to give any directions during the week that the former was in charge, one of the young men would be "roasting" the other young man for neglecting to attend to his business and make proper provision for the care of the flat and the meals necessary to comfort, not to say health.

THE TWO BACHELOR MAIDS.

Thus, while two people, in spite of all rules, were constantly occupied with the details of the management of one flat, two other people, also in spite of all rules, were constantly occupied with efforts to escape the details of the management of the other flat.

"For heaven's sake!" one of the young men would say, "you'd better take entire charge here, for you're a good deal better at this sort of thing than I am."

"Goodness me!" one of the bachelor girls would exclaim, about the same time, "you'd better leave all of the housekeeping to me, for I simply can't stand careless management in the home."

But neither the other bachelor girl nor the other young man would agree to such propositions, and things grew so steadily worse in the two flats that all four finally sought out a wise woman to learn wherein the trouble lay.

"Is it possible," asked the girls, "that two people cannot live harmoniously in one cozy little flat? In spite of our best resolves, there is constant friction and we are ever striving to usurp the temporary authority and responsibility, each of the other."

"Can it be," demanded the young men, "that two people cannot live together peacefully in a home of their own? In spite of our best resolves, there is constant friction and we are ever striving to escape the temporary authority and responsibility that is a necessary feature of domestic success."

Thereupon the wise woman smiled in a superior way.

"This," she said, "is one of the simplest problems that ever was brought to my notice. The explanation of your troubles is easy, and the solution quite as easy."

"Shall we give up the flats?" they asked.

"No," replied the wise woman. "Keep both flats, but get a clergyman and two marrying licenses. You are divided up wrong."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 24.

Topic.—How to break down the spirit of caste.—Jas. ii, 1-9; Matt. xxiii, 8-12.

If we were asked the question, "Where does the caste system prevail to the greatest extent and to the greatest detriment to human life?" we would respond, "In India." The answer would be correct. The system of caste or of the separation of the people into classes with impassable gulfs between them has been the curse of India for centuries. Here the system of caste has reached its highest development, to the greatest detriment of the people, socially, politically and industrially. Next to India the caste system has been more thoroughly developed in countries where despotic and monarchical forms of government have existed and do still exist. But let us thank God that the system of caste is being gradually undermined. In England, Germany and France the aristocratic classes are being leveled down, while the common people are being leveled up, with the result that class distinctions are less and less marked and influential. And even in India there are not wanting signs that the system of caste is being strongly affected by English rule and the gospel of Christ. God speed the day when it shall fall like a house built of sand under the storm of God's wrath.

In America we would expect to see no class system, but, alas, even here, we have the spirit of caste, if not a developed caste system. How often we hear the expression "the classes and the masses," "the capitalists and the laborers," as if they were separate and distinct classes of people. But the saving grace of this fact in our land is the constant exchange of places. One day a man may belong to the masses and the next day to the classes and vice versa—one day he may be a laborer, the next a capitalist and vice versa. The spirit of industrial caste will not be very ruinous as long as such changes are possible. But we also have a social caste spirit. "Our set" is a common phrase.

But probably the worst form of the caste spirit in our land is the financial one. The rich man is looked upon as a demigod, while the poor man is shown into a back seat, even in our churches. James cries out against it, and so should we. What is more disgusting than to see a man who is ignorant, coarse and sometimes even vulgar wielding undue influence in church, state and society simply because he has sacrificed everything in life to lay up money or because by some hook or crook he has suddenly grown rich? Not that a man, simply because he has money, should have no place in the affairs of life, but only his just place. Why should money ride over character, brains, ability and great achievements in the pursuits of life where money is not a reward for service? It should not, but it has grown in doing so until today it would be a dangerous and threatening element in our national life were it not for two other factors that need to be considered—(1) God and (2) the middle classes. As long as the Lord is our God and we continue to have a strong, healthy middle class, we need fear no evil, though Mammon be the ruling god of so many who cringe and cower before the golden calf even in greater humiliation than did the ancient Israelites.

How may this spirit of caste in our land be broken down? Two methods are suggested. (1) The people should not unduly exalt men who occupy important positions or those who are rich. The church, the state and society should treat every man as a man, regardless of whether he is rich or poor or in high or low position. God is no respecter of persons. Why should we be? (2) Those who for the time occupy high place or possess great wealth should remember that "one is their master, even Christ," and that with God as their common Father all men are brethren. The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man should make it impossible for any man to take advantage of his position in life to impose upon his fellow men, to degrade and humiliate them to suit his whims and purposes. The man who does so will find that God will take a part in the game before it is finished.

BIBLE READINGS.

Lev. xix, 15; Deut. i, 17; xvi, 19; Prov. xxiv, 23; Matt. vi, 24; Luke xv, 11-22; xvi, 19-31; John xiii, 15, 16; xvii, 20, 21.

Four Ideals.

There are four ideals which I know we all have before us in the work of the Endeavor society. One is that we should be centers of Bible study and that each member should be an intelligent and growing Bible student. The second is that we should be centers of personal work and that each member should be active individually in winning others to Christ. The third is that we should be schools of Christian giving and that each member should become a systematic proportionate and joyful giver. And the fourth is that we should be centers of missionary interest and activity from which many missionaries would go out to the home and foreign fields and many workers develop missionary interest in the home church.—Robert E. Speer.

In Turkey.

Turkey has seventy-five societies, in spite of Turkish oppression, which will not allow constitutions to be signed, badges to be worn or even the word "society" to be used. The Caesarea society was obliged at one time to burn its records.—Irish Endeavorer.

In Many Tongues.

The Christian Endeavor pledge has been translated and printed in more than fifty languages to the extent of more than fifty millions of copies.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

July 24: "The Spirit of Caste."—Jas. ii, 1-9; Matt. xxiii, 8-12. Wealth and Piety.

Differences among men in certain particulars are inevitable. Features and various physical peculiarities divide the races from each other in appearance. Languages and mental habits raise barriers. Customs of many kinds and religious beliefs in particular are the fruitful sources of divisions and enmities.

Distinctions of wealth, parentage and training set boundaries hard to get over and determine in a harmful way many of the affairs of life.

The church of Jesus Christ is based on the brotherhood of all men as children of a common Father. All men are therefore to be held in loving regard and treated as members of the one family. This does not reduce all to a dead level of uniformity without scope for the exercise of personal tastes and selective affinities, but it does put the ban on all enmity and party antagonism except against the positively evil things.

Yet what a spectacle appears when we look at society and even the Christian church! There are many things spoken of in the Epistle of James as wrong which are so common in many churches as to provoke little comment.

If there be any truth in the oft repeated assertion that the church has lost its hold on the masses the cause of this alienation on the part of the common folk may be due in part to the all too prevalent rulership of the rich in the church. John Wesley is said to have remarked at one time, "Woe to Methodism when she comes to depend on rich men!" He might as well have said woe to any church which depends on the rich.

Possession of wealth is no evidence of piety, and the church has no place for those not pious except as seekers after piety. We do not need to be rich, but we do need to be good.

No spirit of caste should be allowed to creep in. It makes no difference on what the distinctions are based. Intellectual culture, real or fancied, never raises one an iota above his fellows in the sight of God and should bring no pre-eminence in the church on earth. No heresy is so fatal to devotion as a sense of superiority to one's fellow Christians.

The spirit of caste has no redeeming feature of excellence. It is evil and wholly so. It is rooted in pride, blossoms into arrogance and bears the bitter fruit of envy and malice. It should have no tolerance. Love the brotherhood; in honor prefer one another; keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

Spiritual Development.

How very distinct it is that the gospel is not only an instrument of salvation, but a method of spiritual culture as well. We are to leave the things that are behind—the milk diet—and get on and in advancing acquire an appetite for the stronger meat of the word. It is often more a peril than an advantage to come into the church without decided intention of growing. Alas, that there should be so much disposition to be shy of any marked advance, of anything really strong and beautiful in Christian character and life! How prone the average Christian is to limit the grace of God and to take this development of the spiritual being out of the Lord's hands! Men and women sometimes struggle to become strong in the grace of Jesus Christ. That is our effort, but the mastery does not come in that way. Christian growth is not to be a struggle any more than growth is to be a struggle in the tree and in the slumbering babe. It is rather to be a willing, prayerful submission to God's own method, and then the growth follows as bud and blossom in springtime.—Lutheran Observer.

Intercessory Prayer.

Let him who has been persecuted, slandered and spitefully used by any one pray for his enemy. The very unpleasantness of the suggestion ought to be a revelation of its necessity and use to those Christians who nurse their injuries, talking of forgiveness without good will. He who cannot forgive his enemies in the sense of thinking less of his injury than of their good, in the sense of desiring with a yearning, active, helpful love to see them delivered from their wrong disposition, from the guile of sin or from the error which has led to injustice, is not a Christian. Till he learns to forgive in this sense he is in bondage to hate, which is hell. It is perfectly safe to say no one learns and acquires this grace of forgiveness except in prayer for his enemies, for he cannot acquire it of himself, but of God only.—Helper.

Grow.

There is not enough breadth in many lives. We ought to grow in height, reaching up to the fullness of the stature of Christ. We ought to grow in the outreach of our lives. We ought to know more of God and of heavenly things tomorrow than we do today. We are told that if we follow on we shall know, that if we do the little portion of the will of God we understand we shall be led on to see and know more of that will. We ought to grow in love also, becoming more patient, more gentle, more thoughtful, more unselfish day by day, extending the reach of our unselfishness and helpfulness.

Peace of Mind.

Men feel and know that pain is a fact, although it is unseen. They need to learn that peace of mind is a fact, and comes by a well ordered soul; that reverence is a fact, and brings us near to God; that elevated sentiment is a fact, and raises us into a higher society than earth; that sober faith is a fact and gilds the horizon of our being with a heavenly glory.—Starr King.

FASHION'S MIRROR.

Long Gloves For Street Wear—Collarless Gowns For Warm Weather.

The fashion in gloves is changing—that is to say, long gloves are once more being worn on the streets on account of the many elbow sleeves. Softest lavender, white, pale yellow and mouse colored suede with pearl buttons are much worn in Paris. For morning wear with the tailor made dress the heavy white silk glove or the kid glove is the thing.

In Paris they are using wash lace veils with the Breton sailor hat. The well groomed woman who dresses neatly is a type we do not get tired of. Her opposite is the woman who invests in a lot of ready made frippery, including beads and chains of doubtful value and little pins of all kinds. Simplicity is one of the secrets of good dressing.

The collarless gown will be seen again as the season advances. It requires, however, some smart finish in the way of applique or embroidery, and it should never be seen on gowns of the "slimpsy" variety. A little piece of transparent lace made into a shallow yoke and collar is the best for the woman who is in doubt whether the collarless style is becoming to her or not.

Parasols this season are charming. The simple ones have long handles fitted with a ball of enamel or crystal. The more elaborate handles are often beautifully carved to represent grotesque animals' heads, birds, etc.

The picture shows a walking costume of mole colored cloth, having a cross over stole of velvet, embroidered in cream, gold and black.

ELABORATE TRIMMINGS.

English Embroidery In Dainty Shades—Pale Tints Fashionable.

The old fashioned drawn embroidery known as English embroidery makes lovely flounces in early Victorian fashion, and almost entire dresses are made of it and eked out with bands of fine lawn. Crude colors are not used in this cut work, but it is seen in artistic and uncommon tones, such as tomato red, begonia pink, pastel blue and orchid mauve.

There is a fancy just now in Paris for fancy leather trimmings. A gown on which this was seen recently was of dark blue voile. The skirt was trimmed with two flounces worked in an openwork design showing medallions of brown leather of a very fine lightweight description. THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

"Oh, it's nothing alarming," gurgled Stella—"at least I hope not. Are you in a very good humor this morning, Arthur?"

"I was," he answered gravely, "but the most patient man has his limits, you know."

Stella—the dignified little Stella—fairly giggled—there is no other name for the sound of suppressed delight and merriment which rippled from her lips—and immediately went off on another tangent.

"Don't you think it very nice that Richard and Mr. Kane seemed to like each other so much last night?"

"Why, yes—since we are all neighbors I should say it was most fortunate. Perhaps we ought to feel delighted that Mr. Kane likes us so well—eh?" and he pinched the girl's cheek mischievously, while a quizzical smile twisted the corner of his mouth.

"Do you really like him?" she murmured, hiding her face on her brother's shoulder.

"Who—Rick?" Sir Arthur perversely inquired.

"No, you old stupid—Mr. Kane!" she replied, giving him an admonitory shake.

"Certainly. He impresses me as a fine fellow; a man of action and affairs; a man of head and of heart. In point of birth and breeding, I suppose, we must concede something, but in these democratic days the new men are coming to the front and must be reckoned with politically and socially."

During this didactic speech, delivered in Sir Arthur's most deliberate manner, Stella slid off the chair-arm and edged towards the door.

"I am so glad you feel that way," she said as she turned the handle; and then, nodding saucily at her brother, "he is coming to see you this morning!" and with a whisk of drapery she was gone.

Sir Arthur preserved his gravity for a moment, and then, with his favorite chuckle, said half-aloud—

"Another addition to the family, I suppose!"

It is not always an easy thing to ask a father for his only daughter in marriage; but when the guardian of the girl happens to be her brother, and rather younger than the suitor himself, the task of the latter is not a whit less embarrassing.

But Kane found the baronet disposed to meet him half way—perhaps because of his general liking for the man. So when, after the usual salutations and inquiries, he came to the point simply and directly with—

"As the head of your family, Sir Arthur, I am come to ask your sanction to your sister's engagement to me," the baronet smiled and said:

"Yes, I received a hint to that effect this morning, coupled with a command that I was not to go out. Well, Mr. Kane, what has the culprit to say for himself? You know it's a pretty serious matter to rob a brother of his only sister, particularly when that brother is a bachelor!"

"The only extenuation I can plead, Sir Arthur, is that the lady will be making another poor bachelor the happiest man on earth."

"Oh, if you put it in that way," laughed the baronet, "I can have nothing to say, except that I do not know anyone to whom I would sooner trust Stella's happiness." And so saying he offered his hand.

"The lawyers can attend to the settlements, I suppose," he continued, "and from what I have seen and heard of your resources, Mr. Kane, I opine there is little danger of your wife ever coming to want."

They both laughed at the jest, and at this opportune moment Richard strolled in.

"Here, Rick," exclaimed Sir Arthur, "you are just in time to be introduced to your future brother-in-law. Shake hands and congratulate each other."

As Rick came forward his manner was most cordial. The morning's recollections of the night before had apparently left no unpleasant taste, and he took Kane in all seriousness and sincerity for what he had appeared to be.

"See what comes of my leaving home," he said ruefully. "I find the family running at loose ends when I return and my little sister about to be carried off into captivity. But you have my sincere congratulations and good wishes, Mr. Kane. I wish our acquaintance had begun a little earlier out yonder. I rather think you and I together could have pulled off some big things."

Kane could only bow his acknowledgments, as was perhaps natural under the circumstances, and was certainly safest.

Rick knew, out of his own experience, what the other would wish next, and said tactfully, with a quiet smile lifting the corner of his tawny mustache:

"You'll find Stella arranging her flowers in the morning room and keeping an eye on the door. We shall see you at luncheon, I hope?"

With a grateful assent and a farewell bow Kane took his way in the direction indicated, and as he was careful to close the portals after him we will not intrude.

Proudly elated, he rode homeward in a species of physical and mental exaltation, in which mood he continued for several days.

But the reaction, inevitable to a man of his acute temperament, ere long appeared. He had failed to reckon with a foe within which night and day assailed the fortress of his iron-clad will and determination to see the thing through. The simple faith and courtesy and confidence with which he had been received for what he claimed to be by those two English gentlemen did more to undermine his purpose than if they had held him at suspicious arm's length.

Moreover, he was now a daily visitor at Denecroft, and, treated already as one of the family, he dined or lunched there more often than at home. His relations with Richard became more and more intimate and confidential. Again and again the subject of the latter's adventures in South Africa was touched upon. Once, in full family conclave, after dinner, he was compelled to listen unflinchingly, and in the full glare of the brilliantly lighted room, to a graphic recital of the tragedy on the banks of the Mooi river, to feign indignation, horror and surprise, to join in conjectures as to the identity of the criminal, and discuss plans for his exposure and punishment. He also learned, to his dismay, that Richard had set an inquiry on foot to achieve these righteous ends.

And all this under the warm glances of the girl whom he loved dearer than life, and whose manifestations of affectionate trust and loyal admiration were thereby turned into so many scourging whips of steel.

In short, the situation was daily becoming one long, intolerable torture alike to Kane's manhood and his love. Remorse mocked at his endeavors to lift the incubus.

CHAPTER IX.

The dual wedding of Stella and Marcia was set for early in the new year, a rumor had it that Sir Arthur, moved perhaps by the sight of so much billing and cooing, would shortly afterwards console himself likewise, and put a period to his bachelorhood by leading to the altar the daughter of a neighboring county magnate.

The time was rapidly approaching, and while the girls were busied with the delightful mysteries of trousseau-building the two men, Rositer Kane and Richard Dysart, were perforce thrown much on their own resources, and naturally saw a great deal of each other. Frequent trips to town were necessary, and these they often made in company on the off-days when there was no hunting. Kane could never have told how it came about, but it was certainly not of his devising, and to have shown indifference or distaste would have been to court suspicion. And besides, the attraction was mutual; under any other conditions the older man would have been comrades with his intended brother-in-law with unfeigned heartiness.

On one of these off-day trips to London they traveled in the same compartment to Euston, and then, both being bound for the city, they chartered a hansom, which set them down at the bank. Walking up Threadneedle street, they came suddenly face to face with a shabby little man who at sight of them stopped short, threw up both hands with an indescribable gesture of surprise, and then, turning sharply on his heel, vanished round the corner.

It was Moses Plish!

"Funny little beggar," said Richard; "the last time I saw him was in Ladysmith; seemed to know us both!"

"Why, yes," said Kane, as nonchalantly as possible, "he is—or was—for I haven't set eyes on him in a long time—one of the sharpest and shrewdest dealers in stones in all South Africa. In fact," with a quiet chuckle, "I've had some dealings with him myself in the old days."

"That's curious—so have I," said Richard. "He's the man to whom I sold some stones, you remember, when I came out of the wilderness."

Arrived at the corner of Bishopsgate street they parted, agreeing to meet for luncheon. As Kane turned away with a courteous wave of the hand, a sudden thought flashed through Rick's brain and held him rooted to the curb.

"By all that's holy!" he muttered, gazing after his late companion. "Could it be possible?"

Instead of doing his errand in the city, he hailed a passing hansom, and jumping in called out to the cabby "Wellington street," and within a quarter of an hour he was with our friend the manager of the inquiry office.

"Have you anything for me?" he asked.

In response he received a legal envelope, quite bulky, which he thrust into his pocket.

"I believe all the data you asked for are there, Mr. Dysart," said the head of the concern, "and we have tabulated them in what seemed to us the order of their importance relative to your inquiry."

"Thanks," said Richard, and regained his cab.

Once within its shelter he lost no time in examining the contents of the envelope. These consisted of a series of foolscap sheets, fastened together with a brass clip at the corner, each sheet bearing at the top the name of some man more or less well known in the city or the diamond trade, with certain biographical remarks appended.

And the first sheet bore the name of Rossiter Kane!

Richard replaced the envelope in his pocket and sat staring ahead at the crowded mass of vehicles in Fleet street with a puzzled frown on his face.

CHAPTER X.

Five minutes after leaving Richard, as Kane was striding along Cornhill, he was overtaken by a shambling, breathless figure in rusty black, and to the whispered appeal—

"Bister Kane, sir—just a minute, sir!" he turned his head and saw the cringing form of old Plish at his side, ducking and bowing with abject servility.

"Well, Moses, what is it?" inquired Kane, in a business-like tone, stopping short, and drawing to one side out of the way of the hurrying throng.

With an eye to the main chance, and realizing that it would be good policy to keep on the right side of the ledger with so rich a man as Kane, Plish had instantly decided to let him know that Dysart had asked certain pertinent or impertinent questions at Ladysmith, and thus forestall any possible evil consequences to himself from his wagging tongue.

"Excuse me for troubling you, Bister Kane, but ven I see you alonger 'tother vun," pointing a dirty thumb over his shoulder, "I ses to myself, ses

"BISTER KANE, SIR—JUST A MINUTE, SIR."

I, 'Bister Kane might like to know that 'tother gent was makin' inkquiries about 'im.'"

"When was this, Moses?" asked Kane, coolly snipping the end off a cigar.

"Out yonder, a matter o' six months ago. It was jest arter he'd made that there strike o' his'n in the Karroo country."

LIFE IN THE BARREN LANDS.

The Comforts of Camping in a Country Where the Warmth of a Dog Is Welcome.

The Barren Lands, called by the Indians "Land of Little Sticks," are absolutely devoid not only of trees but even of brush, except for some stunted bushes to be found in occasional spots near the water's edge. These lands lie in British Columbia, near the Great Slave lake. Mr. Casper Whitney, in describing a hunting-trip through this region, in "Mush-Ox, Bison, Sheep and Goat," says that a venture into this north country, except in summer, means a struggle with both cold and famine. Yet the lack of food was not so hard to bear as the wind, and camping was a continual discomfort.

"One of the first lessons I learned," writes Mr. Whitney, "was to keep my face free from covering, and also as clean shaven as was possible under such circumstances. It makes me smile now to remember the elaborate hood arrangement which was knitted for me in Canada, and which then seemed to me one of the most important articles of my equipment. It covered the entire head, ears and neck, with openings only for eyes and mouth, and in town I had viewed it as a great find; but I threw it away before I got within a thousand miles of the Barren Grounds.

"The reason is obvious. My breath turned the front of the hood into a sheet of ice before I had run three miles; and as there was no fire in the Barren Grounds to thaw it, of course it was an impossible thing to wear in that region. After other experiments, I found the simplest and most comfortable headgear to be my own long hair, which hung even with my jaw, bound about just above the ears by a handkerchief, and the open hood of my caribou-skin capote drawn forward over all.

"The most trying hour in the 24 was at the camping time in the afternoon. The fire furnished no warmth; it was not built for that purpose; it was simply to boil the tea, and perhaps an idea of its size can be given by saying that by the time the snow in the kettle had melted into water, and the water begun to boil, the fire was exhausted.

"Having drunk the tea, we rolled up in our fur robes, lying side by side round the tepee, with feet toward the fire and head against the sledge, knees into the back of the man next you, and with your snow-shoes under your head, away from the dogs that would eat the lacing.

"Sleep never came until the dogs had finished fighting over us, for as soon as we were rolled in our robes the dogs poured into the tepee. There were 28 dogs, and the lodge was about seven feet in diameter at its base. No hour in the day or night was more miserable than this, when these half-starved brutes fought over and on top of us before they finally settled down upon us.

"In extremely cold weather a dog curled up at your feet or back is not unpleasant; but to have one lying on your head, another on your shoulders or hips, or perhaps a third on your feet, and you lying on your side on rocky, uneven ground, is not a happy experience."

SNOWBALLS AMID FLOWERS.

School Children of San Jose, California, Permitted to Enjoy Novel Sport.

Although California is the land of flowers to which snowballing, except in the mountains, generally is forbidden, exceptions to the rule may be compelled. Such an exception, says the Sunset Magazine, during the past winter, or rainy season, was witnessed in San Jose. One of the stage drivers to and from Mount Hamilton brought from there a barrel carefully packed with snow, and presented it to the pupils of the Grant school in the Garden city. Then the fun began. Most of the children had not seen snow before except in the distant mountain summits. They wanted to snowball, but they didn't know how, and they approached the problem tentatively. And—here is the crowning absurdity of the situation—some of their teachers didn't know how to teach them; although they were adults, never before had they come in contact with snow.

Some of the little chaps, after cautious investigation, declared that the strange white stuff burned their fingers; it was so, and others, who had read or been told about it, feared that their hands would be frozen by the first contact with it. The experimental stage soon was past, however, and then the fun was fast and furious. It was such ecstasy as eastern children know, with the zest of novelty added to it. For a brief time school traditions and the proprieties maintained between teachers and pupils were thrown to the winds, and there was none so high or so low that a snowball might not batter him when least expected. The white missiles whizzed through bushes laden with roses or clipped the stately calla lilies from their stems as a knife might have done.

It was a touch of winter introduced into a garden of bloom and beauty, and, ah, but the boys, big and little, enjoyed it. For all of which some sort of reverence might be done to the Mount Hamilton stage driver—he has not forgotten that he once was a boy.

New Japanese Incense.

A late freak of fashion is the use of the Japanese perfume known as water lily incense. Whether it is really made out of water lilies is a question to be determined by investigation, and whether it smells anything like these beautiful flowers is a matter of the imagination; but it smells good, and doctors say that it is of some slight value as a disinfectant in the sickroom. The incense is done up in little cakes, which are burned in the room, like the Chinese joss sticks, already well known in this country. The smoke carries a very delicate aromatic fragrance.—Detroit Free Press.

TWICE NEAR BURIAL.

GREWSOME EXPERIENCE OF A WOMAN IN ENGLAND.

She Now Has Death Certificate Issued When She Was in a Cataleptic Trance—Heard Doctor Call Her Dead.

It rarely falls to the lot of a human being to be twice placed in a coffin and made ready for interment. Yet there is a woman in England who has had that experience. She is a Mrs. Heigham, and recently related her adventure to a company of friends. She at present is enjoying the best of health at her home in Holland road, Kensington. She has been subject to cataleptic trances, and thrice has been in imminent danger of being buried alive.

The story of her first escape is best told in her own words. Its terrible realism only finds a parallel in the awe-inspiring imagination of Poe.

"My first trance," Mrs. Heigham said, "was brought about by shock. I was told that all my property had been lost. The news was quite unexpected, and it sent me into hysterics.

"Then I lapsed into insensibility, and at the end of two hours my limbs began to assume the rigidity of death. My eyes were open, and I could see what was happening, but I was unable to move hand or foot, or to show that life had not yet left my body.

"Imagine my horror, then, when, after being left for 24 hours, I was taken from bed and rolled on the floor. Pins and needles were stuck in my body in order to see whether blood would flow. Fortunately I could feel no bodily pain, but the strain on my mind was terrible.

"After this every one gave me up for dead. 'Poor lady, I am afraid she is now out of all earthly suffering.' I remember hearing the doctor say. Oh, the terror of that moment!

"Worse, however, was to come, for the order for my coffin was given.

SAVED BY DAUGHTER'S VIGIL.

When the undertaker's men came to measure me I tried to shriek aloud, but not a sound came from my bloodless lips. I could not have been more helpless had the angel of death in reality taken my soul. The final agony came when my coffin was brought into the room.

"At the sight of that grewsome object placed by my bedside I felt as if my brain—or what was left of it—would finally break under its futile efforts to assert itself.

"I then lapsed into unconsciousness for the first time for 48 hours."

Mrs. Heigham then related how her daughter, who had never quite given up hope, arose from her bed in the middle of the night to visit her mother for the last time.

The girl was unable to sleep owing to an ever-recurring presentiment that her parent had not really passed away, and, fitly enough, it was this midnight visit that really saved Mrs. Heigham from her awful fate.

As she gazed with tearful eyes upon her mother's still form she thought she saw a movement of the eyelids. Hastily summoning the servants, she held a bottle of strong smelling salts to Mrs. Heigham's nostrils, and in her agitation spilled part of the contents over the unconscious woman's face.

"At this," concluded Mrs. Heigham, "I heaved a deep sigh and suddenly sat up in my bed, saved by my daughter's love and energy."

Few will envy Mrs. Heigham her remarkable experience. She now possesses the death certificate signed by the doctor who attended her, and, though the memories attached to it are fraught with such horror, she would not part with the document for a great deal.

Mrs. Heigham's subsequent attacks were not quite so serious, but in both cases she was at first thought to be dead—by all but her devoted daughter.

Curiously enough, Mrs. Heigham has herself taken degrees as a doctor of psychology, and in face of the foregoing facts it was startling to hear her announce that she had "no fear of death for many, many years to come."

Parrot Enjoyed Joke.

A parrot in Stockton, Cal., is so bright that it enjoys a blunder or a joke. Among other accomplishments, the bird can imitate the voice of its mistress to perfection. One day the lady of the house was seated at her writing table, when she suddenly remembered an order she had forgotten to give to the cook. The door of the room being open, she shouted "Elizabeth!" without rising from her chair. To the delight of the parrot, from the kitchen came the voice of the cook, exclaiming: "Shut up, you old fool!"

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Seele, of Chicago, attributes the decline in individual base stealing to the prevalence of the hit-and-run play.

The eight official scorers of the National League will be called together next spring to discuss uniform rules for scoring.

No one is more sanguine that Walter Clarkson, formerly of Harvard, will make a great hit in the box, than Pitcher Chesbro, of the Highlanders.

Rube Vickers, now with Holyoke, who was reported to have "jumped" to play with independent teams, is still in Massachusetts and has not thought of leaving.

Mike Lynch, the former Brown University twirler, is showing up in fine form with the Pittsburgs. On Tuesday he defeated the New York Nationals 2 to 1, allowing them but four hits.

Arthur Devlin, formerly of the Newark Eastern League team, but now with the New York Nationals, has made by far the best showing of any minor leaguer recruited by the National League this season.

Notwithstanding the announcement by Manager Denman that he intends to use "Red" Waller as a pitcher in the remaining Plainfield-Westfield contests, there are many fans who do not believe this to be true. They would like to see Waller in the box against Alis, but there is little likelihood of it. In view of this, Manager Johnston will not be caught napping and there is every reason to believe that he as well as Denman will strengthen his pitching department. There is likely to be a record-breaking crowd at Saturday's contest and there is every reason to believe that it will be one of the best exhibitions of the season. It has been suggested that inasmuch as these teams have had trouble, the best way to promote clean sport as well as good feeling is for the crowd to drop all personalities, such as have characterized past contests.

One of the most interesting events of the Sea Girt camp is to take place when Governor Murphy's newly organized baseball nine is to meet Genera Gillmore's baseball aggregation in a game near the govenor's cottage. Governor Murphy will pitch for his team and General Gillmore is down to play shortstop for his side. The general's lineup follows: General Q. O'M. Gillmore, ss; Major Frederick Gilkynson, c; Captain E. B. Broadaway, p; Sergeant Ray B. Newkirk 1b; Major R. R. Rogers, 2b; Captain Mahlon R. Margerum, 3b; Sergeant George Rowley, lf; Captain Harry C. Valentine, cf; Sergeant Gilbert D. Laird, rf. The governor's teamh as not yet been fully selected, but the lineup as far as chosen follows: Governor Murphy, p; General R. Heber Brientanll; c; Colonel Bryant, 1b; Colonel Franklin Murphy, 2b; Lieutenant Colby, ss; Captain Parker, 3b; Captain Edge, rf. The others will be selected.

GOLF.

There will be no special events at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club until Labor Day, with the possible exception of an occasional clock golf contest. Most of the members will be away during the rest of this month and August and those who remain home will have to be content with participating in the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup. A similar condition will exist at the Park Golf Club, where the weekly competition for the President's and Park Golf Club cups will be the attraction.

ROD AND GUN.

Clarence Huff, of Prospect avenue, spent the day at Perth Amboy yesterday on a fishing trip. His day's catch numbered nineteen good-sized blue fish. Accompanied by Clarence Thorn, he left early this morning for the same fishing grounds, seeking to duplicate his luck.

POTATO CROP UNUSUALLY BIG

WILLIAM H. ROGERS SPEAKS GLOWINGLY OF AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS.

While the meat strike is engaging the attention of the public, the farmers are enjoying the prospects of fine crops which may in a large measure offset the abnormal prices of meat. W. H. Rogers, of Highland Farm, in speaking about the season's crops, said today that there will be an abundance of fine potatoes, corn, oats, rye and apples. He predicts that the crop in each instance will be fully 100 per cent. while the wheat crop will probably reach 60 per cent. and the hay crop 75 per cent.

Mr. Rogers does not look for any reduction in prices, claiming the present prices are low enough considering quality. As for peaches, he is authority for the statement that the crop will be light. He does not believe that Hunterdon county will have 10 per cent. of its normal crop. He speaks in glowing terms of the potato crop, believing it will be the largest of any during the past five or six years, while the quality cannot be surpassed.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

The big, white horse belonging to Arthur Giles, the plumber, took fright at F. O. Herring's big red auto down on Madison avenue, near the Babcock building, yesterday afternoon, and, though securely tied, reared, broke the hitching strap, and would have run amuck through the busiest part of town in its fright had it not been for the prompt action of Mr. Giles' assistant, who happened to be standing near. The young man quickly sprang to the horse's head and checked its run before it had gone fifty feet. The auto went on.

Mr. Giles says he has had trouble with the animal since he has bought it, on account of its skittishness. It is especially terrorized by automobiles. In its fright, the animal had backed into the telegraph pole to which it was tied, and badly sprung one of the shafts. This, aside from several breaks in the harness, was the only damage.

The teachers of St. Stephen's church Sunday-school will meet on Saturday night at 7:30 in the sacristy.

The librarians of St. Stephen's church will meet tonight to go over the books and rearrange them.

Frequent letters received in Plainfield from Rev. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, indicate that he continues to improve and that his voice is much stronger.

The meeting at the Rescue Mission this evening will be in charge of Henry DeMott. Special music will be a feature. On Sunday Wm. Fisher, the great evangelist, will speak at the Mission.

Until further notice the office of evening prayer will be said weekly in St. Stephen's church on Friday and Saturday afternoons at 5:15 and the office of morning prayer at 9 o'clock in the morning of the same days. DELIGHTFUL TRIP.

Supurb Scenery and Cool Breezes to be Found in the Run Up the Hudson.

Delightfully cool breezes and magnificent scenery are the attractive inducements offered in a trip up the Hudson to Catskill, New York, which any Plainfielder can well afford to take. From the boat landing beautiful country resorts, of the unsurpassing type, can be easily reached by rail. The Catskill Evening Line steamers, Onteora and Kaaterskill, two well appointed boats, make regular trips and the fare is an inducement in itself. On Saturday afternoons, at 1:30, the Onteora leaves its pier at the foot of Christopher street and arrives at Catskill at 8 o'clock the same night, making connection with an excellent train service. The Kaaterskill makes the return trip Sunday nights at 10 o'clock, after the arrival of the mountain trains, and assengers are allowed to stay on board after the boat is made fast to its wharf in New York until 7 o'clock Monday morning. In addition to this special trip, regular runs are made daily from New York, leaving at 6 o'clock in the evening, and from Catskill leaving at 7 o'clock in the evening. The country abounds in historic and romantic scenes. Full information concerning these pleasant little trips may be obtained by addressing the Catskill and New York Steamboat Company, Christopher street pier, or by telephoning No. 1098 Spring, New York.

A La Carte Dining Car Service on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

To still further accommodate its patrons, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has established the a la carte system of dining car service for breakfast and luncheon on several of its most popular trains. A la carte breakfast is served on the Federal Express leaving Philadelphia at 6:35 a. m. daily for Washington, and on the Cleveland and Cincinnati Express leaving New York at 8:25 p. m. daily for Pittsburg. A la carte luncheon is served on trains leaving Philadelphia for New York at 11 a. m. week-days, 12:35 p. m. Sundays only, and 1 p. m. week-days; on train leaving New York for Philadelphia at 12:55 p. m. week-days; on train leaving Pittsburg for Philadelphia at 12:01 p. m. daily, and on the coach section of train leaving New York at 1:55 p. m. daily for Pittsburg and the West. A la carte breakfast and luncheon are served on the Manhattan Limited leaving Pittsburg at 8:35 a. m. daily for New York. All dinners on Pennsylvania Railroad dining cars, and all other meals, except those mentioned above, are table d'hote.

Plenty of Peaches.

Present indications point to a big crop of peaches this year. Dealers say that they have never had such fine peaches so early in the season. There is plenty of almost all kinds of fruit in the market at present. Strawberries have been replaced by red and black raspberries and in addition to these there are lots of blackberries and huckleberries. Watermelons and cantaloupes have appeared, but not in very large quantities yet. Pineapples are plentiful and fine in flavor. The first apples of the season have made their appearance. The markets also show a fine assortment of vegetables. Green Jersey corn the first of the season, is to be had, as well as green peas, string beans, beets, radishes, lettuce, tomatoes, cucumbers, celery, etc. Even if the price of meat is high the housewife need not be at a loss to supply her table with good things.

They Are Wearing the Smile.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Peterson, of West Front street, are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a baby boy at their home.

Miss Florence L. Manning, of East Seventh street, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. A. E. Parkhurst, of Elizabeth.

POLITICAL CHAT.

PARTY NOMINATIONS.

REPUBLICAN.

For President—Theodore Roosevelt
For Vice President—Charles W. Fairbanks.

DEMOCRATIC.

For President—Alton B. Parker.
For Vice President—Henry G. Davis.

POPULIST.

For President—Thomas E. Watson.
For Vice President—Thomas W. Tribbles.

PROHIBITION.

For President—Silas C. Swallow.
For Vice President—George I. Carroi.

Edward C. Stokes, the acting chairman of the Republican State Committee, said to day that a meeting of the committee would be held about Aug. 1. The intention had been to hold an earlier meeting, but it had been found that to accommodate the convenience of several of the members a later date was advisable. The meeting probably will be held at Newark. Among the subjects which will come before the committee at the next meeting are the selection of a chairman to succeed Gov. Murphy, who still is nominally in office; the choice of a vice-chairman to succeed Mr. Stokes, and a secretary as the successor of John S. Gibson.

It is that almost feverish desire on the part of the Republican State leaders to make things easy for E. C Stokes for the gubernatorial nomination that, through the joint influence of Senators Kean and Dryden, has led to the announcement that Congressman Benjamin F. Howell is to have no opposition for renomination in the Third District, which includes Middlesex county.

A few months ago it was expected that the Middlesex machine, controlled by State Assessor Theodore Strong, would make a demonstration against Howell in the primaries in anticipation of the Congressman joining hands with the anti-Strong forces in the county to upset Strong's machine next year.

Now it is officially announced that his demonstration has been called off, Howell will have hings his own way in the primaries, and in return will be asked to please not try to wreck the Strong machine next year.

Already numerous articles have been published forecasting the possible result of the coming Presidential election and classing the different States of the Union as Republican, Democratic and doubtful.

In every instance New Jersey is classed in the doubtful column, for the reason, probably, that it former years it was in the habit of giving Democratic majorities. There seems to be an impression abroad that it was the defection of the gold Democrats in 1896 and 1900 that placed New Jersey in the Republican column. Jerseymen, however, know that this is an error. While McKinley's matchless pluralities of 87,629 in 1896 and 56,899 in 1900 were largely swelled by the votes of gold Democrats, it must be remembered that in 1895 Griggs, Republican, was chosen Governor by a plurality of 26,900 over such an unexceptionable candidate as the late Chancellor McGill, and that in 1894 there was a large Republican plurality on the legislative vote. In fact for the last ten years, at least, New Jersey has been a Republican State and the preponderance of that party has grown rather than lessened.

At the present time there is no indication that on national issues New Jersey is anything but safely Republican, and if the Democratic hopes of carrying the other so-called doubtful States are based on no better foundation than they are in New Jersey, Candidate Parker's chances are slim indeed.—Newark Evening News.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—John Sullivan, of West Fourth street, has accepted a position as bortender at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York city. He will begin his duties Monday.

—The Public Service Corporation trolley sprinkler broke down a few days ago and has since been under repair. Its absence has been plainly in evidence along the various trolley lines.

—Iced tea made from Formosa Oolong sold by Neuman Brothers, makes a delicious and seasonable drink. Formosa Oolong sells for fifty cents a pound and its equal is not to be had in the city.

Miss Annie Daly, of West Fourth street, is entertaining her brother from out of town. Mr. Daly is studying for the ministry in Baltimore and will probably be ordained a priest after another year of study.

Seeking a Pastor.

The consistory of the German Reformed church met last evening and discussed the probabilities of securing a new pastor within a short time to take the place made vacant by the resignation of Rev. John Justin. Nothing definite was accomplished and a further meeting will be held next week.

I. O. O. F. INSTALL OFFICERS

PLAINFIELD AND QUEEN CITY LODGES HOLD JOINT CEREMONY.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, and Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., installed their recently elected officers jointly, last evening. The ceremonies were in charge of Past District Deputy Grand Master John Becker and the regular installation staff from Perth Amboy. The work was accomplished in a meritorious manner.

Following the installation, a short period was devoted to a smoker and addresses and refreshments were served at the close. The committee which had the affair in charge consisted of Stephen Schleif, Harvey Schmeyer and Jacob Kettenring from Plainfield Lodge and Albert Barber, Charles DeGraw and Fred Welch from Queen City.

While the work was in progress, a telegram was received from District Deputy Grand Master Crowther, of Perth Amboy, who is attending the Elks convention at Cincinnati, expressing regret at his inability to be present.

SHE KNOWS EVERY PLACE.

Girl in Photographic Concern Is Well Posted on Camera Productions.

"We have one girl in our office whose principal duty is to identify photographs," said the manager of a big photographic concern, reports the Chicago Inter Ocean. "It is not our own work she has to puzzle over, but that of our customers. Most of these people are globe trotters. They travel with a camera, and use it so industriously and indiscriminately that they don't have time to get one batch of pictures out of the way before another lot is thrown on their hands. The consequence is the whole bunch gets hopelessly mixed, and the tourists return home with trunkfuls of pictures, very few of which are labeled, and therefore hard to identify. If left to their own devices the amateurs never would get things straightened out. Half of them cannot tell the leaning tower of Pisa from a Norwegian pine, as shown up in their own work.

"That is where our girl comes in handy. No matter how crude the picture or how remote the scene photographed, she usually is able to give it a place and a name. The funny part of it is the girl herself never has traveled. So far as personal experience goes her knowledge of the earth's topography is confined to Manhattan island. But she has a keen eye, and that, supplemented by careful study, enables her to clear up most photographic muddles. Naturally all that research is rather expensive. It strikes me that it would pay the travelers to take fewer pictures and label them when fresh from the camera. Few of them do it, however, which, of course, is good for our girl, since their carelessness gives employment for her peculiar talents."

ALEUTS HERDING SEA LIONS.

Islanders Stampede the Animals' Inland and Corral Large Numbers of Them.

In the sea-lion rookeries of the Alaskan coast some curious stampedes are seen. At certain seasons of the year the Aleuts have a drive of "seevitchie," as the lions are called. It is generally begun in September or October to gather in a supply of winter meat, says a London paper.

At night when the sea-lions are lying in the sand above high water the natives start their hunting. Armed with sticks, clapping bones, and guns, they creep down to the water's edge and carefully get between their game and the sea, and at a given signal, rush with yells and all manner of noise at the victims.

The terrible noise awakes and stampedes the sea-lions, each one rushing in the direction in which its head happens to be pointed. In this way some go inland and a few escape to the water.

The stampede ends disastrously for those that head inland. The ungainly creatures are driven by cries and shouts to the houses of the hunters. There stakes are placed in the ground about them, forming a sort of corral. To the posts streamers of cloth are fastened, and the foolish sea-lions are afraid to approach the fluttering things.

Other catches are added until the herd corraled numbers two or three hundred, and then the final march is taken up. The sea-lions are liberated from the corral and driven in the direction of the Aleut village, ten or twelve miles away, the journey taking from one to two weeks.

MYSTERIOUS VISIT PUZZLES THE 'PLAINS

Residents Believe There Is "Something Doing" in the Way of Railroad Building.

CONTRACTORS IN TOWN

WANTED BIDS FOR THE ERECTION OF COOK AND TOOL HOUSE.

Admitted They Had Large Contract, But Refused Particulars—Said Work Would Require 600 Men.

All Scotch Plains is wondering and guessing as to what will be the outcome of a visit to the village Wednesday afternoon of two "mysterious" strangers. Their appearance and subsequent actions has led to the belief that one of the big railroads contemplates an extension or improvements of some sort and everybody is anticipating a period of activity.

Claimed to be large contractors from New York, the two men called on Edward Verity, the carpenter, and asked him what he would charge to erect a one-story building 18x30 on the Green place, Terrill road, to be used, they said, as a bake and cook house for 600 men they expected to bring into town shortly to work upon a large contract they had secured. Mr. Verity's continued questioning had but little effect, as they were not very communicative upon the subject. They finally admitted that the contract was railroad work but they were not at liberty to state what company or what was the proposed route of the road. Their contract began at Scotch Plains and they believed the proposed route from there was Mountainside, Springfield and out through the Oranges. The men claimed that the lumber was on the ground and that the erection of the building must begin at once. After conferring together, Verity refused to take the contract on account of disagreement over the price. The men left saying they would see some of the Plainfield contractors and get their prices.

The visit and the information given, while vague, has aroused considerable speculation in town as to what road can be planning the "scoop," but Scotch Plains does not care what road does it so long as it gets the improvement it has waited for for over thirty years, when the residents allowed the Central Railroad of New Jersey to go over half a mile further away from the town instead of coming into it as they wanted to when they straightened the road through this section. At that time property took a jump and when the company wanted to purchase a right of way they found that property could be bought much cheaper, so put the road where it is now. This practically set Scotch Plains back twenty-five years and there are but few in town but what will admit now that a mistake was made, for this reason any road would be gladly welcomed as it would mean the making of the place.

No one knows of any new surveys being made recently, but during the past twenty years the Baltimore and Ohio, Lehigh Valley and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western companies have all surveyed through town for proposed routes but they failed to materialize and hopes of the property owners have been dashed to the ground and the incidents forgotten. Some think that it is possibly a branch line of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Company from Whitehouse to Milburn, while others say the Lehigh Valley Company has been trying for a number of years to secure a right of way from South Plainfield through Plainfield, Scotch Plains, and so on to their line near New Orange. Others claim their hopes have been dashed to the ground so many times that they want to see the road before they will believe it, but Mr. Verity says from the appearance of the men and their talk he believes that they are all right and mean business. Their refusal to give full details, they claimed, was for the purpose of protecting the company until they were ready to inform the public themselves.

Pulpit Supplies for August.

The pulpit supplies at the First Presbyterian church during the month of August will be as follows: August 7, Rev. Dr. William D. Roberts, of Philadelphia; 14, Rev. William Allen, Jr., of Pennington; 21, Rev. P. B. Kennedy, of Easton, Pa. The church will be closed the last Sunday in August and the first Sunday in September for cleaning and repairs.

WILL MAKE AERIAL FLIGHT

CLARENCE MUNDY TO ASCEND HEIGHT OF 2,000 FEET IN A BALLOON.

Becoming accustomed to dizzy heights by climbing flag poles and steeples, Clarence Mundy, a painter who resides in the borough, has determined to make a balloon ascension at a local park, one week from Sunday. It will be his first attempt as an aeronaut but he has wagered that he can accomplish the feat successfully and also that the balloon will be 2,000 feet above the earth before he releases the parachute. The ascension will be made in the afternoon and a large delegation of Mundy's friends will be in attendance.

Mundy is a young man but in the past few years has climbed every flag staff of any importance including the city pole at Front street and Park avenue. He ascended the latter one cold day last winter to install new halyards after all other climbers had refused the job. The sight of the intrepid climber attracted hundreds of people in the two streets and for a time traffic was practically at a standstill. It was through feats of this kind that Mundy became used to aerial perils and induced him to arrange for the balloon ascent.

SOME TROLLEY IMPROVEMENTS

P. S. C. WILL LAY NEW RAILS IN WATCHUNG AVENUE.

Anticipating an ordinance calling for a permanent pavement on Watchung avenue, between North avenue and Second street, the Public Service officials have ordered new rails to be laid in that block. The first of them arrived yesterday morning and they will be put down at once. The rails are heavier than those now in use and are of a grooved design, making it easier for wagon wheels to pass over them. They will last for many years and there will be no need to disturb the pavement after it is once built.

WANT SUNDAY TRAINS.

Asbury Park Will Fight the Issue Through the Courts, if Necessary.

City Clerk Burroughs, of Asbury Park, yesterday received official notification from the officials of the Long Branch Railroad, that Sunday train service would be discontinued this week at the North Asbury Park station, and last night Mayor Tenbroeck called a special meeting of the Common Council for today, at which the city will open its fight upon the Ocean Grove Association, which is responsible for the new order of things.

It is the purpose of the city and the local merchants to force the issue, through the courts if necessary.

W. G. Besler, general manager of the New Jersey Central, sent this notice to the Common Council:

"In further reference to your communication relating to the stopping of trains at the North Asbury Park station on Sunday, an agreement exists between the railroad companies and the officials of the Ocean Grove Association which forbids such stopping of Sunday trains without the consent of the association. We feel ourselves to be under obligation to keep the agreement. I may say, however, that after a conference with representatives of the association we have good ground for the hope that, after a short time, an understanding may be reached by which the desired consent may be secured."

Railroad Interests Change.

The control of the DesMoine and Fort Dodge Railroad, formerly dominated by a group of Wall street men known as the Hooley-Stow Syndicate, yesterday passed into the hands of Edwin Hawley and his friends. Representatives of this syndicate, who owned the road prior to the failure of Edwin S. Hooley & Co. and W. L. Stow & Co., and who acquired it again after Messrs. Hooley and Stow had settled with their creditors, resigned yesterday and new directors were elected.

Epworthians Enjoy An Outing.

A four-horse drag conveyed some twenty-five members of Epworth League of the First Methodist Episcopal church for an evening drive through the mountains last night. The start was made at shortly after 7 o'clock and the party made the trip to Jacob Voehl's summer home, situated between Coontown and Martinsville. After driving through the grounds, a halt was made and refreshments served. The return was made late at night.

TRINITY HAD A FINE DAY

ANNUAL EXCURSION TO ASBURY PARK A GREAT SUCCESS.

The annual excursion of Trinity Reformed church and Marconnier chapel Sunday-schools to Asbury Park, yesterday, was most successful. There were in all about one thousand persons, including children, on the train of sixteen cars. When the train left this city it was made up of thirteen cars, but Charles H. English, passenger train master, who was on hand, at once made arrangements for extra cars at Roselle to accommodate the large crowd.

When Roselle was reached there was a regular train standing in the yard, made up and ready to make its usual run. Mr. English gave orders for the engine to back up and attach three cars to the excursion train. In doing this the excursionists were not obliged to wait long, and Mr. English's attention and courtesy were greatly appreciated.

The trip consumed about two hours each way and all thoroughly enjoyed the delightful sea breeze. William Dunham, of Dunellen, was the engineer, running engine No. 622, and Thomas Flanagan was the conductor. Not an incident occurred all day to mar the pleasure of the excursionists. Exclusive of the tickets for the children, who were carried free, there were 723 tickets sold, and instead of their being the usual deficit, it is believed that expenses will be cleared.

WAS NOT IN THE FIGHT.

Recorder Doud Suspends Sentence on John Rannanzo, a Suspect.

Charged with being one of the Italians who participated in the Hudson lane brawl, Sunday, John Rannanzo, a local tailor, was arraigned before Recorder Doud last night, making the twenty-eighth man to appear in connection with the affair. Through his counsel, Francis J. Blatz, Esq., he proved that he had been visiting at the place with his wife and children but at the first sign of trouble he left. He was several blocks away when the fight began but was noticed by a borough marshal who believed he had been implicated.

Wetumpkah's Officers Installed.

The district deputy from Westfield visited Wetumpkah Council, I. O. R. M., last evening, and installed the newly-elected officers. John Clark was duly installed as prophet, and Thomas Kolb as sachem. The senior and junior sagamores for the next term will be John Neal and Richard Scott. R. E. Humphrey now holds office as first sannap and Leo Sionim is second sannap. One paleface was received for the adoption degree. After the meeting, the warriors feasted on venison, green corn and ice cream.

Schmever was installed as High Priest of the lodge, Henry Nischwitz became chief patriarch and John Becker, Jr., and John Krisey were chosen to the offices of senior and junior warden respectively. S. H. Schleif was chosen reporting scribe and John A. Williams financial scribe.

Secured Stay of Execution.

Attorney Vincent W. Nash, Jr., went before Judge Vail at Elizabeth yesterday and secured a stay of execution in the DeMeza-Carbone contract case, which led to the disturbance in Justice Hand's court, Wednesday afternoon. The attorney claims that he should have been allowed a half hour's grace from the time set for the hearing and that the rendering of judgment before he arrived was illegal.

Mrs. Spencer Conway Dead.

Mrs. Jane Conway, aged fifty-four years, wife of Spencer Conway, of 541 West Fourth street, died at 2 o'clock this morning. During the past four years Mrs. Conway has been an invalid and her death was not unexpected. She leaves a husband and one son. The funeral services will be held from the Ms. Olive Baptist church Sunday afternoon.

Addresses W. C. T. U. Convention.

"Temperance Hodge-Podge" was the subject of an address delivered by Mrs. M. D. Tomlinson, of this city, at the annual session of the State W. C. T. U. yesterday afternoon at Ocean Grove. Several members of the local Union are attending the meeting which will be continued today.

John H. Green, of Somerset street, sailed yesterday for England to visit his mother. Mr. Green's little son accompanied him.

ALIS TO MEET OLD RIVALS ON DIAMOND

Resumption of Series With Westfield the Attraction at Crescent Oval Tomorrow.

ARE EVENLY MATCHED

MANAGER DENMAN SAYS "RED" WALLER WILL PITCH.

Clinton Avenue Team to Cross Bats With Dunellen A. C.—Many Events on the Local Golf Courses.

The greatest interest in the way of sports for tomorrow will be in the baseball contest on Crescent Oval, between Plainfield and Westfield. This will be the first meeting of the teams since the memorable June 11, when the contest terminated in a row. All differences have since been fixed up and when the teams come together on the oval tomorrow it will be a battle royal. It is said that very little Westfield money can be found, and as Plainfield is quite sure of victory, there is not much room for argument there.

Manager Johnston has gotten together a collection of strong players and he expects great things of them tomorrow. The team will lineup as it did a week ago with the exception possibly of the pitcher. It is announced that Davis will not occupy the slab for the locals, but who will is still a matter of conjecture. The Westfield lineup has not yet been learned, but Manager Denman says that "Red" Waller will positively pitch for Westfield.

Estimating the playing strength of the Alis team there is every reason to believe that victory should come here. Every man has been tried and not found wanting. The team cannot only field well, but is strong with the stick. The game will be called at 3:45 and those wishing a seat should go to the oval early.

Another contest of unusual interest for tomorrow will be that between Clinton Avenue and Dunellen at Dunellen. The latter team recently defeated the hitherto unbeaten New Market team in two contests and a fine struggle will be presented. Both teams will have their strongest men in the game.

Aside from the baseball, there will be events in golf. At the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club there will be the weekly play for the Golf Committee cup, a clock golf contest for women and probably the final play between the survivors of the third eight in the club championship contest, postponed a week ago.

At the Park Golf Club there will be continuation of play for the President's and club cups, while at the Westfield Golf Club there will be the Governors' competition and the July handicap. Each one of these events is sure to attract a large field and to be full of interest.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Arrangements Completed for Play at the Y. M. C. A. Courts in Boys' Singles.

Arrangements were completed today for the boys' tennis tournament in singles to be held at the Y. M. C. A. next week. Howard Freeman has been appointed chairman of the committee to receive entries and make arrangements for dates of play. If enough entries are received play will begin Thursday of next week.

Justices' Court Cases.

Summons have been issued in the contract case of Joseph Kingston against LeRoy H. Gates in Justice Mosher's court. The hearing has been set for Wednesday. A $50 demand for breach of contract has been filed at Justice Hand's court by Mrs. Minnie Stryker against William H. Aspinwall. The matter will come before the Justice on Thursday. Suing for the non-payment of a millinery bill, Adams & Chapman have filed papers at Justice Hand's court for the collection of $15 from Ada L. Smith on contract. The case is called for Tuesday morning.

Juniors to Go Up the Hudson.

A large delegation of members from the local Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., will accompany the members of Wm. A. M. Mack Council, of Elizabeth, on a moonlight excursion up the Hudson, tonight. The trip will be made from Elizabethport on the barge A. M. Church.

Miss Lottie Koechlein, of Somerville, who has been visiting relatives in this city, has returned home.

DECLINES PARISIAN TRIP

CITY JUDGE RUNYON'S VOICE CAPTIVATES MILLIONAIRE.

Word received from Cincinnati yesterday, indicates that City Judge Runyon's vocal abilities have proved a very fortunate possession for him, beside their handiness in winning plaudits at parlor parties.

While making the trip from this city to the Elks' convention town he lifted up his voice in song that was heard above the hum of the Pullman by a fellow passenger, who afterward proved to be a millionaire from Brooklyn. The Judge's deep trills charmed him so that he immediately made his acquaintance and called for more until the singer was thoroughly tired out. From that time on the man of means adopted the Judge as his own and John H. Cose, his traveling companion, was able to get only an occasional audience. The millionaire offered to send his new found friend to a musical conservatory in Paris or place him under European artists to fit him for an operatic career, and he felt greatly disappointed when the Judge firmly refused to consider any such proposition. The letter received from an observer of the episode declares that the millionaire is still by the Judge's side and calling for songs at every opportunity offered.

MRS. FAWCETT DEAD.

Well-Known Resident of the Borough Succumbs to Long Illness.

Mrs. Sarah Fawcett, of Mercer avenue, for many years a resident of this city, died at her home late last night after a long illness. Mrs. Fawcett, who was eighty years of age, was born at Lurgan, Ireland, and was for many years a resident of Belfast. Her husband, Thomas Fawcett, died several years ago. Mrs. Fawcett was the mother of thirteen children, eleven of whom are now living. Of these there are three brothers, Benjamin Fawcett, a resident of Grove street; Hughes Fawcett, of Rockview avenue, and Alfred Fawcett, who lived with his mother. Miss May Fawcett, of Mercer avenue, and Mrs. Sarah Gribbon are daughters.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Mercer avenue home on Sunday afternoon. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

CAPTURES TARANTULA.

David Ramozetti Narrowly Escapes Being Bitten While Handling Bananas.

After it had nearly frightened a small colored boy into spasms by jumping on his hand, David Ramozetti, the Park avenue fruit dealer, today captured a large tarantula which came to his place in a bunch of bananas. The spider was disturbed from its resting place by the boy and it immediately sprang upon him. Ramozetti knocked it to the floor before it could bite him and then scooped it into a glass jar. The colored boy was not hurt but it was several minutes before he recovered his composure.

Death of Mrs. Martha Schuck.

Mrs. Martha Schuck, widow of the late John A. Schuck, of this city, died at Morristown this morning. Mrs. Schuck was seventy-seven years of age, and has been living at Morristown for nearly twenty years, since her husband's death. Her two sons, George and Frank, are residents of this city. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

Dilts May Recover.

The condition of John Dilts, the street railway employe who fell from the top of the repair car two weeks ago, remains practically the same from day to day. Dilts is at the hospital and, while his injuries are of a serious character, his condition yesterday and today has caused those in attendance to entertain hopes of his recovery.

Death of An Infant Daughter.

Catherine, the two-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayers, of West Front street, died yesterday afternoon, following a short illness. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and the interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Death of a Child.

The six year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Maden, of West Third street, died this morning at 7 o'clock from spinal meningitis. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon.

Miss Nellie Clarkson, of Elm place, will leave tomorrow with her uncle, G. H. Bellis, of Elmwood place, for a few weeks' visit with relatives and friends in Hunterdon county.

SERVANTS ENGAGE IN A SCRAP

ROUNDSMAN FLYNN MAKES A SENSATIONAL ARREST.

Robert L. Toney, the colored coachman, and a colored servant girl, both in the employ of a Central avenue family, engaged in a quarrel yesterday afternoon, during which the latter was badly beaten and choked. Her screams aroused neighbors and a hurry call was sent for the police patrol, but before its arrival Toney fled to the barn and locked himself in.

On the arrival of Roundsman Flynn he called for Toney to come out of the building, but there was no response. Repeated attempts to open the door met with failure and as a last resort the officer placed a ladder against an upper window and climbed through. He found Toney in the lower part of the building terror-stricken through belief that he was to be punished by a crowd of men he thought were without.

He was locked up over night and when arraigned before Mayor Jenkins this morning pleaded guilty to the charge of assault preferred by the police. As the girl refused to either give her name or appear against the prisoner, sentence was suspended.

MR. HARRIS' TWENTY-FIRST

POPULAR YOUNG MT. PLEASANT MAN CELEBRATES HIS BIRTHDAY.

Stanley C. Harris, of Mount Pleasant, gave a delightful party at his home Wednesday evening, at which time he celebrated the twenty-first anniversary of his birth.

The floor of the Harris barn was well waxed and made an excellent place for dancing. Professor Rocco, of Metuchen, furnished the music. The lawn was illuminated with Japanese lanterns and decorated with flags. After dancing supper was served, a feature of which was a birthday cake containing a beautiful ring. Miss Maude Holcombe, of New Dover, was lucky enough to get the piece containing the ring.

Included in the large attendance were many Plainfielders.

"PARK AVENUE DAY."

Enjoyable Time Arranged for Tomorrow at Netherwood Camp.

Tomorrow afternoon will be known as "Park Avenue Baptist Day" at the Netherwood Camp. The Sunday-school and C. E. Society will unite in furnishing entertainment and refreshments for all the children there. An entertainer from New York will give an exhibition of magic, in addition to which there will be a "Peanut Hunt" and other games of amusement for the children. Instead of their regular supper, they will be served with sandwiches, cake and ice cream.

An enjoyable afternoon is anticipated, and a cordial invitation is extended to all to be present.

BLIND READER ENTERTAINS.

Bible Students Hold a Social at Percy Cannon's Home.

The Young Men's Bible class of Monroe Avenue church, taught by Adam Neuman, proceeded in a body to the home of Percy Cannon on East Second street, last evening, to pay him a social call. They went provided with refreshments and the means for passing a pleasant evening and the affair was enjoyed by everyone. Mr. Cannon "read" to the gathering from his books and in many ways showed how wonderfully adept he has become though deprived of sight.

Before leaving, the class left a very substantial gift that brought gladness to Mr. Cannon and more than repaid the donors for their thoughtfulness.

Remembered His Comrades.

It being impossible for A. R. Phillips, a member of Co. K, to attend camp at Sea Girt, last week, he very kindly remembered his fellows by sending them a can of fresh milk every day. It so happened that the Plainfield boys were the only ones in camp who were favored this way.

Kenneth Shupp Builds a Boat.

Kenneth Shupp, of Madison avenue, is building a large-sized row boat which he intends to use on a pleasure trip on Harvey Lake, Pa., when he takes his vacation. Yesterday the boat was taken to Tier's Lake, for the purpose of fixing the water line.

Water Main in West End Avenue.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company is about to lay a main in West End avenue from West Front street to the brook. Heretofore a service pipe has been used to supply the residents with water.

WILD WEST METHODS IN HOLDING PRISONER

The Wearrens Capture Dennis O'Loughlin and Bind Him to a Post.

HELD FOR POLICE

FIERCE STRUGGLE DURING WHICH REVOLVER IS DISCHARGED.

O'Loughlin's Persistency in Demanding Money Due Him Leads to Trouble—Fined $5 in City Court.

In true Wild Western style of the variety furnished by the Apaches when Geronimo reigned supreme, Dennis O'Loughlin, of West Second street, was captured in the wilds of Evona last night and tied to a clothes post. The "band" which made him prisoner consisted of Thomas Wearren, his brother and his two sons and the scene of the struggle was in Wearren's yard on Rock avenue. O'Loughlin was to blame for it in the first place and had his captors at bay with a pistol for a short time but he was a most helpless and humiliated prisoner when the police patrol dashed up with Driver O'Gorman and Patrolman Overbaugh. He was released only to be taken to police headquarters and spend the night in a cell. This morning he paid a $5 fine for carrying the weapon.

O'Loughlin is a mason and has been working for Wearren, who is a contracting builder. A short time ago O'Loughlin was laid off, he claims, without getting all the money due him. Early last evening he went to the Wearren home and demanded the money owed him. He emphasized his remarks with flourishes from an umbrella and Wearren says he was hit with it before he got the former employe to go away. It wasn't long before he was back again and there was another argument and another scuffle. O'Loughlin left again and at 10:45 he appeared for the third time, but on this occasion pickets detected his approach and the Wearren forces massed themselves behind the kitchen door.

As O'Loughlin ascended the porch he was suddenly pounced upon by the "band" and in a few seconds both sides were tearing up Wearren's back yard. O'Loughlin fought hard but was getting the worst of it when a pistol shot made his attackers jump away from him. One of the latter saw him make a motion as if to draw a weapon and then he was seized again. This time the lone mason gave up and in a jiffy he was trussed up like a spring chicken and tied hard and fast to the post.

These facts were brought out at the trial before Mayor Jenkins this morning and they were admitted by O'Loughlin, only he disclaimed carrying the revolver with the intention of putting any or all of the Warrens "out of business." He bought the weapon last night, he said, for his son and it was only loaded with blank cartridges. The police found that it contained bullets and the concealed weapon charge was made against him. Although O'Loughlin claimed that the Wearrens "threw the shoe into him" while he was tied to the post, no action was taken against the Wearrens for their part in the affair.

IN THE FINALS.

Riverside Park has booked a big attraction for next week, Mme. Sobell and her den of African man-eating lions. This graceful and daring performer will enter the den of lions, keeping them at bay by various means. It is said to be a thrilling performance. The rest of the bill is a very strong one. A list of the artists will be found in the Park advertisement elsewhere. The show this week has been pleasing big crowds. It is a laughing show from start to finish, with "The Battle of San Dago" as a funny finale. The performance is of the same quality as one would see in the New York vaudeville houses. There will be no more Sunday baseball at the Park.

RODE FOUR WINNERS.

Feature of Brighton Beach Racing Was Riding of Jockey Burns.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The feature of the racing at Brighton Beach was the riding of Jockey Tommy Burns. Out of five mounts he rode four winners and finished third on his other mount.

His ride on Dapple Gold in the last race was especially good. Getting off in a good position, he lay in second place to the stretch, when he moved out and in a terrific drive won by a head from Buckleya.

His other winning mounts were Tremotor, Grand Gpera and Humo.

Monster won the July Selling stakes. Bobadil, who was practically left at the post, finished a good second after running all around his field. Four favorites won.

New York Irish Athletes Won.

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—In the Irish sports T. F. Kiely of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association took the most honors. He was first in putting the forty-two pound stone, putting the fifty-six pound shot, throwing the sixteen pound hammer, in the one hundred and twenty yard hurdle and in the running two hops and jump and second in the running long jump. J. J. Holloway of the same club was first in the running long jump, first in three standing jumps, second in the running two hops and a jump, second in putting the forty-two pound stone and third in the one hundred and twenty yard hurdle.

Cigar Lighter at Hawthorne.

CHICAGO, July 22.—Cigar Lighter, second choice in the betting, won the Juvenile stakes at Hawthorne. He had a length to spare over Michael Byrnes, and Cutter, at 40 to 1, was the same distance back in third position. The stake was worth $2,450 to the winner. The Pet led the field to the turn for home, where she dropped out of it entirely and Cigar Lighter took command. Michael Byrnes, which had been in last place, then closed with a rush, easily passing all but Cigar Lighter, and had no trouble in getting second money.

Tennis at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 22.—The feature match proved to be that between Leroy and the Californian, Bell, in the semifinal round of the open singles. The Columbia crack won the first set after allowing the westerner to gain a lead of four games on him. He assumed the lead in the second set and seemed to have the set well in hand, but tired rapidly from his previous exertion, and Bell won five straight games and the set. The third set went to the latter easily.

Jack Young Nosed Boaster Out.

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—Jack Young found a track that suited him and won the feature of the fair grounds card at the good price of 8 to 1. Taby Tosa, the favorite, finished back in the ruck. Boaster led to within a few yards of the wire, where Jack Young got up just in time to nose him out. First Mason won the fifth handily after allowing Charlie Thompson and Miss Mae Day to lead to the stretch turn.

Cruising Race Won by Hussar.

PUT-IN-BAY, O., July 22.—The Interlake Yacht association meet here was devoted to a squadron race, in which all yachts participated. The race for cruisers was won by the Hussar of Toledo.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 22.—Thomas Brown, an aged resident of Trumansburg, entered a saloon in that village to protest against the further sale of liquor to his sons. He became engaged in an altercation with the barkeeper, Delos Selover, and was thrown out. He fell upon the pavement, fracturing his skull, and died from his injuries in a few hours. Selover was arrested on the charge of manslaughter.

CREEDMOOR BURNED

Oil and Naphtha Laden Ship Destroyed at Sea.

CREW RESCUED---ONE SAILOR LOST

Fire Supposed to Have Originated From Spontaneous Combustion. Vessel Blazed From Stem to Stern and Sank.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 22.—The ship Creedmoor, laden with oil and naphtha, caught fire at sea about half past 7 o'clock, when the vessel was about twenty-five miles southeast from Shinnecock light, and after hard work the flames apparently were controlled. At half past 10 o'clock, however, the blaze again started with renewed vigor, and all endeavors to conquer it were unavailing.

Captain William Humphreys and the crew then put off in the two boats of the ship and remained in the vicinity of the burning vessel until about 1 o'clock, when the schooner Joseph B. Thomas of Thomaston, Me., attracted by the fire, came to their assistance and picked them up.

After the men, eighteen in number, had reached the Thomas it was found that John Marx, a Portuguese, one of the crew when the ship left New York, was not accounted for. It is believed that he went down with the burning ship.

Captain Humphreys, M. Adams, the mate, and the other sixteen of the crew were landed in Wood's Holl, Mass., by a small steamer which took them off the Thomas at Marthas Vineyard. They started at once for New York and passed through this city yesterday afternoon.

One of the party, the cook, had his hand badly burned. The others escaped injury. The crew was made up of men of widely differing nationalities, and none could speak English intelligibly. Barring the clothing they wore and the log, but little was saved from the ship.

The fire in the Creedmoor started, it is believed by her officers, from spontaneous combustion of gas arising from her cargo of oil.

Relative to the fate of the missing man, one of the English speaking members of the crew said that it was probable that he had been burned to death.

Some difficulty was encountered in the endeavor to lower the boats, several swamping as soon as they struck the water. When the men had finally succeeded in getting away the Creedmoor was ablaze from stern to stem, and the violence of the explosions of the cargo of naphtha had lifted portions of the deck high into the air.

When the blaze was discovered much of the cargo was thrown overboard in an effort to get at the fire, but on the second breaking out of the flames hopes for the salvage of the vessel were given up, and she was abandoned.

Montclair Man Killed by Fall.

NEW YORK, July 22.—William B. Cunningham, fifty years old, a dealer in burlap and jute yarns, whose home was in upper Montclair, N. J., fell nine stories in the elevator shaft of the Mutual Reserve building, at 309 Broadway, New York, where his offices were located, and was instantly killed. No one is able to say how the accident occurred. The elevator, in charge of Louis McGee, went up to the eighth story empty shortly before the fatality, and when it passed the ninth floor no one was waiting in the hallway. When it came down again, the elevator boy saw Mr. Cunningham's straw hat, crushed out of shape, lying on the hallway floor outside the gates, which were open.

Chauncey Dewey to Dispute Will.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 22.—The will of the late Charles F. Dewey, who died in this city about a month ago, disposing of an estate in Chicago and elsewhere valued at approximately a million dollars, will probably be contested by his daughter by a former wife and his son Chauncey, who was recently acquitted of charges of murder growing out of the ranch feud with the Berrys in Kansas. Chauncey Dewey and his sister have just returned from abroad, and they will be present in Chicago next week when the will is offered for probate.

Meat Packers Resume Work.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 22.—Many of the striking packing house employees have been re-employed, and others will be taken back today. At each of the six local plants preparations have been made to resume with a full complement of men, when great efforts will be made to catch up with orders. Many of the strike breakers have walked out. Both sides to the controversy seem pleased with the settlement.

AN AUTO DISASTER

Long Island Train Wrecked Rauscher's Motor Car.

MACHINE AND FIVE MEN TOSSED UP

Train Struck Car Squarely, Crushing It and Sending Fragments Along the Track For Two Hundred Feet.

NEW YORK, July 22.—Five men crossing the Long Island tracks at King's highway and Gravesend avenue, near Coney island, in an automobile, were struck by a freight train, the machine wrecked and its occupants thrown out.

The victims were: Martin Rauscher, proprietor of Albemarle hotel, Coney island, severely cut and bruised; Horatio Abbott of Sea Breeze avenue, compound fracture of skull, will probably die; George Merritt of Courtlandt street, Coney island, arms and legs broken, condition critical; Albert Buckhart, cut and bruised; unidentified man, seriously injured.

The accident gave rise to a report that spread consternation at the Brighton Beach race track. There it was said that E. R. Thomas and his partner, Alex Shields, were the occupants of the auto and that they had been killed.

The injured men were taken to the Coney Island Reception hospital, and the engineer and fireman of the train were arrested.

Mr. Rauscher had invited the party to take a spin in his thirty-five horsepower Panhard car, and they were bowling along toward the crossing at high speed, while a freight train was making for the same point behind a fringe of trees, going at about twenty-five miles.

There were no gates at the crossing, no flagman could be seen, and it is said the train did not sound its whistle.

The train struck the auto squarely, crushing it into bits and tossing the fragments along the track for a distance of 200 feet.

Mr. Rauscher and Mr. Buckhart were in the front seat and had an instant's warning. They escaped with less severe injuries than the others, though all were tossed by the locomotive.

Abbott and Merritt, who were in the rear seat, apparently had no warning whatever of their peril. Both will probably die.

Wayside Inn Dedicated.

GROVE CITY, Pa., July 22.—Wayside inn, the home provided for their aged and infirm by the Odd Fellows of Pennsylvania, was dedicated, the ceremonies attracting to the town about 15,000, the largest crowd which has ever visited it. The dedicatory services were held in the afternoon, with Grand Master Robert Graham of Philadelphia presiding. The impressive ritualistic services of the order were used. The president of the home association, Louis K. White of Allegheny, delivered an address, telling how the association had been started with a treasury fund of $1. In three years' time a farm and home have been secured costing $65,000, every cent of which is paid.

Folk Nominated For Governor.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 22.—The Democratic state convention has adjourned after nominating the following ticket: Governor, Joseph W. Folk of St. Louis; lieutenant governor, Thomas L. Rubey of La Platta; secretary of state, Samuel B. Cook of Mexico; auditor of state, Albert O. Allen of New Madrid; treasurer of state, Judge James Cowgill of Kansas City; attorney general, Elliott W. Major of Bowling Green; railroad and warehouse commissioner, H. Rubey Oglesby of Warrensburg.

Eldredge Has Disappeared.

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 22.—Clarence Q. Eldredge, aged twenty-two, son of Charles Q. Eldredge of Old Mystic, has disappeared, and letters found in a suit case in his room indicate that he contemplated suicide. Eldredge was employed as bookkeeper and confidential clerk in a local store. His accounts have been examined and found to be correct. He left directions asking that his body if found be buried at sea, but gave no reason for his intended suicide.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

HAS LEFT PORT SAID

Russian Order of Release For Malacca Came Too Late.

PRIZE HAD SAILED FOR BALTIC PORT

Count Keller Reports Great Victory Over Japanese In the Valley of the Liao River—Japs Marching on Mukden.

LONDON, July 22.—Lloyd's agent at Port Said telegraphs that the Peninsular and Oriental liner Malacca, which was seized by the Russian steamship St. Petersburg in the Red sea and is now navigated by a prize crew, has left Port Said for Russia.

When the Malacca sailed, the agent says, it was not known to what port she was bound. A news agency dispatch announcing the departure of the vessel adds that her destination is supposed to be Libau, on the Baltic, and that she will call at Cherbourg.

The agent of the Peninsular and Oriental company at Port Said telegraphed to the company that the Malacca left with a bill of health marked "Russia."

Advices from St. Petersburg say that the Russian government has telegraphed to Suez instructions to release the British steamship Malacca if no contraband of war destined for Japan was found on board her. It was found impossible to carry this order into effect as the Malacca had already left Suez.

The justification for the seizure is stated here to be the fact that the captain of the Malacca refused to show the ship's papers.

Count Beckendorff, the Russian ambassador to Great Britain, has asked for Lord Lansdowne's official assurance that the munitions on board were British government stores. This being given, orders will instantly be issued to release the vessel. At the same time Great Britain will be notified that ships stopped by Russia whose manifests are not in order will be held.

The statement previously made that the vessels of the Russian volunteer fleet in the Red sea are under the orders of Grand Duke Alexander Mikhailovich is officially declared to be incorrect.

Russia will maintain the legality of the status of the Smolensk and St. Petersburg as warships. They are under the orders of the admiralty and were commissioned by the admiralty's instructions. Under the regulations of the volunteer fleet Russia claims that ships belonging thereto can be converted into warships without previous notice upon orders from the admiralty. When the Smolensk and St. Petersburg reached Suez on their way out, they received from the Russian consul the admiralty's instructions commissioning them as warships. The view that Great Britain might meet the question of conversion by authorizing British merchantmen to hoist the naval flag is ridiculed in official circles, where full confidence seems to exist that the incident will be speedily and satisfactorily adjusted.

A Liaoyang dispatch says the Russian eastern army attacked the Japanese on the other side of the valley of the Liao river. Lieutenant General Count Keller after a hard fight compelled the Japanese to retreat with great loss.

General Herschelmann has had a successful engagement, forcing the Japanese to rapidly retreat on their main force.

The Russian losses were 200 men killed or wounded. The Japanese losses are not reported.

It is reported that General Kuroki is suffering from malaria and that he follows his army in a litter.

General Oku, it is rumored, has resumed his advance beyond Kaichow. The Russians are expecting a battle there.

News has been received from Tatchekiao that the Japanese have broken through the Russian left flank between Lieutenant General Count Keller's position and that of General Rennenkampff and that they are marching on Mukden.

When questioned in the house of commons anent the departure of the Malacca from Port Said Premier Balfour confirmed the departure of the ship in charge of a Russian prize crew and added that he would "make a statement to the house on this most serious question at some future day," but, he added, he thought it was not desirable that a statement should be made prematurely.

Just before the adjournment of the house Premier Balfour stated that the government had received no confirmation of the reported release of the Malacca.

A statement was made by a news agency prior to Mr. Balfour's announcement that the government had received satisfactory assurances from the Russian government regarding the intended release of the vessel.

Governor Murphy made a two-base hit and the first run in a contest of baseball played yesterday at Sea Girt, but his side was defeated. Superstitious persons might say this was an ominous sign.

The prospects for the Republican party's success in New Jersey next November are not as rosey as some would like to believe, according to the Trenton correspondent of the New York Tribune. He indicates that the reports from all parts of the State show that there is a great amount of work to be done between now and election time if the party would win.

The head of a successful school says that a great many large private and public schools have drawn pupils from a wide territory through advertising. Most of these pupils would have gone to a few academies but for the enterprising publicity methods of the private establishments. "The school which is not advertised," he says, "must be satisfied with pupils from its own neighborhood."—Ex.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On July 31 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40, and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes.

By a total vote of 1,510 to 396, the textile unions of Fall River voted last night to go out on strike Monday morning, in protest against the reduction of wages of 12½ per cent., notices of which reduction were posted last week in all local cotton factories, to go into effect Monday. A meeting of the executive committee of the United Textile Workers of America was also held, at which it was voted to sanction whatever action was taken by the various unions. There are about twenty-five thousand operators in the mills. The next move of the cotton manufacturers is anxiously awaited, as the operators are determined to resist the reduction.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Frank Hedden, the local liveryman, claims to have in his possession the only specimen of genuine "Kissing Bug" ever captured. The creature as displayed to all visitors, is an insect nearly two inches long, with eight legs and two sets of big gauzy wings. The insect is armed with a cruel looking pair of nippers like miniature lobster's claws projecting from either side of the head. These weapons are nearly a quarter of an inch long. The insect was captured under peculiar circumstances. While two women, who are said to come from Summit, were driving near Springfield yesterday afternoon, the horse suddenly began to act strangely and to rear and prance as if in pain. Finally, badly frightened and evidently suffering much pain, the animal bolted and ran furiously for nearly a mile before it could be controlled. One of Hedden's rigs, which happened to be going in the same direction, went in pursuit of the running animal and finally caught up with the rig. When the horse was brought to a stand, Hedden's driver alighted and tried to scotch the animal. While thus engaged, he espied the insect on the horses neck and quickly dispatched it. It had inflicted a painful bite, and the animal's neck was considerably swelled.

AMUSEMENTS.

"Paris by Night," the new and elaborate musical production of Messrs. Weber and Rush, had its initial performance in New York atop the famous Madison Square Garden Saturday night, July 2, and scored one of the most emphatic successes in the records of metropolitan amusements. The roof was crowded with a critical audience which included all the well known first nighters of the metropolis, and during the evening such prominent players as Lew M. Field, Lillian Russell, Fay Templeton, William Collier, Alice Fisher, Marie Cahill, Nella Bergen, DeWolf Hopper, Isadore Rush, Corinne, Eddie Foy, Peter F. Dailey, Raymond Hitchcock, Joseph Miron and scores of others dropped in to witness the new spectacle. Although the performance lasted until midnight, not a handful of the two thousand persons comprising the audience left until the entertainment was concluded—the best test, it is generally admitted, as to the merits of a production. "Paris by Night" is a musical frivolity in two acts, by Harry B. Marshall, music by Robert W. Edwards, the scenes of which are laid in Paris, and concern the adventures of a standard American theatrical troupe in the French capital. There are over sixty persons in the cast, most of whom are girls of exceptional beauty, and there is an atmosphere of Bohemianism about the entire performance that is inexpressibly pleasing.

MRS. MAYBRICK AT ROUEN.

Now at the Home of Her Mother, Baroness de Roques.

ROUEN, France, July 22.—Mrs. Florence Maybrick has arrived here from London. The greatest precautions had been taken to keep her movements secret. She did not travel by way of New Haven, as do the majority of passengers, but instead crossed from Southampton, arriving at Havre, where she took an express train for Rouen.

Mrs. Maybrick was awaited at the station by her mother, the Baroness de Roques, with whom she drove in a closed carriage to the house of the baroness, who has been living for some time at Rouen under the name of Mme. de Moremont. The house is situated on the Rue de Tannery and is surrounded by high walls, completely shutting off the neighboring residences.

Visitors to the house were refused admittance, being informed by an old family servant that the baroness had left Rouen some time ago and would return within a week. Neither Mrs. Maybrick nor the baroness goes outside the grounds of the residence.

TAGGART FOR CHAIRMAN.

August Belmont Declines Position. Gorman May Serve.

NEW YORK, July 22.—August Belmont has settled all talk about himself in connection with the national chairmanship by telling his friends that he would not be considered for the place. It is understood that Mr. Belmont favors Thomas Taggart for chairman.

Unless Taggart should voluntarily withdraw it is not believed that Senator Gorman would allow his name to be used, and perhaps not even in that contingency. At the same time some of the eastern men still think that the Maryland senator is a possibility and do not relinquish the hope that he will manage the campaign.

With Gorman absolutely out, attention will be turned to William F. Sheehan, who it is believed would be Judge Parker's personal choice on account of their long friendship. But unless some direct word comes from Judge Parker to the effect that he wants Gorman or Sheehan, Taggart's friends will keep him in the field and insist upon electing him.

A BABY CYCLONE.

Many Badly Injured In Storm at Augusta, Ga.

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 22.—A storm of cyclonic proportions swept the eastern and southern sections of the city, doing great damage to property and injuring several people. The Hale Street Baptist church was completely demolished, a paint shop of the Central Railroad company totally wrecked, a small cottage on Hale street completely wrecked, the roof of a carpenter shop of the Georgia railroad blown away, the end of a house on Lincoln street was crushed in by a falling tree and the grand stand at the baseball park is a complete wreck.

J. K. Morris was fatally injured, William Brown, head gashed and ear gone; J. W. Livingston, William McCarthy, J. K. Calhoun and W. H. Fenly are slightly injured. All are employees of the Central railroad. Sophia Turner was slightly hurt in the Hale street house.

Strikers Barred Out.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 22.—The local strike situation is very quiet. The strikers' pickets were barred out of the grounds of the packing plants and officers stationed at the entrance with orders to admit no visitors and no one seeking employment. The packers announced that they had all the help they needed. A committee from the strikers was denied admission, the packers notifying it that it might be received this morning. After the repulse the strikers announced they would not apply for work today. It is not known what will be the next move of the strikers.

Operatives Will Fight Reduction.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 22.—The prevailing feeling among the cotton mill operatives who voted to strike on Monday next rather than submit to a 12½ per cent reduction in wages grows more bitter. The meeting of the mill owners and their attitude are accepted as a challenge by the operatives, and what little hope they may have had that the intention to cut wages might be reconsidered has now disappeared, and in its place there remains a determination to fight the matter to the bitter end.

Plan a Cancer Hospital.

PHILADELPHIA, July 22.—Plans for the founding in this city of a cancer hospital of national scope were formulated at a meeting of physicians and philanthropic citizens held here. The proposed institution is to be known as the American Oncologic hospital. The hospital is to be devoted exclusively to the treatment of tumors and cancerous affections and scientific research into the causes underlying the increase in the prevalence of cancer.

Salvation Army Worker Dead.

ST. LOUIS, July 22.—Mrs. Lucinda Kupch Marshall, a colonel on the national staff of the Salvation Army, is dead here. Mrs. Marshall had been a prominent member of the corps for twenty years, having been connected with the army posts in the principal cities of the United States and England.

Will Be Sent Back to Ohio.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—United States District Judge Morrow has ordered that Charles H. Carlton, the fugitive broker from Cleveland who was arrested at Monte Rio on the charge of using the mails in carrying out schemes to defraud, be sent back to Ohio for trial.

LONG FAST OF CATFISH.

Denizen of New York Aquarium Breaks All Records of Its Kind in Captivity.

All records for fasting among catfish in captivity have been broken by the big specimen from the Mississippi river now in the New York aquarium. After its period of hibernation the catfish took its first food this year on May 13. This was the first food it had taken since July 7, 1903, a period of ten months and six days.

In each succeeding year since it has been here this big catfish has in the hibernating season abstained from food for a longer and longer time. It was received in December, 1899. The following little table shows when in each year it stopped eating and when it resumed

Stopped Feeding.	Resumed Feeding
1900, November	April 20, 1901
1901, October 5	April 28, 1902
1902, August 15	April 4, 1903
1903, July 7	May 13, 1904

This big catfish is about 3½ feet in length and weighs probably 70 pounds. It has grown somewhat in length and in weight since it was first received. It is clean and free from fungus and in good condition, and it has now apparently as much vitality as when it first came in.

This year, when finally it began to take food, it came up for it with its normal degree of activity, and took three medium-sized eels, cut up into lengths convenient for it to swallow. On May 17 it was eager for food and it ate four rather larger eels, cut up for it into suitable lengths, and it now moves about in its tank in its accustomed manner.

In nature this big catfish would bury itself in the mud in winter and there lie dormant until spring. Mud cannot be provided for it here, because mud would choke the pipes of the tank, which is therefore supplied with a bed of sand on its bottom.

The catfish rubs and hollows this out to make in it a comfortable bed for itself, and this sand also serves the good purpose of helping to keep the big fish clear of parasites.

As the hibernating season approaches the big catfish settles down in its bed of sand and it will lie motionless for weeks at a time. It is not an uncommon thing for visitors to announce that the big fish is dead, as in fact it might easily seem to be, for its respiration is at such times so faint that the movement of its gill-covers could be detected only by those experienced in observing fishes.

But, as has been seen, after months of seeming lifelessness, the big catfish will come up and begin feeding again, and resume its ordinary manner of life just as though nothing had happened. It would scarcely seem, however, that it would ever surpass its present fasting record.

FEAT IN GLASS BLOWING.

Four Bottles Made at a Western Factory Are Among the World's Wonders.

It is a long cry from 1754 to the present time, and it is not surprising that great progress has been made in the manufacture of glass bottles in that time. From this first glass bottle ever made in the first glass factory permanently established in the states, about 1754, and which is still preserved among the curiosities of the Long Island Historical society, to the remarkable mammoth glass quartet which was recently turned out at a western glass manufactory, there may be traced the phenomenal growth of the manufacture of glass, says the Philadelphia Press.

These four bottles are said to be the largest ever made in the world. A man over six feet stands below the height of the largest bottle, the range of the huge quartet being from five feet four inches to six feet four inches. Three of the most expert glassblowers in the world were employed in the manufacture of these bottles. It took 50 pounds of liquid glass to make the largest bottle. This was drawn, rolled and inflated, the blowpipe used being five and one-half feet in length.

To complete the process it was necessary to reheat the material several times owing to the great quantity needed. It took about an hour to shape the bottle. Then the rings and the mouth were finished, and the glass annealed in specially large ovens prepared especially for this piece of work. At its greatest width the largest bottle is 30 inches in diameter, and it will hold 55 gallons, liquid measure.

Charitable Tip.

It is a sensible suggestion some one makes that those who are bound for their country places for the summer should send to hospitals the store of jellies and jams which would naturally be left behind. The season is at hand when fresh fruits are available for immediate use, and for the making of a fresh stock of sweets for next winter's demands, and the "left overs" from last season's vintage might furnish pleasure to invalids and convalescents who are not so well favored with such home-made delicacies as their attendants would like them to be.—Boston Transcript.

"I can't understand it," she sobbed. "Why he even said I was a 'poem.'"

"Yes, but a great many poems are rejected," responded her young sister.—Chicago Daily News.

NEW SKIRTS AND GOWNS.

Revival of Fashion of Early Date—Trains Banished Except on Wedding Gowns.

Many of the new full skirts are being made to open over a flounced panel of lace or muslin. This is another revival, fashion plates of the forties and fifties showing gowns open in the front to reveal elaborate petticoats women of that period perilled their precious eyesight to embroider and embellish. Of course the fashion antedates this period, says the New York Post. In one of its phases it belonged to the directory, and went with jackets with wide revers opening over a frilled waistcoat, and having a jabot of lace at the throat. This jacket has been made recently, it is averred, by a celebrated French dressmaker. It is always picturesque, and is becoming to tall, slender figures.

Returning to skirts, while trains are practically banished, except on wedding gowns, many of the new skirts are very long all around, lying in billows about the feet. The width of most of them is amazing, six yards around the hem being nothing unusual. The utility gown for street and ordinary wear is short. Triple flounces and simulated tucks made of circular folds continue popular.

One sees fewer models in straight, full skirts, the circular form, tight at the hips and very wide at the hem, having gained in popularity. Plaits are stitched flat to aid in giving a slender effect. An untrimmed skirt is a rare sight. Even severely simple gowns and shirt waist suits have some kind of trimming, braid, applied motifs, buttons or embroidery on the skirt. Tucks are very much in vogue.

Wash gowns—so called, though many of them would hardly stand a tubbing—are tucked a great deal, not only in straight lines, up and down and across the material, but in elaborate designs in which lace motifs and medallions, embroidery and drawnwork are combined. Tucks alternated with rows of Valenciennes lace are favorite decorations for thin materials. Sometimes puffs are substituted for the rows of tucks.

HINTS FOR HOME READING.

Simple Remedies for Simple Affections and Bits of Toilet Lore.

In warm weather bathe with diluted vinegar; it is cooling, and will make the skin soft.

Over-fatigue is regarded by Dr. Burton Fanning as the determining cause of ten per cent. of cases of pulmonary consumption.

One-half pint of vinegar, one tablespoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of cayenne pepper and one pint of boiling water will cure night sweats. Mix, let cool, strain and sponge the patient at bedtime.

Vinegar will keep the hands white and smooth and prevent chapping when exposed to the cold air after washing in hot or soapy water. Before drying the hands rub over them a tablespoonful of vinegar, and the relief will be very great.

An eyelash is pointed. A cut lash is blunt. A lash once cut never again becomes pointed. Every lash lives a variable time, and then falls out, to be replaced by a fresh one. When a cut lash so falls the newcomer is pointed. So any mischief resulting from cutting the lashes will be remedied by time. Opinions differ as to whether lash cutting promotes growth. That it renders the lashes unsightly is very certain.

To treat grimy hands begin with rubbing them well with cold cream, or even with a little pure melted mutton fat. When the grease has loosened the soil, then wipe it off with an old rag or a piece of soft paper, and wash the hands in warm water. Use a good soap and a nailbrush, rinse in cool water and dry thoroughly. Very few women take time to dry their hands properly, and then they wonder at their becoming coarse and chapped. The housewife who has much to do in the way of dusting and cleaning should save her hands by wearing housemaid's tan gloves as much as possible, and on going to bed, after washing her hands with warm water, she should apply to them a little glycerin and rose water.

General Rule for Soups.

One pint of fresh vegetables, or one can, one pint boiling water, one pint hot milk, one tablespoonful flour, one tablespoonful butter, one small teaspoonful salt, a very little pepper. Cut the vegetables into bits and cook 20 minutes, or, if you use canned vegetables, cook ten minutes. While it is cooking, make the milk, flour and butter into white sauce, just as before. Melt the butter, rub in the flour, add the hot milk and salt, and stir and cook till smooth. Then press as much as possible of the vegetable and water through a wire sieve and stir in and strain again, and it is done. When you wish it very nice pour the hot soup over a cup of whipped cream and it will be foamy.—Good Housekeeping.

Snow Fritters.

Beat one egg very light and add gradually a cup or half a pint of milk; into another bowl sift a cup and a half of flour; one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, and pour the milk and egg on the flour, stirring thoroughly to prevent lumps. Then add a large, tart apple which has been peeled, cut in quarters and chopped in small pieces. Last of all, fold in a large cupful of light, dry snow, which has freshly fallen. Drop the batter in small spoonfuls into a kettle of boiling hot fat, after rolling each spoonful into a little flour. Cook until brown, or for several minutes. Serve immediately with powdered sugar.—Boston Budget.

Warm Weather

How the Wise and the Foolish Women Stand It

"GOODNESS me, what a warm day! I feel as if I should die!" As Mrs. Foolish exclaims this she fans herself vigorously.

Mrs. Commonsense rocks to and fro comfortably. She doesn't seem to mind the heat at all, but perhaps there is a reason for that. For one thing she wears no collar. Any woman can tell you what a difference that makes. The neck of her thin dimity gown is cut away a trifle and edged with a dainty bit of applique. The dress itself, as I said, is of dimity, made rather simply, but with openwork insertions to let in the air. Mrs. Foolish, on the other hand, wears one of the stiffly starched linen so called "tailor made" shirt waist dresses, and her long suffering neck is incased in the most towelly and thick of four-in-hands. Her pedal extremities likewise boast the heaviest thing in patent leathers, while Mrs. Commonsense has on a comfortable pair of slippers—not of patent leather.

"I'm sure I don't know why I mind the heat so!" wails little Mrs. Soakley as she absorbs her fifth (or is it tenth?) "cooling" beverage in the roof garden of the Hotel Up-and-Going. And she doesn't realize that all these fizzy (some of them alcoholic) compounds are only aggravating her misery after their first delusive effect has worn off.

And Miss Oldfashioned—the heat simply kills her! She wakes up more than half dead in the morning. Why on earth does Miss Oldfashioned sleep on a soft mattress when a hard one is what she wants in hot weather, so that she won't sink into it? And why doesn't she move her bed right next to the window, even at the risk of mussing somewhat the prim orderliness of her room? And why doesn't she leave her transom down so as to make a current of air? You can't have too much air in your sleeping room.

Then here is another thing. Little Miss Jones, the stenographer down at the office, simply has her nerves worn to a frazzle. She thumps away at the keys with an excitable air distressing to behold, while at the same time she wilts under the heat. What is the trouble with Miss Jones, and what will cause the nervous breakdown she will soon have? Simply a case of mistaken diet. Miss Jones believes in the strengthening powers of meat regardless of the thermometer; also coffee is her favorite beverage. Consequently she eats meat about three times a day with coffee, iced or otherwise, on the side. If Miss Jones would try a vegetarian diet during the dog days her temper, her complexion and, most of all, her health would strangely and wonderfully improve.

Perhaps Miss Star, the actress, is the most sensible of all. She gets enough gayety and fine dressing during the season to appreciate the absence of it, so she goes to a farm where she saves money and acquires rosy cheeks and health for the vicissitudes of the coming winter. The heat has no terrors for her as she lies on the grassy bank by the river, taking a real rest, for the ground is always cool when a washable gingham frock permits you to lie close to it, and there is almost always a breeze in the trees overhead.

Also Mrs. Wisdom, who stays in town, doesn't manage so badly either. She makes her apartment cool with awnings and shades, she lies around in muslin negligee reading the most airy and interesting of literature, she takes baths with sea salt in her commodious bathtub, and in the evening she goes to some roof garden or to an informal gathering at a friend's house, where lemonade and small talk help to [illegible] away the hours. She keeps hubby by her side, if she has a hubby, and if Mrs. Wisdom is a widow she [illegible] lack for escorts, I can assure you.

Above all, neither Mrs. [illegible] Miss Star allows herself to worry during the hot [illegible] haps that is the main re[illegible] feel the heat so little.

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

"Just so," said Kane. "But you see, Moses, Mr. Dysart and I have become very good friends, and any information he is likely to want he'll come to me for. Thanks, all the same," and so saying he nodded jauntily to the little man and went on his way.

"Dash my vig, but 'e's a cool 'un," said Moses Plish to himself as he watched the tall, well-clad figure of the erstwhile adventurer disappear in the madding crowd. "Wonder if 'e knows that Cupples is in London, too!"

But despite his outward nonchalance Kane was inwardly perturbed at this chance encounter. That Moses Plish was in London had probably no significance. Whatever he might suspect, he had no absolute knowledge of that dark and bloody episode on the veldt—no one knew the truth save the two men implicated and since so strangely thrown together. And to only one of these was the whole truth known.

What was chiefly to be dreaded was that a new train of ideas might be set running in Dysart's mind. Kane feared lest a chance word should put him on the right scent, for even the dimmest suspicion would be disastrous now!

However, the two men got through their luncheon as per appointment, and the subsequent return journey was made without any noticeable strain or change in their relations. Nor was the evening spent at Denecroft any different from the many that had preceded it.

All was apparently serene. Both Sir Arthur and Richard were ideal hosts, and Stella's good-night kiss was as sweet and trustful as ever.

But the day's happenings served to kindle afresh Kane's uneasy forebodings, and intensified his distaste and horror at the part he was playing. The kindness and cordiality with which he was received at Denecroft made his own conduct, past and present, all the blacker by contrast.

That night the question occurred to him, what if Stella should discover the truth after they were married? She would scorn him with an unutterable scorn—not for his crime—he could fancy her forgiving that—but for his deceit and his false pretenses. That he had loved her and won her in ignorance of the identity of his victim would be no palliation of his after-offense in keeping it secret. With such a nature as hers, in which pride of birth was blended with an almost slavish worship of truth and honor, there could be but one outcome: She would spurn him from her sight!

Again: Suppose Richard were to stumble on the truth, and tax him with his crime? What could he do but cower like a whipped cur?

Rossiter Kane was no common coward, but the mere thought of such a possibility caused him the keenest shrinking and chagrin.

Gradually, out of the turmoil of his thoughts, the conviction grew and took shape that his only hope of happiness lay in prompt confession and restitution—not an extorted avowal, but one made of his own free will, and while yet he held the reins in his own control.

Better to lose the girl now and retain his own self-respect than marry her and be found out afterwards, for in that event she would be lost to him beyond recall—of that he felt sure.

The gray dawn of winter was creeping in around the edges of the window-blinds ere he came to this conclusion, and then it was with a strange feeling of elation and exaltation that he threw himself on the bed and slept the first refreshing sleep that had come to him in weeks.

The succeeding day was Sunday. Kane had promised to meet Stella at afternoon service and walk home with her. This had been their weekly custom since the ball, and they both dearly prized this half-hour of sweet intercourse as they sauntered through the park.

On this, possibly their last day together, Kane realized as he had never done before how inexpressibly indispensable she had become to him, and yet in that very fact he found strength for the coming ordeal, for with his customary quick decision he meant to get it over.

"You will probably find Sir Arthur and Rick in the library," she said, as they entered the hall at Denecroft, as yet unlighted save by the fitful blaze of a log fire.

"Will you join us there?" inquired Kane, solicitously, as he detained her by the hand.

"Certainly, if you wish it," she returned.

"I do wish it," was the reply. "I have something to say which I want you all to hear."

A new note in his voice arrested her attention, and she looked up at him in quick surprise. He drew her, all wrapped and bonneted as she was, into a little recess, and took her in his arms, imprinting on her lips a warm and passionate kiss.

"It may be for the last time, dearest," he whispered, "but do not judge me too harshly when you hear all."

"What is it?" she asked tremulously, her eyes large and luminous with tender interest and alarm. For answer he said:

"In a little while you will know," and led her to the foot of the stairs. Slowly she ascended as though oppressed by the weight of an impending disaster; at the turn she stopped and looked back at him where he stood watching her with passionate adoration, all his soul in his eyes. Then he turned his steps towards the library.

"Hullo, Kane!" exclaimed Richard, heartily, rising and flinging a book to the other end of the leather lounge on which he had been dozing. "Come in, man! You're just in time to keep us awake."

The baronet's greeting, if less vociferous, was none the less pleasant.

"Where's Stella?" inquired Richard.

"She will be here immediately," said Kane, and even as he spoke she entered the room.

"Ring for your candles, will you, Sis?" exclaimed Richard, "it gets dark so confoundedly early here."

Stella moved towards the bell, but Kane stayed her with a gesture.

"Not just yet, please, if I may interfere," he said. "I have something to tell you all—something that is not easy for me to say—and I think I can get along better by the fire-light."

There was a lifeless quality in his voice, and his usually verile tones were curiously muffled. Richard Dysart was as far from divining what was actually coming as either of the other listeners, yet he was conscious of a quickening thrill of expectancy, roused by Kane's words and manner, and he glanced at him keenly.

"One moment, Kane," he said; "am I concerned in the story?"

"You are!" was the answer, at which Richard drew a deep breath and settled back in his seat.

Stella moved to a place in the recess by the fireplace, where there was deep shadow; Sir Arthur and Richard sat on either side the blaze; Kane remained standing in the center, declining a proffered seat. All looked at him expectantly.

"Richard Dysart," he began in colorless tones, "nearly a year ago you were treacherously ambushed, shot and robbed on the banks of the Mooi river. We all know the pitiful story; no need to go over it again. The man who robbed you was then a poor outcast, down on his luck, a very Ishmael, and it may be honestly asserted through no fault of his own. This man saw you, a perfect stranger, start on your prospecting trip into the Karroo country. He tracked you on horseback from day to day, camping within sight of your fire every night, sharing your hardships, starving when you went hungry, freezing through the long, dark nights because he dared not kindle a blaze which might have apprised you that you were watched. At first his only thought was to claim shares in whatever you might find. But when, ambushed in the tall grass, he saw you gather untold wealth, the demon of avarice took possession of him, and he determined to have the treasure, even if it came to the taking of life. You were nothing to him then; he simply saw in you one of an army of adventurers, many of whom would have served him the same way. He left you for dead, fled with his spoil to the coast, and thought that his secret was buried in the desert. He was rich, and he became richer; from that hour everything he touched turned to gold. But he had miscalculated the power of conscience, of remorse and—of love. Sir Arthur and Miss Dysart, I am the man who shot and robbed your brother!"

He ceased speaking and turned away. There was silence in the room, save for the dull snapping and flicker of the fire, while from the darkness came a woman's sobs, answered by a deep groan of anguish from the bowed form of the man who had just signed his own death-warrant.

The two men, Sir Arthur and Richard, sat looking at Kane in dumb amaze. The former was the first to find his tongue, although usually the more unready of the brothers.

"This is a most extraordinary—er—presume you are aware of the full import of what you have told us—and—er—of the consequences," this last significantly.

The culprit bowed.

"Kane, old man," said Richard, "I'm unfeignedly sorry! I'd rather it had been any man but you. I won't say but what, since we saw old Plish yesterday, I've had certain misgivings, but I was unprepared for this."

"There was—there is—there can be no palliation or excuse," said Kane, lifting his head. "The guilty knowledge became more than I could carry after all your kindness and—" The sentence was unfinished, for his voice broke.

GERMANS RECEIVE SURPRISE

Supposed Weak Tribe of Belligerents in South Africa Gives Them Strong Battle.

Germany is beginning to discover that the natives of southwest Africa are not altogether a negligible quantity when it comes to fighting, and it would also seem, says South Africa, that the German authorities have been considerably astonished to find that the Hereros are not a small tribe of a few hundreds, but a well-armed and warlike nation, who are quite capable of putting a good many thousands of warriors in the field.

In the interests of civilization in South Africa, it is necessary that the rebellion should be quelled without delay, and, therefore, it is satisfactory to learn that, in view of the tactics and the astonishing numbers of the Hereros, the military authorities at Berlin are considering the advisability of dispatching another body of 1,200 men and of placing Lieut. Gen. Von Trotha in command of the entire force in the colony. If this is done it will give Germany an army of between 5,000 and 6,000 men in southwest Africa, but as the rising appears to have become general it is very doubtful whether such a force will prove sufficient.

The Hereros, whose actual number no man really knows, will not be reduced to their former condition of peaceful servitude by a mere handful of white troops, and their latest exploits indicate an intention to fight to the end. Some of the reasons which caused the rising are plainly suggested in a letter which has been published in Berlin. It was sent by a native Herero, one Phineas Gertze, employed on the Rand, to a relative, Leopold Mbauvuma. Seven hundred Hereros from southwest Africa are working in the mines on the Rand, and the correspondent of the Tagliche Rundschau fears that they will all make odious comparisons between British and German methods. The native letter writer says:

"I tell thee, the country of the Englishmen is truly a good country. There is no ill treatment. Whites and blacks are on an equal footing and there is much work and much money, and even if thy overseer is there he does not beat thee. But if he does beat thee and has overstepped the law he also is punished."

Everyone familiar with the subcontinent is well aware that for many years the natives of German Southwest Africa have been complaining—with, we fear, only too good reason—of the tyranny of their German masters, who, indeed, have only themselves to thank for the revolt.

But the white man must rule in South Africa, and, whatever provocation they may have received, the Hereros must be taught that they cannot massacre with impunity or destroy whole townships in cold blood. When the struggle is over the Germans will probably adopt more just and conciliatory tactics in dealing with the natives under their control.

HARD ON HER HUSBAND.

Delightfully Delicious Diatribe of a Wrathful Wife Delivered in 1810.

This woman composed the following vocabulary to express the character of a husband, from her own experience, and which proves how copious our language is on that article: He is, said she, an abhorred, abominable, acrimonious, angry, arrogant, austere, awkward, barbarous, bitter, blustering, boisterous, boorish, brawling, brutal, bullying, capricious, captious, careless, choleric, churlish, clamorous, contumelious, crabbed, cross, currish, detestable, disagreeable, discontented, disgusting, dismal, dreadful, drowsy, dry, dull, envious, execrable, fastidious, fierce, fretful, froward, frumpish, furious, grating, gross, growling, gruff, grumbling, hard-hearted, hasty, hateful, hectoring, horrid, huffish, humersome, illiberal, ill-natured, implacable, inattentive, incorrigible, inflexible, injurious, insolent, intractable, irascible, ireful, jealous, keen, loathsome, magotty, malevolent, malicious, malignant, maundering, mischievous, morose, murmuring, nauseous, nefarious, negligent, noisy, obstinate, obstreperous, odious, offensive, opinionated, oppressive, outrageous, overbearing, passionate, peevish, pervicacious, perverse, perplexing, pettish, petulant, plaguy, quarrelsome, queasy, queer, raging, restless, rigid, rigorous, roaring, rough, rude, rugged, saucy, savage, severe, sharp, shocking, sluggish, snappish, snarling, sneaking, sour, spiteful, splenetic, squeamish, stern, stubborn, stupid, sulky, sullen, surly, suspicious, tantalizing, tart, teasing, terrible, testy, tiresome, tormenting, touchy, treacherous, troublesome, turbulent, tyrannical, uncomfortable, unpleasant, unsuitable, uppish, vexatious, violent, virulent, waspish, worrying, wrangling, wrathful, yelping dog in a manger, who neither eats himself nor will let others eat.

One Franc for a Duelist's Life.

It will be remembered that in November last a duel with swords, in which the principals were MM. Charles Ebelot and Henri Lautier, ended in the death of the latter. His antagonist, an advocate from Toulouse, was the other day charged before the Seine assizes with "having by blows and wounds caused death unintentionally." Judging from the wording of the indictment, the law does not take duelists seriously, or it would not admit the supposition that they do not enter into the encounter with any deadly intention. In this case proof was forthcoming that the affair had been carried out fairly, according to the recognized rules of the code, and the prisoner was acquitted. The family of the deceased took no part in the criminal prosecution, but obtained, in the civil action, one franc damages and costs.—Paris Messenger.

PORTLAND MINE CLOSED.

Military Authorities Have Arrested Forty Miners.

DENVER, July 22.—The Portland mine is closed again in consequence of the action of the military authorities. The mine was giving employment to about 500 men. Squads of soldiers have arrested forty of these, including the entire mechanical force of the three working shafts. This comprised engineers, firemen, master mechanics and skilled men in other departments. The men thus summarily removed from their labors are accused of no crime, the only accusation being that they refused to sacrifice their membership in the Western Federation of Miners and take out Mine Owners' association working cards.

Six of the forty men arrested were declared to be "all right" by the military board and were released. Twelve others were released on their own recognizance. Each of the remaining twenty-two when questioned admitted that he had intended to quit work in the Portland mine, but denied knowledge of the others' plans. It is alleged that the union men in the mechanical department were to walk out in a body. There are said to be about 100 union miners still at work in the Portland mine who have not taken out Mine Owners' association cards, and they will now be required to take out such cards or leave the district.

BRYAN'S PLANS.

Nebraskan Favors Radical Changes In Democratic Policy.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 22.—W. J. Bryan's plan for the reformation of the Democracy has been given publicity. In it Mr. Bryan favors radical changes, but advocates the election of Judge Parker for president as a good beginning. He declares for state ownership of railroads, government control of telegraphs and abolishment of private monopoly and favors the income tax and election of federal judges by the people. Mr. Bryan says in part:

"My selection as standard bearer of the Democratic party in 1896 and again in 1900 made me the nominal leader of that party, and as such I did not feel at liberty to engraft new doctrines upon the party creed. I contented myself with the defense of those principles and policies which were embodied in the platform.

"Now that the leadership devolves upon another and I bear only the responsibility that each citizen must bear—namely, the responsibility for my own opinions, my utterances and my conduct—I am free to undertake a work which until now I have avoided."

Commander Willits Better.

TRIEST, July 22.—The mayor of Triest gave a garden party last night in honor of the officers of the American battleship and European squadrons. The condition of the officers who are ill with typhoid fever continues to improve. Lieutenant Commander Willits has left the hospital and returned to the Kearsarge.

DIAMOND DUST.

Pitcher John Doescher, who faced Ails for the Aeolians recently, has signed to play Troy, of the New York State League.

Westlake, the strong catcher for the Chatham Field Club team, has signed to play with Paterson, of the Huscon River League.

Minnehan, of Orange, who is pitching for the Birmingham team, of the Southern League, shut out New Orleans on July 10 by a score of 4 to 0. He allowed but two hits.

VanZant, formerly of Westfield, but now with Nassau, of the New England League, has a record of making three hits in a game eight times this season and in two games he made a total of eight, four in each.

Christy Mathewson, the star twirler of the New York Nationals, has the enviable record to date of having participated in twenty-four contests and winning eighteen of them. There is only one other pitcher in the National League that leads Christy and that is McGinnity. It is confidently believed that the Plainfielder will lead the big league twirlers at the end of the season.

At last Somerville is to have a baseball team that promises to be the real thing. At a meeting last night at Cawley's Hotel, of the members of the association organized last Spring there, it was unanimously decided to accept the proposition of the Scotch Plains team to finish its schedule in this place. Arrangements will be at once made for preparing Altamont field for the games, and it will be put in the best shape possible. If the improvements on the grounds are carried out at once the first game will be played Saturday, July 30. The schedule of the team has on it some of the best semi-professional nines in the country. Montross and Allen will be the battery. Surrogate William J. DeMond, of Somerset county, is president of the Somerville Baseball Association and Chester A. Cawley is manager.

RUMORS OF BANK MERGER

IT IS SAID THE UNION CO. TRUST CO. WILL ABSORB AN ELIZABETH BANK.

It is reported in financial circles that the Union County Trust Company is about to absorb the Citizens' Bank, of Elizabeth. Officials of both institutions are reticent about the matter, but from reliable sources it is learned that negotiations have been in progress during the past month and that the deal is ready for consummation.

Shares of stock in the Citizens' Bank are $50 each. The trust company is paying, it is said, at the rate of $175 for shares, and has purchased a number at this figure. It is also alleged that some shareholders who refused to part with their holdings at this price and demanded more have been paid as high as $235.

The absorption of the Citizens' Bank will leave the Union County Trust and the National State Bank as the two chief financial institutions in Elizabeth, and will cause a sharp rivalry, it is predicted.

The National State Bank is controlled by Senator John Kean and his brothers, Julian Kean, and Hamilton Fish Kean, chairman of the Union County Republican executive committee.

SUPREME COURT'S NEW HOME

HANDSOME ROOM ON SENATE WING, 2D FLOOR READY FOR OCCUPANCY.

In future the main branch of the State Supreme Court at Trenton will sit in the handsome new courtroom on the second floor of the recently constructed Senate wing of the Capitol. The room is completed and furnished and is a splendid apartment. It measures over fifty feet in length by thirty five feet wide, is lighted by five large windows and a stained glass skylight, and has a classic finish that gives it a decided air of stateliness.

The ceiling tops a deep frieze and is vaulted to the skylight, which is set in ornamental panels. The glass in the ceiling is tinted in quiet colors, harmonizing with the general color scheme of the room. The ceiling is richly ornamented and finished in light buff, and the ceiling colors are light buff, and the ceiling colors are light cream and buff. The side walls are painted in a pretty shade of green and leads to a base of veined white marble.

The frieze is supported by fluted pilasters placed at regular intervals around the walls, colored in yellow and topped with Ionic capitals. The wood is of heavy antique oak. A rich velvet carpet of a pretty red design covers the floor.

The judges' dais is raised two steps above the floor and is finished in solid antique oak. The desk is oaken, richly carved, the design including the torch of liberty. The gavel with which the judges will rap for order is made of ebony, and the gavel block is marble. Two silver electric light brackets in the room are of antique brass.

Three heavy oaken doors with brass trimmings give access to the apartment, the centre door being double. These open on the marble passage leading to the gallery of the Senate chambers. Access to the new courtroom is obtained either by the marble stairs in the Senate wing or by a passage leading from the main corridor on the second floor of the Capitol.

In the rear of the courtroom and connected with it by doors on either side of the dais is the judges' private room. This is finished to match the main apartment, and is similarly furnished, including a handsome leather couch and a wardrobe with a plate-glass front. It also has a brick fireplace, surmounted by a carved oaken mantel.

NO CHANGE IN MEAT PRICES

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL BUTCHERS WILL MAINTAIN HIGH SCALE.

Although the meat strike was officially declared at an end on Wednesday night, it will be nearly a week or ten days before the prevailing prices in the local butcher shops will be lowered. As all shipments of beef were stopped early last week and it requires five or six days for cars to reach New York or Plainfield, the present supply will have to last until more comes. Accordingly the strike prices will be charged by the wholesalers and the retailers must look to the consumer to meet the rate.

The slaughtering of live cattle, which began in the borough Wednesday night, is still in progress but will probably be concluded today. Residents in the vicinity were inclined to object to the work at first but finding that it was conducted in a sanitary way under supervision of the Board of Health officials they have ceased to complain.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY DISCUSSED BY THE PRESS.

Will Require a Landslide.

From the present outlook it will require a landslide to carry New Jersey for Parker and land Mr. Smith in the United States Senate. Such political cataclysms are far from unknown in this country, and from now on leaders of both parties will be holding their ears to the ground, listening for the preliminary rumblings which herald the approaching disruption.—Newark News.

After Jersey's Vote.

"The Camden "Courier" thinks the trust combine will plant some of its dollars in new Jersey, with a view to corraling votes for Judge Parker, this fall. If it is true that Dewitt Clinton Flanagan spent $50,000 of his own money in the South to help along the preliminary Parker boom, the floaters should feel discouraged over the prospect that there will be something doing later on."—Trenton Times.

A Bitter Dose.

Wm. B. Gourley, who planned the scheme for kicking the Hearst delegation out of the New Jersey State convention, has been rewarded by being made the representative of the New Jersey Democracy in the National committee. This must be bitter medicine for those who read Gourley and Senator Smith out of the ranks a few years ago and declared themselves to be the elect.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

Republicans Deserve Defeat.

There would be a much stronger probability of Republican defeat in New Jersey next November if the Democratic party in this State were in better shape to inspire public confidence. The Republicans have done much to deserve defeat, but the voters, indignant as they well may be at the party's record of bad faith and broken pledges, will think twice before handing the State government over to a party still dominated by Smith and Davis, by Gourley and Thompson. The strength of the New Jersey Republican organization today lies in the inability of its opponents to awaken in the people any sentiment other than distrust.—Newark Evening News.

Mrs. Francis A. Lough Injured.

In stepping from a trolley car at Asbury Park, yesterday, Mrs. F. A. Lough, of Fairview avenue, one of the Trinity excursionists, turned her ankle and received a very bad sprain. She remained at the beach all day but on returning to this city, had to be taken to her home in a carriage. Medical attendance was furnished and today she is much better.

Mr. Cater's Statement.

"Happy Jack" Cater wishes it stated that he did not beat his wife, as reported, because she whipped his dog. The female who figured in the disturbance was his niece, Mary Ann Bligh, who he slapped in the face because of her animosity toward the canine. Mrs. Cater, he says, did not figure in the affair at all.

Charles C. Black, of Jersey City, has served notice upon Attorney-General Robert H. McCarter that he will apply to Justice Dixon next Saturday morning for a writ of certiorari carrying to the Supreme Court for review the action of the State Board of Voting Machine Commissioners in awarding to the United States Standard Voting Machine Company the contract for furnishing the additional machines that will be used at the coming election. The proceedings are being prosecuted by the Columbia Voting Machine Company and name as defendants President Joseph A. Brochl and the other members of the Voting Machine Commission. The contract was awarded to the United States Company on July 12. It provided for the purchase by the State of 190 machines at a net cost of $500 each. For use at the next election the company agreed to lend the State forty forty-candidate machines to be used in place of a like number of thirty-candidate machines, the former to be returned after the election upon the receipt of thirty forty-candidate machines.

United States Senator John Kean, on being questioned regarding political events, said that he would not be surprised if ex-Senator William M. Johnson, of Hackensack, were to be chosen to preside over the Republican gubernatorial convention in September. "Mr. Johnson," said Senator Kean, "is thoroughly familiar with political affairs in the State, and a more satisfactory chairman could not be selected." Senator Johnson, who was seen by a correspondent, said substantially that to him it appeared that the Republican outlook in New Jersey was satisfactory to the party, and that he saw no reason for undue alarm. Unquestionably, he believed, the ensuing campaign would be a lively one, and the Republicans should go into it with the expectation of doing a great amount of campaign work. Overconfidence was to be dreaded and to be avoided or overcome, if it was prevalent, in any political campaign. The prevailing impression was that equal taxation would be the predominant issue in the State campaign, and this impression doubtless was correct. In this the Republicans had nothing to fear. The changed conditions in the respect of taxation in New Jersey since the Griggs law was passed demanded that due attention should be paid to the cause of equal taxation. Moreover, the Republicans at their last State convention had promised to pay due attention to this issue and if they kept their word, as undoubtedly they would do, they would retain the confidence of the people, and New Jersey would return a convincing majority for the National and State Republican ticket.

RUSSIANS REVERE ICONS.

Pictures That Play a Prominent Part in Religious Life of the Nation.

"Port Arthur to be saved by an icon," was the mystifying headline which appeared in a newspaper recently. The dispatch reported that an icon had been sent from St. Petersburg to Port Arthur, but just how it was to save the fortress was not clear from a reading of the dispatch, and would not be to one unacquainted with the worship of the Greek Catholic church, the state church of Russia. The icon, says the New York Tribune, plays an important part in the religious life of the Russian, and it is probable that two or three could be found in the possession of nearly every Russian family landing at Ellis Island. The icon has the place of honor in the home, and is to a Russian Catholic what an image which has been blessed is to a devout Roman Catholic.

In the early history of the Christian church there were many discussions and conflicts between religious leaders as to the attitude of the church toward the second commandment. The icon is the Greek church's way of getting around the prohibition of graven images. Everything represented on a flat surface is permissible. An icon is a religious picture. The subjects usually represent some event in the life of Jesus Christ or in the life of the Virgin Mary, Russian saints, with their appropriate symbols, and copies of certain local pictures of saints. One of the requirements of the church is that the icons must be inscribed with the name of the personage depicted. The pictures may be mosaics, bas-reliefs, enamels set on brass or gold, oil paintings or prints. They are to be found everywhere, in public offices, in the shops, in the public markets and in every private house, and are considered not only an indispensable ornament, but an accessory in the worship of the Greek church. A picture in order to become an icon must be blessed by the priest.

The family worship is usually directed toward an icon fastened on the eastern wall of the house. At the entrance to the church, perhaps, will be found another icon on a pedestal. Over this the Russian bends and touches his lips to the double picture there spread before him.

Icons are worn on the person as well as hung on the wall. The personal icons are of brass or of gold, according to the position of the possessor. They may be merely a plaque or they may be a little book of two or three leaves. When a peasant is about to send his son to service in the army, he often opens the bosom of his blouse and takes from his neck the icon that he and his forefathers before him have worn. Pronouncing a benediction, he suspends it on his son's breast. Whenever the young soldier looks at it or feels its movement upon his breast under his clothing, his thoughts are brought back to his country, his family and his religion. When about to offer his prayers in some quiet corner, he pulls out his triptych or diptych, whichever it happens to be, and opening it kneels before it as before a portable altar. If he returns safely to his home he often celebrates the event by hanging the cherished possession upon the iconstasis, or screen in front of the altar, in his village church as a votive offering to commemorate his preservation.

Every regiment has its icon. This is carried aloft as one would carry a banner when the regiment goes into battle, with the expectation that it will aid in giving success to their arms.

Stories are told of the marvelous preservation of certain pictures, which suggested that they be made icons. Such a story is told of the origin of the icon of the Iberian monastery on Mount Athos. This picture is said to have been cast into the sea by a pious widow to preserve it from the insults of the iconoclasts of the early Christian era. It was recovered two centuries later, according to the legend, its location being indicated by a fiery column that stood over the precise spot where it had been cast.

DISTRICT COURT AGITATION RENEWED

Plainfield Lawyers Declare Time Has Arrived for the Establishment of a Court Here.

NEEDED FOR YEARS

SOME BARRISTERS CONDEMN LOCAL JUSTICES.

Admitted That New Court Would be An Item of Expense—Lawyers May Appeal to Common Council.

As a direct result of the recent fracas between a local justice of the peace and a lawyer, agitation is again rife for the establishment of a district court in this city. Several leading lawyers are outspoken in their denunciation of the way in which cases are decided in Plainfield and accompanying transactions and their feelings may lead to a demand for a change of affairs.

For the past seven years this question of a district court has been spasmodically discussed by local members of the bar and at times these men have been almost on the verge of united action in the matter. The Daily Press originally pointed out the public benefits of the installation of such a court in the city but at the time the matter was thus brought before the public, the interest in consolidation was at its height and the matter was set aside. The failure of the borough consolidation has been a check on the establishment of such a court which would doubtless have immediately resulted. Perhaps this failure, the fact that at Elizabeth there is a district court, and the necessary expense of such a court to the city have been drawbacks to any action heretofore.

Though these points are of course not without their weight and though the expense of a court-room, a judge, sergeant-at-arms, clerk and other officials would be an item, all Plainfield lawyers agree that the time has come for the establishment of a district court in this city. Being, as it is, a municipality of less than 20,000 in its limits proper, such a court could not be established here under the general law, but the end could be effected by the combined action of the lawyers in an appeal to the Common Council. Such an appeal, if granted, would practically guarantee the establishment of the court.

A Daily Press reporter who interviewed several prominent lawyers in the city found all in favor of such a court here. Some of these men were vehement in their attacks on local justice as meted by city justices of the peace and all agree that, considering the opportunities offered for appeal at Elizabeth in cases of unsatisfactory decisions, a district court in the city of Plainfield would secure prompt and impartial justice to all.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT AT HOPE

PROGRAMME PLEASED FAIR-SIZED AUDIENCE AT THE CHAPEL.

Despite the threatening weather last evening, a good sized audience turned out at the Boys' Club entertainment at Hope chapel. The programme was a varied one consisting of recitations, piano solos and a sleight of hand performance by Leonard Gavett. Every number on the programme was well received and encores were frequent. Recitations were given by the Misses Mildred Spicer, Blanche Heideloff and Hazel Grant and Mrs. G. H. Condict rendered several selections at the piano. The performance in legerdemain by Leonard Gavett was the crowning interest of the evening. The young man performed the various card and handkerchief tricks with great nicety and was roundly applauded.

It is estimated that nearly $20 was cleared and this money will be added to the fund being raised to secure the proposed addition to the chapel. In this new addition a special room is to be built for the use of the Boys' Club. The committee in charge of last evening's entertainment consisted of G. H. Condict, the superintendent of the club, Frank Rimmer, the president, and the other officers of the organization.

MAMMOTH SAFE BUILT HERE

WEIGHS 153 TONS AND WILL BE USED IN NEW YORK.

The Manganese Steel Safe Company, of this city, has completed the manufacture of the largest vault ever built at its plant and will ship it next week to New York. The mammoth steel affair weighs in all just 153 tons and has but few equals in size anywhere in the country. It is in eight sections and when it is sent away it will require the same number of cars to carry it, one section to a car. It will be set up in the Federal Banking Company's quarters in the Postal Telegraph building on Broadway. So perfect is the construction of the vault that when it is erected it will be impossible to tell where the connections are made and the huge door will be so evenly balanced that it can be moved by a child.

The company received yesterday an order from a bank at Braddock, Pa., for a vault similar in construction to weigh 125 tons.

BRYAN'S LETTER TO MARTINE

"BOY ORATOR OF THE PLATTE" TELLS HIM THAT PLATFORM IS A GOOD ONE.

"Farmer Orator" James E. Martine, a personal friend of William J. Bryan, today received a letter from the noted Democrat. Mr. Bryan and Mr. Martine have been warm personal friends since the visit of the Nebraskan to "Cedar Brook Farm" during his second candidacy for the Presidency. The two have corresponded and exchanged views along political lines continually. Mr. Martine has always had the utmost faith in the principles espoused by the exponent of free silver.

This year when the Democrats were at odds regarding a candidate and in doubt as to what would constitute the party's platform, Mr. Martine declared his faith in Mr. Bryan by saying that no matter what happened he did not believe that Mr. Bryan would bolt the party. This assertion has come true as this letter received by Mr. Martine today shows:

"Lincoln, Neb., July 19, 1904.

"J. E. Martine,

"My dear Friend:—I thank you for the many kind words contained in your letter. As to the convention, I feel that we have a good platform and one upon which all Democrats should unite and march to victory. Again thanking you, I am

"Yours,

"W. J. Bryan."

ELECTION BOARD APPOINTEES

STATE CHAIRMEN FILE LISTS WITH GOVERNOR MURPHY.

William B. Gourley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, and E. C. Stokes, acting chairman of the Republican State Committee, filed at the State House yesterday afternoon their respective lists of nominations for members of the county election boards in each county in the State, with recommendations to Governor Murphy that he issue the commissions.

Governor Murphy authorized the appointments and the commissions were issued at once. The appointees will serve for two years from August 1.

These appointments were made for Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties: Republicans—Union, John W. Murray, of Plainfield; Somerset, Joseph Fitzgerald, of Somerville; Middlesex, J. H. Suydam, of Jamesburg. Democrats—Union, John L. Crowell, of Rahway; Somerset, John H. Mattison, of Somerville; Middlesex, Hendrickson H. Brown, of Brownstown.

Don't Miss It.

A day's recreation at the shore refreshes one for several weeks afterward. The excursion of the local Methodist churches next Thursday to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove will afford an excellent opportunity for such a trip. The train leaves Plainfield at 8 o'clock and starts for home at 7:10, giving practically ten hours to hear "what the wild waves are saying."

J. D. Loizeaux in Charge.

The row of dwellings started some time ago on Division street and never completed, remain in the same condition as when Contractor Cook, of Philadelphia, left town several weeks ago. It is understood that J. D. Loizeaux has charge of the property, but what will be done has not yet been determined.

INTELLIGENT HORSES IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

Interesting Sketch of the Well-Trained Equines That Respond to Fire Alarms.

VERY FEW ACCIDENTS

ACUTE HEARING OF CHIEF DOANE'S PET HORSE "BILL."

City Owns Ten Horses to Draw Its Apparatus to Fires—Best of Care and Treatment Given Them by Firemen and Dr. Pocock.

Visitors at fire headquarters, and even pedestrians who chance to see the Plainfield apparatus dashing through the streets on the way to a fire, invariably pass some comment of praise or admiration for the fire horses. Aside from appreciation of the work of these animals for speeding with the apparatus, their well-groomed appearance elicits as many exclamations of approval.

Firemen at headquarters take especial pride in just this one point of appearance of the horses, and visitors at the various fire houses of the city are impressed with the fact that the men seem always busy grooming or brushing the animals. The twelve horses used by the city are under the special care of Dr. Pocock, a veterinary engaged by the city for the sole purpose of looking after the health of these animals, and any accident or illness, no matter how slight, is at once reported for treatment. The men at the engine houses have often jokingly remarked that the fire horses receive better and more careful treatment than most children, and in this one case of skilled medical attendance within instant call and summons, the metaphor is certainly an apt one. Despite the wild haste and the seeming recklessness on the part of both men and horses in making runs to fires, it is interesting to note that such is the care of the drivers, that within the past two years but one serious accident has happened to a fire horse. This occurred almost exactly a year ago when "Jim," one of the big pair which draws the hook and ladder, sustained a severe injury through the skittishness of his mate, a "green" horse. "Jim's" left thigh was severely torn by the swingle tree hook and for some time it was thought that his days of usefulness were ended. Twenty-seven stitches were taken in the wound, and such careful attention given by Dr. Pocock that "Jim" still answers to calls in his old place on the truck, and only a slight scar remains as a result of the injury.

"Bill," the veteran white horse which speeds Chief Doane's rig to fires, is perhaps the most highly valued animal at headquarters today. Purchased by the department almost nine years ago, "Bill," then a young horse, soon forgot his youthful training as a cab horse, earning his daily feed in the employ of the Roberts' Livery Company, and redeemed himself in the duties before the Chief's gig, where he was installed. Though the only Plainfield fire horse which has never drawn apparatus, "Bill" is worthy of all the honors heaped upon him by Chief Doane. The Chief tells many a story of the animal's sagacity and is especially impressed by his wonderful faculty for hearingt he fire gong. He cites as an example of this a special instance last year when he and Captain Townley were driving through Netherwood; though neither of them could hear any sound of the gong, "Bill" displayed the mettle and uneasiness he customarily does at calls. Trusting to the animal's sagacity, the Chief stopped his drive and telephoning to headquarters, found that an alarm was being sounded from box 34. "Bill," a true fireman, had detected the sound unheard by the men in the gig.

The horses which do service on the trucks are ten in number. Of these, six are stabled at headquarters. These are "Ted" and Tom," the pair of blooded browns which draw the chemical; "Major" and "General," the horse-cart greys, and "Jim" and "Bob," heavy animals who hitch up to the 9,000 pound hook and ladder truck. At Hose Co. No. 1, there is a grey pair which draw the steamer. These animals are not owned by the department, but are stabled at the engine house and are on duty for certain calls. A pair of dapple greys draw the combination chemical engine and hose-cart, quartered at Engine Co. No. 3 on West Fourth street.

Aside from these horses, Chief

WESTFIELD CHIEF'S WORK

ROBBER POSING AS TELEPHONE INSPECTOR CAUGHT IN CONNECTICUT.

Thomas O'Neill, Westfield's chief of police, has received a number of valuable articles which were stolen from the homes of Westfield residents on July 9 Bert A. Taylor, of New York, whose home is in Cambridge, Mass., was arrested in Stamford, Conn., Saturday, charged with committing a $3,000 robbery at Mount Clair.

Chief O'Neil was satisfied when he heard of Taylor's operations and arrest that the Westfield robberies were committed by him, and he went to New York Thursday and not only proved that Taylor was the man, but he recovered some of the missing property which he located at 154 West 68th street.

Taylor, who posed as a telephone inspector, under that pretext found no difficulty in getting into the homes of the wealthy and robbing them. Among those whom he robbed in Westfield were Charles F. Harper, 191 Prospect street, where he secured a very valuable diamond ring and other jewelry. At C. W. Harden's house on North avenue he took two gold watches, rings and bracelets. Most of this Chief O'Neil recovered in New York. The cases of the watches, however, had been melted, but he secured the works.

VAN AUKEN ON A CRUISE

YOUNG PLAINFIELDER NOW AS MIDSHIPMAN AT ANNAPOLIS.

Word has been received from Midshipman Fred T. VanAuken, U. S. N., which shows him to be just starting on the naval summer cruise, embarked on the cruising ship "Nevada" from New London. VanAuken was a resident of this city up to a year ago and while here was well-known among the baseball players. His pitching on the city High School varsity was a factor important in determining the successful season of 1903. At the Naval Academy, this season, VanAuken continued his work in baseball and was taken on the varsity squad of three pitchers at the beginning of the season. He now has a record of pitching five of the Navy games in the 1904 schedule and his work has been such that he has received high words of praise from the coach of the Academy baseball team. This work in twirling will guarantee Van a job on the 'varsity squad of pitchers next season when his advancement in the course and the benefits of careful coaching will doubtless cause him to be used in the box for even more 'varsity games' In class baseball Van had the job in the box and in the inter-crew series of games between two of the training ships, the "Chesapeake" crew, with VanAuken in the box carried off the honors.

The young man's furlough from his naval work will begin the first week in September, and he will be in town for about a week on September 12.

A delegation of members from Winfield Scott Relief Corps, No. 10, will go to Jersey City tonight, where they will be entertained by the Woman's Relief Corps of that city. It is expected there will be delegations present from other corps in this part of the state. The Plainfield women will go by trolley, leaving the Watchung avenue stand about 5 o'clock.

ALVAH A. CLARK FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Senator Reed's Father-in-Law Likely to be the Nominee of the Democratic Party.

SMITH FAVORS HIM

SWACKHAMER'S BOOM SAID TO BE ON THE WANE.

Charles C. Black Not a Favorite With Democratic Powers—Mr. Clark Formerly a Member of Congress.

Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, father-in-law of former State Senator Charles A. Reed, of this city, is likely to be the Democratic candidate for Governor. Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer's boom seems to be on the wane. Charles C. Black was prominently mentioned for the honor, but it is said that former United States Senator James Smith, of Newark, the "boss" of the State Democracy, did not take kindly to him.

Senator Smith, it is reported, has been hunting about for a strong man for the place. He has, it is said, dangled the bait before State Senator Samuel S. Childs, but that the Somerset man has refused to bite, declaring that his business interests will not permit him to think of considering the subject. While the former Senator was up in that section of the State, the talk went on, he had come to an understanding with Mr. Clark and Somerset was to furnish the candidate, and not Hudson.

It is also said that Mr. Clark is not objectionable to Edward F. C. Young, the millionaire banker of Jersey City, who is the "real power behind the throne," as a Trenton wag expressed it the day Mayor Fagan so badly routed the Democratic hosts at the ballot-box. Mr. Young, so the talk goes, although he has not expressed himself publicly upon the subject yet, takes no more kindly to Mr. Black's candidacy than Mr. Smith does, that he is friendly to Mr. Clark and can be depended upon to call off Robert Davis from the support of Mr. Black at the proper time. This, it is also pointed out, would do much to restore the harmony, which is said to be sadly lacking between the big Hudson and Essex leader ever since the Hudson man succeeded in nominating Mayor Seymour for Governor three years ago against the wishes of the Essex man, but failed to elect him.

At one time Mr. Clark was very prominent in Democratic politics and was considered one of the State leaders. He represented the State in Congress from 1877 to 1881, but being known as a sound money Democrat, he has not taken a very active part in the politics of the State since the silver heresy crept into the party.

Lost in a "Big City."

Unable to speak a word of English and not acquainted with a single person, a domestic employed in a Crescent avenue household found herself in a serious predicament at Asbury Park Thursday. She made the trip down on the Trinity excursion and wandering away came to the depot at night after the train had departed for this city. Her plight was discovered by the Asbury police and she was provided for over night. They also telephoned her employer that she was being cared for and then sent her home early yesterday morning.

Congratulations.

The Dunellen Call observed the twelfth anniversary of its birth on Thursday and congratulations are now in order. Dunellen has reason to feel proud of the paper published by George Day.

Miss Fountain, of Jackson avenue, has been spending her vacation at Asbury Park.

Miss Edna White, of the borough, has been visiting Miss Helen Beardslee, of Millstone.

HE SIGHED FOR THE FARM

WORK IN A CITY HAD NO CHARMS FOR WARRENVILLE MAN.

After twenty-three years of life on a Warrenville farm, John Stine decided he would like to see how it felt to be a city worker. One week as an employe of the U. S. Express Company at the local office convinced the youthful agriculturist that it wasn't what the neighbors' boys told him and he began to pine for the barnyard, the green fields and the new mown hay.

"Me to the farm," he said to Manager Mills, yesterday, and nothing could induce him to remain awhile longer. Accordingly John's resignation was accepted and he will hie himself to Warrenville today.

"They make fun of the farmer," said John yesterday, "but once I get back on my father's place you'll never get me off it again. My work here was all right but a fellow hasn't room enough to turn around in and the only place to get it is over at Warrenville."

CLARK FAVORED GOLD PLANK

NEWARK NEWS' MISREPRESENTATION OF FORMER CONGRESSMAN'S VIEWS.

The Newark Evening News said yesterday: "Alvah A. Clark, who was New Jersey's representative on the committee on resolutions of the St. Louis convention, was thoroughly satisfied with the platform drawn up and adopted by the Democrats until he heard of the receipt of the Parker telegram. His elation over the fine 'compromise' knockout for both gold and silver was not simulated, but now he wishes that he had repressed his feelings for a few hours, in order that he might have participated in the claims of some of his fellow-delegates that they were largely responsible for the 'bold and manly' course pursued by the nominee."

A friend of former Congressman Clark said today: "Mr. Clark was not satisfied with the platform at St. Louis. After being out all night at a session of the resolutions committee endeavoring to have a sound money plank incorporated into the platform, in a conversation with Former Senator Smith after the committee's adjournment, agreed with Senator Smith that the only recourse left was for them to fight for the same on the floor of the convention, where they could easily win. Senator Smith was intensely earnest in this. When it became known that Senator Smith was to open the fight on the floor of the convention for the sound money plank he was besieged by most all the leaders and prevailed upon not to do so. He refrained from pursuing his original intentions to please friends and he regretted it before the contention finally adjourned."

A RED BRICK HIGH SCHOOL

CHANGE IN PLANS FOR CONSTRUCTION OF $107,000 BUILDING.

Architect Herbert D. Hale, of New York, yesterday delivered to the Board of Education the revised plans for the new High School, as ordered when the bids submitted for construction were found too high. He has retrenched in several directions but mainly in the grade of material to be used. Instead of gray brick, a red brick, which is cheaper but just as durable has been substituted, and there is a slight alteration called for in the style of trimmings which will lessen the expense. Another retrenchment has been made in plumbing which made a large item when the first bids were submitted.

A large number of contractors looked over the plans today and the majority of them will submit new bids at the Board meeting to be held August 9 It is thought the figures will come within the amount on hand for the purpose which is $107,000.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES OF A FANWOOD FAMILY

Mrs. C. A. Bettman Appeals to Authorities to Compel Her Husband to Provide for Her.

SHE DESERTED HIM

THEIR SEPARATION TWO YEARS CAUSED GREAT SURPRISE.

Husband Now Has Their Child.—He Refuses to Live With Her, But Will Provide for Support.

Another chapter has been added to the domestic woes of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bettman, of Fanwood borough, by the latter asking the authorities to force her husband to contribute to her support. She alleges that circumstances compel her to take this action and unless something is done she will become a charge upon the borough. The matter is to be taken up by the poor officials at once.

Mr. and Mrs. Bettman were at one time prominent members of the Fanwood colony and were known as enthusiastic workers in the Scotch Plains Baptist church. Accordingly, when rumors of disagreements between them were noised about the borough it occasioned great surprise. Matters came to a climax when two years ago Mrs. Bettman suddenly left their home taking with her their infant son. She was finally located in New York just as she was preparing to go to her mother's home in Texas. She refused to return then and husband and wife agreed upon a separation.

Last winter Mrs. Bettman reappeared at Fanwood but she found herself barred from her former home. She made other trips to the place with the same result and then went to Perth Amboy, where Mr. Bettman is employed and demanded money from him for the support of herself and child. He complied until two months ago when at her request he took the son from her and ceased the money payments.

Since then she has returned to Fanwood on several occasions and yesterday her request for borough aid was made. Mr. Bettman was seen at once and declared if the committee would name a reasonable amount he would pay it each week, but that he would not live with her and neither would he allow her to get possession of the child.

Mrs. Bettman was a school teacher in Texas previous to her marriage and is an accomplished woman.

PYTHIAN FIELD DAY UNCERTAIN

SOMERVILLE NOT ENTHUSIASTIC OVER PLAN TO HOLD IT THERE.

The annual field day outing of the Knights of Pythias may not be held at Somerville on Labor Day after all. A special meeting of business men was called for at Somerset Hall last night to make arrangements and formulate plans for handling the crowd. The attendance was so slim no action was taken and adjournment made until next Tuesday night. Lodge of the Castle, No. 82, K. of P., of Somerville, which was largely responsible for the decision of the Grand Lodge to have the outing here, feels slighted at the lack of enthusiasm shown by the merchants and has issued a statement to the effect that if they do not co-operate with the lodge it will drop the matter entirely, as it will not undertake it alone, and then there will be no field day for Somerville.

As Labor Day is a general closing day for the merchants of the town they do not seem interested in the proposed big crowd coming to this place. However, they may turn out in force next Tuesday evening and save Somerville's reputation as a live town.

A Four Per Cent. Dividend.

The announcement made in today's Daily Press that the Board of Directors of the City National Bank have declared a semi-annual dividend of 4 per cent. on the capital stock of the bank out of the earnings of the past six months, speaks well for this institution. The lines upon which this bank is conducted insures a constant increase in business. The dividend is payable on and after Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Brighton Beach Handicap Won by Even Money Favorite.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Bad News the even money favorite, won the feature event, a handicap at one mile and a furlong, at Brighton Beach. Hurst Park made the pace to the stretch where Kelly sent Bad News to the front and won by three-quarters of a length.

Reliable, carrying 142 pounds, won the second race.

Ismailian, backed down from 50 to 1 to 8 to 1, in the last race, was supposed to be a good thing, but ran third to Flinders and Little Buttercup. Five favorites won. Good For Nothing refused to go to the post, and the stewards ordered her withdrawn.

International Athletic Meet.

LONDON, July 23.—Great interest is manifested in London in the field and track sports this afternoon at the Queen's club between teams sent by the Universities of Harvard and Yale, representing the United States, and teams from the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, representing England. The American athletes are confident they will win six of the nine events, while the Englishmen believe that the odd event will determine the victor, as they expect to win four. The two miles, the mile and the half mile the Englishmen regard as sure, Churchill of Cambridge, Gregson of Cambridge and Cornwallis of Oxford being selected by them to beat the Americans in these events. The English experts expect W. A. Shick, Jr., of Harvard to win the 100 yards, E. J. Clapp of Yale the high hurdles and G. F. Victor of Yale the high jump and would not be surprised to see them beat the records.

Tennis at Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 23.—A. E. Bell of Los Angeles, Cal., defeated F. W. Cole of Hartford, Conn., in straight sets in the finals of the open singles of the New York state tennis tournament and will meet State Champion Fred B. Alexander of New York in the challenge round for the trophy. Alexander is the favorite, and should he win the trophy will become his personal property, he having won it in 1902 and 1903. In the second round of the open doubles Robert Leroy of New York and Roger Jones of Syracuse defeated Alexander and A. D. Jenney of Syracuse in a closely contested three set match and continued their good work by winning in the semifinal round from Hugh Tallant of Brooklyn and James A. Randall of Syracuse.

The Mabel Mac of Toledo won the Huntington cup for yachts built prior to 1898, while the new cup, given by the Interlake Yachting association for the restricted twenty-one footers, went to the St. Clair of the Detroit Country club after the finest kind of a race with the Spray of the Detroit Yacht club.

STRIKERS OUT AGAIN

Chicago Meat Workers' War Renewed.

EMPLOYERS CHARGED WITH FRAUD

President Donnelly Has Ordered All Men Out In Chicago and Other Cities—Calls on Allied Trades to Quit Work.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The packing house strike was today ordered renewed in Chicago and all other cities. Violation of agreement by the packing house proprietors is assigned as the reason.

President Donnelly also requested leaders of all allied trades to order out their men on sympathetic strike.

President Donnelly, after charging the packers with fraud, calling the workmen out on a second strike and asking for a second walkout of the allied trades, said:

"I shall demand that all go out with the butchers, and we will make the packers realize before they get through that they have gone too far. The men feel that they have been skinned and dried. We will win as surely as there is a God."

Following a meeting the Chicago packers issued the following statement:

"Much to our surprise, the men, after reporting for work and after getting started in nearly all the houses, were ordered out again.

"It is the intention of the packers to carry out their agreement in every particular, and if any house has given cause for grievance the same can be and any future grievance will be readily adjusted."

The various unions that would be affected by a sympathetic strike have already voted to walk out at the discretion of their leaders.

The following telegram was sent by President Donnelly to all the employees of the various packing houses in the different cities affected by the precious strike:

"Order out all the departments again. Companies violated agreement."

Three thousand cattle butchers reported at the stockyards here for work. Only half of them were given places. Thereupon all refused to work. They reported in a body at their union headquarters. The general order for a renewal of the strike was soon forthcoming.

The first rioting came when a man, Frank Miller, was set upon by a crowd of strike sympathizers. They beat him so badly that at the Englewood Union hospital, where he was taken, it was said he had little chance of recovery.

Further trouble came when Joseph Younichs, employed at Nelson, Morris & Co's plant, was taken out of the yards so that his knee, which had been fractured by the falling of a skid, could be cared for by a physician. The doctor, after attending the wounded man, called an ambulance to have the sufferer taken back into the company's improvised hospital in the yards.

A crowd, assuming that Younichs was a nonunion man, attacked the ambulance and nearly upset the vehicle in an endeavor to reach the supposed foe. With drawn revolvers two policemen and the doctors defended their charge, the doctor declaring to the strike sympathizers that the wounded man was a fellow unionist. This took time, and the defenders had to withstand a siege till help came from the stockyards police station, a considerable distance.

Julies Ontario, a nonunion man, was dragged from a streeet car by eight strike sympathizers. He was set upon and beaten by a crowd which dispersed at the arrival of the police. Ontario will recover.

The joint conference between representatives of the meat packers and the meat butchers' union failed to reach an agreement last night in an effort to adjust the stockyards strike, and another conference has been arranged for today.

Unless a settlement is reached then the general belief is that a sympathetic strike of the allied trades in the packing industry, which was threatened last week, to enforce the demands of the strikers, will be called. All these unions have signified their willingness to stand by the butchers if they are called on to assist in the struggle with the packers for supremacy.

In the following statement given out by Mr. Donnelly, president of the butchers' union, the reason why the strikers refused to return to work is given:

"The packers signed an agreement that there would be no discrimination in the rehiring of the men. This was accepted by the officers of the organization in good faith. On the return of the men they were lined up like cattle. The foremen and superintendents, walking through the line, would pick out a man and say 'You come up.' The next man would be pushed out of line and told that he could not be used, and it was always the good, active union men whom they could not use.

According to estimates, 8,550 men were directly affected in Chicago alone by the strike. Fully that number of strikers were on hand expecting immediate employment, while others were expecting reinstatement later. The cattle butchers had no sooner reported than the charge of discrimination was raised. The butchers left in a body, and Mr. Donnelly's general order declaring another strike followed.

PRIZE AT SUDA BAY

Malacca Will Be Inspected and Released by Russia.

ANOTHER RUSSIAN DISASTER TOLL

Japanese Drove Them Out of Kiaotung In Fierce Fight, and Kuroki's Troops Now Occupy the City.

LONDON, July 23.—A special from St. Petersburg dated today says that the steamer Malacca is at Suda bay island of Crete, where, under the agreement reached between Great Britain and Russia, she will be perfunctorily inspected jointly by the consuls of the two countries and released together with her cargo, unless palpable contraband of war intended for the Japanese shall be found, in which case only the contraband will be held. British government stores on board the vessel will not be examined.

From the very first the authorities here were convinced that the captain of the Russian volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg must have had good reason for seizing the Malacca as a prize, and his report stating that the skipper of the Malacca declined to produce the ship's manifest seems to have justified their confidence.

There is reason to believe that had the fact been known in advance that the Malacca's skipper took upon himself the responsibility of questioning the war status of the St. Petersburg and had defied the Russian war flag contrary to international law, which evidently came as a complete surprise to the British government, that nation might not have acted as it did. In spite of this development, however, Russia adopted a most conciliatory attitude. The emperor himself was desirous of avoiding the slightest pretext for a quarrel and personally gave orders to settle the matter promptly.

According to a very high authority Russia has conveyed assurances that there would be no repetition of the Red sea incidents. How the collateral questions growing out of these incidents will be regulated has not yet been disclosed here. There is no talk of an international conference at this time to discuss neutral commerce, but diplomats here believe that such a conference to discuss this as well as new questions raised by the war, like the use of wireless telegraphy, is advisable when the war ends.

A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company from St. Petersburg says it is reported there that cruisers said to have been bought by Russia in Germany have joined the Vladivostok squadron, which went to sea especially to meet them.

Special semiofficial advices from General Kuropatkin's headquarters in the field, via Fusan, Korea, say that the Japanese attack on the Russians at Kiaotung resulted in another Russian disaster. Kiaotung is twenty-five miles from headquarters.

Few details of the engagement have been received, but they indicate that the fighting was fierce. The Russians had more than one division engaged, and artillery was used freely.

The Russians are fortifying new positions before Motien pass. There were more men killed in the fighting of Sunday, July 17, than can be buried, and the Japanese are now engaged in cremating the bodies.

It is reported from Tokyo that General Kuroki has occupied Kiaotung after a severe fight.

The place had been fortified by the Russians, who defended it stoutly.

The Japanese forces are said to have lost 300 men killed or wounded.

If the advance on Mukden is continued, heavy fighting is imminent, and a general battle may be precipitated.

The Russ, the army organ of St. Petersburg, evidently believes that the Japanese are preparing for a general advance from the east against the Russian left. The paper estimates the Japanese purpose as follows:

"The probable object of the Japanese advance is to move into the Liao river valley, which is north of our position at Zanze pass, in order to occupy a more favorable position in the forward movement of the main army, which is posted along the Motien, Lahko and Tapan passes, with a front ten miles to the south of the Saimatsza-Liaoyang road.

"The advantage of the delay consists in the possibilities afforded of endangering our communications north of Liaoyang and the flanking of Lieutenant General Count Keller's army in the north."

St. Petersburg at Jedda.

JEDDA, Arabia, July 23.—The Russian volunteer fleet steamer St. Petersburg arrived here last night and sailed at once for a cruise in the Red sea.

Colonel Fell to Death.

NANTUCKET, Mass., July 23.—Colonel Charles S. Stewart, U. S. A., retired, fell from the roof of the hotel where he was stopping at Siasconset and received injuries from which he died last evening. The accident is supposed to have resulted from somnambulism or temporary aberration of the mind. Colonel Stewart's home was at Cooperstown, N. Y. He was born at sea in 1823 and was retired in 1886.

Wilson Barrett Dead.

LONDON, July 23.—Wilson Barrett, the actor, is dead. He underwent an operation for cancer two days ago, and the doctors said when it was over that after a few weeks' rest Barrett would be all right and able to carry out his intention of producing a new play in September. Wilson Barrett had been known to theater goers for nearly forty years. He was an Englishman.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report Fall Outlook Good.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Reports received this week from special agents of the International Mercantile agency at the leading centers of accumulation and distribution in the country show very little change in conditions. Actual trade is dull, a normal situation for this season of the year. The outlook for fall and winter business is better in some sections, notably the south and southwest, than it has been for a long while.

Calmer judgment than obtained in the beginning has reduced the estimates of loss by flood to 30,000,000 bushels of winter wheat for the four states most affected. One reliable trade journal has issued a bulletin which points to a total yield of this cereal of 610,000,000 bushels and an exportable surplus of nearly 145,000,000 bushels. These are facts that have helped to dislodge some of the discouraging sentiments of the recent past.

The strike of the packing house employees assumed larger proportions than were first believed possible. However, there has been no great suffering from the advance in the price of meats.

The best commercial reports come from the west and southwest or from the regions where the greatest disturbance to business poise might be expected to exist.

Commercial failures this week in the United States, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., are 231, against 225 last week, 206 the preceding week and 191 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 20, against 20 last week, 12 the preceding week and 19 last year. Of failures this week in the United States 84 were in the east, 60 south, 72 west and 15 in the Pacific states, and 76 report liabilities of $5,000 or more. Liabilities of commercial failures in the United States thus far reported for July are $5,298,562, against $7,308,973 for the corresponding period last year.

PORTO RICANS POISONED.

A Hundred Teachers at Cornell Eat Tainted Meat.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 23.—More than a hundred Porto Rican teachers who are attending the summer session of Cornell university were taken ill as a result, it is believed, of eating tainted meat. Among those most seriously affected were several American inspectors.

All the men of the delegation have been boarding at the Campus tavern. At dinner a meat hash was served which it is thought was responsible for the poisoning. Physicians were called and diagnosed the trouble as ptomaine poisoning. None of the patients is considered in a serious condition, although nearly a score of the visitors were confined to their beds. They are suffering from extreme weakness.

Aged Man Shot Himself.

STOW, Mass., July 23.—George H. S. Brown, aged seventy-seven years and living with his son-in-law, George Robbins, on the back road from Stow to Hudson, shot himself in the right temple at the West schoolhouse and is not expected to live. Mr. Brown first tried to hang himself. He had been despondent because of ill health after an operation for appendicitis.

Steamer American Ashore.

HONOLULU, July 23.—The steamer American, belonging to the American and Hawaiian Steamship company, ran ashore on Kamolo point, island of Molekai, but later she floated and proceeded for Kahului.

An Ideal Location

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

TROOPS CALLED FOR.

Bonesteel, S. D., Held Up by Thieves and Gamblers.

BONESTEEL, S. D., July 23.—Federal troops have been asked for and are being held in readiness to be sent here pending a promise by the gamblers that the "grafters" shall leave the city at once. The mayor in a signed statement notified Superintendent McPhaul of the government registration office that he was unable to cope with the situation and requested that troops be called for.

A meeting of citizens was held, and Mr. McPhaul issued an ultimatum to the city authorities saying that the rioting and disorder positively would not be permitted again and that he would remove the registration office from Bonesteel to another point if a repetition of the rioting occurred.

Mr. McPhaul notified the government authorities that the town was past control of the local authorities and advised the sending of troops.

A man was held up in front of the Citizens' bank and was robbed of $30. Shortly afterward another bold robbery was committed on the main street. A farmer was asked by a gambler to play. He refused, saying he had only $45. He was asked to show his money, which he did. No sooner had he produced it than he was knocked down and his money taken. The robber walked away, and the victim, drawing a revolver, followed and made the footpad give up the money. As he pocketed his pistol and money three other gamblers aimed with their pistols at him and took both his revolver and money.

THE CHAIRMANSHIP.

It Now Looks as if Thomas Taggart Was First Choice.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The announcement from Washington that Senator Gorman had reiterated his declaration that he could not be chairman of the Democratic national committee has simplified the situation, according to the views of those who are earnestly urging Thomas Taggart of Indiana, and they express the belief that he will be unanimously chosen chairman by the national committee next Tuesday.

When the latest declaration of Senator Gorman was communicated to Mr. Taggart, he showed that the news was gratifying, although it coincided with his previous information. John W. Kern of Indiana expressed his satisfaction that the talk about Senator Gorman would now be set at rest and said that it removed any doubt about the choice of Mr. Taggart.

Charged With Sheriff's Murder.

BRISTOL, Va., July 23.—A special from Jonesville, Va., says: Sheriff P. M. Ball of this county has arrested and lodged in jail at this place William Bell Wilson, alias William Anderson, who is charged with murdering the sheriff at Falls Creek, Wis., some months ago. Sheriff Ball had seen Wilson in the county and suspected him on account of his peculiar conduct. When he received a letter later from the Wisconsin authorities giving a description of Wilson and stating that there was an $800 reward for his capture he was prompt to act. Wilson is held for the Wisconsin officials.

Jap Sailor Saves a Russian.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Thomas Wensensakye, a Japanese who has been a steward in the United States navy for some years and who has been for the past year on the training ship Portsmouth, the headquarters of the New Jersey naval reserve, which is lying at Hoboken, has saved a Russian named Laskowski, who fell into the river, from drowning. The Jap plunged in and with a few powerful strokes reached the drowning man's side and assisted him to a float. He could not swim and would have been drowned had it not been for the prompt action of the Japanese sailor.

Blazing Car Ran Away.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Blazing fiercely from wheels to roof, a runaway motor car on the Metropolitan electric elevated railway whizzed by hundreds of waiting passengers, led a fire engine a chase of more than a mile and was not stopped until reaching the crowded loop in the downtown district used by the four elevated roads of the city. The car was brought to a stop by the temporary shutting off of the power at the supply station, the engineer of the power house having been notified that a runaway car was speeeding downtown.

Missing Eldredge Shot Himself.

MYSTIC, Conn., July 23.—The body of Clarence Q. Eldredge, who had been missing for nearly a week, was found a quarter of a mile from the summer home of his father, Charles Q. Eldredge, the father making the discovery. He had shot himself through the heart. It is believed that the young man committed suicide as the result of a love affair. The disappearance of Eldredge caused a sensation in this section, where he was well known.

Woman of Many Names In Horse Deal

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., July 23.—A woman supposed to be Mary Skiltington, alias Mary Doe, alias Carrie Foster, of Plattsburg, N. Y., has been arrested here. She hired a horse and buggy at Rutland, Vt., it is alleged, and traded the horse with gypsies, drove the fresh horse to Ogdensburg and sold the outfit for $50. While resting here she had gone to housekeeping.

American Dancer at Baireuth.

BAIREUTH, Bavaria, July 23.—The Wagnerian festival began here with the performance of a Parisian adaptation of "Tannhauser." Miss Isadora Duncan, the American dancer, participated in the ballet.

CREW FOUGHT FIRE

Excursion Boat on St. Lawrence In Flames.

CAPTAIN COOLLY BEACHED VESSEL

Passengers Were Saved by Prompt, Effective Management, and Fire Got Under Control With Help of Yachtsmen.

CLAYTON, N. Y., July 23.—The steam yacht Castanet of the Visgot line, returning from Kingston with a load of 150 excursionists, caught fire in midstream and only by the most fortunate circumstances was an awful accident averted.

The yacht was four miles from Kingston and half a mile from shore. A stiff breeze was blowing, and the passengers were enjoying the ride when suddenly, without a sound of warning, a sheet of flame shot up through the hatchways. The passengers at once ran to the ends of the boat. The flames swept up to the canvas awnings, and in a moment these were ablaze to the stern. While the passengers were huddled forward and aft in fear the engineer and fireman crawled from the flames of the engine room. The crew had meanwhile caught up armfuls of life preservers, which they handed to the passengers. Then they began to fight the blaze.

The captain, Barney Nunn, turned his boat from its course, heading it for the shore, followed by the steam yacht Nokomis, belonging to W. H. Nickols of New York, which was a mile away when the blaze burst out. The burning boat was beached on Cedar island, and in a moment the Nokomis was run behind her. The transfer of passengers was quickly made without the loss of a life, and the united efforts of both crews extinguished the blaze. Engineer Charles Wood and his son, Raymond Wood, the fireman, were both badly burned, but will recover.

The cause of the accident was an explosion of gas in the firebox, which threw the fires out into the engine room and down the galleys. The boat was a handsome excursion yacht built in 1898. The damage to her can be repaired.

Train Derailed by Car Door.

GREENSBORO, N. C., July 23.—Train No. 9 on the Southern railway, near Franklin, Va., while running about thirty miles an hour, struck a car door which was lying on the track across both rails, derailing the engine and tender. C. E. Hall, engineer; W. A. Milloway, fireman, and Ed McClanahan, a flagman, riding on the engine, were killed. Baggagemaster George Burke was slightly injured. No passengers were hurt. The car door had been dropped from the preceding local freight. The main line was blocked for a short time, passengers on through trains being transferred without much delay.

Saved the Battleship New Jersey.

QUINCY, Mass., July 23.—The prompt response to a private fire alarm by the workmen at the Fore River shipyards last night undoubtedly saved the battleship New Jersey, now under construction, from serious injury and perhaps destruction. The watchman at the yard discovered flames among the timbers directly beneath the bow of the battleship. Practically every workman employed by the company answered the alarm and with several powerful streams of water extinguished the flames before serious damage was done. The origin of the fire is a mystery and will be a matter of serious investigation.

A Marriage In Kingston.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 23.—The Rev. Mr. Hall, son-in-law of Judge Parker, was called to Kingston to perform a marriage ceremony uniting Laura Serena Van Zandt and Harry T. Owens of New York. The bride is the daughter of Leopold Van Zandt, now living in Paris, and the adopted daughter of William T. Van Zandt, who laid the first telegraph line in America. The wedding was set for autumn, but when Mr. Owens arrived in Kingston he urged that the date be changed. The bride was the organist in the Rev. Mr. Hall's church at Kingston.

No Cause Known For Dawes' Deed.

NORFOLK, Va., July 23.—Edgar E. Dawes, secretary of the board of trade and Business Men's association and a prominent citizen of Norfolk, committed suicide last night at his summer home at Ocean View. He reached home early from the city and went to his room. Standing before his twelve-year-old son, Dawes placed a pistol in his mouth and pulled the trigger. He was instantly killed. No cause for his rash deed can be learned.

Found Hanging From Tree.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 23.—A man's body on which were cigarmakers' union cards given by the unions of Geneva, N. Y.; Bridgeport, Conn.; Paterson, N. J., and New London, Conn., to John Arnold was found hanging by a handkerchief from the limb of a tree in the woods near St. Mary's academy. A Chicago paper bearing date of July 4 was found in a pocket. The body was badly decomposed.

Notification Committee to Meet.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Fred Kelly of this city, District of Columbia member of the committee formally to notify Judge Parker of his nomination for president, has received a dispatch saying: "Presidential notification committee, by order of Chairman Clark, will meet for consultation at noon, July 25, at the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York. Notification next day."

Plainfield, N. J., July 23, 1904.

So Governor Murphy made a two-base hit at Sea Girt. Well, he will make a home run next year.

Somebody with nothing else to do is continually asking how to pronounce the name of the town where Judge Parker holds his porch levees. It might be interesting to know, but what worries us is whether the judge is going to remain there after next November.

Mention of former Congressman Clark's name in connection with the Democratic gubernatorial nomination should be pleasing to all members of the minority party who wish to see the State returned to its old love. Mr. Clark is what is termed a strong card politically and would keep Edward C. Stokes on a hustle if he desires to succeed Governor Murphy.

It is said that Governor Murphy attempted to make the review at Sea Girt on Thursday as impressive as possible because it marked the last occasion in which he would act as commander-in-chief of the Jersey troops. No one begrudges him getting all the glory out of it he could for when Franklin Murphy's term expires he will be dead a one politically unless his dough bag is sorely needed by the Republican party.

Another grade crossing fatality at Long Branch serves to remind Plainfield how fortunate it is in this respect. "Absurd," "preposterous," said many residents thirty years ago when the elevation of the New Jersey Central's tracks was proposed and only the perseverance of a few far-seeing citizens gave the place this most valuable and necessary of improvements. Today it would be impossible to conceive what it would mean to have the death-dealing crossing at grade while its detriment to property values is beyond calculation.

In their haste many persons are criticising the Ocean Grove Association for preventing trains being stopped at Asbury Park on Sundays, but if they stop to consider for a moment they will come to the conclusion that the action is perfectly justifiable. Ocean Grove, and to a great extent Asbury Park as well, is intended for a distinct class of people and for a distinct purpose. One in fact is a religious community controlled by a certain denomination of Christians and the other is more or less similar. Sunday excursions do not always bring a desirable crowd and to a degree they are hurtful to any resort. Asbury Park is bound by a solemn compact with the Ocean Grove Association not to allow Sunday railroad traffic. There are enough other places for Sunday excursions. Ocean Grove and Asbury Park should be spared.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Curious names have been given to the various dishes appearing on the bill of fare offered to the militia while in camp at Sea Girt. The Plainfield boys are loud in their praise of the food furnished by the State this year, claiming that it was better than ever. Bread is designated as "punk," beans as "Boston oberries," stew as "slum," coffee as "boot-leg," pork as "sow-belly," butter as "grease," salt and pepper as "sand," and vinegar as "citric acid." These terms are applied to the things mentioned not only at Sea Girt, but in the regular army as well until they are familiar terms. While in camp the Plainfield boys were served with fish on three different occasions and they say that there was plenty of everything.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Several of the local subscribers have had their telephone connections cut off as they believed they were being buncoed by the telephone company. Last year when the first private 'phones were installed in town the subscribers were allowed 150 calls to Plainfield and New Market. This year it was announced that there would be no calls allowed without pay except in town. The aggrieved ones believe that the company will be brought to its senses by their action.

The Dunellen A. C. will be without the services of several of its best players in today's game with Clinton Avenue. Smith is at Lake Hopatcong and Fletcher is away on his vacation. The revised line up has not yet been announced, but some good players will occupy the vacant placed. The game will be played at Clinton avenue.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

An arrest or two of reckless automobilist, who insist upon driving their machines beyond the twenty-mile an hour limit allowed by law, might do something toward reducing the danger to others who are compelled to use the highways some. The principal day for the "freaks" is on Sunday. An officer could make several arrests any Sunday afternoon. Posting the law along the highways leading into town does not seem to have the desired effect.

The arrangements made by the players of the local ball team to don the Somerville uniform for the balance of the season is pleasing to the local fans, as the team was too good a one to go as "has beens."

A MODERN BANQUET ROOM

E. H. CLEVELY IS MAKING EXTENSIVE ALTERATIONS AT HIS RESTAURANT.

E. H. Clevely, of North avenue, the originator of the quick-lunch in this city, has from time to time enlarged his restaurant to accommodate his increasing trade. He is now making extensive alterations which, when completed, will make his place one of the best in the city. He is building a banquet room on the second floor, access to which will be through the women's dining parlors.

This banquet room will have accommodations for seventy-two persons, and will be so arranged that a portion of it, seating about thirty persons, can be shut off from the other part. This will be reserved for women. The rooms are light and airy and are sure to be very popular with the many patrons of this popular restaurant. Mr. Clevely is constantly catering to the wants of his customers and that this is appreciated is shown by the liberal patronage accorded. The new dining rooms will make an ideal place for lodge or society banquets and Mr. Clevely intends to make a special feature of this part of his business.

—Roth & Co. are offering some rousing specials today. See adv. on eighth page of this issue.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, held on Thursday, July 7, 1904, at 2:30 p. m.

All members were present except Freeholder Klee—19.

The minutes of the previous meeting (the reading of bills being omitted) were on motion approved as read.

Director Hubbard stated that in making up the list of standing committees for the current year he had inadvertently placed Freeholder Meisel on but one committee. It was not intentional on his part, and was a mistake, which he much regretted.

Freeholder Robison stated that he had been appointed as a member of the Legal Questions Committee for this year, which was in addition to other committee assignments heretofore held by him. He asked permission of the Board to resign from said committee, which permission was granted, on motion, without dissent.

Director Hubbard then announced the appointment of Freeholder Meisel as a member of the Legal Questions Committee.

PETITIONS, COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

From Mrs. N. W. Bonnel, of Springfield, N. J., extending her "sincere thanks to the Director, officers and members of the Union County Board of Freeholders for the beautiful wreath of flowers which they sent to Mr. Bonnel's funeral, and also for their sympathy expressed in her bereavement," which was received and placed on file.

From the Elizabeth Board of Trade, by Wm. F. Groves, secretary, requesting this Board "to appoint a committee to confer with one from the Board of Trade and consider the plan of building a bridge across Newark Bay, between Bayonne and Elizabeth."

Freeholder King moved that the communication be received and a committee of five appointed as requested, which was so ordered without dissent.

The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders King, Krouse, Swain, Robison and McCandless.

From John M. Rogers, adjutant, stating that he had been directed by Colonel Dennis F. Collins, of the Second Regiment, "to extend to the Director and members of the Board of Chosen Freeholders an invitation to attend the encampment of this command at Sea Girt, N. J., during the week of July 9 to 16, inclusive.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse, received and accepted.

From Matthew Armstrong, requesting permission to open a trench for the purpose of laying an 8 inch sewer for house drainage about 5 feet from the curb on that part of St. George's avenue, in the city of Rahway, between Union street and the bridge spanning the Rahway River, a distance of about 600 feet. The trench would not disturb the macadam in any way, and if permission was granted as requested he agrees to put the street in as good a condition as he found it.

Freeholder King moved that the permission as asked for be granted, work to be done under the supervision of the County Road Inspector, which was so ordered without dissent.

Whereas, This board has received a cordial invitation to attend the annual encampment of the 2d Regiment to be held at Sea Girt; therefore be it

Resolved, That we accept the same with pleasure, and that we attend the same in a body on Wednesday next, July 13th.

On motion of Freeholder Westphal, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

By Freeholder King:

Whereas, The northerly side line of Rahway avenue, from a point where the same is intersected by the westerly side line of Broad street, extends in a southwesterly direction and diagonally with the southerly side line of the new Court House building; and

Whereas, It is deemed of great benefit and advantage to the county of Union to vacate a portion of the northerly side of Rahway avenue at the junction of said avenue with Broad street, and to procure said portion of said avenue so vacated for the county of Union, for the purpose of enlargement of the Court House grounds; and

Whereas, The County Building Committee have procured from Julie d'A. Jones an option for a triangular piece of land lying on the southerly side of Rahway avenue at its junction with the westerly side of Broad street, described as follows: Beginning at the intersection of the southerly line of Rahway avenue with the westerly line of Broad or South Broad street, and running thence southerly along the westerly line of Broad street forty-two and fifty one hundredths (42.50) feet; thence running westerly along the line, at right angles to Broad street, one hundred and sixteen and sixty one hundredths (116.60) feet to a point; thence running westerly and curving to the south, with a radius of two hundred and sixty six and fifteen one hundredths (266.15) feet, seventy-two and sixteen one-hundreds (72.16) feet to a point of tangent in the southerly line of Rahway avenue; thence running easterly along the southerly line of Rahway avenue one hundred and ninety-five (195) feet to the place of beginning; and

Whereas, Said option for the purchase of said premise has been procured by said County Building Committee for the sum of eighty-five hundred ($8500) dollars, with the understanding and agreement that if said option be adopted by the said County Building Committee that said triangular piece is to be dedicated to the public as a public street, and that the said Julie d'A. Jones is to retain the same rights in said avenue, when so changed, as she now has, excepting such rights as she may have in that portion of said avenue lying to the north of the middle line of said avenue, which right she agrees to relinquish, and consents to the vacating of a triangular piece of like dimensions as that under which she has given said committee an option; and

Whereas, Said option will be null and void unless favorably acted upon by this Board within sixty (60) days from June 16th, nineteen hundred and four; and

Whereas, It is deemed by this Board that the purchasing of said triangular tract and the dedication of the same to the public as a public highway, and the vacating of a triangular piece of like dimensions on the northerly side of Rahway avenue, and incorporating the same into the Court House grounds now belonging to the County of Union, will largely enhance the value of the Court House property, and greatly improve the convenience and beautify the appearance of the same; therefore be it

Resolved, That the County Building Committee be and hereby are authorized to acquire the said triangular piece of land in the preamble herein above described, of Julie d'A. Jones for the sum therein named, to wit, eighty five hundred dollars, in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled, "An act to facilitate the acquirement of lands and the erection of buildings for county purposes," approved March 19, 1901, and the supplements and amendments thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That said County Building Committee be and hereby are authorized to take such steps as may be necessary, with the City Council of the City of Elizabeth, and such persons or corporations as may be necessary for the procurement of the vacation of the triangular piece proposed to be vacated on the northerly side of Rahway avenue, and now within the street lines, and the dedication by this Board, and the acceptance by the proper authorities of the triangular piece proposed to be purchased on the southerly side of Rahway avenue; and that said Building Committee be authorized to procure the necessary change of said street lines, and to curb, grade and flag, and to do all other necessary work in connection therewith in accordance with the true intent and purpose indicated in the option so procured by said committee, and the map herewith submitted.

Attached to the foregoing was a copy of the option granted by Julie d'A. Jones, widow, to the Building Commissioners of Union County.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the foregoing preamble and resolutions, and on roll call they were unanimously adopted.

By Freeholder King:

Whereas, The County Building Committee have procured an option on a triangular piece of land lying on the southerly side of Rahway avenue at its junction with the westerly side of Broad street; and

Whereas, By a resolution heretofore passed this Board has declared that in its opinion it will be of great benefit and advantage to the county of Union to favorably act upon said option, and has so declared; and

Whereas, The purchase of said land and the changing of Rahway avenue at its junction with Broad street will necessarily incur a considerable outlay, the exact amount of which cannot at this time be estimated by this Board; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Board issue and sell bonds, to be known and designated as Court House Bonds, to an amount not exceeding fifteen thousand ($15,000) dollars.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the forgoing preamble and resolution, and on roll call they were unanimously adopted.

HAS HAD RAPID RISE

ELMER J. BURKETT, NEBRASKA'S REPUBLICAN LEADER.

Nominated by State Convention as Candidate for United States Senate—Some Good Stories Told of Him.

Omaha (Neb.) Special.

Elmer J. Burkett has just received from the republican state convention indorsement as a candidate for the United States senate, as the result of a "boom" started without his knowledge or sanction. It is a repetition of the way his political career begun eight years ago.

Back in 1896, after Burkett had struggled along for three years as a member of the bar and general worker for the republicans of his ward, the local machine had decided upon its candidates for the legislature, but needed to head off a man in Burkett's ward to make its delegation sure. Very softly a machine man whispered to Burkett the advisability of his becoming a candidate. Burkett did, and never before had his ward seen such a campaign. He won his delegation, and that was all he expected to do. The night before the convention a caucus was held, and so little interested was Burkett about the nomination that he was asleep long before the caucus started. One of the machine's candidates showed symptoms of being sold. Some one mentioned Burkett. It was taken up in a minute, and Burkett was named.

Then came the campaign. He proved effective on the stump, and in the legislature he was recognized as one of its foremost debaters. He served only one term, because Lancaster next year proposed him for congress, and he has been there ever since.

When Burkett's name was first mentioned for congress many persons didn't know about this "young man Burkett," and it was a proposition that required the greatest diplomacy and tact. Burkett was out counting chickens and kissing babies, when he ran into a neighborhood row. The hogs of one farmer had rooted up a field of corn belonging to a neighbor. The hogs had crawled through a division fence.

HON. ELMER J. BURKETT, (Indorsed for United States Senate by Nebraska Republicans.)

The man with the corn told his grievances to Burkett just about the time Burkett began his heart-to-heart talk. Around the corn man were half a dozen men waiting for him to side one way or the other. How he did it no one knows, but in less than an hour the farmers who had threatened to go to law for the rest of their days were out fixing that fence, and Burkett got the solid delegation from that precinct.

According to the reporters who interviewed him, Burkett has always been a "good Indian" and always full of a story, except about his senatorial candidacy, and even in that he is so sincere about saying "I've just got back here, and really I don't know much about the situation. I am a candidate for congress, though, by the way. We had an interesting session this winter. Speaker Cannon said—"

But the newspaper men and the farmers are not the only persons that Burkett impresses. It was Joseph G. Cannon, then head of the appropriation committee, who asked that the young Nebraskan be made a member of that committee.

In his short career Burkett has been the hero of many stories. He has a knack of remembering faces as well as any man in public life, but on one occasion, so his friends are telling now, he lost a vote and made perhaps a lifelong enemy by forgetting one. He was in the southeastern part of the state. Riding along the road, he stopped to jolly a boy who looked as if he was going to cast his first ballot.

"How are you, old fellow," said the representative, in his best way, "suppose you will come out and help the party next week? By the way, how's the old man?"

"The old man is dead," was the reply.

The next day, coming along a different road, Burkett met a young man. He began on him about the same way he did on the one the day before, winding up with: "Well, how's the old man? Haven't seen him lately."

"He's still dead," was the answer. "Get up!"

With his four terms in congress, a nomination for a fifth and an indorsement for United States senator, Mr. Burkett is only 37 years old, and he doesn't look a bit older. He began life in Iowa. When he was in Tabor college he was general bell ringer, and that is how he made the money to pay his way. He was graduated from that institution in 1890 and at once entered the University of Nebraska, where in 1893 he was graduated from the law department. He began the practice of law in Lincoln in 1893 and is now a member of the firm of Burkett & Grenlee.

THE OTHER MAN

By FREDERIC REDDALE

Copyright, 1902, by J. P. Lippincott Company.

"I presume you realize that this ends everything, Mr. Kane," said Sir Arthur, with a wave of the hand to where Stella was sitting sobbing softly.

"God help me, I do!" was the reply wrung from the anguished spirit, "but my punishment is greater than I can bear!" and with these words he left the room, and the clang of the heavy outer door announced his departure to those within.

Stella broke down utterly then, and would not be comforted.

"Send for Marcia!" she wailed, and, knowing nothing else to do, Rick set out across the park to beseech her to come to the motherless girl in her extremity.

"It is too dreadful, too horrible!" said Marcia, as they drove back after she had been made acquainted with Kane's confession. "Suppose he had killed you, as he meant to do, the wretch!" she panted. "I'll never forgive him—never!"

"Oh, I don't know," said Richard coolly. "He came mighty near it, but he just missed it, you see. If I'd caught him red-handed, or even three months ago, I expect I'd have been pretty hard on him too; but now, you see, it's different."

"I don't see," said Marcia vindictively.

"Wait till you meet Stella," said Rick significantly.

"She ought to hate him, too!" insisted Marcia.

"Well, I fancy she won't," was the quiet reply, arguing that Master Rick possessed rather more insight into the workings of the feminine mind than might have been expected.

Curiously enough, much of his own hot anger and indignation had left him, and he found himself looking at the matter from the position of an outsider or an onlooker. No doubt Stella would readily enough admit the enormity of Kane's offense, but Rick could see how it might appear to her as a mere episode in a daring and adventurous man's career. Then, too, the beggar had made a clean breast of it!

However, Stella kept her room all the next day, and so no one knew what her feelings were.

CHAPTER XI.

Kane went home to his solitary Cedars and began to put his affairs in order.

First of all he made over to Richard Dysart the sum of £50,000 in checks and securities, the original proceeds of the sale of the diamonds of which he had been despoiled. Even this depletion of his fortune left Kane a rich man. In a few hours all was done, and he had even wired to engage passage in the steamer for the Cape, for thence he had determined to retire and end his days. England would know him no more.

KANE HALTED IN DOUBT AS TO HIS RECEPTION AND OF WHAT MIGHT BE COMING.

But the tugging at his heart-strings would not let him leave the old country without a word from the only woman he had ever loved or ever could love. So, in defiance of convention, and not knowing whether her brothers would interfere, he sent Stella a line as follows:

"I am leaving England for good. For the sake of our united past will you say good-by? I shall be in the church porch at sunset."

It was a forlorn hope! She might come; she might not venture to trust her strength to go through such an ordeal; she might write instead; she might not reply at all. So it was with no very hopeful feelings that Kane made his way to the sorrowful tryst.

Instead of Stella he found Richard Dysart awaiting him, smoking a long cigar and flicking the light snow from his boots with a dog-whip.

Kane halted, in doubt as to his reception and of what might be coming. It was as he feared—he would not be allowed to see or speak with the girl!

Rick removed his cigar from his teeth and came forward, to Kane's surprise offering his hand, which the culprit gripped with fierce tenacity, a great gulp in his throat the while. In his bruised and beaten state of mind the cool nonchalance and semi-geniality of the other's manner was like a pat on the head to a pariah dog that has been uniformly kicked and cuffed all around camp.

"I received your letter about the money," said Dysart, "and I'm bound to say that you've tried to do the handsome thing, as I told Sir Arthur. I can't quite make it out, Kane. By rights, I suppose I ought to hate you, and all that sort of thing, don't you know, but for the life of me I'm not able!" and the speaker gave a dissatisfied sort of chuckle. "Perhaps it's the life out yonder; one gets used to giving and taking hard knocks and running all sorts of risks. It's part of the great game. I won't say but what if I'd come up with you at the Cape there'd been a lively sort of reckoning between us; but somehow I can't call you down here at home when we've eaten each other's salt and been such uncommonly good friends."

He paused and puffed his cigar, as if to give Kane a chance to speak, but all the latter's old audacity had deserted him, and he paced slowly back and forth by Rick's side, his gaze clouded and his brain dulled.

"Perhaps it's on account of Stella," Dysart went on musingly, as if loath to cease wondering at his own pacific state of mind. "She's hard hit, Kane—worse than any of us, I'm afraid. What's to be done?" stopping short in his walk and facing him.

Kane groaned and staggered, and would have fallen but for the help of a friendly tree trunk, against which he leaned his hand heavily in an excess of bodily weakness and mental abandon.

"I won't insult you by asking if you love her," Rick went on. "It's plain to be seen the little woman loves you with all her heart and soul."

"Do not keep her from me!" burst from the tortured breast of the other. "I have no right to ask it, I know, but if I do not see her it will kill us both!"

"That's about it, I imagine," said Rick, sententiously. "I'm up the same tree myself," he continued with a conscious laugh, "and I know how it would feel."

"Of course, I relinquish all claim to her," said Kane. "I know that's hopeless after what has happened, but——"

"Now, look here, Kane," interrupted Rick, "I'll undertake to square Sir Arthur, and seeing that I'm the injured party I fancy he won't have much to say. Suppose Stella agrees to marry you—in view of the facts you won't want to live in England?"

"The world is wide," answered Kane, raising his head, a gleam of hope newborn in his eyes. "I dare not ask you to be my friend, but I do ask you to trust me! I have had a bitter lesson, and I have paid dearly for my crime."

Like most healthy and sane English-speaking men, Richard Dysart hated heroics or anything approaching a scene. So he simply clapped the other on the shoulder and said bluffly:

"That's all right, old man! Good-by and good luck! Wait here and I'll send Stella to talk to you!" And whistling to his dogs, who had been nuzzling each other by the old lych-gate, Rick strode away into the fast-gathering dusk.

Soon Kane saw the little cloaked and hooded figure approaching through the private woodland path that led from the Denecroft domain. Slowly she came towards him, her veil down, nor would he seem to presume or prejudge her attitude by advancing to meet her.

Bitter sorrow and vain regret had set their seal upon his finely chiseled features, while affection unutterable and unspeakable gleamed in his eyes. With an inarticulate cry she tottered into his arms; shaking with sobs, her head sunk on his breast.

With self-accusing words he strove to soothe her, putting back the rebellious tendrils of hair that fringed her temples. By degrees he calmed her agitation, and poured balm into her aching heart. He told her anew of his undying love, and that it was because of this ennobling passion he had schooled himself to the confession which had raised up a well-nigh impassable barrier between them.

"If I had not loved you so well, dearest," he concluded, "I could not have brought myself to face it."

"And now I love you all the better," she exclaimed, smiling upon him proudly through her tears. "Your noble heart was revealed to me then!"

"You must forget me, Stella," he urged, trying to put her away from him.

"Never!" she asserted, nestling the closer to his side.

"But I leave England at once," he insisted.

"Then you must take me with you," she cried, "for I cannot live without you!"

The New Woman

Women Must Overcome the Talkee-Talkee Habit

ONE morning I went into several department stores. I went early "to avoid the crush." It was only a few minutes after the opening time. I hate to say it about women, but I found it almost impossible to get any woman clerk to attend to me. The girls were having their morning half hour of tittle tattle. Gabble, gabble, giggle, giggle! I went to the counter. I stood and waited, first in one department, then in another. Not a girl budged, though several undoubtedly saw me. Then I called to ask if anybody would wait on me. Those females glared at me for my presumption in interrupting their gossip. They had not seen one another since the evening before, and they were so burning wild and crazy to pour themselves out in gossip from their toes up that they were offended at being interrupted. They just had to empty out all they knew. When my pertinacity forced one to come to me, she waited on me in a snappish, impertinent way, plainly to punish me for chopping her off in the customary morning gossip. That gossip was of clothes and men. In two departments where I went there were men clerks. I hate to say it again, but here every man was in his place, ready for business. Not a word was spoken by one of these men to another. They came forward at once as I approached and actually appeared to take an interest in serving me. They were polite and even kind. Their minds were on their work; there was nothing they considered of more importance than doing their duty. Their silence and politeness and attention to business were very soothing to the customers. If they talked little, they evidently were thinking, and it is safe to say every one of them was thinking how he could advance himself in business or learn more. Now, women will never advance to higher places or receive large salaries till they cease chattering and telling all they know and buckle down to their tasks. Incessant gabble fritters away the intellect.

One has noted considerable mention of the "only" woman delegate to the Republican nominating convention. As a matter of fact, four women alternate delegates sat officially in that convention. In the case of Mrs. Charles A. Eldredge of Colorado Springs the principal delegate was absent, and Mrs. Eldredge voted in his place for the nominations of Roosevelt and Fairbanks. Thus for the first time, 1904, a woman voted on the nomination of a president of the United States. Let us not forget it.

They say that the romance is all dying out of Spain because now the Spanish maidens have to go to work. Good thing!

You would not believe it unless a reliable person like me told you, but I actually waked myself up out of sound sleep the other night saying (or was it something or somebody else saying to me? I cannot tell this), "Many men are less polished than their shoes." Is not that fine for a dream speech?

The will in most human beings is in a state of infantile feebleness. Women especially need to cultivate it. Its power to help us achieve is infinite. This is how to cultivate it: Before you say "Yes" or "No" concerning any matter think carefully, even if quickly; then make your answer and stick to it though the sky fall. Form a plan after thorough and intelligent consideration; then also stick to that so long as you live, if need be. Think what Helen Keller, A. B., blind, deaf and dumb, has achieved. There is something very like magic in persistently willing a thing to come to pass, especially if you don't talk about it too much. Gabbling concerning plans scatters our forces, often rouses opposing forces.

When women desire to imitate man's dress, why don't they begin at the only really useful section of his costume and make an adaptation of the garment that allows free use of the lower limbs?

Recently I had the pleasure of meeting Miss Ida Tarbell, the scientific writer of history and biography. She told me something of her preparation for her life work, and I discovered it had taken years of thought and study to fit this lady for doing the splendid work which has placed her at the head of American writers in her line. Thorough preparation—that is the secret of all achievement worth anything. Whatever we undertake we must learn all there is to be learned concerning it or we do not know our business.

Here is another woman for her sex to be proud of. She is Mrs. Christine Ladd Franklin, LL. D., the eminent psychologist. Mrs. Franklin has been appointed lecturer on logic and vision at Johns Hopkins university. Higher honor than this can scarcely be attained in the scientific world.

SANATORIUM IN LAPLAND.

Institution for the Treatment of Pulmonary Affections in the Arctic Zone.

The advantages offered by the three months of arctic summer are so numerous that there have appeared recently several announcements of floating and permanent hospitals for patients suffering from incipient pulmonary affections and neurasthenic states. According to the British Medical Journal, it is proposed to erect a sanatorium on the shores of Lake Torne, in Lapland, a long and beautiful sheet of water at Wassijauve, near the end of the Ofote railroad. That railroad, it may be mentioned, has only one station in a distance of 171 miles. There is no human dwelling near that station, which is on the line between Sweden and Norway, and was erected solely for the requirements of the customs office. Except for a small settlement at Wassijauve, the only sign of human existence in the district is the occasional passage of a few Laplanders with their herds of reindeer. Already there has been installed at this spot a scientific station in a solidly built blockhouse containing seven rooms, and it is proposed to build the sanatorium in the same way.

In American Medicine Dr. Frederick Sohon has called attention to the great advantages of the arctic climate. We learn that Dr. Sohon has decided to organize a cruise to the fjords of Greenland, returning before the hardships of the arctic winter begin. These regions of perpetual sunshine may be reached within ten days from Nova Scotia, and the trip may be made with safety and comfort in a suitable vessel altered and appointed for this purpose.

POPULAR SUMMER SONGS.

Those That Tell of Trolley Rides and Outings Please the Public Most.

"There was a time, not so long ago, when the heated term was considered a very dull season in our line," said a music publisher to a New York Sun man. "Now it is as important as the other seasons, all on account of the public's taste for so-called summer songs. These songs extol the virtues of local seaside resorts, trolley rides, etc.

"The fashion was set about three years ago, when 'On a Sunday Afternoon' and 'In the Good Old Summer Time' appeared. Formerly publishers and song writers did not care to have their wares introduced in time for a summer hearing, fearing that by the arrival of the regular theatrical season their songs would be looked upon as stale and out of date. Now, however, a summer indorsement is considered essential to its future popularity.

"The change in the public taste is no doubt due to the fact that vaudeville is enjoying great prosperity just now. Folks who go out of town to spend their vacations during the summer like to be entertained by hearing all the songs on the popular order.

"Booming songs is a harder task now because all the old and tried methods, such as moving pictures, stereopticon views and boy in the gallery have lost their efficacy. Publishers must, therefore, depend now on the individual ability of the singers."

BRUTES BETTER THAN MEN

In the Respect of Appetite Some Lower Animals Display Much Better Sense.

Lower forms of animal life we call brutes. There are some things in which the brutes are above men, says Medical Talk.

For instance, the brutes are guided by instinct alone in the selection of food. Brutes left to themselves would never learn to chew tobacco, to eat pickles, or to drink cocktails. Not even the omniverous pig would eat much of the stuff named on the menu of a first-class hotel. The dog does not like coffee. A horse will not eat ice cream nor will a rat even nibble at a box of choice cigars.

Man alone is capable of doing such unphysiological, health-destroying things. The brutes could teach us, by example, many useful lessons if we would but observe and heed them.

Instead of allowing the lower animals to teach us, we make pets or servants of them. We kill them for pleasure. We cut them up alive; study the anatomy of their bodies. But we never once stop to consider the lessons which their obedience to nature's laws places before us.

One of the "Why, Ma" Boys.

A small boy with an insatiable thirst for knowledge came over from Baltimore in the same car with me day before yesterday. He talked all the way over, and everything he said had a "why, ma," in it. Ma was worn to a frizzle when the train reached Washington.

"Come on," said she. "Thank goodness we're home. No, don't go that way. Come this way."

"I want to go out that end of the car," said the boy.

"You can't," snapped ma. "This is the end to go out of."

"Why, ma?" asked the boy. "Why, ma? Don't the car stop at both ends?"—Washington Post.

How Tea Is Named.

In the Canton dialect "Pekoe" means "white hair," and for this kind of tea the very youngest leaves of all are gathered, so young that the white down of babyhood is still upon them—whence their name. "Congou" means "labor;" considerable trouble and labor being taken in its preparation at Amoy, these are perpetuated in its name. "Bohea" is called after a range of hills in Fokien. "Soo-chong" expresses no sentiment, but a bald fact, being Cantonese for "the small kind." "Hyson" signifies "flourishing spring."

ZELAYA IS PLEASED.

CENTRAL AMERICAN STATESMAN LIKES UNITED STATES.

People of Nicaragua Do Not Feel Bad About Panama Canal, But Will Build New Interoceanic Railroad.

St. Louis (Mo.) Special.

It is generally believed in the United States that the republic of Nicaragua must naturally feel somewhat "sore" at having had to take a back seat in interoceanic canal matters through the selection of the Panama-Colon route. But such is far from being the case, as our neighboring republic has evinced the liveliest interest in all matters appertaining to her relations with the United States. The fine pavilion of Nicaragua at the world's fair is another evidence of Nicaragua's friendliness toward this country, and the great esteem in which the world's fair is held by that Central American republic is further shown by the selection of some of her most prominent citizens to form her world's fair commission.

This commission is composed of the following gentlemen: Senor Don Felix Pedro Zelaya R., the actual secretary of the treasury, or finance minister of the republic as well for the past eight years; Senor Ingeniero Don Alejandro Bermudez, engineer-in-chief of the republic, and Dr. Don F. Garcia Orsono.

Senor Zelaya was seen by a representative of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, through the courtesy of an introduction by Senor Bermudez, who is in charge of Nicaragua's exhibit, and in response to several inquiries made of him, the secretary of the treasury said:

"Yes, this is my first visit to the United States, and I came here by way of New Orleans. I must say that this is a really grand country, and I am highly gratified to find that it far exceeds my greatest expectations of its grandeur.

"Nicaragua, you must know, does not feel the slightest resentment toward the United States for not choosing the canal route through her territory. She looks upon the matter as a res adjudicata, and the incident has been forgotten in the march of progress that we are now making. While those in favor of a canal thought that our country would be greatly benefited thereby, there were still very many who believed that the republic would be divided and a portion of her territory wrested from her; that her sovereignty would be impaired and that a dividing line would be formed tending to sever the harmonious and peaceful 'union' relations among the five Central American republics of Guatemala, Salvador, Honduras, Costa Rica and Nicaragua. How near the fears of the anti-canal party of Nicaragua were to being correct can be judged from the events anent the division of the republic of Colombia and the cession of a large tract of Panama's territory to the United States.

FELIX PEDRO ZELAYA.
(Acting Secretary of the Treasury of the Republic of Nicaragua.)

"During my incumbency as Nicaragua's secretary of the treasury under President Gen. Jose Santos Zelaya, the president of the republic (who, though bearing the same name as myself, is no relative to me), with a view toward progress and by strict economy we have been able to reduce our external debt considerably; and through good management we have paid off, during the last six years, nearly all of our debt of $6,000,000, owing to England, so that there only remains a little less than million now to be paid to the creditors in that country.

"Well," continued Senor Zelaya, "even if we have not got the canal, we have a project, now well under way, which is of just as great importance as was the canal. This project is the completion of the inter-oceanic railway running from San Miguelito, on Lake Managua, to Monkey Point, on the Atlantic coast, a short distance to the southward of Bluefields and the Mosquito Indian reservation, a distance of a little over 200 miles.

"This road, for which the surveys are now being made, is to be built for and on account of the government of Nicaragua, under a contract made with a German gentleman by the name of Don Julio Wiest. By this contract Wiest is to receive the sum of $4,000 United States gold per mile for the labor performed in each mile constructed, the tools and other material necessary to build and equip the road.

"The project for the railroad, together with the contract with Senor Wiest, was hailed with delight by the people, and the Nicaraguan congress in joint session, under the presidency of Dr. Don Jose Dolores Gomez, vice president of the republic, unanimously ratified the concession, which was immediately afterwards signed by the president. Congress also approved of and gave its consent to the raising of the sum of $8,000,000, necessary to complete the road, as well as to arrange for a rehabilitation of the national debt of the country."

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY DISCUSSED BY THE PRESS.

Senator Kean and the President.

The story that a stormy interview occurred between Senator Kean and the President in regard to the selection of Secretary Cortelyou as chairman of the National Republican Committee, seems to have been manufactured from the imagination exclusively. The subject was not mentioned in the brief conversation between the Senator and the President, who, by the way, is related to the Jerseyman, and who has no more loyal friend and supporter.—Newark Sunday Call.

Equal Taxation Commission.

Governor Murphy after his resumption of the duties of his office will be expected to name a new State Commission on Equal Taxation. The newspapers of his party have said that he would appoint a strong commission, and no doubt they will bring the matter to his attention, if he forgets about it. It would be good policy for him to invite suggestions as to the personnel of this important commission.—Paterson Guardian.

H. C. VanEmburgh, of Richmond street, who accompanied the Trinity excursion to Asbury Park Thursday, made the return trip in the engine cab of the train. While he enjoyed the novelty he declares it is not to be compared with a comfortable seat in one of the coaches. The engineer was William Dunham, of Dunellen, considered one of the most expert on this division of the Central.

LITERARY.

Alan Dale contributes a remarkably interesting article to the August number of Ainslee's Magazine on the modern Paris theatres. His description of the places of amusement visited by him while on a recent trip to Paris for Ainslee's Magazine reads like a romance. The condition of even the best of the Parisian theatres, as compared with our own luxurious playhouses, seems almost inconceivable. And yet France is the home of the drama!

For many years the August number of Scribner's Magazine has been the fiction number of the year, noted for its selection of the best short stories obtainable, with the most beautiful and elaborate illustration in color, and in black and white. The issue of this year is a remarkable one. It contains short stories by Rudyard Kipling, Edith Wharton, Thomas Nelson Page, Josephine Daskam Bacon, and others; serials by Robert Grant and Nelson Lloyd; and poems by Henry vanDyke Finley and E. S. Martin. Certainly no more distinguished list of writers has appeared together in a single number of a magazine.

Contents of the August "Success"—"Diplomatic Mysteries" (III—The Great Austrian Conspiracy), Vance Thompson; "Poems of Inspiration," (1) "The Other Fellow's Job," Strickland W. Gillilan; (2) "Those Who Do Their Best," Roy Farrell Greene; "Bara-No-Hana" (a story), L. Du Pont Syle; "People We Read About," (containing half-tone reproductions of photographs and short sketches of Major-General Henry C. Corbin, U. S. A., Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain, W. S. Gilbert, Joseph G. Cannon, Ion Perdicaris, Edwin D. Mead, Mari Grey, Queen Wilhelmina, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Alphonse Bertillon, Augustus Thomas and Ramon Corral); "The Emergency," (a story), Elliott Flower; "How Circus Performers Learn Their Thrilling Feats," Harvey O'Higgins; "Colorado's Civil Contest," Chauncey Thomas; "Photographic Studies of Domestic Animals," "Let Your Decision Be Final," Orison Swett Marden; "The Minister's Hold-ups," (a story), H. S. Cooper; "Guthrie of 'The Times'", (a story), Joseph A. Altsheler; "What to Read Concerning Russia and Japan," Martin M. Foss; "The Song of the Common People," Alfred J. Waterhouse; "A Narrative of Opportunity," "Our Little Brother in Japan," Shunzo Murakami; "Speaker Cannon's Deal in Overcoats," C. Arthur Williams; "The Editor's Chat," "The March of Empire," Garrett P. Servis.

MEAT STRIKE ON AGAIN

RESUMPTION OF HOSTILITIES WILL KEEP PRICES UP.

Officiousness of minor bosses at the big packing plants in Chicago led to a resumption of the big meat strike, just when the leaders on both sides had thought the trouble was all over. Words credited to Superintendent Pension, of the Armour yards, in rehiring employes brought the bad feeling to a climax and President Donnelly, of the Butcher's Union, at once orderd the men out again. It is said that Pension likened the Union workers to cattle and those who heard it would not state the affront.

There are now fully as many men on strike as there were before the truce was called and matters are again very serious. It was thought shipments of beef would start yesterday but they have not and there is no telling when they will. The local beef houses received telegrams today informing them of the new phase in the situation and to shape their plans accordingly.

DEATH OF MRS. MURRAY

WIDOW OF DEAN MURRAY PASSES AWAY AT WAREHAM, MASS.

Mrs. Julia Richards Murray, widow of Dean Murray, of Princeton University, and mother of Dr. William H. Murray and James P. Murray, of Watchung avenue, died at Wareham, Mass., yesterday after a two months' illness. Mrs. Murray was about seventy years of age and survived her husband by five years. Her home was in Princeton.

Aside from the Messrs. Murray, of this city, two other sons and a daughter survive her. These are Haughton and George R. Murray, of Princeton, and Mrs. A. C. Armstrong, of Middletown, Conn. The funeral services will be held from the Princeton home some time next week, as the arrangements have not yet been completed.

Headquarters Dormitory Change.

Members of the city fire department yesterday completed extensive alterations to the dormitory at headquarters. The two rooms used for sleeping quarters have been thrown into one by removing a wall and the cots have been so arranged as to get the full benefit of all ventilation. The hallways have also been better arranged and make it more convenient for the men to get in and out.

To St. Louis by Water.

A. M. Griffen, of this city, is a member of a party which made the trip from Perth Amboy to St. Louis by water. The route taken was one which has been described on several occasions and which makes a delightful travelling novelty. The party has already commenced the return and Mr. Griffen will be home within a week or so.

Death of Young Son.

Ledyard Mitchelburne Bunker, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Bunker, of Brooklyn, died at the summer home of the parents in Dunellen yesterday. Funeral services over the remains will be held tomorrow afternoon on the arrival of the 1:30 train from Liberty street, New York.

RAILWAY TO THE CLOUDS.

French Syndicate Plans Aerial Cog-Road with Six Miles of Tunnels.

The projected Mont Blanc electric railway, as planned by M. Ballot for a syndicate of French capitalists, will be constructed on the cog wheel system, as used on the Jungfrau railway, says a Paris report.

It will be nearly 11 miles long, of which more than six miles will be traversed in tunnels. It will climb 11,710 feet from the tiny village of Les Houches, 3,260 feet above sea level, to a point near the Petits Rochers Rouges.

The first station will be at the top of the Gros Bechand, 8,410 feet high, with a splendid view of the Chamonix valley. The second station will be in the ice region, just before the summit of the famous Aiguille du Gouter, at an altitude of 12,600 feet, where the panorama will embrace the fearsome precipices of Taconaz, Les Grisz, and Bionnassay.

A hard snow path from this point will lead to the Grand plateau. The third station is planned near the observatory and the Ballot refuge hut, at an altitude of 14,300 feet. From here a tunnel will be cut through the northern slope of Mont Blanc proper to the terminus, situated 14,970 feet above the sea.

The highest summit, 810 feet above the terminus, can be reached from there on foot or by sledge. The entire train journey will only take two hours. At present it takes the climber 14 hours to reach the summit from Courmayeur.

New Western Tunnel.

The Poland tunnel, 8,071 feet long, between the Agua Fria and Lynx creek valleys of Arizona, has been completed. It is for the purposes of private mining development.

Doane has a second horse to alternate on the gig with "Bill." This horse is old "Jerry," the oldest horse in the department.

All the truck horses in the service of the department average more than 1,350 pounds apiece, and are heavily built fellows entirely fitted for the arduous work. They are well fed, well cared-for, and the idols of the firemen. Every day at the stroke of the gong at 12 and 5 o'clock, the horses dash out in drill, and their speed and reliance when on the way to fires has established speed records with apparatus which defy demolishment.

Sunday Excursion to Manch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Manch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Manch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Manch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On July 31 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Manch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Manch Chunk at 5:40, and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Manch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes.

Landed Big Trout.

Dr. J. C. Bliss, formerly pastor of the Crescent Avenue church, who is summering at Camp Mohawk in the Adirondacks, captured in Lake Moss, last Wednesday, one of the largest trout ever landed in that section. It weighed seven pounds and was twenty-seven inches in length, the size being depicted in a drawing sent by Dr. Bliss to H. O. Newman, of this city. Henry C. Squires, of Watchung avenue, was in the boat with the lucky angler when the capture was made.

Westfield's Colors Triumph in Keen Battle Before Big Crowd on Crescent Oval.

TO TUNE OF 8 TO 6

ALIS' PITCHER PROVES A GREAT DISAPPOINTMENT TO THE FANS.

Sixteen Hits Secured Off Davis—Rochford Made a Three Bagger—Enthusiasm Dampened—The Detailed Scores.

Alis was defeated by Westfield on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon in the presence of nearly two thousand fans. The score was 8 to 6. Manager Denman's aggregation of players had a merry time with Davis. That the fans are tired of Davis is now evident and if the Alis Club wants to hold any of its patronage a change is considered necessary. It is said that Wolfe, of the Amerian League, was to have pitched, but that he was called to Washington Saturday morning.

The Alis team touched Waller for a total of ten safeties, Dietrich, Smith and Davis each making a three bagger. Cusick was the only man failing to get a hit, while Oregan and McGoey each got two. A total of three singles in the ninth gave the visitors the game. Alis failed to get a run after the sixth inning. The visitors secured fifteen hits off of Davis, including a three-bagger by Rochford and two-baggers by Barry and Battam.

The convention opens about the middle of August and will continue for three days. The city as well as Massachusetts has contributed a generous amount for the entertainment of the veterans.

IMPROVING 'PHONE EXCHANGE

ENLARGING SWITCHBOARD TO PROVIDE CONNECTION FOR NEW 'PHONES.

Extensive alterations have been commenced at the local telephone exchange which will provide better service for the subscribers and give more convenience for the employes. Three more sections are to be added to the switchboard, making a total of nine, that will provide for many more connections as is required by the new 'phones now being installed.

In the business department, the manager's office is undergoing improvements and a separate compartment is being built for the chief operator and check clerks. When concluded the plans will make the exchange one of the most complete and best equipped in the State.

POOR CHILDREN MADE HAPPY

CHURCH PEOPLE ENTERTAINED FRESH AIR HOME OCCUPANTS.

Delegations from the Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor Society visited the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home Saturday afternoon and provided special entertainment for the 150 little New Yorkers now at the camp. To the children the features of the afternoon was perhaps the performance of the magician and sleight of hand artist secured from New York through the kindness of G. E. Hall.

Following this performance the children themselves took part in all sorts of games about the house and grounds. A peanut hunt, arranged by Miss Alice Brown, of the Park Avenue C. E. Society, proved especially popular. In place of a regular supper, the children were served with sandwiches and cake, furnished by the women of the Park Avenue Sunday-school and Christian Endeavor Societies.

G. E. Hall provided fifty quarts of ice cream. The following served as waitresses for the children: Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin and George V. Taylor, of Brooklyn; Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Hall, Joseph Hawkins, Mrs. D. M. Runyon and the Misses Mary Giles, Grace Chamberlain, Lulu Stryker, Cora R. Brokaw, Florence G. Hawkins, Julia Wyckoff, Alice Brown, Arline Brown, Marjorie Brown, Edith Lyons and Isabelle VanBrakle. A large number of friends were present from the Park Avenue Baptist church and an enjoyable afternoon was passed.

Week's Services at Netherwood.

The services at the Mary Morgan Fresh Air Home during the evenings of this week will be conducted by several individuals and church societies of this city, Westfield and Roselle. W. D. W. Miller will be the speaker tonight at a meeting to be conducted with the assistance of the Warren chapel Christian Endeavor Society. The Epworth League, of Westfield, will have charge of Tuesday's meeting and on Wednesday evening, Mr. Grant, of the Plymouth Brethern, of this city, will lead. Thursday's service will be conducted by the Young People's Society, of the Crescent Avenue church. The Baptist Christian Endeavor Society from Roselle will be in charge of the services Friday evening.

Will Open Borough School Bids.

The North Plainfield Board of Education will meet this evening for the purpose of receiving bids for the erection of the new school at Somerset street and Park place. A large number of local contractors have been figuring on the plans and it is thought the estimates will come within the appropriation.

DANCING ON SUNDAY AT GALVIN'S RESORT

Floor Manager of Nearby Trolley Park Dance Hall Seems to Feel Protected.

NO ACTION IS TAKEN

"DON'T BE AFRAID ANYONE WILL BE ARRESTED," SAYS ANNOUNCER.

Crowd Spends Evening at the Resort—Puzzle to Know Where Manager Got His Assurance.

"Tomorrow afternoon there will be a musical programme in the hall. If you start to dance—well, we won't stop you. Don't be afraid that anyone will be arrested for they will not."

Such was the announcement made by the floor manager of Galvin's Park dancing pavilion, Saturday night. He spoke with perfect assurance and in an inviting way that was not misconstrued by the assemblage of young men and women. Relying on his word there was a good-sized gathering in the place at an early hour last night and the dance was on just the same as it is six other nights in the week.

This announcement of the floor manager's and the subsequent dancing, practically defies those who have disapproved of the practice and who have taken steps to stop it. It has also led to a discussion in Scotch Plains in the confines of which the Park is located, as to where the manager derived his information that the dancers would not be molested. During the past week word supposed to have come from the authorities as much as declared that the practice would be stopped and many of the residents were looking forward to it. Accordingly, the invitation to be at the place and enjoy the waltz and two step in the face of the adverse feeling occasioned much surprise.

WORKMEN'S GRUESOME FIND

REMAINS OF A SUPPOSEDLY MURDERED INFANT ARE UNEARTHED.

Workmen engaged in straightening a road between Oak Tree and Iselin, last week, unearthed the remains of what had once been the form of an infant, together with a nursing bottle, that practically clears up a mystery which has puzzled that section for many years.

When the find was reported, an old colored resident declared that not a great while ago a family living near Oak Tree suddenly disappeared, not leaving the first hint as to why or where they had gone. Later a rumor was prevalent that some unlawful transaction had led to the flight and it became coupled with a story that the family's infant had been murdered.

This has been believed by the old residents all along and when the bottle and remains were taken up last week they immediately recalled the circumstances. The bottle had evidently contained an acid which had been given the child to kill it and when this was accomplished, earth was hastily piled over it as the remains were less than a foot below ground. The neighborhood is greatly exercised over the find but as all trace of the family has long since been lost the matter will not be taken up by the authorities.

Bicyclist Meets With Mishap.

Frank C. Fisher, of West Third street, is confined to his home with a broken arm and other injuries received in a bicycle accident, Saturday. He was riding along at a rapid pace when the front forks of his machine broke throwing him to the ground with great force. He was taken home by friends and Dr. Cregar was called to attend him.

Sprained His Foot.

George Taylor, of East Second street, is obliged to go about with the aid of crutches, having recently sprained his foot. He was walking up a pair of slippery stairs leading to his shop when he fell. The sprain is a bad one and it will probably be some time before Mr. Taylor will have the use of the foot again.

Band Concert Friday Night.

The next band concert will be held at Concert Park on Friday night. A feature will be the rendition of Miss Mabel Maxson's new composition, "Sylvia." There will be other features introduced by Benj. LaVere, the leader of the band.

SHOT IN EYE BY PLAYMATE

BERNARD KELLEY MAY LOSE AN OPTIC BY YOUNG POLON'S RECKLESSNESS.

Bernard Kelley, the four-year-old son of Nicholas Kelley, of Cottage place, is in Muhlenberg Hospital, facing the probable loss of one eye, shot by a blank cartridge from a pistol in the hands of his playmate, Francis Polon. Powder grains entered the eyeball and it was so severely burned that the physicians fear complications.

The two children reside with their parents in the same house on Cottage place and were playing about yesterday afternoon when they found the pistol. It had been left lying about by an older Polon boy after the Fourth celebration and still contained several unexploded cartridges. Not knowing the danger of the thing the Polon boy picked it up and pointing it at Kelley pulled the trigger.

The scream which followed brought the two families to the scene and they found the injured boy running about holding his hand over the optic. Dr. Tomlinson was called and on learning the gravity of the case had the sufferer removed to Muhlenberg. The police were notified of the affair but after an investigation, Chief Kiely decided it was purely accidental.

JUSTICE MAKES NEW RULE

'SQUIRE MOSHER FINALLY DECIDES THAT LAWYERS MUST BE ON TIME.

"Half hour's time allowed in all cases in this court. Please observe order." Justice Mosher had printed such a sign for his court room and tacked it up in a prominent position for the reference of lawyers who are in a hurry. It had been in position for but a few hours this morning before a dapper young man, representing the Trenton Abbatoir Co., hurriedly entered the court and, seeing no representative of the defendant, claimed judgment for full amount and costs in the contract case against Silas C. Mundy, of this city. The Justice of the Peace was impassive to this haste, and removing his cigar from his mouth, pointed significantly to the placard. His leisure manner only incensed the visiting lawyer the more and he denounced the sentiment as unbusiness-like and illegal, pawing over the law books on the desk to show Jutsice Mosher that "ten o'clock mean ten o'clock." He argued long and claimed no defense was going to be brought; that he was in a great hurry, etc. The Justice stuck to his principle that politeness pays, even in the law, and continued in argument with the lawyer until ten-thirty, when he awarded him the judgment.

Later in the day the sign was down and torn up. Persuasions had borne their fruit and now the Justice declares that he's going to print a new sign to inform those who patronize his court to be strictly on time.

"I don't believe that they'd put up a fight in here, anyway," he said.

THE CADI RETURNS.

Passes Sentence on a Batch of Offenders in the City Court This Morning.

City Judge Runyon resumed the bench at police headquarters this morning after a week's absence and disposed of the following cases:

Antonion Petrillo, arrested yesterday by Patrolman Kelley for drunkenness and disorderly conduct and carrying concealed weapon; fined $5. James Scott, a colored driver, arrested by Patrolman Meyers for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, sentence suspended. James McDonald, arrested by Patrolman Meyers last night for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, fined $5. The fines in each instance were paid.

—Though the peach season is drawing to a close, Neuman Brothers still have a large display of fancy white and yellow fruit to select from.

—Louis Frazee, of East Third street, is today confinek to his home, suffering with a severe attack of appendicitis. Though not in good health for the past week, Frazee did not summon medical aid until Saturday, when his physician diagnosed the case as appendicitis. A consultation of physicians will be held this afternoon regarding the advisability of an operation, which will be avoided unless absolutely necessary.

TWO ITALIANS HURT IN STABBING AFFRAY

DeBlairo, Accusing Nevarro, a Cousin of Lengo, of Being a Stool Pigeon, Causes Trouble.

POLICE MAKE ARRESTS

BRAWL AT THE LAKE STREET COLONY ON SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

Both Men Are Fined in the City Court—Italians Bitter Against Nevarro, Who is Said to Have Helped Police.

Believing that Dominick Navarro was the man who furnished information to the police that led to the arrest of Flaviono Lengo, the accused burglar, Pellegrino DeBlairo and other Italians in the Lake street colony, set upon the first named yesterday afternoon and started a stabbing affray that bade fair to rival last Sunday's brawl in the borough. Nevarro had been stabbed in the face several times and DeBlairo was bleeding from two bad cuts when the police arrived. These two were arrested and were placed in cells after having their hurts attended. This morning DeBlairo was fined $10 and Nevarro $5 after they had been arraigned in the city court.

Longo, the man who is supposed to have entered the homes of F. A. Clark and Stephen Cahoone, is a cousin to DeBlairo and he also has other relatives in the colony. Nevarro has been frequently accused of "tipping" the police and when Longo was arrested his people at once blamed Nevarro for it, although they knew that he had been caught trying to dispose of stolen jewelry. Bad feeling has existed since and yesterday matters came to a climax when DeBlairo accused Nevarro openly of being a "stool pigeon" and helping to send his friends to prison. The latter resented the accusation and the fight followed.

The noise of the affray attracted the attention of neighbors and the police were summoned. Driver O'Gorman and Patrolman Myers responded quickly and captured the two ring leaders, the others fleeing before their approach. Nevarro is one of the pioneer Italian residents of the city and is very well known.

CLINTON AVE. TEAM WON

DUNELLEN TEAM DEFEATED BY A SCORE OF 18 TO 3.

The reorganized Dunellen team went down to defeat on Saturday at the hands of the Clinton Avenue nine, the score being 18 to 3. This was the first defeat for Dunellen's new aggregation. Whitley, the former Y. M. C. A. twirler, was knocked out of the box by the Clinton Avenue boys, the visitors making twenty hits for a total of twenty-seven bases. Outing for Parish's Children.

At a meeting of the Sunday-school teachers of St. Stephen's church, Netherwood, Saturday evening, plans were discussed for an outing to be given to the Sunday-school children in place of the regular excursion which will not be held this summer. After consideration it was decided that the children be given an outing at the grounds of the Hotel Netherwood next Saturday afternoon. It is planned to have the members of the Sunday-school assemble at about 2 o'clock in the afternoon at the grounds where the afternoon will be passed with an entertainment and games. A supper is to be served by the women of the parish later in the afternoon.

CHANGE IN TROLLEY SYSTEM

PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION REARRANGES TRANS-STATE SERVICE.

The Public Service Corporation is advertising for motormen and conductors in this section, with a view to changing the system under which its trans-State service from New York to Trenton is operated. A single crew now takes the car the entire distance each way, and the result is a number of complications in the matter of meal hours and returning men to their homes at convenient hours. It is planned to let each division handle a through car, putting a new crew on for each division.

A scarcity of competent motormen and conductors prevents the immediate installation of the system. The trans-State trip is popular, and not a car goes through this city without a crowd.

MRS. C. L. HYDE IS DEAD

WIFE OF FORMER PLAINFIELDER PASSES AWAY IN SWITZERLAND.

Mrs. Edith Godfrey Hyde, wife of Charles L. Hyde, formerly of this city, died suddenly in Vitznau, Switzerland, yesterday morning. With her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Godfrey, of New York, and her two children, Godfrey and Dorothy, she went abroad last May to take treatment at Frankfort for a slight ailment and for a time seemed greatly benefitted. On Saturday relatives in this city and others received word that she had become suddenly worse and yesterday the end came.

Mr. Hyde, who resides at Tuxedo Park, had made all preparations to embark for Europe tomorrow and he will now sail as planned in order to accompany the remains home. No arrangements have been made for the service and burial as yet, but the body will probably be brought to this city and placed in the Hyde mausoleum at Hillside.

IS STRONG TO MANAGE ALIS?

REPORT THAT MURRAY HILL MAN IS TO COME HERE.

During the past week there have been rumors to the effect that "Nat" Strong, manager of the Murray Hills, is to be secured as manager for the local baseball team, and it is understood that he is willing to accept the position if the proper arrangements are made by those representing the Alis Club. He would make an ideal person for the job, as that is his business and he has the time to attend to it. Besides he has a faculty of getting the best players when other managers find it difficult to do so.

It is said that had he had the proper authority he could have brought a first-class pitcher here on Saturday, possibly Conroy, who twirled so effectively against Alis for Murray Hill. These rumors about Strong are not circulated for the purpose of doing an injury to Manager Johnston or the baseball committee of the Alis Club, but it is the belief that Strong is better able to give the town first-class contests. He is in touch with ball players and is thoroughly posted. After Saturday's exhibition at Crescent Oval, the need of a decided change somewhere is apparent and the fans say that if Strong can be secured, it would be to the best interest of the game to get him, even though it is late in the season. It is believed that he could get a team together that would defeat Westfield in the remaining contests of the series.

Mr. Strong had an opportunity to bring the New York Americans to Plainfield on Wednesday for a game, but the Alis management was afraid to run the risk, believing that the venture would not pay. There is no doubt but what a record-breaking crowd would turn out to see such a contest and it is regretted that arrangements were not made for the exhibition as few persons have a chance to see the Americans play in New York.

Charles H. Denman announces that this will be his last season as manager for the Westfield team, and his wife confirms the statement. It is understood that he is willing to retire and let some one else take the reins.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On July 31 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40, and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes.

NEW YORK, July 25.—L. J. Scholes, the noted Canadian oarsman who won the Diamond sculls at Henley at the last regatta, was a passenger on the White Star line steamer Arabic, which has arrived here from Liverpool. Sheriff Stopped Tonawanda Game.

BUFFALO, July 25.—Sunday baseball being prohibited in Buffalo, the Buffalo and Jersey City teams of the Eastern league were to have played at Tonawanda, but the Jersey City team would not play when it found deputy sheriffs on the scene. The Buffalo nine then began a game with an amateur nine, and the deputy sheriffs stepped in and arrested Catcher Shaw of the Buffalo team and a player in the amateur nine. They will have a hearing tomorrow, and a test case may be made out of the affair.

McGinnity Held Them Down.

CHICAGO, July 25.—The National league locals started in like winners, but after Ames had been retired and replaced by McGinnity in the sixth they failed to score again. The visitors hit Weimer hard and scored five runs in three innings, when Wicker relieved him. A double, a sacrifice and a long fly brought their total up to six in the last inning. Score: Chicago, 4; New York, 6.

Too Much For Boston.

CINCINNATI, O., July 25.—Four bases on balls and five singles netted Cincinnati six runs in the first inning. The handicap proved too much for Boston, who took things easy thereafter. Hahn held the Bostons safe throughout. Dolan retired in the seventh because of the sudden illness of his child, Kelly going to right and Peitz to first. Score: Cincinnati, 11; Boston, 4.

SCANDIA RELEASED

Russian Government Backs Down on Right of Search.

SHIP FROM NEW YORK FIRED UPON

Ardova on Voyage to Manila Seized and Taken as Prize to Suez. Battles Near Newchwang and Tatchekiao.

LONDON, July 25.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg says that Russia, in response to Germany's protest, has sent a dispatch to Port Said ordering the immediate release of the Hamburg-American line steamer Scandia, which had arrived there as a Russian prize in command of a naval officer and flying the Russian flag and was awaiting instructions.

The official report of the seizure of the Scandia, received from the German consul at Suez, says that the Russian volunteer steamer Smolensk encountered the vessel at the island of Perim, in the straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, and that she was seized notwithstanding the fact that her captain showed from the manifest that there was no contraband of war on board the Scandia.

Orders have been sent from St. Petersburg to the volunteer fleet steamers St. Petersburg and Smolensk to refrain from interference with foreign shipping.

It is rumored at Suez that the Russian consul is about to charter an Egyptian steamer to convey orders to vessels of the Russian volunteer fleet to quit the Red sea forthwith.

It is expected these steamers will eventually join the Baltic fleet and be replaced by ordinary warships.

Advices received at Port Said say that the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk fired three blank shots across the bows of the British steamer Ardova, from New York for Manila, the cargo of which consists of coal and explosives, and the vessel not stopping the Smolensk sent two loaded shots at her, one of them passing over her amidships and the other over her stern.

The Ardova was then seized and her crew transferred to the Smolensk. The vessel will be brought to Suez.

Newchwang advices say that a battle was fought on Saturday near Tatchekiao, attended, it is believed, with heavy losses. The progress of the battle was watched by many people in Newchwang from the roofs of houses. The day was clear, and the smoke of the guns could be plainly seen.

A Tientsin report says that a battle raged outside of Newchwang yesterday. The fighting could be seen from the city.

The battle seen from Newchwang was at Tahsuitong, six miles distant, and the Japanese were successful.

Many Chinese refugees arriving at Newchwang have reported that nine Japanese gunboats from Port Arthur have arrived at Tahtingshan.

In the engagement Saturday the Russian losses are reported to have been 700. Great excitement prevailed in that city during the two days' fighting.

A Tokyo dispatch says that the Russian Vladivostok squadron has sunk the merchantman which it captured off the coast of Izu province. The name of this ship and her nationality are not known, and nothing has been learned of the fate of her crew. Witnesses on shore saw the merchantman following the fleet. Then they saw her fired upon, after which she disappeared.

The Russian warships were last reported to the southwest of Yokohama.

A Tokyo report says that a merchant vessel is accompanying the Vladivostok squadron, which has been sighted sixty miles of Izu. It is probable that the merchantman is a captive.

Foreigners are not affected by the new order.

A St. Petersburg report says: "On the highest authority it is said that the Russian and British governments have agreed on a mutually satisfactory basis for a settlement of the question of status of the Russian volunteer fleet steamers in the Red sea and the seizures by them of British ships."

The validity of the view expressed in the British note regarding the irregularity of the position of the vessels has been so far admitted by the Russian government that they have agreed to waive the right of search.

It has been decided that the present status of the volunteer fleet is not sufficiently well defined, according to international law, to render further searches and seizures advisable and that therefore Russia, in the interests of friendly relations with the powers, will withdraw the authority given the volunteer fleet in this respect.

A dispatch from Sintzintin, seventy miles east of Mukden, says that 30,000 Japanese, with 30 field and 200 mountain guns, have reached Siamatsza from the south and have occupied the district covered by Saimatsza, Izyanchan and Saiobeer. Four companies of Russian cavalry and one company of infantry, with two guns, came in contact with the Japanese advance at 7 o'clock in the morning and discovered that the Japanese 1,000 strong were advancing a mile and a half from Isyanchan. The Russian guns checked the Japanese advance, but heavy reserves coming up the Russians retired to a side road near Uitzintzin to save themselves from being cut off. The Japanese, however, did not continue to advance.

AN INSULT TO THE POWERS.

View Taken In Japan of Russian Volunteer Fleet's Work.

TOKYO, July 25.—The passage of the Dardanelles by the Russian volunteer fleet steamers, the seizures of German mail and the capture in the Red sea by Russia of the Peninsular and Oriental steamer Malacca have attracted great attention throughout Japan. The government is watching the situation keenly, but it has not given any form of expression to its views or indication that it will take any action in the matter.

The editors of the Tokyo newspapers have met and passed a resolution declaring that the passage of the Dardanelles by the Russian ships is a violation of treaty obligations and an insult to all of the powers; that the seizure of ships by the Russian volunteer vessels jeopardize the interests of all neutral powers and that Russia's action endangers the peace of the world

Does Not Concern Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Any action which may be taken regarding the seizure of the British ship Ardova by the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk is a matter for the British government. It is not a matter which in the least concerns the United States. This is the view taken in official circles here. However, the decision of the Russian government to withdraw the authority given to the volunteer fleet to make searches and seizures simplifies the situation very materially. Presumably in view of this new attitude of the Russian government the Ardova will be released promptly, the seizure disavowed and the incident closed without delay.

STATE TROOPS FOR BONESTEEL.

Vigilantes Patrol the Town—One Hundred Thieves Deported.

BONESTEEL, S. D., July 25.—State troops are being mobilized at several different towns by Adjutant General Conklin and will start for Bonesteel today in order to protect the people during the drawing and filing period, which begins Thursday. If Bonesteel passes the night without being destroyed, all will probably be plain sailing thereafter because of the presence of the militia.

Two hundred armed vigilantes are patrolling the town to prevent friends of the thieves and gamblers from firing some of the flimsy buildings and destroying the whole town.

One hundred thieves, pickpockets, gamblers and bad men in general were rounded up by the vigilantes and were placed in cattle cars and carried out of the state, being dumped on the Nebraska prairies nearly 100 miles from Bonesteel.

The real trouble between the citizens and the tough element is due to the utter lack of means among the latter. People of that class had gathered in Bonesteel from all parts of the country, expecting rich picking when the crowd came. But the crowd was made up of good, solid men, and the gambler and sure thing men were left severely along by the land seekers. Many of the gamblers had been in town for a year or more and were about all in. This forced them to turn robbers and to clash with the citizens, who were attempting to protect the land seekers.

One serious shooting affray has occurred. Two special policemen, Sylvester C. Harrison of Wichita, Kan., and a man named Stanbrough were shot in front of a saloon by a gang of thugs, who then escaped. Harrison was shot in the forehead, but it is hoped he will recover. Stanbrough's wound is serious.

Bloodhounds on His Track.

AUGUSTA, Ga., July 25.—Reports to the Chronicle say that at Alexanders, ten miles from Waynesboro, Ga., Sampson Flournoy, a negro, using a double barreled shotgun, fired upon a party of four fishermen, all white, killing James Minor, aged twenty-six, married, and Evans Tomlins, aged twenty-four, and mortally wounding Edward Minor, aged twenty-three, married. The negro had a quarrel over a trivial matter with one of the party, went away, procured the gun and returning, fired without warning. He escaped, but bloodhounds were put on his track.

Hanged Himself In Stable.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 25.—Michael Carroll, eighty-two, living at Feeding Hills, near this city, set fire to two feather beds in his house while left alone and then went to a cow stable and hanged himself. He had been in feeble health and was subject to melancholia. The prompt arrival of neighbors prevented the destruction of the buildings.

Fireman Killed by Truck.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 25.—James H. McCleary, forty-seven, second assistant engineer of the Springfield fire department, was fatally injured here by being run over by a hook and ladder truck which he was attempting to board as it was leaving headquarters in response to an alarm for a small chimney blaze.

Hung Herself With Halter.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 25.—J. Dwight Schumway found the body of his wife hanging from the beams in an outer room of his home here, and it was evident that she had been dead for several hours. Mrs. Schumway hung herself by means of a halter. She was middle aged, and no cause for the act is known.

Freight Car Falls From Viaduct.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 25.—Four cars of an extra eastbound freight train jumped the track in the new viaduct west of the depot, one of them plunging into the street twenty-five feet below. No one was hurt in the accident. The cause is not known.

Senator Vest Weaker.

SWEET SPRINGS, Mo., July 25.—Former Senator George G. Vest last night was much weaker, the rally having been only temporary. Mr. Vest's son and daughter will not return to St Louis as planned, but will remain here

FIGHT TO A FINISH

Chicago Butchers Call For Sympathetic Strike.

TEAMSTERS LIKELY TO GO OUT

All Conferences Have Been Called Off—Both Sides Await Developments—It Is Thought Struggle Will Be Long and Bitter.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Determined on a fight to a finish to enforce the demands of the striking butchers, a sympathetic strike of all the union workmen employed in the meat packing industry throughout the country, with the exception of the teamsters, will be declared today. The indications are that the teamsters will join the other unions in order to bring the packers to terms. The teamsters employed in the Chicago plants at a meeting have declared in favor of the sympathetic strike, but their decision has not been ratified as yet by the joint council of the teamsters' unions.

The joint council will meet for the purpose of considering the proposition. The general belief is that the decision of the teamsters to join in the strike will be indorsed by the council. This indorsement of the joint council is not final, however, as the international officers of the teamsters' union have to sanction the proposed strike before the men can leave their work. Under these circumstances it is not likely the teamsters will be officially called out before Tuesday.

No conferences were held either by the packers or the labor leaders, or jointly, in an effort to reach an adjustment of the controversy. Both sides rested, apparently waiting for today's developments. Whether or not the packers would make any concessions to the demands of the labor leaders in order to prevent a general walkout of the trades at the stockyards would not be discussed by any of the packing house representatives, but from the preparations going on at the different plants during the day it was plainly evident that the packers intend to fight for their independence.

All the labor leaders declared that they would await today's developments before considering further negotiations and that the packers would have to make the request for a resumption of peace negotiations as the unions had no intention at the present time of doing so.

TEXTILE WORKERS INCENSED.

Action of Fall River Operatives Today May Start Great Strike.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 25.—With hope of a peaceful settlement abandoned, both sides in the pending industrial trouble here await with dogged determination the coming today of the first test of strength between a little group of manufacturers representing a combined capital of $25,000,000 on one side and more than 25,000 cotton mill operatives on the other.

The mill gates will be opened at the usual time, when the operatives will be given an opportunity to go to work under a wage reduction of 12½ per cent. If an insufficient number respond the mills will be closed for an indefinite period. The strike leaders were of the opinion that there would not be enough operatives applying for work throughout the entire city to run even one mill, to say nothing of the eighty or more that are affected by the strike. The manufacturers, on the other hand, claim that the 2,000 union men who voted to strike do not represent the sentiment of the great body of cotton mill employees. They give the total number of operatives on their pay roll as 25,630. This, of course, does not include the employees at the independent mills of M. C. D. Borden, which are not involved.

The talk on the streets, however, indicates that the feeling against the manufacturers is quite as bitter among the nonunion operatives as it is among those who are affiliated with the labor organizations.

John Golden, president of the United Textile Workers of America, the leader of the strike, has cautioned the operatives not to go near the mills this morning. Many wild threats have been made by an influential class of workers, but no importance is attached to them, and violence is not expected.

The packers claim to have nearly 5,000 men with which to start operations this morning.

A report is current that Cudahy & Co. and Schwarzschild & Sulzberger company will not make any effort to resume business today. Instead, according to this rumor, these two firms would make a settlement with the unions, and when they opened for business it would be with a full force of union men. None of the officials of either of these companies would confirm or deny the report.

Negro's Buckshot Struck Five.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 25.—Abe Kruse, a negro strike breaker, who was assaulted by pickets near the packing plant of Swift & Co., fired into a crowd of his assailants, wounding five. Kruse was arrested by the police and is in the county jail. He fired but one shot. The weapon was a magazine shotgun loaded with buckshot.

Plainfield, N. J., July 25, 1904.

The New York Sun is shining on Parker's candidacy just now.

When Hamilton Kean informed E. C. Stokes that Governor Murphy is not popular in Union county and that the people do not have much faith in the Legislature he told the exact truth.

In every business field there is an opportunity to build up profitable advertising and business on the shortcomings of others in that particular line. This is especially true of advertising, for no campaign is perfect, and even the most successful advertisers leave opportunities for a competitor who will improve their methods.—Ex.

There seems to be little possibility of the Democrats carrying New Jersey in the present campaign. Could Mr. Cleveland be prevailed upon to become the party's candidate for governor his nomination would materially strengthen the ticket, but even then the Independent voter would split his ballot and Judge Parker would not profit by it.

It is high time that the Alis management take action to present a good article of ball. The Plainfield public is willing and anxious to support a strong team. If Manager Johnston can not get together a winning nine, somebody else can and the Alis Club can rest assured that some enterprising persons will soon take advantage of the present situation. The game on Saturday was rank. When Mr. Johnston announced "Jones" as the pitcher on Saturday he simply fooled the public. To make matters worse, Davis was put in the box and he gave a lamentable exhibition. There was something peculiar about McGoey's playing which needs an explanation. Alis will receive the hearty support of the public when it organizes a worthy aggregation, and steps to that end should be taken before next Saturday's game.

AMONG MEN IN THE SHOPS

SEEN AND HEARD IN PLAINFIELD'S INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

Charles Staats, of the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant, is on the sick list.

John Hendry, a pattern maker at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant, is detained at home by illness.

Frederick Zimmer, of Loughead's "auto" repair station, has returned from a visit with friends in Newark.

Edward Brown, of the Manganese Steel Safe Company's plant, spent Saturday and Sunday at Perth Amboy.

Alfred Marsh has resumed his position at the Pedrick-Ayer Company's plant after suffering several days with a sprained wrist.

Thomas Buckley, of Orchard place, arrived home Saturday from Washington, D. C., where he has been in the interest of the Potter Press Works.

Walter Foster, of West Sixth street, who left this city to go with Louis Morgan to the Ridgeway Tool Company's plant in Ridgeway, Pa., has taken complete charge of all the electrical work at the Pond Machine Tool Company's plant.

All carpenters employed by the Master Carpenters' Association, of New York, have been locked out by order of the board of governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association. The lockout ties up the carpenter work on every large building in the borough, and involves between 5,000 and 6,000 men.

There are not a few machinists idle in this city at the present time. The local manufacturers are trying hard to keep as many men employed as possible, and in doing this they are compelled to deduct several hours from the usual day's work. Work was so slack at the Potter plant a month ago that the management ordered the men to work alternate time, one half the erecting gang worked one week, while the other half worked the following five days, and so on. This was done to give all the men like treatment instead of laying one half of them off altogether. It was rumored at the Pond plant several months ago that there would be a wholesale lay-off as work was slack, but instead the time was cut down on every man employed at the plant to five days a week. The same thing happened at the Pedrick-Ayer Company's works several weeks ago. The men in these different shops appreciate this kind of treatment, and when the time comes when these plants are rushed with work and there are contracts to be gotten out a certain time the managements will find these men ready to work seven days a week and most of the night if necessary.

H. C. VanEmburgh and family, of Richmond street, have returned from a stay at Branchville, Sussex county.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The local supporters of the baseball team were not much surprised at the result of Saturday's game with Clinton Avenue. Smith, who has done such remarkable work all the season, was away and Fletcher, who is a mainstay at second base, was also absent. The infield was badly shaken up as a result and the rest of the team was in bad shape, so that the score was by no means surprising. Up until the sixth innnig the game was a good one but after that it developed into a walkaway. It is probable that Harvey Moynihan, formerly of the Bound Brooks, will play one of the outfield positions in the future. He is a strong player and will greatly help the team.

Clarence D. Smalley, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Abram Smalley, of Front street, died early yesterday morning from lung trouble. He was twenty-three years of age and had been ill only during the past year. He was popular among a large circle of friends here and in New Market, where he formerly resided. Funeral services will be held at the house next Wednesday at 2 o'clock and will be in charge of Rev. Frank Fletcher, of the First Baptist church, of which he was a member.

The death occurred on Friday of Ledyard Mitchelburne Bunker, son of Doctor Bunker, a prominent New York physician, who spends his summers on a farm at Greenbrook. The boy was but eight years of age and had been afflicted most of his life with spinal trouble to which disease he succumbed. The funeral was held on Sunday morning and the body was taken to New York for interment.

A big bay horse owned by a man by the name of Dailey from Somerville, broke loose from the wagon to which he was attached, near Rock avenue, Saturday afternoon, and dashed through town at a mad gallop. Near Miers' hotel he ran up on the sidewalk and was easily captured. Yesterday his owner took him home. Neither horse nor wagon was seriously injured.

Despite the rainy weather a large number from here attended the clambake at Sebring's Mills on Sunday. Those who attended had a very enjoyable time as the feed was held in Mr. Sebring's large barn, where the rain did not interfere. The affair was gotten up by Peter Trimmer and several others.

A crowd of small boys have been trying to injure the courts of the W. O. D. B. E. tennis club during the past week. The work was done purely from spite and the offenders will be severely dealt with if caught.

Fred Giddes, of Philadelphia, has returned to business after a week's vacation, part of which was spent here and part at the home of his brother, Arthur, at Port Richmond.

The Y. M. A. ball team was defeated at Millstone by the locals on Saturday afternoon. This gives each team a game out of the series. New Market won the first contest.

Griggs, who is the counsel for the Somerville Board of Commissioners, has been conferring with President McCarter, of the Public Service Corporation, in regard to its failure for nearly two days recently to supply its agent in Somerville with return tickets, thereby making hundreds of people pay double fares. Mr. Griggs notified President McCarter his corporation would be required to fulfill its agreement to keep tickets on sale at all times. President McCarter replied that he was not aware of any such arrangement. Thereupon Mr. Griggs forwarded President McCarter a copy of the contract, and Friday received a letter from him stating that tickets would be kept on sale in the future.

Republican Committee Will So Notify Roosevelt.

AT SAGAMORE HILL WEDNESDAY

Speaker Cannon Will Make the Announcement to the President on the Lawn of His Summer Home at Oyster Bay.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 25.—The arrangements have been made for the notification of Theodore Roosevelt of his nomination for the presidency by the Republican party. The ceremony will take place on Wednesday next at 12:30 p. m. Following custom, the notification will be at Mr. Roosevelt's home, Sagamore Hill, three miles from this village.

The members of the notification committee appointed by the Chicago convention have been requested to assemble at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel in New York tomorrow to make preliminary arrangements for the ceremony of the day following. Speaker Joseph G. Cannon, chairman of the committee, will arrive in New York some time today.

He will receive the members of the committee as they arrive here on Wednesday morning. The committee will board a special train at Long Island City for Oyster Bay, the special being scheduled to arrive here at 11:40 o'clock.

On account of the isolation of the president's home only about 125 persons will be in the party, including the members of the notification committee and relatives and friends of President Roosevelt who reside in the vicinity of Sagamore Hill.

Among those present will be Chairman George B. Cortelyou of the national Republican committee, Governor Benjamin B. Odell and Senator T. C. Platt of New York, Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the Republican national committee; William L. Ward, national committeeman; William Barnes, Jr., chairman of the Republican executive committee of New York, and other prominent men from all parts of the country. It is probable that no member of the president's cabinet will be present.

The ceremony of notification will be as simple and unostentatious as possible. The wide veranda almost surrounding the president's house will be draped with American flags. The committee and guests will be assembled on the spacious lawn northeast of the house. Speaker Cannon will make the speech of announcement for the committee, and President Roosevelt will make his speech in reply from the veranda.

LONDON, July 25.—Mrs. Henry C. Knapp of California, formerly Miss Marion Graham of New York, and Lord Bateman were married in St. George's church, Hanover square, this afternoon. John R. Carter, second secretary of the American embassy, gave away the bride.

WHEN MEN ARE GROWING OLD

Traces of Age on Wives' Faces Are Never Discernible to Some Married Men.

"How old is Tompkins?" was the question, according to a recent writer.

"Oh," said the scion of the house, "Mr. Tompkins is a pretty old man. He must be at least 40."

"Tompkins," said the father, who had not heard his son's reply, "Tompkins? Oh, he's just a youngster yet—about 40, I should say. He'll settle down and be something when he reaches the age of discretion."

"It all depends on how you look at it," said a visitor, commenting later on the difference of opinion as to a man's "youngness" or "oldness" as expressed by the father and son. "I remember when I was a boy I thought that a man of 30 was pretty far along in years and counted on doing all my great work in the world long before that time. As I reached 25 I did not seem to see 30 in the same light. It didn't look quite so old. When I passed the thirtieth milestone I felt myself more of a 'kid' than ever, and looked on 40 as the time when I should begin to consider myself at man's estate. At 35 I decided that a man of 40 was, after all, nothing but a boy developing his powers, and when I got there myself looked forward to 50 as the very earliest age at which I should begin to feel at all old.

"I've passed 50, and if it wasn't for a thousand little hints that come up now and then to remind me of it I should feel myself just as young as I used to be.

"As for imagining that my wife has grown any older than the day we were married, such an idea has never entered my head until recently. I always made her dress like a young woman, and I suppose I have caused her to be laughed at on this account, for nobody except those who don't notice the passing of time likes to see a middle-aged woman rigged up like a girl. Well, I was shocked the other day when she met me downtown. She had on a bonnet tied with strings—a regular old lady's hat! I nearly cried, I can tell you.

"But that wasn't the worst. Imagine finding that you are so old that your children are passing the age of youth themselves! Just imagine, if you can, realizing, all of a sudden, that the little baby girl you dandled on your knee only yesterday is becoming an old maid! This was brought to me yesterday, and by my own son!

"He is a boy of 15, a big, strapping chap, who plays on his high school polo team. He went with it to a neighboring city, the other night, to play. Next day at breakfast he got to talking about the girls in the town he had visited.

" 'I never saw such flirtatious girls,' he said, 'and not only the girls, but the women. Why, I got lots of smiles in the rink during the polo game from old hags of 25 or 26 years.'

"You could have knocked me down with a feather. I glanced at my daughter—my baby girl. She is 27 and still unmarried. An old hag! My stars!

"I put on my hat and coat and went down town quick. I couldn't think of it any more.

"But when I got home last night everything seemed different. I began to wonder why my girl wasn't married.

"I saw signs of age in my wife's face and I felt old myself. And my boy had done it."

MAKING FAKE DIAMONDS.

An Art That Turns One Genuine Stone Into Two Apparently as Good.

The lapidary was splitting a diamond. He leaned forward with intent brows. His tiny machine buzzed like a bee. A delicate and shining dust arose, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Then, suddenly, everything was stilled, and the diamond, split in halves, lay in the lapidary's white, thin hand.

"Out of one diamond," he said, "I am going to make two, and each of these two will be as big and as brilliant as the original one was."

As he scraped up the glittering dust, he explained:

"First, I will make, in paste, an exact duplicate of each of these two halves. Then I will join to the bottom of each genuine half its artificial complement, making the junction so carefully that no one will be able to perceive it. Finally I will mount these two half false and half genuine stones. Each of them will appear to be altogether genuine. Their paste foundations will not detract in any way from their brilliance. The owner of the big diamond will have two big diamonds.

"The making of fake jewels," the lapidary said, "is an interesting study. Do you know what the best fake pearls are made of? They are made of fish scales—silvery and iridescent fish scales pasted on the inside of balls of glass. The fish the scales come from is called in France the ablette, and in England the bleak. It is smaller than a minnow. Its scales must be picked off by hand, and only a small portion of them can be used. It takes 18,000 ablettes, or bleaks, to yield one pound of scales."

Three Club Types.

The frequenters of the clubs may be divided into three classes. The billiard and bowling room crowd, who pass all their time in the club playing their favorite game or watching others when the tables and alleys are occupied; the card-room set, who only come to the club for the purpose of a game of poker or a rubber of whist; and finally, the window coterie, which embraces all the loiterers and habitues, who naturally frequent the windows as the pleasantest seats.—Chicago Tribune.

CHILDISH DEFORMITIES.

Things Which, If Neglected, Mean Large Expenditure Later On.

No one used to mind when the baby sucked its thumb, except perhaps an admiring relative, who would exclaim dotingly, "How cunning!" as she watched the baby sleeping, with its little pink digit stoppered in its rosy mouth. But as the child grew up it was a difficult matter to break it of the habit. The little one would even hide in corners to indulge in prolonged sucks, only to be ferreted out with the stern reproof, "Sucking that thumb again!" But the reproof came rather late. As a result, the child, now grown up, has two of the homeliest thumbs any one would care to see and a badly shaped upper arch of teeth, which dentists say was caused primarily by that infantile sucking habit and which it has taken a small fortune to straighten out very imperfectly.

Little Jessie was pushed forward in school like a small hothouse vegetable.

"SUCKING THAT THUMB AGAIN!"

The poor child studied when she should have been playing in the open air. In her nervousness she bit her nails to the quick. But that wasn't so bad as another nervous habit she formed, that of biting unmercifully her under lip. She gnawed it and chewed it and tucked portions of it away in the corners of her mouth while she was puzzling over difficult mathematical problems, until, in a year or so, the lip became as coarse and thick as anything continually irritated and massaged will become. When she had grown into young ladyhood and was old enough to care, Jessie was told it would take a small fortune to remove this one unsightly spot in her otherwise attractive face.

In very much the same manner little Mary used to press her tongue against her upper teeth, with the result that she pushed them outward. This gave her what the dentists call "squirrel mouth."

Small John, who was allowed to be a mouth breather, also had a dentist's bill to face as he grew older. In his case the upper arch had been narrowed so that the lower teeth stuck beyond it. Also, thanks to this wrong habit of breathing, due to enlarged tonsils, he caught every disease going, including periodical attacks of tonsilitis.

In every case cited the expense incurred and the pain suffered by these children as they grew up were due to their parents' lack of vigilance and foresight. HELEN CLIFTON.

THE CHINA COLLECTOR.

How She May Arrange to Advantage Her Cherished Pieces.

Very often women collectors have many dozens of beautiful plates, but do not know how to arrange them artistically so that they will show to the best advantage.

The picture shows one scheme which was adopted by a woman who had been collecting for some time blue and white antique pottery and china.

The overmantel on which they are placed is of whitewood and consists of four shelves supported by brackets at the sides. The top shelves are narrower than the bottom ones. Between the lowest shelf and the mantel there is a mirror which reflects the daintier pieces of china placed upon it. The walls are of a buff shade, which goes beautifully with deep blue, and the furniture in the room is of the antique colonial type, to harmonize with the quaint china. R. DE LA BAUME.

WILD FLOWERS.

It Is Time American Women Took Measures to Preserve Them.

Just now I wanted to get some information about the simplest wild flower that grows, the anemone. I looked in a standard botany. No such name as anemone. Next an immense dictionary was consulted. It revealed that the anemone belonged to the crowfoot family. Back again to the text book of botany. No mention of crowfoot. Back once more to the great dictionary, this time under "crowfoot." There I found the crowfoot family was of the genus "ranunculus." The third time the school botany, in search of ranunculus. Here it is: "Ranunculus, herbaceous plants, with usually palmately or ternately lobed leaves without stipules. Calyx of three to six, usually five, distinct sepals." What a glorious science is botany, to be sure!

Who cares a rap whether the exquisite, dainty anemone's leaves have "stipules," or anything about the "sepals" of its calyx? Botany, as taught in ordinary works on this subject, makes the student a mere ruthless dissector of flowers, nothing more.

If there had been anything in scientific botany to make people admire and cherish flowers, the exquisite wild blossoms scattered like gems over our whole country would not be, as they now are, in danger of total extinction. The trailing arbutus, glory of spring and shedder of fragrance throughout all the eastern portion of this Union, is vanishing so fast that unless we begin to cultivate it extensively it will be known only to the memory of old people. Ruthless hands have grabbed it out of the ground, roots and all, in order to sell it, without a thought that it could not grow again.

The queenly, nodding red and yellow columbine that used to make glorious the shaded rocks on hillsides—where is it now? The bright green, cheery jack-in-the-pulpit, which tells us when the first breath of spring is here; the anemone, the gentian, the wild lady's slipper, the Dutchman's breeches, the purple flags, the marshmallow, the buttercup, the wild azalea and scores of others—have at them with the rage of destruction! Pluck every blossom off their helpless stems. Leave not one to reseed the ground. Carry these tender flowers home, withering in your hot, unwholesome hand as you go, and then cast them into the ash barrel! Actually the bandits would tear up even the resplendent dogwood tree by the roots and carry it away if they could only dig it out. As it is, the dogwoods in the vicinity of towns and cities will all be destroyed in a few years because of the annual murderous mutilation to which they are subjected.

It is sure if the present wholesale destruction of our American native wild flowers continues the slaughter must soon cease for want of victims, particularly in case of certain varieties. And the loss of them can never be made up to us by all the florist's art.

1. ANEMONE. 2. COLUMBINE 3 FRINGED GENTIAN.

Made known to all, therefore, should be the existence of the Wild Flower Preservation Society of America. At the instigation of woman it was started, and women as mothers, and especially as teachers, can best conduct its good work. Two wealthy ladies, sisters, Misses Caroline and Olivia Phelps-Stokes, donated a considerable fund for the culture of wild flowers in the vicinity of New York. The interest of the fund is to be spent by Professor Britton, director in chief of the New York Botanical garden. The money will be used in collecting and propagating wild flowers in the grounds of the Botanical garden. Professor Britton's chief assistant is his wife, who is devoted to her task.

Local chapters or societies will be formed in various parts of the country among public spirited persons who are awakened in this matter. No doubt Professor or Mrs. Britton, at the Botanical garden, borough of the Bronx, New York city, will give information on how to start a wild flower society, also what measures to take for their preservation.

Wherever in this land a botanical garden exists, one of its chief aims should be to hold fast to the wild flowers thereabout. Wealthy private citizens can also have wild flower gardens in their grounds. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont already has one at her place near Hempstead, N. Y.

All our garden flowers, of course, were originally wild ones. By culture, crossing and fertile soil the exquisite creations we know have been developed. It will be easy for women in the country to make at their leisure a collection of the growing wild flowers in their neighborhood and plant them in the home garden. It will be work that will delight the children too. A wild flower society in every farm neighborhood would have a refining influence.

SLOW CLOCK HELPS TRADE.

Philosophical Customer Shows Cigar Clerk How to Increase His Business.

"Quite a crowd passes here in the morning," said the new customer in a State street cigar store, relates the Chicago Journal.

"Yes, they all stop to look at the clock in the window when they pass," replied the clerk. "You see, they all count upon reaching business in time to be at work promptly at eight."

"The clock gets you quite a little business?" questioned the customer. "They know your place and drop in occasionally."

"No, sir, not one of them. That's the the strangest part of it. They come along here and use our clock every morning, but when it comes to buying cigars and tobacco they go somewhere else. Just like people in general."

"Why don't you make them spend their money here?"

The clerk laughed and looked askance at the speaker.

"That's right," he said, "make them trade with you. Wherever there is a will there is a way."

"Well, I am looking for business," said the clerk as a suggestion. "What shall I do?"

The customer looked at the clock. The hands pointed at 7:48. Then he went behind the counter, climbed up to the clock and turned the hands around until they reached 8:02. Then he stepped back to watch the effect. A moment later a well-groomed clerk walked leisurely up to the window. He glanced at the clock. The effect was magical.

The man started to run. He dodged an electric car and sped down the street. The next man who looked at the clock turned over a fruit stand in his haste to get away. The next fell over a newsboy and broke his umbrella.

Thus it continued for ten minutes. Every man who saw the clock hurried away. Finally, when it was really eight o'clock, the customer turned back the hands and set the clock at the right time.

"Now," said the customer, "watch the trade come."

At noon the clerk and his assistant beat a tattoo on the cash register. Sales during the lunch hour were nearly as large as those of the rest of the day. Nearly every new purchaser came in and spent a nickel or dime. Then he said: "Your clock is too fast."

The clerk told all of them the joke. The customers enjoyed the laugh. And now the morning sales of that store are so heavy that it requires two clerks to handle the rush.

And the man who turned the hands of the clock around declares he ought to be in on the morning dividends. He says that his taking advantage of human nature and giving the passerby something to bring him into the store, if only to complain, brought the additional trade.

ENTERTAINING IN JAPAN.

The Comfort of the Guest Is Assiduously But Very Quietly Looked After.

If you are ever in Japan and happen to be invited to a dinner, do not forget to leave your shoes outside; otherwise you will be guilty of an unpardonable breach of etiquette. After your host has greeted you, says the Chicago Journal, it is proper to coil yourself upon a thin cushion as best you can, for a smoke with your host.

Presently in trips a maiden, with soft, gliding, noiseless steps. She carries a small lacquered box with a tray on the top about the height of a camp stool. She kneels down, sitting on her white slippered heels, and places the tray before you, always silent, graceful and unconscious. On the tray are a paper napkin, chopsticks and various kinds of food, such as raw fish, chouchou of the bamboo, and stewed meats.

A little later two or three other maidens glide in and draw near to yourself and host, and as they change their kimonos, apparently, between each course they convey the impression of a bewildering number, although in features they are much alike to the unaccustomed western eye.

Between the courses you are treated to geisha dances, accompanied by quietly dressed musicians, who make an admirable foil for the beautiful evolutions of four or more dancers, every motion having a symbolic meaning. Then comes another course, cigarettes, more dancers, jugglers, another course, and so on till a late hour in the night, when you feel that although you are not hungry you have been tricked somehow out of your dinner. But you have gained a new experience by way of compensation.

Giving Wine Away.

So plentiful was the vintage in Greece last year that a considerable portion of the wine was lost or sold at ruinous prices for want of receptacles to put it in. In certain districts, says the British consul for the Morea, the 50 oke (18 gallons) measure was offered for 1s. 3d. Growers having filled all their casks and other receptacles sent public criers about informing the community that anyone was at liberty to continue the harvesting of their vineyards without payment.

CURIOUS BODY OF WATER.

Lake in Abyssinia That Is Supplied by Streams Flowing Inland from the Sea.

In Consul Skinner's recent report on his visit to Abyssinia he mentions one of the most curious bodies of water in the world, though we rarely hear of it. He says, quotes a Washington report, that Lake Assal has an immense supply of good salt and holds out very exceptional prospects to capitalists. A concession has already been granted for the exploitation of the salt.

Lake Assal is a small body of very salt water lying seven or eight miles inland from the bay of Tadjoura, one of the French possessions in East Africa. It comprises only about 16 square miles.

It is surrounded by a wonderful confusion of jagged mountains, descending to the water's edge so that it is almost impossible to travel around it. Its waters are salt to the point of saturation, and at its lowest level there is seen upon its bank a layer of nearly pure salt over a foot thick.

For years nobody knew whence it derived its water. The few men who visited it could not ascertain that any stream flows into it. It was thought that the lake probably had subterranean affluents, but this theory was not demonstrated.

The mystery of Lake Assal was solved in 1885 by the French explorer, Henry Audon. He carefully examined the shores, though he found it very difficult. His hard work was at last rewarded by the murmur of a waterfall.

Guided by the sound he approached the spot, and the solution of the enigma was before him. He found a large brook of crystalline water foaming over the stones and throwing itself impetuously into the lake. He tasted the water, and found it as salt as the ocean, of which indeed it had been a part.

Lake Assal lies considerably below the surface of the sea. It has been ascertained that the water that pours into it comes from three brooks which flow from the Gubbet el Karab, a little bay at the extreme western end of the bay of Tadjoura.

The waters of the Indian ocean are carried inland to fill this depression in the interior, and when they reach Lake Assal they are about 400 feet below the level of the sea. From time to time the salt has been carried by caravans as far inland as Menelik's capital.

Perhaps there are only two other instances known of water flowing inland through brooks from the sea. Both these brooks are in the island of Cephalonia, in the Ionian sea, west of Greece. They are on the southwest side of the island, near the small town and port of Argostoli. For a little way they flow near one another straight from the sea, and then follow different courses. Both streams finally disappear in the ground, probably reaching some subterranean reservoir whose waters perhaps again reach the sea through fissures in the rocks.

There is no tide in the sea here, and the flow of the salt water streams is perfectly steady and continuous.

"STATUMANIA" IN FRANCE.

Mania Possesses the People to Erect Memorials to Persons of Little Note.

From time to time one sees a feeble protest in the Paris press against what is known as statumania, i. e., the mania for erecting statues, says a Paris correspondent of the London Globe. I once asked a Frenchman why his countrymen were so fond of puting up statues to mediocrities. His reply was in these terms: "There are so many sculptors in France that it is difficult to find employment for them all. Besides, we like statues, and the man who organizes a committee for a statue to one of his friends is certain to be allowed an opportunity of making a speech—an oration he would call it—when the day comes for the unveiling. Perhaps he may be fortunate enough to obtain a decoration. And when he dies he hopes somebody else will do as much for him." I think the answer was a genuine one, for I remember on one occasion when I went to the ministry of the interior to see a functionary there, he told me the following story in illustration of the weakness of his countrymen for decorations: "When anyone comes here," he said, "in search of a missing friend or relative this is the sort of dialogue which ensues:

"'What name?'

"'Jacques Delarue.'

"'What age?'

"'Thirty-five.'

"'What profession?'

"'Retired officer.'

"'Was he decorated?'

"'Yes.'

"'Then there is no hope of finding him.'"

Which means that there are so many men with decorations in France that the man without one is more easily identified.

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark, 14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

OUR PAPERS AND GOODS.

American Periodicals and Canned Foods Are Sent All Over the World.

Baron Speck von Sternburg, the German ambassador, told a Washington audience recently of a conversation which he once had with a native Samoan, reports an exchange of that city. He asked the Pacific islander if his tribe had any recorded history. "No," was the reply, "because our ancestors couldn't write; nevertheless we have a full account of our past, which we value highly."

Straightway the Samoan brought out from a chest a carefully cherished copy of an American magazine, which contained an article describing his people. "This," said he, "is the only history we have."

"But is it complete?" the German asked.

"Oh, yes!" was the enthusiastic answer. "It tells much that our own people had entirely forgotten!"

This playful anecdote was cited as showing something of the stretch of influence of American periodical literature. It is doubtful if any other American export of to-day reaches the distant corners of the earth in better condition or gives more real comfort than the American standard weekly and monthly publications. They have subscribers wherever the English language is spoken. In surprisingly remote places magazine clubs have been formed. The daily newspapers because of their bulkiness, foreign postage, and the fact that they would come in batches, are not so generally taken as publications which are issued less frequently.

Articles of food which are served fresh at home reach Americans in China in canisters; various kinds of merchandise do not stand a long journey well. But the product of the printing press, when its wrapper is broken, seems perfectly fresh and crisp on the equator or in the land of the midnight sun.

This is the one home thing which our people living at isolated stations insist most on having. The familiarity which they in consequence exhibit with the events of the world is a constant surprise to the casual traveler who chances upon them. "Young Englishmen in Singapore are more familiar with the work of the younger American writers than I am," was the comment of an American who recently visited that city.

It is no wonder that the Samoan learned his history via the United States.

WORK OF STORE MODEL.

Looseness of Fashionable Costumes Makes Requirements in Form Easier.

"There has been a great change in the last few years in the requirements of the 'store model,'" said the manager of the suit department in a fashionable shop the other day, reports the Chicago Tribune. "Formerly certain correct proportions were required which if not after the Venus standard were at least after that of Paquin. But now the main thing necessary in the model is that she shall have 'style' and 'carriage,' and of course average size and roundness of contour without strict regard to proportions.

"The elaborateness and looseness of costumes has brought about this result. The trimming and hiding of the figure in the present day tailor-made suit is so complete that a particularly good 'line' is no longer required. The fact that a larger model is selected than formerly is the best indication of the change in woman's measurements, due to the straight front corset and partly to the change of sentiment which demands broad shoulders, and selects clothes accordingly.

"The model now in demand has usually a 25-inch waist, where it was formerly absolutely necessary that it should be under 24. A 37-inch bust is preferred, where 36 used to be considered the ideal. Thirteen inches across the shoulders is now considered none too broad, though the hip measure accomplished by the model who adjusts herself strictly to the new average is a couple of inches smaller than formerly, being about 41½.

"These measurements are the average ones of the gowns that are sold even more than of the wearers themselves. The plan of buying a large size to be fitted down so as to obtain the broad shouldered effect is almost universal, and while the greatest mistake a saleswoman could make formerly was to suggest that a customer take a size larger than she thought necessary, now it is often received as a compliment."

No Coffee or Dessert in Japan.

Coffee is not popular in Japan. When guests arrive for a dinner party, they are received in an anteroom and immediately served with tea and cakes before entering the banquet hall. The cups in which the tea is served are very small and of the finest porcelain. They have no handles, but are passed on metal trays, which take the form of a leaf. The tea is brewed directly in the little cups, and served without sugar or cream. Dessert, so dear to the occidental housewife, is also unknown in Japan. At formal dinners rice forms the last course. It would be a breach of etiquette to serve the little cakes which come before dinner with the tea during this final course.

Parker Did Not Accept, but May Speak at Chicago Aug. 20.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 25.—Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic candidate for president, did not accept nor did he decline an invitation presented to him to speak at a Democratic ratification meeting to be held in Chicago on Aug. 20, when William Jennings Bryan will be one of the speakers.

A delegation representing Mayor Carter H. Harrison has arrived at Esopus consisting of E. M. Lahiff, secretary of the Cook County Democratic club, under whose auspices the meeting will be held; Oscar F. Mayer, president of the United German society, and Lawrence E. McGann, comptroller of Chicago. The visitors were driven to Rosemount, where they found Judge Parker's family at dinner. Plates were placed for them, and after the meal Judge Parker took his guests into the library, where the purpose of the visit was talked over at length, and Judge Parker told Mr. Lahiff, who acted as spokesman, that to accept the invitation at this time might cause him some embarrassment, and he did not feel like promising to attend any event of that character until after the notification ceremonies had taken place. He did say, however, that if he accepted any invitations at all he would go to Chicago and that it would give him great pleasure to go if it were possible.

What gave Judge Parker still greater satisfaction than that he derived from the invitation to visit Chicago was the assurance that differences between opposing factions of Illinois Democrats will be entirely settled and that the party in that state will present a solid front for the national ticket. It was stated in the conversation between Judge Parker and the Illinois delegation that the ill feeling engendered as the result of contests between delegations seeking seats in the St. Louis convention will be eliminated absolutely.

"Judge Parker's extreme courtesy to Mr. McGann, Mr. Mayer and myself was vastly beyond our expectations," said Mr. Lahiff. "Our mission, of course, was not confined to the mere presenting of an invitation to a meeting, but for obvious reasons I cannot go into details. It is sufficient to say that our visit has been all that we could desire it to be and more. Judge Parker will come to Chicago if he speaks anywhere away from home."

Killed Woman In Jealous Fit.

BERLIN, N. H., July 25.—John Green, aged thirty-four years, a farmer of good reputation, surrendered himself to the police here stating that he had shot and killed Mrs. Spurgeon Lockhart on the outskirts of West Milan. This was the first knowledge the police had of the shooting, and the case is still shrouded in mystery. Green explained that he killed the woman in a fit of jealousy and while under the influence of a drug which he said Mrs. Lockhart had been accustomed to give him. Mrs. Lockhart was thirty years of age and the wife of the proprietor of a livery and sales stable. Mr. Lockhart is a prominent citizen. Green lives with his parents just outside of Milan.

Collision on Chicago "L."

CHICAGO, July 25.—At least twenty persons were injured last evening in a rear end collision of crowded trains on the Northwestern Elevated railway at the Chicago Avenue station. While one train was standing at the station a second train rounded the curve at that point and crashed into the rear of the train ahead. Two cars were badly wrecked, and there was a panic among the passengers, many of whom were injured in trying to escape from the crowded vestibules. The motorman of the rear train and two women were thrown to the track and injured, but luckily escaped contact with the third rail.

Fatal Shooting at Stephentown.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 25.—George Fisher, a farmer living in Stephentown, N. Y., a small village just over the state line, was brought here suffering from a bullet wound just below the heart. Fisher is probably fatally wounded. In an antemortem statement he said that he was shot during the night in the Vanderbilt House, in Stephentown, by A. B. Dannburg, the proprietor. An altercation had arisen because Dannburg refused to serve him liquor.

An International Bridge Open.

The bridge was formally declared open to commerce by the lieutenant governor of British Columbia, Sir Henry Lolbiniers. The new bridge is of international importance, as it will enable the American railways to get direct entry into Vancouver and New Westminster.

PERCY OHL IN ASYLUM

ONCE WELL-TO-DO PLAINFIELDER NOW CONFINED IN STATE HOSPITAL.

At one time a leading resident of the city, Percy Ohl, of Central avenue, was taken yesterday to the State hospital, his mind gone completely and suffering from various hallucinations. His mentality has been weakening gradually and his condition became so bad last week he was examined by Drs. Zeglio and Lufburrow and pronounced insane. Papers were made out by Overseer of the Poor Ayers and the commitment followed.

Twenty-five years ago, Ohl was prominent in Plainfield affairs and was considered quite wealthy. Bad luck of various kinds suddenly came upon him and in recent years he has been almost penniless. He was always well known as the introducer of the telephone system in this city.

The published report that Ohl has been an inmate of the Industrial Home is not true as he has been with his family all along.

REJECT ALL BIDS FOR SCHOOL BUILDING

North Plainfield Board of Education Postpones Contracting for Structure's Erection.

BIDS ARE EXCESSIVE

FIGURES MADE BY VARIOUS CONTRACTORS FOR THE WORK.

Original Appropriation $36,000—$5,500 Spent for Site—Architect Marsh Assists the Board.

Exceeding the available funds on hand by $3,250, the borough Board of Education at a special meeting, last evening, was compelled to reject all bids for the erection of the new Somerset street school. The lowest total reached $33,750, while the original appropriation was $36,000, from which $5,500 has already been deducted for the purchase of the site. Architect A. L. C. Marsh, who was in attendance, was at once instructed to alter the plans to come within the necessary amount and they will be gone over by the building committee this evening. In all probability new bids will be asked for within a week.

The bids as submitted were as follows: Mason work, B. F. Tallamy & Brother, $18,979; W. C. Smith, $17,975; W. H. Pangborn, $16,990; carpentering, John Abbott, $13,600; Wyman & Haberle, $11,362; Herman Hansen, $11,265; George Hummer, $11,020; painting, James C. Hansen, $1,275; Woolston & Buckle, $1,175; Harold Hansen, $997; plumbing, D. J. Galbraith, $545; electrical work, Allen B. Laing, $840; Craig & Apgar, $749; heating, American Heating Company, $5,250; Fuller & Warren, $3,265. All but the bidders for the heating are from this city. Each bid was accompanied by a certified check and these were ordered returned.

In discussing the plans afterward Architect Marsh informed the Board that the only way the cost could be made to come within the appropriation would be to cheapen the materials, as has been done with the city High School plans. He explained where this could be done and subsequently members of the Board made various suggestions that will enable him to work with a better understanding as to their wants. The principal changes will be in the brick and trimmings.

Several other business matters were transacted by the Board but none of them were of any importance. It was motioned that the ceilings in the Watchung school be painted at a cost not to exceed $50 and Mr. Valiant reported that initial steps had been taken toward selling the new school bonds. Many inquiries have been received by prospective bidders and they are being answered with the printed circulars prepared.

On motion, the Board adjourned until August 8, at which time the new bids will be received and the contract for the school awarded if they are acceptable.

For the purpose of testing it, box 142 at Manning avenue and Somerset street, in the borough, will be pulled tomorrow noon.

SOLD FORMER HOSE HOUSE

HERMAN KLINSMAN BUYS IT FROM THE BOROUGH FOR $700.

At a special meeting of the borough Council, last evening, the former West End hose house on Harrison street, was sold to Herman Klinsman for $700, his being the highest bid received. In voting to accept his offer the Councilmen were evenly divided and the deciding ballot was cast by Mayor Smalley. The building was erected seven years ago and with the ground originally cost the borough $1,500.

What to do with the building was a problem which agitated the Councilmen from the time the volunteer department was disbanded and several of them were opposed to selling it. Councilman VanWinkle, in particular, wanted the building donated to the Board of Education to be used as a kindergarten and last evening when the subject was brought up he still urged that it be kept to be used for some public purpose. He was upheld by others but Mayor Smalley expressed the opinion that the present fire department system had proven a success, would be maintained and there would be no need of it in that direction; furthermore, the borough would gain by accepting a reasonable offer.

The only other item of business transacted during the meeting was the reading of a communication by Clerk Rowley, from Corporation Counsel Reed, in which he notified the Council that the new tax law required the members to examine the assessor's books on the second Tuesday in August. Accordingly, adjournment was taken until that date.

MATERIAL FOR THE ELECTION

SECRETARY OF STATE AND HIS ASSISTANTS GETTING BLANKS READY.

Pursuant to the provisions of the State election law, Secretary of State Dickinson and his assistants are preparing to send out the election books and blanks for use at the election in November.

The law provides that this shall be done on or before August 5. The material has been printed and delivered to the State House and the clerks are preparing the bundles for distribution. Canvassing books, poll books, register books, copies of the election law, a pamphlet of instructions for election officers and voters, and blanks for the official oaths and for the election returns are included. These must be furnished in sufficient quantities to the county clerks of the State, and they in turn distribute them to the different boards of registry and election.

The first day for registering voters for the coming election will be Tuesday, September 6. This registry day will be only for districts outside of cities having over 30,000 inhabitants, which includes Plainfield. The other registry days for these districts will be Tuesday, September 31, and Tuesday, November 1.

Removing Building.

Arrangements have been completed for the removal of the one-story frame building on Park avenue, near North avenue, formerly occupied as the coal office of Boice, Runyon & Co., to a position nearly opposite fire headquarters on East Second street. Charles P. Sebring, the owner of the building, plans to have it repaired and renovated, when it will be occupied. Contractors will move the building to its new position tonight.

PLAINFIELD ARTIST'S PORTRAIT OF BISHOP

Mr. Griffin at Work on Painting of Rt. Rev. Dr. Croes, the First Episcopal Bishop of N.J.

FOR GREATGRANDSON

FINISHED A CANVAS OF GOV. BLOOMFIELD SOMETIME AGO.

Charles Bloomfield, of Metuchen, Orders the Pictures—He is a Descendent of Both the Bishop and the Governor.

W. H. Griffin, of Putnam avenue, the artist who painted the portrait of Governor Bloomfield, New Jersey's first Democratic Governor, which now hangs in the State House at Trenton, is at work painting one of New Jersey's first Episcopal Bishop, Rt. Rev. Dr. Croes. Both portraits were ordered by the great grandson of both these distinguished Jerseymen, Charles Bloomfield, of Metuchen.

Bishop Croes was ordained as Bishop in 1815. Up to the time of the Revolution the Episcopal church in the United States was under the Bishop of London. Bishop Croes lived in New Brunswick and died in 1883. He was succeeded by Bishop Doane, father of Bishop Doane, of Albany, and of Monsignor Doane, of Newark, who was succeeded by Bishop Odenheimer, the predecessor of Bishop Scarborough, the present incumbent.

It is a coincidence that the artist, Mr. Griffin, was a companion in youth, of John Croes, the great-grandson of the Bishop whose portrait he is now painting.

WED FRIEND'S SWEETHEART

LESLIE COBBS IS CHARMED BY NELLIE AUGUST MUCH TO GATES' SORROW.

Because of Nellie August, a comely young mulatto girl, who hales from the "Windy City," John W. Gates, colored, more commonly known as "Grinder," is today suffering the pangs of love unrequitted. "Grinder" has known the girl for several months and during that time plighted his troth to her for years to come. Leslie Cobbs, also colored, who saw the girl with "Grinder" last week, afterwards asked him for an introduction. The young people met on Thursday evening and Miss August seemed at once infatuated with her new acquaintence. Saturday's happenings proved this regard to be mutual, for on that day the young people were married, Rev. E. E. Jackson, of Mt. Olive Baptist church, performing the ceremony.

All these happenings took place unbeknown to Gates, and when that young man heard that the marriage had taken place and that the newly wedded couple were even then enjoying their honeymoon in New York city, his mingled anger and grief knew no bounds. Today he vows vengeance against young Cobbs, and spread the report among his friends that he would bring suit against the couple. His meagre knowledge of the law prevent him mentioning on what grounds such action would be brought, but his emotions are strong and the affair will reach termination should Cobbs return to settle here before his feeling has in a measure at least abated.

THROWN FROM AUTO; ONE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Miss Emily Mehr Hurt Internally by Being Pitched From "Mayor" Smith's Machine.

DASHED INTO CURB

REAR END OF AUTO SWINGS AROUND AND STRIKES TREE.

Accident on West Front Street—Three Members of the Party Only Slightly Hurt—Machine Wrecked.

Seeking to avoid a trolley car coming toward him, "Mayor" William B. Smith, of New Market, turned his handsome new automobile too quickly on West Front street, last evening, and ran it into the curbing. The rear part swung into a tree, smashing it badly, and throwing the owner and three relatives in all directions. Miss Emily Mehr, of New York, a niece of Smith's, collided violently with a tree and received severe internal injuries and bruises on every part of her body. The "Mayor" and the other two occupants of the vehicle, whose names he refused to give, were bruised and scratched but otherwise unhurt.

The accident occurred just west of Albert street, as the party was on the way home from this city. Smith was handling the machine which is the one he had built especially for him and brought it back with him from his recent Western trip. He shared the front seat with a young man, while Miss Mehr and another young woman occupied the rear part. The four were laughing and chatting as the auto was speeding along, partly over the tracks, when Smith noticed the car was almost upon them. He gave a quick turn and reversed the driving gear, but as the street was wet, the rear part of the machine swung over and struck the tree.

The collision ripped off part of one side and stove in the rear. The mechanism was also thrown out of order and in other ways the auto was rendered useless. All but Miss Mehr quickly sprang to their feet after being thrown out, but she lay stunned and helpless. She was carried to the home of Thomas King, directly opposite the scene of the accident, and Dr. N. W. Currie was summoned. He made the young woman as comfortable as possible and as soon as convenient she was removed to Smith's home. Today she was resting easily and while in no immediate danger, it will be many weeks before she recovers fully.

Train Held Here Thirty Minutes.

The P. and R. express train No. 527, scheduled to pass through this city at 12:39 in the afternoon, was delayed about thirty minutes today by a freight car and caboose which had broken loose from extra freight train No. 922, also a P. and R. train. The freight car and caboose were switched onto track No. 4 and run to Dunellen by drill engine No. 27, allowing the express together with a Central train for Philadelphia and a Somerville local, all three of whom had been laid out by the stoppage, to proceed.

NONEGENARIAN PASSES AWAY

FATHER OF PETER A., AND JOHN P. EMMONS IS DEAD AT SOUTH RIVER.

John Emmons, for nearly sixty years a resident of South River, is dead at his home there after an illness of nearly two months. Mr. Emmons' death, which occurred yesterday, robs South River of its oldest male inhabitant and he will be mourned by every person in that community. The shock of his wife's death, which took place about five weeks ago, was something from which the old man never recovered, as the aged couple had spent most of their married life there at the South River home.

John P. Emmons, of Prospect place, and Peter A. Emmons, of Jackson avenue, are sons of the dead man. James H. Emmons, of South River, is another son. There are three daughters, Mrs. Myra Holmns, living at New Brunswick; Mrs. Maggie Liddle, of Fords, and Mrs. Ada Otis, of New Brunswick. ALIS TO GET A PITCHER

REPORT THAT ANOTHER TEAM MAY REPRESENT PLAINFIELD.

There will be a change in the Alis ball team and that very soon. This announcement was made this morning by Arthur Boone, a member of the baseball committee. Mr. Boone said that outside of the pitching department the committee believes it has a strong team and steps will be taken at once to secure a strong twirler. Every effort will be made to have a first-class team before Saturday's contest.

It was learned today that subscriptions were received last week for the purpose of getting a first-class pitcher and why such a man was not secured is puzzling those who helped in the movement. The supporters of the team claim that Manager Johnston's failure to have a strong man in the box on Saturday is not excusable, even though he was unable to get Wolfe, now of the Washington American team. They contend that he had the whole week to get a man and if there were any doubts as to Wolfe coming here, he should have arranged for another pitcher to go in the game.

There are rumors in town today that unless the Alis Club makes a decided change at once, steps will be taken by others to place a representative team in the field here. Those behind this movement, it is said, are well-known baseball men who have had experience and who are desirous that Plainfield have a team that will prove a worthy foe for Westfield. The action of the Alis Club this week will govern the movement to get another team for the town.

It was learned this morning that the money collected by private subscription for the purpose of getting a pitcher on Saturday, has been returned to the subscribers.

It was decided to have the armory open every evening in the week and make provision for the members and visiting militamen. REFUSES TO VACATE PROPERTY OF BOROUGH

Samuel Moore Holding the Fort on Land Purchased for a School Site.

BOARD MAKES OFFER

PROMISES TENANT $25 IF HE GETS OUT IN THIRTY DAYS.

Legal Action to be Taken if Moore Insists on Remaining—The Property is Needed at Once.

Legal proceedings may have to be taken by the borough Board of Education in order to secure possession of a house encumbering the property at Somerset street and Park place, which it purchased as a site for the new school. The members have practically been defied by Samuel Moore, the tenant in the building, who refuses to get out, claiming that his agreement with the former owner gives him the right to remain a year. As the Board wants the ground cleared as soon as possible, the matter was brought up at last evening's meeting and a plan of action was agreed upon.

On motion of Mr. Cooley, it was decided to serve notice upon Moore to move within thirty days and if he complied he would be remitted the rent, amounting to $25, which rightfully belonged to the Board. This, Mr. Cooley explained, was his idea to keep him from losing money by getting out as moving at the present time would entail considerable expense. Some objection was taken by Mr. Valiant to refunding the rent money on the ground that Moore had no agreement with the present owners and there was no reason why he should receive it. In the event of Moore still maintaining that he had a right to the place as tenant, it was declared that the necessary legal proceedings would be taken to oust him.

The Board members were considerably exercised over the stand Moore has taken as they are particularly anxious that there be no further delay in starting the erection of the new school. It was hoped to have moved the house or sold it before this time but as one of the members expressed they could do neither until they had secured possession of it. Moore insists that he is a yearly tenant and though he has no lease, he is protected from change of ownership.

THE TIME WILL COME.

When the Advice of This Plainfield Resident Will Help You.

Very few people are entirely free from backache. It does not take much to derange the kidneys. A little cold, a strain, stooping positions and hard work overtaxes those delicate organs and many aches and pains promptly follow. A Plainfield citizen tells you here how every kidney ill can be relived and cured. Read about it:

C. E. Hepburn, of 123 Duer stret, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement for they cured me of a long standing case of backache which annoyed me very much, especially if I took cold, for at such times I was in pretty bad shape. I heard different people speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, concluded to try them, got a box from my druggist, L. W. Randolph, and used them according to directions with the above results. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement of a preparation like Doan's Kidney Pills."

AMUSEMENTS.

Not since the remarkable engagement of Miss Viola Allen in "The Eternal City" began at Hammerstein's Victoria Theatre, November 17, 1902, has the Hall Caine latest play been seen in Manhattan. Hence the coming engagement at the Academy of Music, New York city, which is to have its opening Thursday, August 4, is likely to attract unusual interest. There are several excellent reasons to anticipate such results, for it is rarely indeed that the theatregoers of New York and vicinity are given an opportunity to see a stupendous production like that of "The Eternal City" and in the very heyday of its popularity, at Academy of Music prices. But this production is really of a more elaborate character than ever, having been built especially for the Academy of Music stage, and its opportunities.

"Piff, Paff, Pouf" has stirred things up in lively fashion on Broadway. It is playing to record-breaking business at the famous Casino. Polite society is very much in evidence there at every performance. For instance, at one performance last week the fourteen boxes of the pretty theatre were filled with parties, the guests of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mackay, Governor Odell, Col. Reuben Fax, and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. Manager F. C. Whitney has certainly provided "Piff, Paff, Pouf" with the best company ever seen or heard in a musical comedy. The funny contingent, led Eddie Foy, includes Miss Alice Fischer, Joseph Miron, John Hyams, Grace Cameron, Abbie Stange and George Wiseman, gets rousing laughs from the rise to the fall of the curtain. When it comes to voicing the melodies of Jean Schwartz it would be difficult to find a more competent band of singers than Amelia Stone, Mabel and Hilda Hollins, Joseph Miron, Templar Saxe and Maurice Darcy.

JERSEY CENTRAL BIRTHDAY.

First Newark-New York Train Ran Thirty-Five Years Ago.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey celebrated Saturday the thirty-fifth anniversary of railway communication between New York and Newark over its road. The first train out of the Broad Street Station, Newark, left on the morning of July 23, 1869, carrying about 600 invited passengers. This was not the formal opening, however, for regular traffic was not begun until August 2 of the same year, on which day trains left the station every hour and passengers were carried free, thousands of people taking advantage of the opportunity. The time consumed for the trip to New York was twenty-five minutes, which was considered a hazardous rate of speed, so much so that a petition from the commuters asked for slower time three months later.

The Broad Street Station still stands, but in a year or so will give way to a more substantial structure. It was then considered a magnificent building.

Capt. Benjamin Hopper, who was station agent at the time, is still holding that position, and the only other surviving official of the road is Francis Mackin, who was a director.

Mrs. Elliott T. Collins, of Brooklyn, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Buckley, of South avenue.

Herbert Hetfield, of Worcester, Mass., is spending two weeks with his father, Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., of East Front street.

Patrolman John Kelley returned to duty last evening after a two weeks' vacation spent with relatives and friends in Jersey City, Easton and Hampton Junction.

Scholes Got a Royal Reception.

TORONTO, Ont., July 26.—Lou Scholes, winner of the Diamond sculls, was given a royal reception on his return to his native city last night. On the arrival of the steamer Corona 20,000 people assembled on the pier to greet him. The champion was received by Acting Mayor Ramsden and a procession was formed, headed by the highlanders' band, and including the city council and all the aquatic clubs of the city. On wagons decorated with flags were the shells which Scholes used in England. Through the vast multitude which lined the streets the young hero was escorted to Queen's park, where to him was presented by the acting mayor of the city an illuminated address and a cabinet of silver valued at $1,000.

Baron Gratton at Detroit.

DETROIT, July 26.—Baron Gratton driven by Ed Geers at the blue ribbon meeting of the Detroit Driving club which opened the grand trotting circuit, won the $5,000 Chamber of Commerce stake for 2:24 pacers. It was the fastest race in the history of the stake, the former record of 2:06¾ made in 1902 by Direct Hal, being broken in the first heat, which was won by Morning Star. The record was placed at 2:06¾ by Morning Star in this heat, and this mark was equaled by Baron Gratton in the second heat. Baron Gratton then equaled Direct Hal's record in the third heat.

Mud Runners' Day at Brighton.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Mud horses had an inning at Brighton Beach. The track was fetlock deep in mud, and winners were hard to pick. Three favorites won. Graceful, at 12 to 1, easily captured the Seagull stakes at six furlongs. Ishlana made the running to the stretch, where Graceful moved out and won by two lengths from Marmee. Possession, the heavily played second choice, was interfered with right after he started, but finished third.

Ananias a Winner.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Ananias won the July Selling stakes at Hawthorne, leading from the flag fall to finish and having a length to spare over Huzzah, which beat Warte Nicht the same distance for second place. The stake was worth $2,680 to the winner. Subpoenas were served on all the turf writers at the track, summoning them to appear before the grand jury this morning to give evidence as to gambling at Hawthorne.

Racing at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 26.—First Mason ran a mile in 1:39¾, one-quarter of a second better than the track record, in the fourth race at the fair grounds. Just So and Old Stone were allowed to show the way to the stretch turn, where First Mason came on and won very easily. Six Shooter ran a spanking race in the fifth, getting off last and winning by five lengths in 1:40 flat.

Tennis at Bristol.

BRISTOL, R. I., July 26.—J. D. E. Jones of the Wannamoisett Golf club won the final match in the Rhode Island tennis championship by defeating J. O. Ames of the Agawam Hunt club in straight sets, 6—2, 6—2, 7—5.

Injured at Animal Fight.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, July 26.—Fourteen persons were injured here as a result of the fight between a tiger and a bull, including Countess Podras Lisaritury, Deputy Urquijo, the Marquis Pidal, vice president of the senate and former Spanish ambassador at the Vatican, and an American whose name is given as "Liwertone" (Livingstone?) of New York. It is said that the American will put in a claim for damages. The managers of the fight are severely blamed.

To Stop American Trade.

LONDON, July 26.—The Tokyo correspondent of the Times in a dispatch says he believes that the object of the Vladivostok squadron is to interrupt trade between the United States and Japan and that steamers on the way from Canada and San Francisco are in serious danger. He says that another aim of the squadron is apparently to seal Tokyo bay.

WILL PAY RESPECTS

Democratic National Committee Goes to Rosemount.

THOMAS TAGGART FOR CHAIRMAN

Judge Parker to See Tomorrow Members Who Will Manage His Campaign, Some of Them For the First Time.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The Democratic national committee will pay its respects to the Democratic candidate tomorrow. Arrangements have been made by Norman E. Mack, member of the committee for New York, and Cord Meyer, chairman of the Democratic state committee of this state, for the national organization to leave New York at 11:30 and go direct to Esopus, where each member will be presented to Judge Parker.

Many members have never seen their candidate, though some of them visited him both before and after the nomination. It is quite probable that the chairman of the committee will be detained at Esopus for a time in order to discuss the plans of campaign and more especially the appointment of the executive campaign committee, which will have the management of the campaign.

The members of the committee who arrived have confirmed the opinion that Thomas Taggart will be elected chairman. Both William F. Sheehan and Norman E. Mack, who know as much as anybody about the Democratic candidate's position in this matter, say that Taggart will be chosen.

VISITORS AT ESOPUS.

All Pleased With Judge Parker's Reception—Campau May Be Chairman.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 26.—Former Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas, who presides today over the meeting of the Democratic national committee, which is to elect a new chairman; Senator John W. Daniel of Virginia, chairman of the committee at St. Louis which drafted the national platform, and Daniel J. Campau, member of the Democratic national committee from Michigan, were callers at Rosemount.

Neither Senator Jones nor Senator Daniel, who came here by special invitation, had met Judge Parker before. They left sounding in glowing terms the praises of the party's standard bearer, who was immensely pleased as the result of their visit. Senator Jones told Judge Parker that every Democrat who voted for Mr. Bryan in 1896 and in 1900 will vote the Democratic ticket this fall.

Senator Daniel said that the franchise plank in the Democratic platform would make the south solid for the party and that this plank also would enable the party to carry Maryland, West Virginia and Delaware.

It was reported that a boom for Mr. Campau for the chairmanship of the national committee may be launched at the national committee meeting today.

He had taken morphine soon after registering last night under an assumed name. The suicide's identity was revealed by a letter to his mother beginning "The wages of sin is death."

ALLIED TRADES OUT

Chicago Has Greatest Strike Ever Known.

SPECTACULAR EXODUS OF WORKERS

Riot at Stockyards Quelled by Police—Packers and Labor Unionists Declare Fight Will Be to a Finish.

CHICAGO, July 26.—Chicago's sympathetic general strike at the stockyards, predicted by its leaders to be the greatest and most expensive this country has ever known, opened here when thousands of teamsters, cattle handlers and members of the mechanical trades quit work and made a grand rush for the gates leading from the busiest square mile of buildings, yards and pens in the world.

The first street riot attending the walkout from the stockyards occurred in Ashland avenue, near one of the yard gates. Half a hundred men and women took part, and a score of policemen had all they could do to quell the disturbance.

The origin of the riot was trivial. Stanislaus Ziatrick had gone on strike against the wishes of his wife, Marie, and she was dragging him back to work. A crowd of strikers and their wives waylaid her, and soon everybody was slugging everybody else all over the avenue. Mrs. Ziatrick was severely injured, and many others sustained cracked heads and bruised faces.

While this riot was going on three thugs attacked Mrs. Anna Tickle, who has three sons on strike, and robbed her of a small amount of money. One of the sons, Leopold, was arrested.

A meeting of butchers' representatives and allied trades has decided to send a committee to call upon the packers. The committee is composed of the representatives of all the allied trades.

The first big defection came when 700 men, including the scalers and pen cleaners, employed by the Union Stockyards and Transit company refused to work further. First to go were the handlers, and this eliminated the usefulness of the teamsters, and they followed. As they passed out of the big gates at Exchange avenue they were greeted with cheers by the thousands of strikers gathered in the vicinity.

Prior to this spectacular exodus came small strikes in the various plants, including carpenters, firemen, elevator men, machinists, etc., but these did not have the effect of tying up the plants, since such action had been anticipated and as often as a union man stepped out a nonunion man, or a union man who had deserted his organization, was there to take his place.

Early in the day the allied trades and the committee of eight teamsters chosen last night to seek peace anew before permitting the teamsters to strike had been urged by President Donnelly of the meat cutters to declare the general strike and then seek further conference with the packers.

There was a lively debate; President Golden, for the teamsters' governing body, declaring his belief that a common sense campaign would end in peace. He pointed out the danger of shutting up the Union Stockyards and Transit company, which, he said, would be detrimental to the strikers' friends, the independent workers, who were doing the big packers almost as much damage as anybody else.

He urged that the Stockyards company be permitted to continue under some kind of agreement, but his argument had no weight with President Donnelly, who said: "The time to strike is right now. Let us talk about the independent concerns and about settlements later." Then it was arranged that President Schardt, representing the Chicago Federation of Labor, and Barney Cohen, representing the Butchers' union, should join the Teamsters' union committee to which had been added John Sheridan, business agent of the ice wagon drivers.

There are 1,200 ice wagon drivers, and with their striking it is admitted the packers would have much difficulty getting ice to their refrigerator cars.

As has been threatened for some time all the allied trades employed in the packing industry at Chicago quit work when called on to assist the striking butchers in their efforts to bring the packers to terms. In several instances the men did not wait for the official notification from their leaders to strike, but threw down their tools and quit work of their own volition. The statement has been made by M. J. Donnelly, president of the Butchers' union, that every union man employed at the stockyards, with the exception of the teamsters and stationary engineers, had responded to orders for a general sympathetic strike. The engineers, he declared, would join the strikers this morning, and unless there was a speedy settlement of the difficulty, he said, all the teamsters would undoubtedly join in the struggle soon. According to Mr. Donnelly the strike has swelled the number of men who have quit work at the stockyards in Chicago alone to nearly 30,000 persons.

Both sides to the controversy have declared that they are perfectly satisfied with the present state of affairs and that they are willing to make it a fight to a finish.

A new phase of the strike situation developed when notice was given by the unions to the independent packers at the stockyards that their men would not be allowed to handle animals which had been handled in any way by nonunion men. It is necessary for these independent concerns to take all of their live stock into the yards over Union stockyards runways, where the stock must be handled by nonunion men, since the union men employed by the stockyards company in this line of work were among the employees who have joined the sympathetic strike. The ultimatum of the unions leaves the independent packers no alternative but to receive their live stock directly from the country or to close business entirely. A meeting of the independent packers has been held to map out some plan of action, but no definite conclusion was reached.

This Labor War Settled.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., July 26.—There is rejoicing over the settlement of the tin plate scale, and the great Shenango tin plant will start up full turn this morning, orders to that effect having been issued. The Greer mill will also resume within a few days, necessary repairs there being rushed day and night. About 5,000 tin workers here are affected.

TARS GET PRIZE MONEY.

Heroes of Manila Bay Will Divide Up $828,677.

WASHINGTON, July 26. — After several years Admiral Dewey and his men, who fought the battle of Manila, are to receive their prize money on account of the capture of the Don Juan de Austria and other Spanish property. In the supreme court of the District of Columbia Justice Gould has signed an order confirming the report of the auditor in the case, overruling all exceptions filed by either side to the report.

The amount of the property captured finally was fixed at $1,657,355, a sum considerably in excess of what the government claimed to be due. One-half of the amount will be paid to the captors, while the remainder, as provided by law, will be placed to the credit of the navy pension fund.

Wreck at Delevan; Three Dead.

DELEVAN, N. Y., July 26.—Two freight trains on the Pennsylvania railroad collided between Lime Lake and Delevan. In the wreck three men were killed and one injured. The dead are: Fireman Fred McCarthy, Engineer Frank Bedford and Brakeman Winslow Cullinan, all of Buffalo. The man injured is Engineer W. McCleary, also of Buffalo. The bodies of Bedford and Cullinan were buried under a big pile of wreckage. When the collision occurred McCarthy was shoveling coal into the firebox. The shock threw him head first into the firebox, and he was found there, burned to death. A misunderstanding of orders is unofficially given as the cause.

Not Guilty of Treason.

KOENIGSBERG, Prussia, July 26.—All the accused in the trial for high treason and conspiracy against the Russian emperor were acquitted of treason, as had been expected, and three—Koegst, Ehrenfort and Braun—were also acquitted on the charge of conspiracy. The other six were convicted of conspiracy and sentenced to short terms of imprisonment—Mertius, Poetzel and Kugel to three months, Treptau and Novagrotzky to two and a half months and Klein to eight weeks.

Pathetic Plea Stopped Sentence.

LAKE GEORGE, N. Y., July 26.—Because of the pleadings of her sister whom she attempted to kill, May Montgomery was saved from a term in prison. She has been indicted for assault in the first degree, having tried to murder her sister, Mrs. Emma Miller, in Glens Falls six months ago while in a fit of jealous rage. At the trial Miss Montgomery pleaded guilty, but Mrs. Miller made such a pathetic plea that sentence was suspended.

Will Not Speak at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 26.—The Tribune says: "W. J. Bryan will not speak at the Democratic ratification picnic on Aug. 20. He is in Chicago on his way from Albert Lea, Minn., to Delaware, O. "I shall do no political work," he said, "until after the Chautauqua session. A lecture engagement will prevent my speaking at the Harrison picnic here next month. During the campaign I shall make stump speeches in Missouri and Nebraska."

Miss Roosevelt to Name Cumberland.

BOSTON, July 26.—President Roosevelt will be invited to attend the launching of the new United States training ship Cumberland at the Charlestown navy yard, where the ship was constructed. The ship will go overboard on Aug. 17, the day after the parade of the Grand Army of the Republic at its national encampment. Miss Alice Roosevelt will be invited to christen the ship.

Not to Strike at Taunton.

TAUNTON, Mass., July 26.—A reduction in wages of 12½ per cent has gone into effect at the cotton mills of the Corr Manufacturing company at East Taunton, but there was no strike. These mills are engaged in the manufacture of practically the same grade of cloth as made in Fall River, and the decision to cut down the payroll followed the similar action taken by the Fall River mills.

Killed by Breaking Crane.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 26.—William Glover of Tonawanda has been killed at Little Valley, Cattaraugus county. He was working on the second story of a building when a crane which was being used to hoist timbers broke, and he was thrown from the second story to the ground, breaking his neck in the fall.

The Crime of Cain.

URBANA, O., July 26.—Chester H. Creary, aged ten, shot and instantly killed his brother William, twelve, near North Lewisburg. The boys were at play when [illegible] became angered and seizing a gun discharged its contents at [illegible]

Textile Workers of Fall River Go Out Against Reduction.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 26.—The strike order issued by the Fall River Textile council calling for upward of 30,000 operatives to remain away from the mills in protest against a reduction of 12½ per cent in wages has become effective, and the response has been general, as the labor leaders had predicted.

In the thirty-seven mills involved in the agreement to reduce wages but a few, comparatively, of the usual force went to work. It is estimated that not more than thirty entered the mill gates in place of the tide of operatives which between 6 and half past 6 o'clock every morning sweeps through the various entrances. The whistles blew at the usual time, the engineers were at their places, but there were no operatives, at least not enough to operate the mills, and before 8 o'clock practically every mill involved in the populous business district was at a standstill.

The strikers, who in some instances had assembled near the mills, dispersed quietly, and silence settled over the usually tumultuous business district.

The mill owners and their operatives are both very determined in the struggle for supremacy, and few are rash enough to predict the outcome. With the strikers it is simply a question of how long they can do without their wages and exist on strike benefits. On the part of the owners it is but a matter of how long they can afford to have their mills closed down at a time when the cotton and cloth markets are not at their best.

Naval Brigade Man a Suicide.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., July 26.—Edward Byron, a member of the Second battalion of the New York Naval brigade, which is in camp here, has drowned himself in the harbor during a fit of temporary insanity. Byron, who had been acting queerly, came out of his tent, knocked down the guard as he passed and rushed into the water. Comrades who witnessed his act took Byron from the water, but life was then extinct.

Rev. Father Moran Dead.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Rev. James Moran, one of the oldest Roman Catholic clergymen in New York, is dead at his Brooklyn home at the age of eighty. Father Moran was born in England and was the son of Sir Herbert Moran. On his mother's side he was related to Daniel O'Connell, the Irish liberator.

Two Killed by Collision.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 26.—Two persons were killed and several injured last night in a collision between a Big Four passenger train and an electric car at Washington and Missouri streets here. The locomotive struck the front of the electric car, throwing the car twenty feet.

War Veteran a Suicide.

HUBBARDSTON Mass., July 26.—Warren C. Parker, aged sixty-seven, committed suicide by hanging himself to a bedpost with a sheet and was found dead by his wife. He was a civil war veteran. Despondency on account of sickness is given as the cause.

FLEET NEAR TOKYO

Vladivostok Squadron to Seal Up Japan's Capital.

NO PRETEXT FOR SINKING OF TRADER

Details of Outrage on the Steamer Knight Commander, From New York, Show She Had No Contraband of War on Board.

LONDON, July 26.—Advices from Tokyo say that the cruisers of the Russian Vladivostok squadron were sighted at 7 o'clock in the morning twenty miles off Katsugura, which is in the prefecture of Shimosa, east of Tokyo. They were steaming slowly to the eastward.

The British steamer Chinan has arrived at Yokohama with the crew of the British steamer Knight Commander, which was sunk by the Russian Vladivostok squadron off Izu.

The Knight Commander's cargo was a general one, and she had no contraband of war on board. Her European passengers were detained by the Russians and her crew of twenty-one was transferred to the Chinan, which also reports that the Russians sank two Japanese schooners.

A Japanese consignment on the Knight Commander included 750 steel plates, 400 steel rails and quantities of ironwork for railroad bridge construction. The Russians, upon overhauling the ship, evidently considered her cargo, or at least a portion of it, as contraband and seized her with the intention of taking her to a Russian port. Then, finding her too slow to accompany their fleet, they decided to destroy her.

A brief cablegram has been received from Captain Durant, the commander of the steamer, saying: "Steamer destroyed. Crew saved."

The Knight Commander was valued at about $105,000, and the value of her cargo is estimated at $120,000. She was owned by Greenshields & Co. of Liverpool.

New York advices say that Howard, Houlder, Rowat & Co. are the agents in that city for the Knight Commander. When seen a member of the firm declared that they had received no information in regard to the ship, but were loath to believe that she had been sunk.

According to the firm, the Knight Commander carried a general cargo, valued at $250,000 and comprising no contraband of war. She sailed from here on May 6 for Singapore.

The crew was composed of twenty-eight men, and it is believed a few passengers were aboard. Captain Durant, it was said, was a most conservative man. The cargo was consigned to the American Trading company in Singapore.

The Knight Commander was a steamer of 2,716 tons burden. On June 23 she was at Manila and last week was reported as having arrived at Shanghai.

Vessels arriving at Constantinople report that a British warship is patrolling off Cape Helas, fifteen miles south of the Dardanelles. She is using her searchlight with the supposed view of intercepting any British ships which might have been captured by the Russian volunteer fleet steamers if they attempt to pass the Dardanelles.

A Gibraltar report asserts that the British torpedo craft there have been ordered to be modified.

A report from Chefu says that the German steamer Chefu, from Newchwang, reports that at 2 o'clock in the morning, when she was fifty miles from that port, she was stopped by four Japanese torpedo boats and searched. After being released she was fired on by rapid fire guns.

A Suez report says that the British steamer Ardova and the German ship Scandia, which were seized by the Russian volunteer fleet, have been released and their prize crew taken out. They have resumed their voyages.

RETREAT TO HAICHENG.

Russians Defeated In Fourteen Hour Fight at Tatchekiao.

LONDON, July 26.—A Newchwang report describes a fourteen hours' desperate battle with heavy losses on both sides and which resulted in the Russian position at Tatchekiao being rendered untenable by reason of which they will be compelled to retreat toward Haicheng.

"The battle began at 6 o'clock in the morning, the Russians resuming the attack on the Japanese position on the heights east of Tatchekiao. After a few hours the Japanese left flank from Taping mountain captured the village of Tanghudituen, compelling the Russians to retreat to Tienghuaituen, six miles from their base.

"The Russians, now re-enforced, maintained the position until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Japanese right flank made a sudden appearance on the hills south of Tatchekiao and by a tremendous fire forced the Russians to retreat.

"The Japanese firing line extended fifteen miles.

"After two more hours of incessant storm of shot and shell they swept the last hill and the plain clear of Russians."

Britain Does the Square Thing.

LONDON, July 26.—It is stated that the British government has detained the British steamer Mascotte at Hongkong on the suspicion that she has been purchased by the Japanese government.

August Belmont is to be the treasurer of the Democratic National Committee in the present campaign. Friends of the "sufferin' workman" will please refrain from communicating with him through his Wall street address.

As yet the local Democrats have decided on no one for the mayoralty nomination. It is generally understood that the Republicans will name former President of Common Council James F. Buckle for the office. This being the case, the minority party will have to nominate an unusually strong man to make any semblance of a fight. Mr. Buckle is popular with all classes and is singularly gifted with executive ability. One thing is certain and that is that if Mr. Buckle is mayor he will not be a figurehead.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On July 31 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40, and the round trip will cost but $1.50. PORT ARTHUR SIEGE.

A WAR MYSTERY WHICH ONLY TIME CAN SOLVE.

To Be Besieged Is Not to Abandon Hope, Although the Russians Are Hard Pressed by Oku's Army.

Chicago Special.

The situation at Port Arthur is the more interesting to the world because it is clouded by mystery. The garrison is cut off from communication with Russian headquarters, and no news can come from that side.

The rumors of the Japanese army on the peninsula changing position, or the reports of Russians going to or leaving the outer fortifications, are, even if based on facts, of little significance. A general in command of an army 50,000 or 100,000 strong must look first to the feeding and lodging of his men. He will not put a great camp under the fire of an enemy, but, while keeping a strong force in the trenches or on the firing line, will hold his main army some miles to the rear, where the men may be easily supplied with water and food, and where they may be properly quartered.

On the Russian side fortifications well to the front may be barracks as well as forts for the men to be kept under fire, but changes will be in the nature of one brigade relieving another. For, after all, soldiers are merely men who must be fed and cared for, and who fight better when in possession of health and strength.

At Chickamauga Gen. Bragg screened the movements of his army to the last, having rations cooked in the rear and sent forward in wagons, so that the presence of fires might not betray the position of his divisions. On the union side some of the divisions actively engaged in the first day's battle retired some distance that night and bivouacked in touch with the regiments or brigades left on the line of battle. This was a matter of convenience, and was in no sense a retrogade movement.

While Japanese generals are reckless of life when battle is on, no officers in the world take better care of their men in camp or on the march. So it may be assumed that they have looked carefully after all sanitary and supply questions not only in front of Port Arthur but in the campaign against the Russian line at Liaoyang. If so, heavy masses of troops are being handled and cared for very much as they were quartered and fed in our civil war, and with a view to their efficient use in battle.

To be besieged in war is not to abandon hope. The army of the Cumberland, penned in Chattanooga for two months in 1863 was never more cheerful nor in better fighting trim. It was pictured at the time, however, in deplorable state. The confederate army besieged in Atlanta was reported to have lost heart; it never fought with higher spirit or greater fury than in the Nashville campaign that followed the surrender of Atlanta.

The situation of the garrison at Port Arthur is unlike that at Chattanooga or Atlanta or Vicksburg or Metz or Ladysmith. It is completely isolated; that at Chattanooga never was for an hour. The army in Metz was too large for the work in hand, and too large for the food supply. It could not be properly quartered, could not be fed, and could not be efficiently used.

The garrison at Port Arthur, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, is not too large, is well provisioned and is in good quarters. It may be destroyed, or it may be forced to surrender as was the garrison at Vicksburg, but its fighting spirit is not to be judged by the reports of Chinese refugees, but by what it does during the siege and at the end.

The theories of spectacular writers in the absence of facts amount to little. Even the speculations of military experts are of little value at this stage of the war except in so far as they are based on experience in other wars. And this war is not like any previous war.

Lieut. Gen. Oku, who commands the Japanese army that is investing Port Arthur, is one of the mikado's noted military chiefs. His troops captured Kinchow on May 26, and heroically stormed Nanshan hill, and he is now directing his efforts toward the reduction of the czar's fortress. Oku first won fame in the Japanese rebellion of 1877, when his defense of the castle of Kumamota was considered masterly. Next he distinguished himself in the war with China in 1894-5, and thus far in the campaign against Russia he has maintained his military traditions.

THE PURSE WAS TEMPTING.

Empty Wallet Gives a Philosophical Chicago Salesman Chance to Study Humanity.

Picking up a worn out, empty pocketbook, a salesman in one of the large dry goods stores the other day thought he would have a little fun with it. He therefore placed it on the counter, half concealed by the goods lying on it. Presently a shopper entered. Her eyse lighted on the wallet, as by instinct, and while pricing half a score of articles she endeavored to cover it quite artlessly, of course, now with her handkerchief, then with her satchel, and again with her umbrella. The salesman, without appearing to notice her actions, each time removed the pocketbook out of danger, and into light. Finally she adopted a new tactics, and picked it up with the remark:

"Somebody left a pocketbook."

"Yes?" replied the clerk, interrogatively. "Thank you." And he took the leather and disappeared with it for a moment. Upon his return the woman asked, with a slight show of interest:

"Was there much in it?"

"Only three dollars," said the salesman, carelessly, with the ease of one who has been used to lying all his life.

"And who will get it if it isn't called for?" asked the shopper.

"The firm," is the epigrammatical response.

The woman went out. In 10 or 15 minutes a boy came in and asked:

"Was a pocketbook with three dollars found here this morning?"

"Yes," replied the salesman, "but it has been called for."

"O," said the boy, and retired.

And the salesman smiled audibly.

WOODEN LEG IS HIS BANK.

Cashier of Horse Market Is Surprised by the Strange Actions of a Lame Customer.

A man who walked with a decided limp moved around the sale ring at the blue ribbon sale at Glenville the other afternoon watching all the horses sold, but paying particular attention to the trotting teams, of which a number were sold late in the afternoon. After sizing all the consignments up he finally bid in a pair at $370 and then made his way to the cashier's office to pay for them. After giving his name and address he asked the cashier to wait for a moment until he secured the money. The cashier expected to see him fish out a checkbook and then go chasing for some one to identify him, as he was a stranger to the people in the sales office.

But, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, this man carried his bank right with him, and, after asking the cashier to excuse him for a moment, walked over to a chair and sat down, then calmly rolled up his trousers leg to the knee and carefully unscrewed a wooden leg, and, much to the wonderment of the onlookers, extracted a large roll of bills from a hidden cavity in the artificial walking instrument, and after screwing on the leg again walked up and paid the $370 as though getting the money out of his wooden leg was an everyday occurrence.

EXECUTION OF CRIMINALS.

Some People Have a Morbid Craving to Witness the Grewsome Scenes.

Probably the people who read Dickens to-day are comparatively few, and largely confined to those who acquired a taste for him when he was the literary vogue, but his acquaintance with human nature, and his vivid picturing of some of its manifestations have left impressions which may occasionally be revived with profit, says the Boston Transcript. Perhaps Dickens would not have acknowledged himself favorable to the abolition of capital punishment, but few men have brought out its distinguishing features in more revolting aspects. Those who still regard it as the best protection of society in extreme cases should read over his story of the rioters in "Barnaby Rudge." The conduct of the culprits was sorry enough, but that of the morbid thousands that gathered about the scaffold to witness the dreadful scene was infinitely worse, and not a few carried away in their hearts the germs of murder who had not harbored them before. It was a picture of soul debauchery, the more sickening because doubtless true to the time and occasion concerning which it was written.

But all that described a scene which took place over 100 years ago, when theft and innumerable other things gave the law its justification for taking men's lives. We have become more civilized, of course. We have reduced the basis of capital punishment to the point where we only exact a life for a life, and we no longer make executions occasions for holidays to which the public is invited. Instead everything is now transacted in quite an exclusive manner, the details of which we get from the privileged reporter. The hangman is no longer a Dennis, taking pleasure in his grewsome trade, but more likely a gentleman upon whom the duty falls as one of the severest ordeals of his life.

It may be assumed that with the long exclusion of the public from these scenes the morbid hunger that only human agony can satisfy has ceased to manifest itself. But that is by no means the case. Between 5,000 and 10,000 requests to witness the hanging of the three car barn bandits in Chicago, which took place the other day, were received. Of course they were refused, but what shall we think of a populace to so large a proportion of which the chance to obtain a sight of suffering has such strong attractions?—and had it not been generally known that the public would not be admitted the applications would doubtless have been several times as numerous!

Of singular prominence in this ghoulish quest were two Russian noblemen, making a tour through this country to inspect American methods of administering capital punishment, a strange purpose, indeed, to make men world wanderers. They were probably familiar with Chinese and Japanese methods, with the garrote of Spain and the guillotine of France, but they determined to have a liberal education in this matter. They are wasting their time waiting for hangings in Chicago. They should come east and secure front seats waen an electrocution is in order or if more impromptu methods are desired they might travel south and see how the thing is done with knives, corkscrews and faggots. No Russian need leave his native land to enlarge his acquaintance with hangings. He can find them plenty enough at home, or, if he desires more frequent reminders, let him pay occasional visits to that great hanging scene painted from life and death by Russia's great realist, the lamented Verestchagin. This interest in capital punishment that is still alive in the lower stratum of human nature is not healthy and a mere morbid interest is more likely to incite men to murderous deeds than to deter them.

NEVER EAT CANDY ANIMALS.

Japanese Children Taught from Earliest Infancy Not to Be Cruel.

Though the martial spirit is industriously instilled into Japanese children by their mothers from earliest infancy, they are taught to be kind to animals. At home and in the schools they are not even allowed to eat cakes or confectionery made in the shapes of rabbits, sheep or other dumb beasts for fear they may acquire ideas of cruelty.

A teacher never whips a pupil. If the pedagague commits an injustice the scholars stay away until reparation is made.

Prof. Octima told the foreign colony in a recent lecture here on the national system of education that a German teacher once scandalized a school by his brusqueness. The boys and girls talked it over among themselves and then asked the principal to dismiss him, saying:

"He is a learned man, but a pig."

Being informed that the teacher had been engaged for a stated time, they went straight to him and said:

"If you have a sen's (half a cent's) worth of honor break your contract and go back to Germany."

He went.

About Laces.

All genuine Maltese lace is hand made, and the inhabitants of the islands are strongly opposed to any form of labor-saving machinery. The industry is almost exclusively confined to women and girls, and many families have special designs that are handed down from one generation to another. Two or three firms practically control the output of the islands. Most of the lace exported is made on the Island of Gozo. Silk and cotton are the materials used. The demand in America for this beautiful work is becoming greater every year.—Boston Budget.

WHIMS OF FASHION.

The Difficulties of Voile—Some Handsome House Gowns.

The illustration represents an ultra fashionable voile gown, with the flounces, long shoulders and ugly sleeves. It is shirred at the hips and back and still further decorated with three flounces. It looks like an easy one to make, and it possibly would be—of anything but voile. The amateur dressmaker who attempts this is advised to ask the prayers of the congregation before she cuts into the stuff, for of all the pully and generally reprehensible material to handle this is the worst.

But when a voile dress is once made it is certainly pretty and has so many points of value that we all want one, but I think they must have pixies or some other fairy hands to do the work on those we buy ready made, for they are all right and don't pull here and sag there.

Among the pretty house gowns for the coming season I see many pongees in light tan, brown and bleached. The latter are the most dressy, but are very delicate, being trimmed with self colored embroidery in raised designs and edged with lace generally of the silken guipure variety. This is in tan shades and cream so as to match the silk exactly. Some of these light pongees are trimmed with many rows of the narrowest black velvet ribbon and have full rosettes, with long loops at the neck, at the elbows and sometimes down the front.

Ribbon in the narrow widths is to be much employed as trimming along the flounces now a fixed fact for the fall. The ribbon is half an inch to one inch wide and is laid on flat. It edges flounces or is put on in regular designs like key pattern, or diamond on diamond. It is stitched on in machine work. On some of the pretty gowns where there is more than one color rows of ribbon to match each color are gathered on one above the other. This makes a very artistic trimming. The ribbon should not be over an inch in width.

At the present moment the stores are selling off the goods left over from the spring and early summer trade, and it seems a pity not to be able to take advantage of the sales. Many pieces of goods which are really standard, such as silk warp eudoras and henriettas and mohairs, are being offered at less than a quarter of the price usually asked for them, while white made up goods which are slightly shopworn are sold for far less than the materials would cost, to say nothing of the labor. The wise woman keeps a few pennies aside for just such chances.

Hats are quite as large as they have been, but the prices have noticeably diminished. A straw hat offered early in the season for $25 was marked down to $4 yesterday. But, then, who wants to wait four months for a hat for the sake of the difference, great as it is in the price?

Bathing suits just now are much in evidence and are marked by good taste and decency. There is an undergarment in the shape of knickerbockers, and over it are skirt and blouse. The skirt and blouse are in one, and there is a waist (which does duty for a corset) attached to the knickerbockers, so that nothing will tear loose. These bathing suits are mostly made of mohair in the fine rainproof qualities, which makes them the safest of all bathing suits, for the water cannot fill the pores and weigh the wearer down. Silk warp henriettas are also excellent, as they shed water well and do not cling to the figure.

Summer parasols are the daintiest and prettiest things of the sort ever seen. Chiffons like the flying scuds are caught and blown against the frames, or at least it seems so, and then some one adds a pretty bit of pink or blue ribbon just where it will show up best—and there you are. The frames are covered with thin liberty in some pale tint, and the rest is put upon that. Deep filmy ruffles that move with every breath of air, soft rosettes set among puffs and shirrings, and flowers of different kinds made cleverly of the chiffon are among the legitimate trimmings for these aids to conquest.

Among other novelties calculated to deprive women of refreshing slumber is a new idea in trimming lace. The body of the lace is of white, black, ecru or cream, and the floral pattern is done in color and raised somewhat like the lace made by the Turkish women.

HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

Of Farm Life

Independent Women Are Finding It Pleasant, Healthful and Profitable

ONE of the very recent tendencies among women is a movement away from confining workrooms and office labor and toward the life of the open country. The drift toward the country will certainly continue. It has been found that woman can farm, that she can operate a mine, that she can carry mails over rough country roads and can even boss a foundry or a sawmill.

One of the most successful feminine farmers in our country at present is Mrs. Ella McLaughlin, whose land is in northwestern Indiana. Her agricultural business is on a large scale. Her estate comprises 2,000 acres and is called Runnymede Meadows. Its chief product is hay. A dozen years ago it was a waste of marshy ground that produced only a wild grass. This, when dried and baled, brought a small price as hay, but it was injured by the admixture of weedy flag and wild cane.

The owner eradicated the weeds. She is building an immense ditch to drain her land. The ditch has cost her $5,000. When it is finished, she will go in for general crops upon the land drained by it. Meantime the marsh land is producing 2,000 tons of hay every year. The vast crop is stacked by a lifting machine. Her steam hay presses can put into shape for the market 500 bales every day. Two hay barns, each holding 500 tons, have been built. Beside these are stables for thirty horses. Six mowing machines are required during the cutting season. Mrs. McLaughlin herself attends to the sale of all her hay. Lately she refused $100,000 for her farm. Mrs. McLaughlin's lands came to her as a bequest on the death of her husband.

Miss Mary E. Way has shown her sex what a woman farmer can do upon a small, stony New England place. It was perched upon the side of South mountain, overlooking Bristol, Conn.

Miss Way was a farmer's daughter. Like so many country girls, she became a teacher, with every prospect of continuing in that occupation till death or marriage. Her parents lived on the home farm while she went away and taught school. But both her father and mother died and left her with the hillside on her hands. She resolved to farm it herself.

MISS MARY E. WAY.

Then uprose that opposing hullabaloo always put forth by those who think they know more about other people's business than the people themselves do. One observes that these persons who know all about what others ought to do are the ones who have never made any success with their own business.

Miss Way began her farming operations in spite of the know it alls. She introduced improved methods; she bought pedigreed live stock instead of the old scrubs that were good enough for her great-grandfather. What is more, after she got new farm implements and the improved animals she took care of them.

Miss Way herself did all the farm work except the very heaviest, such as plowing and pitching hay into the barn. When she undertook the task she had already made up her mind that a woman could run a farm as well as a man. She has proved that one woman at least can run a farm better than nine out of ten men are able to do. For one thing, perhaps, she never had to spend hours talking politics at the postoffice. Except for a woman friend, she lived alone on her farm.

She rose at 4 o'clock, fed her stock, milked the cows and drove to market with her produce. She kept a fine dairy and raised vegetables and small fruits for sale. She sees a great field for women in berry culture. She herself made a specialty of dairying and berry raising. Not long ago, being called elsewhere, she sold her farm and live stock for a handsome price. As to the health to be found in farming she says:

"The open air is a wonderful tonic. No matter how tired I was I never felt blue."

At Hollliston, Mass., Mrs. Mary E. Cutler has become wealthy at gardening. Two Wisconsin girls, Mary Trestik and Matilda Meyer, are now the happy owners each of a quarter section of valuable land which they pre-empted and improved in Oklahoma.

ANNETTA M. BURWICK.

UNCLE MOSE'S RUSE.

PLAYED BEAR IN ORDER TO CATCH SLY OLD BRUIN.

Vermont Farmer Dressed Up in Fur Proved a Fine Decoy — Fellow Citizens Talk of Sending Him to Legislature.

Uncle Mose White's belled bear, which ever since it returned to civilization after its winter snooze in the mountains has been pestering inhabitants roundabout Sherburne, Vt., has been caught.

The New York World says the bear was belled by Uncle Mose last summer to drive off other bears infesting the locality, and the whole township was proud of Uncle Mose as originator of the scheme until bruin got to stealing lambs and otherwise making himself obnoxious. The animal finally got to be such a nuisance that every one was mighty glad when he holed up for the winter. Folks never expected to lay eyes on him again but with the first warm spring sun back he came and resorted to his old tactics.

The Uncle Mose wrote a letter to Hiram Marsh, a Shrewbury hunter, and in due time received a big package. Even village gossips failed to learn its contents and when the farmer took it home no one knew what it contained. Probably all the details of what followed never would have been believed had not Sim Whittaker happened to need a new augur to tap sugar trees. The one he sent to Rutland for didn't suit and so he went over to Mose's house one evening to borrow one.

As he neared the barn cross-lots he heard a noise and saw a shaggy animal rubbing his back against an apple tree. It was pretty dark, but he had no difficulty in making out the form of a big bear and he moved up an elm with such agility that he lost his hat. He had scarcely straddled a limb when he heard a hollow tinkle and glanced over his shoulder to see the belled bear rubbing up against another tree a dozen rods off.

The belled bear uttered a low whine and the other responded with a guttural grunt and moved over to Sim's tree. This finished Sim and he couldn't have uttered a sound if his life had depended upon it. At the trunk the bear stopped, looked up, clawed at the bark and sat down. At this the belled bear tossed his nose in the air, sniffed suspiciously and rolled on the grass.

Finally he moved slowly toward the barn, now and then looking over his shoulder and grunting. Evidently the belled bear must do the trailing if there were to be any further confidences. Following the waddling bear with his eyes Sim was surprised to see the dim outlines of a gun leaning against the corner of the barn. If he could only lay hands on that, he thought, he could make short work of one of the animals at least. The idea excited him, and he moved. The waddling bear heard the noise, stopped short and growled. It was a low growl, but it froze Sim into silence, and with bulging eyes he watched what followed.

The belled bear had advanced a few steps when the other reached the corner of the barn, knocked down the rifle with his paw, and picked it up in his forearms. The next instant he lay down on the weapon lovingly, wiggled the stump of his tail and stretched out on the grass. There was something unnatural and uncanny in the way he pushed the muzzle of the gun around, and when Sim heard the unmistakable sound of a clicking lock, his heart stood still.

Suddenly there was a flash, a loud report followed by a howl of rage and pain from the belled bear and Sim toppled out of the tree and struck the ground with a dull thud. The next moment he was in the arms of the shooting bruin and a voice, issuing from within the shaggy head, was yelling to him to keep quiet.

"Consarn ye," shouted the voice, "keep quiet, will ye? I hain't killed him yet."

Then the paws again picked up the gun and sent a bullet through the belled bear's head.

At this Sim went straight into hysterics and Uncle Mose had to get out of his bear skin and show himself in his proper person before he could bring his neighbor back to his senses.

Sim giggled and cried by turns, but finally struck a mental balance and then Uncle Mose explained that he had dressed up in the skin of an old she bear, borrowed from his friend Marsh. After all he was glad Sim had appeared, as he could prove the truth of the story. Mose is the most talked of man in the village to-day and they are thinking of sending him to the legislature in the fall.

REFUSED AMERICAN GOLD.

Hotel Cashier in Chicago Had Orders Not to Take in the Yellow Coin.

Who can help smiling at these benighted Turks? Certainly these doings are calculated to amuse Americans, writes Jerome Hart, in Argosy.

But stop—it is not so many years since silver was at so heavy a discount on the Pacific coast that money changers' offices were about as numerous in San Francisco as they are in Cairo. At that time there was ten to 15 per cent. discount on silver half dollars; there were no standard silver dollars then coined. Some smart skinflints conceived the idea of paying their employed wages in the trade dollar, which, although not legal tender, was worth more in silver than two half dollars. The trick was at first successful—the trusting artisans accepted the large new coins and paid their tradesmen with them. But the banks refused to accept the trade dollars from the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker.

Like lightning the news ran all over the Pacific coast, and within a week the trade dollar was discredited among the working classes. They did not know that it never had been monetized, but they now knew that it was demonetized. Is it not odd that, in an intelligent nation like ours, clever sharpers should work off on workingmen as money that which was not money at all, but merely minted bullion? And that it should pass through three hands—workmen, jobber, retailer—before it was unmasked?

Yes, there are odd things in the money line in more countries than one. Only this spring I handed a restaurant waiter a five-dollar gold piece to pay the bill for breakfast. He returned in a few moments and said the young woman cashier wouldn't take it.

"Why?" I asked "Is it counterfeit?"

"No," he said; "it ain't bad money, but she says she won't take no gold; her orders is to take paper instid."

I sent him out to the cashier in the hotel office to see if it was good there. Same report. The hotel cashier said: "Discount on gold—take nothing but paper."

I have found English gold readily taken in every place I have been. Where was it, then, that I found American gold refused. Was it in Constantinople? In Smyrna? In Jerusalem?

In none of these places. It was in the Wellington hotel, in Chicago, Ill., U. S. A., in the year of our Lord 1904, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-eighth.

WORSHIP THE CROCODILE.

The Repulsive Reptile Regarded by the Malays as a Spirit of the Water.

Many beasts and some reptiles are worshiped as sacred by the Malays along the Malacca straits. They are particularly impressed with the belief that the crocodile is a spirit of the water. Therefore, these ugly monsters are not only extremely plentiful there, but they are so daring that they make most of the water ways dangerous even for persons in boats.

The Englishmen who dwell in that part of the country declare that hardly a week passes without the killing of a native by a crocodile. The brute swims slowly along behind the rude, flimsy canoes and dugouts used there and suddenly switches his terrible tail around in such a way as to sweep the man out of the boat into the water.

Here and there along the banks of the black rivers will be seen the strips of white cloth and baskets full of fruits and rice, attached to trees or saplings close to the water. These are offerings made by the natives to some crocodile that has his haunt just under the bank.

Now and then, however, a crocodile becomes so ferocious and kills so many persons that even the superstitious natives feel it necessary to dispatch him. Then they use an ingenious and curious method. They make a small bamboo raft about three feet square and to this they attach a long rope made of loosely plaited cotton. At the end is a huge hook, to the shank of which they tie a live chicken.

They set the chicken on the raft and shove it out into the stream. The poor fowl cackles and screams, trying to release itself from the line; this attracts the crocodile, who darts at it and gulps it down. The next moment the raft bobs below the surface.

The villagers follow the course of the raft as it goes down stream and after a day or two, when the crocodile has weared himself thoroughly by his struggles, they paddle out and haul it in. The crocodile comes ashore without much fighting and is killed with ease.

It is very rare for a crocodile to escape once he has swallowed the bait, for the hook goes deep into his stomach and the loosely plaited rope is so soft that the brute's teeth have no effect on it.

A Bee's Eye.

Did you ever look at a bee's eye through a very strong magnifying glass? It is made up of lots of little eyes massed together. And yet the eye as a whole is so small that it seems incredible that it has these thousands of little parts, each one complete in itself! This sort of eye is very useful, for as the little eyes face in every direction the bee can see above and below and behind as well as in front and sideways as people do.—Nature.

Liberty Bell All Right.

A Wisconsin genius now bobs up with a proposition to mend the liberty bell so that it will ring just as well as ever. It is a great idea that will place the bell right in line with Independence hall, which Philadelphia has tinkered up until it is as good as new.—Newark (N. J.) News.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOX STOLE THE CHICKENS.

Colored Man Taught Reynard to Supply Him with Poultry from Neighboring Coops.

George Washington Alonzo Jackson, of Barnard, Vt., a negro who lives in a cabin back in the hills with his wife and three pickaninnies, has been notified by a delegation of representative citizens that he will have to pull stakes and leave town or kill a lean red fox he keeps in a cage in his kitchen. This ultimatum was delivered after much brain tissue had been worn out in solving a problem that has caused no end of comment in the village.

The New York World says that during the past few months Jackson had been deriving a considerable income from the sale of hens, which he claimed to raise at his cabin. At the same time farmers began to miss many fat and valuable pullets and capons. Suspicion attached to Jackson's method of "raising" fowls, and when it was discovered that he hadn't even a henhouse he was watched. For several days the espionage was unproductive of results, but one night an amateur detective alleges he shadowed his man to a hill back of Elder Thomas' barn, where strange things happened.

Jackson was leading by a chain what in the darkness the detective thought to be a small dog, but which eventually turned out to be a trained red fox. The fox, it is alleged, trotted along quietly behind its master until it was liberated, when it made a bee line for the elder's henhouse and disappeared within. A few minutes later it reappeared and trotted up to Jackson with a dead hen in its mouth. The watcher declares that Jackson took the fowl, put it under his coat and after a due amount of petting sent the fox back for another hen.

It was found, after searching many calf-bound and musty volumes, that no statute governing the case exists, and it was finally decided to notify Jackson to kill the fox or get out of town. Jackson will probably dispense with his pet. How he came to catch the animal and train him to hen-stealing ways is not known, but it is a fact that the man has a wonderful influence over horses, dogs and cats and possesses a mania for teaching them tricks. He has a hog which used to parade on his hind legs until he became too fat, and he makes great pets of two bullfrogs he has taught to croak in unison.

UMBRELLA SAVES A CHILD.

Little Girl Opened It and Fell from Train Lightly and Without Hurting Herself.

Ruth, the five-year-old daughter of Charles G. Walker, of Bennington, Vt., had a remarkable escape from death by falling from the platform of a south-bound train which was running 40 miles an hour.

Mr. Walker, with his two children, Ruth and Ina, reached the station just as the train was starting. The father placed Ruth on the platform on the first car and turned for the other child. Before he could pick her up the train was moving too fast for him to board it. Little Ruth was sitting on the front platform, where she managed to remain for about three miles, holding her two small bundles and an umbrella.

She raised her umbrella to prevent her hat from blowing away, and the strong current of air under the umbrella carried it, with the child clinging to it, off the train. She landed in a sand cut, uninjured. The fireman, who had happened to be looking back, saw some person leave the train. The train was stopped and was run back until the child was met. She was trudging along the track. One of the passengers on the train recognized the child and brought her safely home.

How a Young Kentuckian Won a Bride and a Thousand Dollar Bet—Other Events That Are a Trifle Strange.

"I'll bet you $1,000 you can't do it." This was the remark made some months ago by Mrs. Charles Patton, of The Highlands, near Erlanger, Ky., to her daughter, Mae Svelyn Patton, who declared she could marry Harold Barcroft White without her mother's knowledge. The couple were betrothed, and the wedding was not to take place until next fall. The girl, however, accepted her mother's bet and the contest was on. Mrs. Patton kept an eagle eye on her daughter, and the daughter and her lover were constantly watching for a chance to win the wager. Last month their opportunity came. Mrs. Patton invited a large party, including Mr. White, to visit the battlefield on Lookout mountain. In the confusion of leaving the hotel the young couple disappeared for a few minutes. When they came back they were man and wife, the girl flourishing her marriage certificate and gleefully demanding the $1,000. Mrs. Patton is the wife of an official of the Southern Pacific railway, and is rich, so she could afford to pay the $1,000. Besides, a fashionable wedding would cost her much more than that, anyway.

What girl doesn't love a hero? Thomas Taafe, of East St. Louis, a year ago saved Josie Touchette of Centerville from a negro highwayman who was trying to rob her of a diamond ring. Taafe stepped between the negro and the girl. Both men had revolvers and both began shooting. Neither was hurt, however, Taafe only receiving a bullet hole through his hat. The negro ran away and Taafe escorted the girl to the home of her friends. She was as pretty as he was brave, and every girl who reads this knows already how it all ended. They were married last week, of course.

If a wealthy woman decides to marry a peanut vender, Kalamazoo sounds just like the name of the town where Cupid would turn the trick. For many years Henry Chamberlain sold peanuts on a Kalamazoo street corner. For many years Mrs. Julia Damon bought peanuts of him. He is 69, and it isn't fair to tell how old she is, but she owns considerable real estate and has cash and stocks worth $100,000. No one suspected a romance in their lives. Their wedding came about this way:

Chamberlain until recently was the proprietor of a peanut stand on the corner of one of the principal streets of the city. At the last meeting of the common council it was decided to eject him because he insisted he could not pay the necessary license for his privileges. It is thought this move on the part of the council caused the wedding to be hastened.

At any rate, they were married and are now on their honeymoon trip.

There's something about a life on the sea that makes the sailorman jolly and lovable, whether he is 18 or 80 years old. This is true in the case of Henry B. Merrill, an old whaling captain of Greenport, L. I. He is 80 years old, and two weks ago married his housekeeper, Mrs. Sarah J. Rogers, a widow of 60. Capt. Merrill has led a roving, interesting life, having been around the world three times, landed on the eastern coast of Russia, on the coast of Alaska, stopped six different times at the Sandwich islands, crossed the equator 16 times, rounded Cape Horn four times, and helped to kill 150 whales. He was also a forty-niner and saw life in the California gold fields.

There is something pathetic in the romance of Edward O. Smith, chief clerk of the West Shore railroad at Weehawken, N. Y., and Carrie Reed. They were married after a courtship of 11 years. She waited all that time until he could provide a home for her. Their wedding day was on Tuesday and on the following Saturday night he was asphyxiated by gas in his room at Union Hill, where he had gone on a business trip.

Alligator Farm in France.

An alligator farm, stocked with young animals from the United States, is to be established in the south of France. Alligator skin has become so highly prized that the animal dealers believe it will pay well to raise the alligators on this, the first farm of its kind in the world. The skin is said to be becoming scarcer each year, and there is always a great demand for it for boots, shoes, hand bags, writing pads, portfolios and toilet articles.

The News has received advices from Somerville, direct from the friends of Alvah A. Clark, that he is willing to accept the Democratic nomination for Governor, but will make no fight for the honor. "It is said here," according to this report, "that Smith and Young have come together on Clark, and if this is true his nomination is a foregone conclusion." If the former Congressman is in the hands of such friends as Smith and Young, what will the rank and file of the party do about it? Will they "harmonize?"—Newark Evening News.

Former Senator William M. Johnson has been picked by the leaders to preside over the next Republican State convention. The leaders are said to be training Johnson for the head of the State ticket three years hence and want the people to become enthused over him. They have an idea, too, that the announcement that it will be Johnson's turn after Stokes will rally around the Stokes standard a large number of Johnson's friends who have been apathetic regarding the candidacy of Stokes. Just how far the proposed preferment of Johnson will benefit Stokes is problematical. Bergen Republicans are said to be very badly split on the subject of the senatorship. Senator Wakelee wants another term, and while the opposition has not settled on a man to make the fight against him there are anticipations that the primaries will develop torrid temperature in the Johnson-Wakelee bailiwick. The State leaders, who are desirous of avoiding factional disturbances have assigned to Mr. Johnson the difficult task of harmonizing the discordant elements. The announcement of his candidacy for the head of the ticket in 1907 is also said to have been made to assist him in quieting the troubled waters.

Many friends called at the office of the Federal Trust Company yesterday to inquire about an editorial in the New York Sun suggesting the president of the institution, former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., as the right man for chairman of the National Democratic committee in the presidential campaign.

"I did not read the editorial until today," said Senator Smith, "but had heard of it. It was very kind of the Sun to suggest me for such a responsible position and I appreciate it.

"But my time is so taken up with important business matters that it would be impossible for me to serve in such a position if the honor were tendered to me.

"If at any time in the campaign I can be of any assistance to Judge Parker and the National committee, I shall gladly render any service it is possible for me to give, as I have done in former presidential campaigns.

"Any one of the several men already named for the chairmanship would be a good campaign manager."

BABY PARADE.

Arrangements Made for Annual Show at Asbury Park.

Baby parade day at Asbury Park has definitely been set for Wednesday, August 31. The coronation ceremonies, which begin this greatest of Asbury Park's celebrations, will be held in the Casino the Monday evening preceding. A stage director has been engaged from New York, and the Children's Carnival Association directors promise something more elaborate and beautiful this year than ever before. Besides the Queen, who has not yet been selected, there will be a Princess Cinderella, a Prince Charming and the same number of maids as before. The firemen's parade will be Tuesday afternoon, and that evening the masque carnival will give every one an opportunity for fun.

More than $200 worth of loving cups have so far been given by hotel keepers as prizes for the baby parade, and it is expected that every representative house here will present its award in the shape of a cup.

Keep it in Mind.

Don't forget the excursion of the local Methodist Sunday-schools Thursday. It allows a full day to enjoy the ocean breezes at Asbury Park.

GOLF.

The Westfield Golf Club team will play a return match with the Arsdale Golf Club at East Orange on Saturday. The only event on the home course will be the Governors' competition.

Considerable interest is now being shown in the approaching amateur championship play at Baltusrol, as Frank O Reinhart holds the amateur record for the course, a 73. DIAMOND DUST.

The Aeolians were shut out at Summit on Saturday, 2 to 0. Ramsey, of High Bridge, applied the brush for the home team.

Fred Dunavan witnessed the baseball game yesterday between the New York and Chicago Americans in New York. The home team won by a score of 1 to 0.

Supporters of the Alis team have been rather scarce since Saturday's defeat and all sorts of explanations do not have a tendency to heal the sore spots as a result of the contest.

Cregan's catch of Rochford's line drive in Saturday's contest with Westfield, was one of the sensational plays of the season. Had not the sphere been caught, the batsman would easily have made a home run.

If the Alis management could capture another man of Cregan's ability to play right garden, there would be a decided improvement in the outfield. Both he and Dietrich are of the first-class order. McGoey is too heavy for an outfield position.

If Alis had won from Westfield on Saturday, it was the intention of Eugene O'Reilly, one of the fans, to visit the clubhouse, in company with his piano player, and give the members and friends a programme of music. 'Gene had his violin all tuned for the occasion, but alas, it was not needed.

RAILWAY TRACK HIS BERTH

JOHN DUNN, DRUNK AND DRESSED UP, NEARLY RUN DOWN BY ENGINE.

Too drunk to care much where he rested, John Dunn, a visitor in town, selected the center of the Jersey Central west-bound freight track off Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, as a sleeping place. He had been there but a few moments when a drill engine in charge of John Monohan, of Dunellen, bore down upon him. The sleeping man was seen by the crew and Monohan blew a warning whistle but to no purpose. He stayed just where he was and when the engine was brought to a stop directly over him, he merely raised his head and advised the men to "G'way." He was picked up and hustled down the embankment to the street, all the while uttering protests at being disturbed.

A few moments later Dunn climbed the embankment again and this time stretched himself out between the rails of a passenger track on the railroad bridge. Several people who had been watching his movements decided to call the police and headquarters was telephoned. Driver O'Gorman, of the patrol wagon, responded and rescued Dunn from his perilous position a few moments before a train passed over the spot. The sight of the officer sobered him somewhat and he begged not to be arrested. He was a stranger in the city, he said, and had come to visit a friend on Watchung avenue. Several young men volunteered to escort him where he wanted to go and he was placed in their care.

Becker Must Keep the Peace.

Charles Wren's complaint of assault against George Becker, of Avon Park, was heard by Judge VonMinden, last evening. He found Becker practically guilty as charged and bound him over to keep the peace with the warning that a recurrence of any trouble would result in his being sent to jail. The disturbance which led to the case occurred at Avon Park last week and was reported in these columns.

PASSENGER TRAFFIC SELDOM PROFITABLE

General Manager W. G. Besler's Statement Applies Not Alone to the N. J. Central.

HAULING FREIGHT PAYS

CENTRAL DOING BIGGEST BUSINESS IN ITS HISTORY.

Carrying Ice From Lake Hopatcong Brings in Good Money—Rolling Stock is Now in Good Condition.

In an address delivered in this city a few months ago, Vice President and General Manager W. G. Besler, of the New Jersey Central, made the announcement that there is little profit for a railroad in carrying passengers and that it is often done at a loss. Railroad officials have facts to substantiate the statement. It is not in carrying passengers, but in freight traffic that a railroad makes its money.

Passenger trains, thoroughly equipped, represent many thousands of dollars and they would have to do an enormous business to make up this expenditure. As a matter of fact, the railroads do not oftentimes make enough money on passenger traffic to warrant the outlay, which in this day has become a necessity, owing to the demands of the travelling public.

The New Jersey Central today is handling more freight than at any other time in recent years. The number of freight cars handled in a single day runs up into the thousands and the work of keeping them moving is no small task. There are times when the company is hard pressed for cars and some clever work is necessary to meet the business that comes along.

Just now the traffic in ice is an extra consideration. The shipments from Lake Hopatcong represent a good sized business in itself, while the shipment of fruit, as well as milk, from the country districts is no small item in this department of the Central's work.

The annual statement of the New Jersey Central, soon to appear, will show a big increase in earnings over the preceding year in every department. This pleases the directors and especially the stockholders, for the latter do not always care so much how the business is done so long as they receive their dividends. When these fail to appear there is general complaint and officers and directors "get busy" in an effort to remedy the existing difficulty.

While the operation of passenger trains has long been considered a work of science, the same may be said of the freight and coal business. The same care has to be exercised and it is the duty of those in charge of this work to know exactly every day the amount of business done. At 10 o'clock each day it is possible to tell to a penny the amount of revenue for the past twenty-four hours up to 7 o'clock each morning.

An important factor in the increasing business of the New Jersey Central is that the rolling stock is now in first-class condition.

CLOCK GOLF POPULAR.

Hillside Women Prefer it to the Usual Game on the Links.

The clock golf competitions at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club this season have become very popular among the women. They prefer to engage in this sort of competition rather than make the rounds of the course. A competition of this kind will be held at the club on Saturday, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers offering two cups as prizes. On the following Saturday there will be competition for two cups offered by Mrs. T. W. T. Maxwell. Other prizes for these competitions have been given this year by Mrs. Charles Freeman, of Colonia, and Mrs. Walter Gaston, of this city.

All Aboard for the Shore.

The next best thing to a vacation is a day at the sea shore. It refreshes, invigorates and makes one feel satisfied with the world in general. The annual excursion of the First, Grace and Monore Avenue M. E. churches takes place tomorrow and it affords just the opportunity for such an outing. The train leaves the North Avenue Station at 8 o'clock and does not start on the return trip until 7:10 in the evening.

Off for Europe.

Henry Pedifious, of Washingtonville, left yesterday on the "Kaiser Wilhelm" for Europe. He will be gone the remainder of the summer.

TWO INJURED IN COLLISON

BICYCLE RIDERS COLLIDE, CHAS. B. MORSE RECEIVING SOME BAD CUTS.

Charles B. Morse, of Franklin place, and Charles Gulick, of South Second street, riding wheels, collided with great force at Plainfield avenue and Third street, last evening, receiving severe injuries. Both were thrown to the ground and scraped along the hard macadam, getting cut and bruised in a dozen places.

Morse was probably the worst hurt of the two. He was badly stunned for several minutes and it was with difficulty that he regained his feet. He was taken to the office of Dr. Norman Probasco in a carriage, and the physician had to insert stitches in a gash in the back of his head and dress cuts on his hands and knees. Gulick was also badly stunned and lost a great deal of cuticle from his face and hands. He was assisted to his home.

The accident was due to Gulick's carelessness in racing with another bicyclist, both being without lights. His wheel and Morse's were wrecked.

SEEING JERSEY BY TROLLEY

PARTY OF YOUNG WOMEN OFF FOR PLEASANT VACATION OUTING.

Instead of going to sea shore or mountains to spend their vacations, a party of local young women composed of the Misses Frances Weisman, Marguerite Kennedy, Marie Nelson, Stella Kriney and Josephine Murphy, started yesterday on a novel trip planned by themselves. They will spend their allotted two weeks' leave of absence from Boehm's store, where they are employed, by trolley in the southern part of the State. They left yesterday for Philadelphia and after viewing the points of interest within its limits will go to Atlantic City. Afterward Cape May, Sea Isle City and many other places will be visited, principally the important cities in Cumberland, Cape May and Camden counties.

The young women claim that they will get more fresh air and recreation in this way than in any other they might devise, besides having an opportunity to visit many places at little expense. Similar trips on a smaller scale have been taken by Plainfield parties before but this is the first time where a party has made it a vacation affair.

SUMMIT OUT IN THE COLD

NEWARK NEWS THINKS IT WILL GET NOTHING POLITICALLY THIS YEAR.

The city of Summit seems to have made up its mind to become a prominent factor in Union County politics during the coming campaign. It has already assumed the role of "the Republican stronghold in the upper part of the county, that has never had any county office whatever." But it is very doubtful if Summit will be given anything this year, faithful though it has been for many years. Elizabeth, though Democratic, has the county prosecutor, the county collector, the State Senator, the member of Congress, the United States Senator, the chancellor, the surrogate and a number of the Assembly. Rahway, also Democratic, has the county judge, the freeholders' clerk and the county clerk, the latter by far the best office in the county. Plainfield, which is the banner Republican city and the seat of almost all the dissensions in the county, has the sheriff, the county attorney, a member of the Assembly and the director of the Board of Freeholders, and now it wants and is likely to get the newly-created office of registrar of deeds. Summit is making a demand for the latter, but Plainfield has the grip on it. It is barely possible that Summit may be given a kind of complimentary vote on some citizen who is "also mentioned" as a candidate for the Assembly nomination, but need hardly look for anything of more importance.—Newark Evening News.

Rev. Mr. Shott to Speak.

Rev. Gideon M. Shott, of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, will address the men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. Horace J. Martin will sing, and there will be violin selections by George H. Spier. The meeting will commence at 4 o'clock.

"Rex" Won First Money.

"Handsome" McDonough won first money at Bethlehem, Pa., in the trotting races with A. C. Blair's trotter "Rex." The horse ran in 1:19¼. McDonough will drive "Rex" again at Trenton tomorrow in the Eastern circuit races.

TRANSFER OF 'PLAINS NINE TO SOMERVILLE

Plainfield and Scotch Plains Men Compose Reorganized Team at the County Seat.

FIRST GAME SATURDAY

"SMILING JIMMY" MONTROSS SIGNS AS PITCHER.

Allen to be Behind the Bat and Enright on Second Base—Cruzius to Play at Short—The Lineup.

The newly-organized baseball team that will represent Somerville on the diamond for the balance of the season, will play its first game on Saturday with the Celluloid A. C., of Newark. The contest will take place on Altamont field which is now undergoing extensive repairs preparatory to the opening. This team is composed chiefly of Plainfield and Scotch Plains players, the organization in the early part of the season playing at Scotch Plains.

The Celluloid's are rated as one of the best semi-professional teams in the State and the Somerville fans are looking forward to a fine contest. Montross and Allen will be the battery for the home team and no doubt there will be a large crowd present to see how the new players deport themselves.

Altamont field, when put in condition, will be one of the best ball grounds in the State and Manager Chester A. Cawley is making arrangements to accommodate the big crowd expected.

This will be the lineup for Somerville in Saturday's contest:

Montross, p; Allen, c; Baldwin, 1b; Enright, 2b; Cruzius, ss; Devans, 3b; Taylor, lf; Flannery, cf; Daly, rf.

Manager Cawley is now anxious to arrange a series of games with the Alis Club, and no doubt the teams will get together in the near future.

New School for Boys.

The Sebring Homestead property at Sebring's Mills, owned by Charles Sebring, of this city, has been leased to Major E. H. Baker, of Maine, who will establish in it a school for boys. The lessee has ordered extensive alterations to be made to the buildings and will take possession in September. He formerly conducted a school in Maine and has many applications for the new place.

Arrested for Disorderly Conduct.

George Buss, who lives on South Second street, has brought complaint at Justice Mosher's court against Jacob Herman, a neighbor, on grounds of using violent and profane language to him and his assembled family at his home Saturday night. Justice Mosher has set the hearing at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. W. G. DeMesa, Esq., represents Mr. Buss.

Democratic Outing.

Local Democrats will be well represented at the annual outing of the party to be held at Point View Grove on Long Island Sound on Thursday, August 25, under the auspices of the Democratic City Committee, of Elizabeth. The committee has chartered the steamer Cygnus and every arrangement has been completed for a fine time.

May Meet at New Market.

New Market may be the scene of the annual reunion of the Twenty-eighth Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, this year. The suggestion was made at a committee meeting in Perth Amboy last week and it was received favorably. A further meeting is to be held August 5, when the place and date will be definitely decided upon.

To Erect a Dwelling.

Mrs. A. H. Dupuy, of Woodland avenue, has secured a permit for the erection of a house at the corner of Park lane and Woodland avenue. Work has already been commenced on the foundation excavations. Mrs. Dupuy will occupy the house on its completion. Fred L. Lancaster, the architect drew up the plans.

Form Law Partnership.

Former Assemblyman Wm. Newcorn and Frederick J. Huff, Esq., have formed a law partnership firm and will have two offices, one on West Front street and the other at 187-189 Market street, Newark. Mr. Newcorn will attend to the office here and Mr. Huff will look after the Newark office.

—The finest Jersey corn and Jersey tomatoes, just the thing for dinner, at Neuman Brothers tomorrow. A new lot will be in the large vegetable display.

F. W. YATES BOOMED FOR THE MAYORALTY

Strong Element Wants to See Popular Man Named by the Democratic Party.

GOOD BUSINESS MAN

VINCENT L. FRAZEE ALSO MENTIONED IN CONNECTION WITH NOMINATION.

Yates Not An Active Worker in the Party, But Would Draw Votes—Mr. Buckle the Only One Considered by Republicans.

While Former Councilman Vincent L. Frazee has all along been mentioned by the local Democrats as their choice for the coming mayoralty nomination, Fred W. Yates has now been named by members of the party as the likely selection. The announcement was made by one of the Anti-Hearst Club members today who stated that if Mr. Yates would accept it, their chances of electing him would be excellent. When his name was broached a short time ago, he said, the suggestion was received with enthusiasm.

Although Mr. Yates has not been prominently identified in local politics he is a staunch supporter of the Democratic party and has always been interested in its welfare. He is a close watcher of city affairs and being possessed of unusual executive ability would make a capable man for the position. He is popular with the Democrats and the city at large and would no doubt receive the entire support of the former and many others.

In Republican circles no other name is mentioned beyond James F. Buckle and it is a certainty that he will head the city ticket.

LACK OF EXEMPTION COSTLY

FAILURE OF REPUBLICAN PARTY TO PASS AN ACT MAY TELL AT ELECTION.

What effect will the recent action of the court in taking away the $500 exemption from militiamen, veterans and firemen have on the coming Presidential election is a question that is agitating the minds of many. That it will result in the loss of votes to the Republican party seems to be the opinion of those affected by the new order. A member of Co. K, who is affected to the extent of $20, that being his tax minus the exemption, said today, that he felt sure that the militiamen would take advantage of their right to vote and resent the action of the Republican Legislators in refusing them exemption.

It is argued that inasmuch as the militiamen give considerable of their time to the State and stand ready at any time to be called out for one purpose or another, they should be allowed something for such services. Another thing that tends to make the militia aggrieved at the Republican party is that the Democrats attempted to secure legislation that would continue this exemption and the purpose was defeated by Republicans.

There are a number of members of Co. K who are affected by the new law and they all feel the same toward those who took their exemption away. They declare that they will not support the Republican ticket.

It seems to be the general wish of the State militia that the Dick bill become a law for in this measure the soldiers see many things that they believe would be to their advantage and would give them such rights and privileges and they think they are entitled to. It is said that the firemen, as well as veterans sympathize with the militia and will vote with them.

Westfield Playing at Trenton.

The Westfield team plays Trenton Y. M. C. A. on Association field, Trenton, this afternoon, for the fourth time this season. So far this star aggregation has beaten the Trenton team two out of the three games played, and they are determined, according to reports, to return to North Jersey today with another game on the right side of the ledger. Hickman, Westfield's former star shortstop, has returned to the team, and will be seen doing stunts on the infield. Ray Egner will do the twirling for the home team, while Red Waller will do the act for the visitors. The Westfields will line up as follows: Cotter, c.; Waller, p.; Hickman, ss.; Rotchford, 1b.; Supple, 2b.; Barry, 3b.; McManus, lf.; Mallon, cf.; Goldstein, rf.

ALIS CLUB DECIDES TO RETAIN JOHNSTON

Decision at Meeting Last Night That Manager is Not Responsible for Defeats.

LOYALLY SUPPORT HIM

DISAPPOINTED IN GETTING GOOD PITCHER FOR SATURDAY'S GAME.

Badgley Could Not be Kept—Wolfe Went Back on His Word—To Strengthen the Team.

Following an informal conference of those interested in the management of the Alis Club baseball team, last night, it was unanimously agreed that George Johnston should continue as manager for the rest of the season and he has consented to do so. That Mr. Johnston was caught without a stronger pitcher than Davis, does not appear to be his fault. He depended entirely on the word of Wolfe, now of the Washington Americans, to pitch for him and knew of no change until 11 o'clock Saturday morning, when he learned that Wolfe was called to Washington, where he pitched that day.

The other members of the baseball committee have declared their loyalty to Manager Johnston and say that they will stand by him in his efforts to put the team in a leading position. The management assures the baseball public that everything will be straightened out for Saturday's contest at Westfield.

As for retaining Badgley, the Lehigh twirler, the committee states that it was impossible to keep him here for the reason that he would not agree to the proposition made to him and an extra pitcher could not be carried under conditions set forth by Badgley. For this reason the Lehigh man went to Washington, N. J.

Prominent Mason Dead.

Edward S. Kline, forty-six years old, one of the most familiar figures in Somerville railroad circles, passed away at Somerville yesterday, from a complication of diseases. For some time he was a railroader at Phillipsburg and after he came here, for a score of years, he was the conductor on the South Branch Railroad. He was in high standing in Masonic circles. A widow and daughter, Mrs. H. V. Wyckoff, of Elizabeth, survive. The funeral will be held Friday at Phillipsburg.

Baby Show Prizes.

The value of the prizes for the baby parade at Asbury Park this year will exceed $1,000. There will be more silverware, consisting of loving cups, tea sets and similar articles than ever before, and very little of the dry goods nature. The Carnival association has consistently urged silverware, because the prize winners always prefer this; it is permanent in its character and becomes a memento that can be kept and prized for a number of years.

Drunk Predicts His Death.

Alternately singing popular songs and declaring that he was going to die, Charles Woods was placed in a cell at police headquarters this morning. The police patrol picked him up on Church street where he was endeavoring to sleep off an early "jag." If he doesn't die he will appear before Judge Runyon this afternoon.

Matinee Meet at Somerville.

The Somerville Horse Show and Driving Association will hold its first matinee meet since the new speedway was opened, next Saturday afternoon in East Somerville. There will be four class events open to Somerville, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Three Bridges and Flemington horses. Admission free.

One More Physician.

Gustav Geissner, formerly of Hamilton, O., a new official at the Manganese Steel Safe Company's plant, has rented the Walter Moore house at 224 East Fifth street, through Charles Hand's agency. He will occupy it with his son, Dr. C. A. Geissman, who will establish a local practice.

Kelly Boy Doing Well.

Nicholas Kelly, the small boy shot in the eye by a playmate, Sunday afternoon, is doing nicely at Muhlenberg Hospital. The physicians have removed a great deal of the powder grains but as yet are unable to state whether the sight has been destroyed permanently or not.

Going Abroad.

Former Mayor and Mrs. Wm. L. Saunders, of Rockview avenue, will sail tomorrow for Europe.

ROUND UP OF YOUNG TRAMPS

FOUR ELIZABETH BOYS CAUGHT ON FREIGHT TRAIN.

In a raid on a Jersey Central coal train near Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, Patrolman Overbaugh and Driver O'Gorman, of the police patrol, captured James Delaney, aged 14; Joseph Heck, 21; Robert Cameron, 17; and John O'Donnell, 20, all of Elizabeth. They were locked up at headquarters and will be given a hearing this afternoon as City Judge Runyon was unable to hold court this morning.

The local police received word from Dunellen by telegraph that a gang of hoboes was on a passing train, acting disorderly and throwing coal from cars at houses along the track. Patrolmen Overbaugh and O'Gorman stationed themselves at Park avenue and when the train reached that point the engineer slowed up. There were seven in the crowd on the cars and when they beheld the bluecoats, all fled. After a chase over the tracks the four mentioned were overtaken.

COLORED PEOPLE'S OUTING

SALT WATER DAY AT SOUTH BEACH DRAWS 500 FROM HERE.

Members of the Calvary Baptist and Mt. Zion A. M. E. churches, to the number of five hundred, left the North Avenue Station this morning for South Beach. Nine coaches were engaged to carry the excursionists to their destination. The affair was in charge of Rev. Scott Wallace and Rev. Mr. Ashley, pastors of the two churches.

Accompanying the crowd was the Plainfield Colored Cadets, an organization two weeks old, in charge of Captain James Boylan, of Madison avenue. The cadets were in uniform and carried wooden guns. When they reached the station they gave a short drill, and won the applause of the crowd. Captain Boylan formerly served six years in the Sixth Virginia Infantry, colored, and after he came North the regiment was drafted for service in the Spanish-American War, and Boylan did not go to war. The local organization now has a membership of fifteen.

Conductor Thomas Flanagan was in charge of the train. The trip was made by the way of Cranford Junction. The excursionists will return late tonight.

LOCAL FIREMEN AT AMBOY

CHIEF DOANE AND OTHERS WITNESS TEST OF FIRE ENGINES THERE.

Chief T. O. Doane, Captain Feiring, Driver William Ross and Engineer Charles Smith, of the local fire department, formed a party which witnessed the testing of two new American fire engines at Perth Amboy, yesterday. That city is considering their purchase and the Plainfielders and other firemen were invited to assist the local experts in watching the steamers work. Both Chief Doane and Engineer Smith gave valuable pointers that were gratefully received by the Perth Amboy officials.

The Plainfielders were greatly struck with the poor condition of the water supply, mud issuing from the hydrants for ten minutes, and they did not neglect to speak of the clear aqua pura that this city enjoys. Many of the Amboyites were surprised when told that mud is an unknown quantity in Plainfield water.

Sold Her Out.

James Wilkison, of West Third street, who was arrested Monday and taken to Newark on a charge of petit larceny, was arraigned in court at the latter place yesterday and held in $350 bail for appearance before the Grand Jury. The complaint against him was made by Mary Taylor, of High street, who asserts that while she was visiting in Morristown, Wilkison and a woman named Margaret Komisky, sold a quantity of her furniture to a second-hand dealer. The articles disposed of in this way, she says, are an iron bed, some chairs, a washtub and a razor, the whole valued at $18.

Rushing Work on Nurses' Home.

Work on the nurses' home adjoining Muhlenberg Hospital has been pushed forward with great rapidity during the spring months and the roof is now finished. This completes work on the exterior of the building but there is as yet considerable work to be done within. If the workmen continue to make good progress, the building will easily be ready for occupancy by winter.

MEAT PRICES HERE STILL REMAIN HIGH

Local Wholesalers Expect No Change, While Situation in the West Remains the Same.

LITTLE BEEF COMING

DECREASED DEMAND IN PLAINFIELD USUAL DURING JULY AND AUGUST.

Condition at Chicago—Colored Men Being Imported to Take the Strikers' Places—One Man Killed.

Despite the importation of colored strike-breakers and every effort made to start shipments of beef from the Chicago yards, there is no prospect of immediate change in the local meat situation. Last week's prices still prevail and are likely to for weeks to come. The fact that less meat is consumed during July and August than at any other time in the year is one reason why Plainfield's supply is holding out.

At the Union Beef Company's office this morning, it was said by Manager Tolles that his house is receiving a small amount of dressed beef and that in all probability it would keep coming for some time. No big shipments have come East in two weeks, he said, but the small lots dealt out would meet the greatly decreased demand. Speaking relatively of prices he expressed the opinion that no change would be made while the trouble continued in the West.

The strike is now centering in Chicago and from an orderly band of Union men, the butchers have become furious by the tactics pursued by the packers. Thousands of colored men are being brought into the city and placed at work in the various yards and meetings between the two sides have resulted in rioting and bloodshed. Yesterday one striker was killed and several others badly hurt in a clash which occurred before a packing yard gate. The disturbances are still being looked after by the police but if bloodshed continues Mayor Harrison will call for troops.

Michael J. Donnelly, leader of the strike, said yesterday, that he looked for no immediate settlement, and as the fight was on, all that he and his men could do was to stick it out. There is some talk of the teamsters joining the butchers and rumor has it that if the railroad employes are called upon to refrain from handling meat cars they will do so at once. This would lead to trouble extending to the Eastern railroads.

WALTER FISHER WEDS.

Miss Anna Donovan, of This City, Become His Bride Two Weeks Ago.

Considerable surprise is occasioned by the announcement of the wedding of Miss Anna Donovan, of Liberty street, and Walter Fisher, formerly of Watchung avenue, but now of Dover, Morris county. The couple was married Saturday night, July 16, in the Presbyterian parsonage, Succasunna, near Dover, by the pastor, Rev. E. H. Stoddard, and they are now living at Dover, where the groom is employed.

The bride was for several years employed at the Crescent Embossing Works, and the groom was engaged as head cutter at Herzig & Kapp's skirt factory on Watchung avenue. Mr. Fisher left this city several months ago to accept a position at Dover. Two weeks before the time appointed for the wedding, Miss Donovan went to Dover to visit friends.

Fresh From Newark's Brainery.

In Plainfield, where the newspapers sometimes reflect political views of Charles Arthur Reed, comes the editorial announcement that "Mr. Clark is what is termed a strong card politically and would keep Edward C Stokes on a hustle if he desires to succeed Governor Murphy." In this connection it may be noted that while Mr. Reed is a dead Republican he is still the son-in-law of Mr. Clark.—Newark Evening News.

To Tell of St. Louis Fair.

Harvey Thorn will speak on the sights of the St. Louis fair tomorrow evening at the regular meeting of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W. His talk will more especially deal with the sights at the fraternal congress building where the A. O. U. W. has a handsome exhibit. Ice cream and cake will be served at the conclusion of the talk and a lodge smoker will be enjoyed. Two propositions are to be received at the business meeting.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On July 31 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40, and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes.

SNAP SHOTS.

SIDE LIGHTS ON TIMELY TOPICS NOTED IN PASSING.

Plainfielders who remember the vicissitudes through which Music Hall passed previous to the time when Maze Edwards grasped the managerial reins, will recall that Erwin Neighbor, the genial North avenue restaurateur, was boxoffice man, press representative and general superintendent of affairs. During one of last week's breathlessly warm days Neighbor dropped into a reminiscent mood and spoke of the hard times they had to keep the heating apparatus of the hall in order.

"It was just eight years ago," he mused, "that I was placed in charge of the heating and I resolved that was going to have the hall warm or lose my job. The Corse Payton Company was playing there at the time and the weather was bitter cold. The night before the company opened I had the fires started and told the men to pile on all the coal they wanted to make things comfortable. Well, they obeyed orders and for once patrons did not have to keep their overcoats and gloves on while enjoying the play. All would have gone well but for the fact that the coal bill was rendered the management the next week together with word from myself that our stock of anthracite was out. After that the office of heat director was declared vacant and I was looking for a new job."

AMUSEMENTS.

Pretty girls in pretty costumes were the all pervading feature of the entertainment presented at the New York Theatre Monday night for the first time in New York. It was called "The Maid and the Mummy," and was described as "a musical melange." Richard Carle wrote the book and Robert Hood Bowers the music. Mr. Bowers has considerable cause for self-congratulation. Of tinkling music there is no end. One song in particular, "Julia," was sung over and over again. The audience could not seem to get enough of it, which was mainly due to the excellent work of the chorus and Edward Garvis, who gave the verses with an unction that was highly entertaining. There was no star, but the cast contained a number of well known and competent players. Mrs. Annie Yeamans got a rousing recepiton when she tripped on with the agility of a young soubrette. Richard F. Carroll and Louis Wesley were amusing, and Miss Adele Rowland made a pronounced hit. The theatre was packed.

BOOKMAKERS INDICTED.

Grand Jury's Action May Close Harlem, Hawthorne and Worth.

CHICAGO, July 27.—After indicting twenty-four bookmakers the grand jury ordered Sheriff Barrett to take immediate steps to stop all gambling at the race tracks in Cook county. Before leaving the jury room Sheriff Barrett promised the jurors that he would comply with their request in every detail.

If the orders of the grand jury are carried out it will mean the absolute suppression of any bookmaking or gambling whatever at Harlem, Hawthorne and Worth race tracks. With the ban against betting enforced it is believed the tracks will be compelled to close their gates, as was the case at Washington park when Mayor Carter Harrison prohibited all forms of betting at the South Side track in June.

The notification to Sheriff Barrett to put a stop to all forms of betting on the race tracks under his jurisdiction came too late for him to take any action in the afternoon, but the sheriff said that the crusade against the bookmakers would begin immediately at Hawthorne.

Among the bookmakers who were indicted are Fred Cook, owner of English Lad; Steve l'Hommedieu, Marcus Cartwright, B. J. Weiler, and Barney Schreiber.

Tokalon and Birch Broom were the winning favorites at Hawthorne. The other four events went to three well backed second choices and one outsider.

Lord of the Vale at Brighton.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The races at Brighton Beach were run over a heavy track. In a terrific drive Lord of the Vale won the Seashore handicap, one mile and a quarter, by a head in the good time of 2:07 4-5. Lord of the Vale and Hurst Park ran head and head for a mile, then Hurst Park took the lead, but Lord of the Vale responded gamely to the whip and won. The two horses finished close together, and there were hisses and jeers as Lord of the Vale's number was hung up, many believing that Hurst Park had won. Reliable won the first race from Honiton by a head after a hot drive.

Floral Wreath at Fair Grounds.

ST. LOUIS, July 27.—Floral Wreath found the track to her liking in the fourth race, the feature of the fair grounds card, and won handily from the best field of sprinters at the track. A heavy rain just after the first race made the track sloppy and caused the withdrawal of several horses not partial to that kind of going. Athelrose, a good mud horse, backed by his owners, got left at the post in the second, but was much the best and won easily. Red Leaf had an easy thing of it in the third race.

Autoists at Albany.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 27.—The automobile tourists en route from New York city and Boston to St. Louis reached here last night. They departed westward at 8 o'clock this morning. During their stay in this city they were entertained by the local autoists. The visitors were given the freedom of the city and club privileges. Mayor Charles H. Gans delivered to their keeping a greeting to Mayor Wells of St. Louis.

Honors For the Victors.

LONDON, July 27.—The teams representing the universities of Harvard and Yale, who on Saturday last defeated the representatives of the universities of Oxford and Cambridge in the athletic contests, were given a reception by Ambassador Choate.

Dr. McDow Found Dead.

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 27.—Dr. Thomas B. McDow was found dead in his bed at his residence in this city. He had not been seen since he went to his room on Saturday night, and a physician declares that he died from "natural causes—heart disease." No inquest will be held. On March 12, 1889, Dr. McDow shot and killed Captain Francis Warrington Dawson, editor of the News and Courier. His trial caused intense excitement here and attracted general attention throughout the country. There were no witnesses. Dr. McDow claimed self defense and was acquitted.

Deposed Commander Leaves Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 27.—Lord Dundonald took his departure for England last night. He was given a farewell demonstration. Those in the carriages and the procession were entirely composed of one political party—namely, the opposition, who are championing the cause of the noble earl. But in addition to these there was a very large crowd who assembled at the depot and gave Lord Dundonald a hearty send-off. Another demonstration will be given him in Montreal.

Davis and Mrs. Reynolds Deny It.

BEDFORD, Pa., July 27.—Senator Davis emphatically denies the report that he is to marry the widow of Dr. John Reynolds of Shepherdstown, W. Va. The senator has been receiving telegrams of congratulation all day and is very indignant. He says there is not a word of truth in it. Mrs. Katherine Reynolds has also made an emphatic denial of the report of her engagement to former Senator Davis. She said there was no foundation for the report.

Will Hit the Trail No More.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., July 27.—Antonio Payquette, an Ojibway Indian guide and mail carried who carried the mail to the Soo from the Saginaw river over the snow with dog sleds years before the railroads, is dead, aged eighty-five. With the late Indian guide, John Boucher, he brought the news of Lincoln's assassination to the upper peninsula.

RED SEA RAIDERS.

Volunteer Fleet Sends Another Prize to Suez.

BRITISH SHIP TO PROTECT TRADERS

St. Petersburg Must Compensate Owners of Knight Commander and Make Apology—Russians Retreat From Pikan Pass.

LONDON, July 27.—Advices from Suez report that the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company's steamer Formosa has arrived there flying the Russian naval flag and with a prize crew on board. She was captured in the Red sea by one of the vessels of the Russian volunteer fleet.

The owners of the British steamer Calchas, bound from Puget sound to Japan, have received a telegram from Hongkong reporting that the Calchas has been seized by the Vladivostok squadron.

It is reported from Hongkong that the British battleship Ocean and three destroyers have left that port for Yokohama to protect British shipping from the Russian Vladivostok squadron.

An officer from the Russian cruiser Rossia who boarded the steamship Tsinan when the Knight Commander's people were transferred to her by the Vladivostok squadron said that the squadron had received instructions to treat the British flag with great respect.

The British government is taking energetic action in the case of the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Vladivostok squadron. All information received by the government tends to establish in the official mind a belief that an outrage has been committed for which no excuse exists in international law. Those aware of the feelings of the ministry say that all the members of the cabinet are in accord regarding the principle of the inviolability of innocent neutral shipping as well as upon the principle that a neutral ship cannot be destroyed even if carrying contraband of war.

The demands which will be made upon the Russian government will include compensation to the owners of the ship and to the owners of the goods on board the Knight Commander, an apology for the action of the Russian cruisers and an agreement that instructions be given which will prevent a repetition of such action.

A great storm has been aroused in London by the sinking of the Knight Commander by the Russians. It is regarded as a breach of international law which has not had a precedent in nearly a century.

The Standard insists that the incident cannot pass without the strongest remonstrances and a demand for full reparation. It says that the situation is still exceedingly grave, and if it continues unchanged it may involve Russia in a serious addition to her present embarrassment.

A Tientsin dispatch says that the Japanese have lost 380 men in killed and wounded in the fighting which has taken place outside of Newchwang during the last two days. The Russian losses during the engagements are not known. A small detachment of Japanese scouts has entered Newchwang during the night. About 200 troops followed, and more are expected. Crowds of Russian refugees were awaiting trains at Yinkow, close to Newchwang, to take them away.

The Chinese flag is flying over the custom house at Newchwang. It is reported that the Japanese took the Russian position at Tashekiao at the point of the bayonet.

Small bodies of Japanese are marching in the direction of Benitzu, which is forty miles east of Santai, toward Sinminting. The Japanese there intend to turn the Russian position at Liaoyang in the direction of Mukden.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says that General Kuropatkin has reported to the emperor as follows:

"On July 24 the enemy at the Phkan pass resumed activity on the south front, and a fight began on the left flank with a fusillade from the outposts near Tauchi. For the next twelve hours the enemy maintained a heavy and uninterrupted artillery fire. This artillery duel went in our favor, the Japanese batteries operating against the villages of Tiautziatung and Sautziatze being reduced to silence by 4 p. m.

"Simultaneously with the artillery cannonade the enemy made a vigorous attack in the direction of Dafangcheng with the object of breaking up the center of our position. Our troops repelled all attacks, and we retained all our positions.

"Details of the fighting and of the extent of our losses are not yet available.

"The commander of our troops who had sustained the enemy's attacks for two days and repelled them all, after giving his men some rest began to retire to the north without being molested by the enemy."

A Suez report asserts that the steamer Formosa will be released this morning. She was seized on Sunday 430 miles south of Suez.

The report says that Japanese warships have arrived in the Red sea.

Private reports from Shanghai say that the Vladivostok squadron has been seen east of the island of Formosa, 400 miles south of Shanghai and about 1,250 miles southwest of Yokohama. It is understood that colliers are awaiting the cruisers there. The further destination of the squadron is not known.

A St. Petersburg report says it is considered certain there that the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company's steamer Formosa was seized by the volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk before the receipt of instructions from St. Petersburg. It is expected that the vessel will be immediately released under the agreement entered into between Russia and Great Britain.

St. Petersburg Has Disastrous Fire.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 27.—Fire has destroyed the largest electric cable wire factory in St. Petersburg, with the loss of about $1,250,000. A large quantity of cables and wires for the torpedoes and mines intended for the Baltic squadron was destroyed.

Arrest of Ryan a Surprise.

CINCINNATI, O., July 27.—The announcement that John J. Ryan had been arrested at Brighton Beach in the St. Louis case has caused a great sensation here, where Ryan has been a conspicuous figure at the races for years. While conducting his alleged commission houses here and at St. Louis for placing bets on the races he charged that D. V. Miller of Terre Haute, then attorney in the postoffice department at Washington, solicited bribes from him through Joseph J. Johns of Rockville, Ind., for favorable orders from the postoffice department for the use of the mails in his get rich quick schemes. Miller and Johns were acquainted.

Washington Elm Cut Down.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., July 27.—Washington's elm, a famous old tree which has stood at the corner of Elm and Morris streets for more than a century and three-quarters, has been cut down. Just how old the tree was will probably never be known, but it was an ancient elm at the time that Washington had his headquarters here during the winter of 1779-80. At that time, the tradition goes, there was talk of cutting down the tree, but on account of its beauty and great age Washington prevailed upon the owner to leave it standing. Since then it has been famous as Washington's elm and has been protected in every possible way. When Lafayette came to Morristown in the early part of the nineteenth century he visited the historic tree and made a short address under its spreading branches.

City of Rockland Ashore.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 27.—The steamer City of Rockland, ashore near here, is in practically the same position as when she first struck. She gives no indication of breaking up, although it is impossible to tell the extent of the damage done to her hull. At dead low water the main deck forward is about a foot above water, but at night tide the craft is nearly submerged. The passengers brought to this city had lost their summer wardrobes and in many instances other valuable articles, while some escaped from the steamer half clad. Six horses perished, including two owned by summer residents at Bar Harbor and valued at $1,000 each.

A Fatal Rock Blown Up.

TRENTON, N. J., July 27.—"Devil's rock," a huge bowlder in the Delaware river in the rear of the statehouse, was blown up by dynamite last night in the presence of a large crowd of people. The rock formed an eddy in the river which has caused the drowning of sixteen persons within the past few years. The destruction of the rock was brought about by a popular demand, and Mayor Katzenbach turned on the electric current that ignited the dynamite.

Cawley Not Guilty.

BOSTON, July 27.—The case of John W. Cawley of Stoneham, who was arrested several weeks ago charged with the larceny of $12,300 worth of bonds of the Newmarket Light, Heat and Power company from James W. Burnham of Newmarket, N. H., came up by continuance in the municipal court. After listening to the evidence Judge Adams decided that it was insufficient to hold Mr. Cawley upon the criminal charge and ordered his discharge.

Turks Punish Bulgarian Firebugs.

SALONIKA, European Turkey, July 27.—On Sunday last a detachment of troops near Kumanova surprised a Bulgarian band of fifty-two men who were setting fire to the granaries. The band was destroyed, only two of the men escaping.

TAGGART CHAIRMAN

Campaign Executive Elected by Democrats.

MANY FAVORED SENATOR GORMAN

Headquarters Will Be Established In New York, and the Active Work Will Be Entered Upon at Once.

NEW YORK, July 27.—Thomas Taggart of Indiana has been elected chairman of the Democratic national committee, and expectations were fulfilled. Indorsed by nearly every member of the committee the day after the convention adjourned at St. Louis, it has been known ever since that only the decree of Judge Parker in favor of some other man, or the consent of Senator Gorman to accept the place, could prevent the selection of Mr. Taggart. Neither of these contingencies arose, and the Indiana man was unanimously chosen to a place for which he long has had aspirations.

Although the vote was unanimous, it was not until after it was actually in progress that opposition to Mr. Taggart's selection was withdrawn. Beginning with the return of Senator Gorman, former Senator Hill, former Senator Jones and other Democratic leaders last evening and lasting up to the moment when the committee was called to order, the strongest possible effort was made to bring Senator

THOMAS TAGGART.

Gorman into the field or to arrange a combination that would place some one besides Taggart at the head of the committee. Almost continuous conferences were held, intimations of great financial advantages to the party were made, and many expedients were suggested, even to delaying the election until after the committee's visit to Judge Parker, in order to defeat Taggart. But nothing could change the determination of his friends to force an election and, if the opposition had any reality, to compel a show of strength. Failing to secure either of the necessary conditions to defeat Taggart, the opposition acquiesced, and the proceedings of the committee were brief and harmonious.

The contest for the other officers created only a slight diversion and differences regarding them, which were somewhat spirited for a few days past, were easily adjusted.

The ticket elected was as follows: Thomas Taggart of Indiana, chairman; Urey Woodson of Kentucky, secretary; Edward Sefton of Washington, assistant secretary; John I. Martin of Missouri, sergeant at arms; Samuel Donelson of Tennessee, assistant sergeant at arms.

The most important action of the committee, aside from the selection of a chairman, was that of arranging for a committee, or committees, to manage the campaign. A proposition submitted by William F. Sheehan, slightly modified upon the suggestion of Senator Bailey, was adopted. As agreed to it is as follows:

"That the chair be authorized to appoint, not to exceed two, vice chairmen as his judgment may determine; that the chair be authorized to appoint an executive committee of not less than five nor more than seven members."

Under this resolution Chairman Taggart will select campaign managers. It is taken for granted that he will be the chairman of the executive committee, as that custom is always followed. Among those mentioned were William F. Sheehan of New York, Arthur P. Gorman of Maryland, August Belmont of New York, David B. Hill of New York, James M. Guffey of Pennsylvania, John T. McGraw of West Virginia, William H. Martin of Arkansas, John P. Hopkins or James H. Eckles of Illinois, Bradley B. Smalley of Vermont, George A. Gaston of Massachusetts, James Smith, Jr., of New Jersey, T. F. Ryan of Virginia, Governor Chamberlain of Oregon, Charles S. Thomas of Colorado and Fred T. Dubois of Idaho.

The plans of Chairman Taggart for the next few days include the trip to Esopus today, returning to New York in the evening. He expects to spend Thursday in the city consulting with a number of prominent Democrats regarding the composition of the committees he is authorized to appoint. Thursday evening or Friday he will leave for Indiana, but will return almost immediately, announce the committees, establish headquarters and enter upon active campaign work.

Military Rule Called Off.

DENVER, July 27.—Governor Peabody has issued a proclamation calling off military rule in Teller county and placing the Cripple Creek district in charge of the civil authorities. This action was taken by the governor in face of opposition from many influential citizens of Cripple Creek, who desire to prevent deported union miners from returning to the district.

Summit, now crying in vain for political pap, can fully appreciate why Plainfield revolted last fall against the arbitrary domination of the Keans.

A Western man has recently published a book, "How to keep chickens." Evidently it is intended for instruction only in towns where the population is entirely white.

What with meat prices still soaring, England getting ready to say something sassy to Russia and the Sea Serpent making his annual appearance off Nantucket, these be strenuous times. If Judge Parker would only do something beside swimming in the Hudson and sending telegrams we might look back on July as an interesting month.

The Rahway Board of Trade met last evening to discuss ways and means for the abolition of the deadly grade crossing. Several plans were suggested and they will be presented to the people at a mass meeting to be held later in the week. For the betterment of Rahway and the safety of its citizens no time should be lost in putting one of them to practical use. The crossing at grade is a relic of other days and the only wonder is that the Board of Trade did not take up the matter long ago, as Rahway has been exceptionally unfortunate in the loss of good citizens from this cause.

Fisherman's Luck.

A sextette of local fishermen journeyed to Perth Amboy yesterday and spent the day on the water with their fishing tackle. Weakfish were biting well and the fish baskets were filled on the return to town. Those who made the trip were Elvin VanName, J. Hervey Doane, James Blair, Clarence Thorn, Henry P. Vossler and Harry Dreier. The jollity which pervaded the entire outing reached its height at the lunch hour, when Vossler opened a tempting package of chocolate tarts and passed them to the men in the boat. His eagerness that all should partake caused the majority of the fishermen to refuse the dainties, but Elvin VanName and J. Hervey Doane thankfully received the proffered tarts. The joke was on them when they started to eat, however, for the filling of the tarts consisted of soft, white cotton, carefully enclosed in the tempting crust.

The family was sojourning at Ocean Grove Grove when Mr. Pitcairn was stricken.

NONUNIONISTS SHOOT

Chicago Has Big Riot at the Stockyards.

HUNDREDS OF SHOTS ARE FIRED

Police Corralled Three Wagon Loads of Prisoners—All Strike Breakers Searched For Weapons—Bread Wagons Are Attacked.

CHICAGO, July 27.—Springing from a street car on which they had been hurried to the stockyards a gang of negro nonunion men fired more than a score of shots point blank at strike sympathizers who had gathered about the main entrance of the yards.

Then the armed crowd of strike sympathizers ran toward the Swift plant, firing hundreds of shots in all directions. No one was struck by the flying bullets, however. The nonunion men were charged by the police in the yards. Fighting hand to hand with the bluecoats, three wagon loads of prisoners were hustled to the stockyards police station.

With the district in an uproar and a crowd of thousands charging the yard gates and demanding vengeance on the nonunion men, the police began the search of every one in the yards for concealed weapons. In one trip of the patrol wagon to the police station eight negroes were taken as prisoners, and on these eight men fourteen revolvers were found.

Five bread wagons of the Heissler & Junge Baking company were twice attacked by angry crowds of strikers. The drivers were attempting to take the wagons into the stockyards to deliver bread. The vehicles were damaged, but the drivers escaped injury in both attacks by whipping their teams into a gallop. Police were summoned by a riot call both times. A detachment in patrol wagons twice attempted to escort the bread wagons into the stockyards, but failed each time.

Chicago's great industry is practically at a standstill, and the general strike at the stockyards is an accomplished fact. Added to the number previously on strike, the total number idle in "Packingtown" is close to 30,000.

Rumors of renewed efforts to settle the difficulty by arbitration were thick, but upon investigation they were all found to be without foundation. When questioned regarding the situation Michael J. Donnelly, president of the Butchers' union, the organization which precipitated the original strike, said:

"I have no hope of an immediate settlement. The fight is on, and the only thing we can do now is to stick to the end."

Omaha Men Follow Chicago's Lead.

OMAHA, Neb., July 27.—Eleven hundred members of the allied machanical trades employed at the packing plants in South Omaha went on strike in sympathy with the striking butchers. This action was taken on an order from President Donnelly. Nine unions are affected.

Crook Took a Good Name.

MARSEILLES, France, July 27.—An American bearing a passport issued to Charles Kuhn has been arrested here on the charge of robbing George Mewbatt at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago. The prisoner, who is forty-five years old, had $12,000 in his possession. He traveled in company with Mewbatt on the White Star line steamer Gothic from New Zealand under the name of Henry Van Dyck.

Thomas Morrison Replaces Schwab.

NEW YORK, July 27.—The directors of the United States Steel corporation at a meeting held here declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent and elected Thomas Morrison a director in place of Charles M. Schwab, resigned. No other business was transacted.

Wreck Near Jonesboro.

BRISTOL, Va., July 27.—Several persons are reported killed in a disastrous freight wreck on the Southern railway near Jonesboro, Tenn. The track has been blocked many hours. One car jumped through a house near the track and injured the occupants.

Honors For Taggart.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 27.—At a public reception in Tomlinson hall Tuesday night, Aug. 2, Thomas Taggart will be congratulated upon his election to the office of national chairman of the Democratic party.

FALL RIVER STRIKE.

All Mills Are Idle—Operatives Gathering Food.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 27.—The cotton mill strike in this city has tied up the mills so completely that not a wheel is moving in the eighty-one mills where a reduction of 12½ per cent in wages was announced to take effect, and the places occupied Saturday by 26,000 employees are deserted.

The Hargraves No. 2 mill was the only one attempting to resume operations, but the number of operatives who reported for work was so small that the mill has been shut down.

Offers of assistance by the general public are being received by the strike leaders, and a committee will be appointed to solicit financial aid. One offer of $5,000 was received from a merchant in case the union funds gave out. Another citizen places at the disposal of the strikers 1,000 loaves of bread.

The strikers are looking to nature to provide much of their food during the strike, and large parties were engaged digging clams and picking berries.

The state board of conciliation and arbitration has left the city, and the prospect of an immediate settlement seems very slight, even to the most optimistic of the strikers.

Dutch Viewed It With Apathy.

THE HAGUE, July 27.—At the funeral of the late Paul Kruger here the sun broke out after a heavy storm shortly before the remains of the former president reached the station. About 100 persons were in the waiting room inspecting the wreaths, many of which were composed of orchids, the favorite flower of Joseph Chamberlain, former British colonial secretary. The scene was not very impressive. Spectators sometimes raised their hats, but they smoked and bore an air of idle curiosity. The only sign of genuine sorrow observed was among the women.

Cotton Production to Be Curtailed.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 27.—A special from Greenville, S. C., says: "By a vote which was practically unanimous, cotton spinners from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, who met here, decided to curtail production 25 per cent, or to a basis of 75 per cent, during the months of August and September. This action was due to the unsettled condition of the cotton goods market and to the poor demand both from home dealers and exporters."

Admiral Taylor Dangerously Ill.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Several weeks ago Admiral Taylor left Washington with Mrs. Taylor for Copper Cliffs, Canada, on his vacation. There he became violently ill, and peritonitis is feared. Mrs. Taylor a few days ago wrote that an operation would probably be necessary. A late telegram says Admiral Taylor, owing to a sudden change for the worse, had become very dangerously ill.

PRETTY GIRL BREAKS ARM.

Victim of 1904 Silk Shirt Waist That, According to Late Edict, Is Buttoned in Back.

Miss Pauline Littlestone, daughter of Josephine Littlestone, a tailor of 321 Sixth street, Braddock, Pa., will not bow in the future to the dictates of fashion, as she has in the past. She has suffered more physical pain from fashion's decree than most young women of her age, and her mother has come to the conclusion that Miss Pauline must allow fashion's mandates to go by the board.

Miss Littlestone was dressing for an afternoon party. She was trying to fasten a silk shirt waist, which fashion has said must again button up the back. Miss Littlestone did not have much time to spare and the refractory button at the top of the waist would not go into the button hole.

Miss Littlestone struggled with the button. Suddenly she fell to the floor with a cry of pain. Her mother heard her cry, and at once recognized the symptoms. Miss Littlestone's right arm hung limp by her side, and the bone of the forearm protruded through the flesh in an ugly manner. A physician found that the arm had been dislocated and also that there was a fracture of the "funny bone" which covers the nerve at the elbow.

Mrs. Littlestone decided that her daughter must hereafter make her toilet with the aid of a maid, especially when there are any questionably dangerous methods to pursue, as in the case of buttoning waists up the back.

CHOKES ON A PIG'S FOOT.

Brooklyn Man Tackles Free Lunch Too Strenuously and Winds Up in a Hospital.

Pigs' feet came near sending Thomas Corrigan, 48 years old, of No. 17 Main street, Brooklyn, N. Y., to the land from which no man returns, the other afternoon.

Corrigan wandered into the saloon at the corner of Jay and High streets. He saw a dish of pigs' feet on the free lunch counter. Selecting a foot that seemed to be the biggest, Corrigan tackled it, but not in football style. The foot slipped down his throat. Then a struggle ensued between the pig's foot and Corrigan. The latter was getting the worst of it, when assistance arrived. He jammed his fingers down his throat in an effort to dislodge the foot, but his attempts were futile. Some men in the place banged him on the back until his spinal column was almost severed, while a few tried to hold him by the feet in the hope that the laws of gravitation would operate.

The foot was stubborn. It didn't exactly cut off Corrigan's breath, but he was hurried to the Adams street station, and a surgeon from the Brooklyn hospital was summoned. Corrigan was removed to that institution, where physicians fished out the foot.

Paper Hosiery Now on Sale.

Paper gloves and stockings have appeared in the dry goods stores in the leading European cities. It is said the stockings are durable, and will last almost as long as the ordinary articles. The paper of which they are made is, during the process of manufacture, rendered into a substance closely resembling wool, and is then woven and treated as ordinary wool.

The Kind of Stuff We Buy.

Some strawberry jam was analyzed by a Nebraskan chemist, and he found that it consisted chiefly of pumpkin pulp tinted with coal dyes, with grass seed to carry out the deception.

WHAT WOMEN ARE WEARING

The Latest In Shoes—The Woman Who Dresses In Black.

Champagne and yellow are among the smart tones seen this season. A pongee or ecru linen gown, trimmed with coarse lace, is the very thing for afternoon occasions, church, the races, etc., in warm weather, especially when a costume of this description is combined with an ecru hat and champagne colored shoes.

The latest in shoes is the garden tie, made like a slipper, with a slightly heavier sole and a tiny tongue, so small that it almost escapes notice. This displays to great advantage the stocking of fine openwork or lustrous silk and is therefore suited for wear with dressy gowns.

The smart woman who wears much black should have three gowns at least, one very thin and gauzy, such as crepe de chine silk, voile or eolienne, another of fine black cloth and one of silk, inlet with black lace, to wear over black or white slips.

In lingerie, night gowns are nearly all made low neck, the handsomest being trimmed with embroidery and V shaped ruffles of lace, while others have round Dutch yokes of fine lace and needlework.

The picture shows a costume of tan veiling, trimmed with ecru revers and frills. The skirt shows the fashionable full flounce. The hat is trimmed with two yellow roses.

SUMMER SUITS.

Linen Coat and Skirt Costumes—Pongee Three-quarter Coats.

The rage this year is for bright colored linens. Red linen is one of the novelties. Ecru and lavender are always smart also. To wear with these linen suits there are charming filmy waists of embroidered muslin. Linen suits themselves are made in two styles—the frocks and frills with the very short coat and half sleeves, and the tailor made with the smart three-quarter coat, tight fitting in the back and loose in the front. There is a species of sack coat, too, which comes in linen. It is cut without any curves and is loosely belted in at the back.

The pongee three-quarter length coat is one of the smart garments of the season. It is trimmed with scarlet, with green, or the new shade of bright blue, and some of them even are trimmed with bands of taffeta of a shade to match.

Many changes can be made in a few costumes by a clever change of accessories. An ivory lace coat, for instance, may be worn with a black or a white skirt or even one of pale gray and a white blouse. The economical woman also changes the flowers in her hat to make it go with different colored gowns.

Shirt waist costumes of checked silk still continue to be the fashion, and to these are added linen coat and skirt costumes of the same fascinating black and white check trimmed with white black braid and silver buttons.

The picture shows a foulard blouse trimmed with plain, darker silk and a white mousseline de soie yoke.

EAGLE STEALS BABE.

STRANGE STORY WHICH HAS JUST COME FROM SCOTLAND.

Bird of Prey Carries Off Eighteen-Months-Old Child—Mother Finds Mutilated Form of Darling Lying on Rocks.

While a little girl about 18 months old, the only daughter of a young Sutherlandshire crofter, living about a mile from Inversbin station, on the Highland railway, was playing at her father's cottage door, an eagle swooped down, gripped her in its claws and carried her off to the mountains, where some hours later her dead and mutilated body was found by a gamekeeper.

At first there was no clew to the mystery of her sudden disappearance. The little one had been playing in the sunshine while her mother was baking bread, and her father was still at work in the fields.

Her baking finished, the mother prepared tea, and called the child. As there was no response, she went to look for her, and, not seeing her anywhere, became alarmed and went in search of her husband.

Together they searched the country road, the fields and the hillside, calling the little one's name and waiting in vain for an answer.

Crofters and gamekeepers and all their neighbors soon joined in the search in the gathering dusk, and under the supposition that the baby had been kidnaped by gypsies or traveling tinkers, of whom several had been seen in the neighborhood earlier in the week, search parties were formed to scour the countryside.

No trace of any strangers was found, however, and not the faintest clew to the little one's fate. In despair the father headed a party to search the river, though it was felt to be impossible that the child could have strayed so far.

Meanwhile, a gamekeepers' party was hunting through the dense broom which covered a neighboring hill, and while this investigation was in progress one of the gamekeepers, recalling stories of lambs being carried away by eagles, made his way toward the rocky crags near the crest of the hill.

In a crevice in the rocks he saw a tiny shoe, and in a deeper cleft a little higher up he found the body of the missing child.

The sight was a pitiful one. Both eyes were missing, and the child's face was covered with blood. From her right cheek a piece of flesh had been torn away, and on her arms, hands and neck were other wounds that told their own terrible story.

On the clothing were found, outlined in the little one's blood, the cruel marks of an eagle's claws, and clutched in the baby's tiny hand was a bunch of eagle's feathers.

The gamekeeper shouted for his fellow searchers when he discovered the child's body. Swiftly they gathered round the cleft in the rocks. There they stood silent with horror and sorrow when they saw the child. Some of them, rough, strong, sturdy men, wept.

The little one's mother was brought to the spot by the commotion, and before the news could be broken to her had caught sight of her baby's mangled body.

With a heart-broken cry she clasped the little one in her arms. She fainted, and had to be carried unconscious down the hillside to her cottage.

The news soon spread through all the countryside, and the gamekeepers took their guns and spread themselves out to search for the eagle. This has been unsuccessful so far.

Two years ago an eagle attacked and killed a deer in Sutherlandshire and fed on its body until the keepers drove it off. Lambs are sometimes missed and their skeletons afterward found on the hilltops.

It is 50 years, however, since such a tragedy as that here related occurred.

The Original of Bluebeard.

The original Bluebeards of nursery lore was Giles, marquis de Laval and marshal of France. He was a fearless general, and greatly distinguished himself under Charles VI. and Charles VII., but his bravery was completely eclipsed by his cruelty and wickedness. Wherever he went he was followed by his band of setors, sorcerers, packs of hounds and crowds of retainers. It was said that he would gain the love of women and girls and then kill them in order to obtain their blood for incantations and charms. The duke of Brittany, against whom he had committed many crimes, condemned him to death at Nantes, but later he took pity on him and remitted the sentence, so that he was strangled before he was burned.

SCHOOL OF TAMED TROUT.

Connecticut Man Has Pond Full of Pets Who Eat from His Hand and Frolic with Him.

Three years ago Joseph S. Mitchelson, of Tariffville, Conn., stocked a small pond across the road from his residence with brook trout. They have grown to be from one to two pounds in weight and are quite tame.

Mr. Mitchelson feeds the trout on raw beef, chopped fine, and plays with them much as he would with a puppy. They eat out of his hand and allow him to fondle them as he pleases.

One form of amusement which Mr. Mitchelson has invented is a sort of tug-of-war match. He fastens a piece of meat to one end of a string and then it's a tussel to see which is stronger, trout or man. The trout digs his toes into the turf, so to speak, sits back on his haunches, and pulls for fair. In reality he backs water with his fins. Then he will suddenly turn and try to run away with the bait. It is but fair to Mr. Mitchelson to say that he is like the circus manager, who always lets the woman charioteer beat the Roman.

Mr. Mitchelson has hardly tamed his trout so that they will come up into his hands, but to be stroked in that part of the body where they stow away the worm. Properly soothed in this manner he can lift a trout completely out of water without his making a flop.

Mr. Mitchelson says he had one charmed where he lived in the west so that he could carry him all around a room without disturbing the trout's peace of mind. With his trained trout he has not yet attempted so complete a reversal of natural laws, but they like to be petted, as does a child with a stomach ache.

WAS RUINED BY PRAYERS.

Missouri Man Makes Strange Charge Against Wife He Is Suing for a Divorce.

Frederick Hyatt, of Macon, Mo., a veteran of the civil war, makes a wonderful attestation as to his belief in prayer in his divorce bill against his wife, Martha A. Hyatt. The couple were married in 1860. There was a separation at North Bend, Neb., in 1881, and for the last two years Hyatt has been trying to get a decree through the circuit court here. He admits that he left his wife, but says it was because she ruined him in a wheat deal at St. Louis by praying that the market would go against him.

The prayers of his wife, Hyatt says, were answered immediately and overwhelmingly and he has never been able to recover from the effects of them. He was demurred out of court in December, but got the case reinstated. One of his depositions has got in from Los Angeles, Cal. The deponent is Hyatt's brother, C. W. Hyatt, who was entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt at North Bend, Neb., when the incident that caused the separation occurred. On this point the witness deposes: "She went out into the public street, knelt down before the crowd and prayed that her husband would become a beggar. She acted so that he had to put her on a train and send her home in order to avoid being disgraced. She was a dangerous woman and had no control over her temper."

Mrs. Hyatt lives at Clarence. She denies her husband's charges, and will contest the proceedings against her.

Peculiar State of Affairs.

It is a remarkable fact that the right hand, which is more sensitive to touch than the left, is less sensitive than the latter to the effect of heat or cold.

Paper from Refuse Hops.

The discovery has been made that good paper can be produced from the refuse hops that have hitherto been thrown away in breweries.

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL, or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

TURKEYS WENT ON A TOOT.

Flock of Gobblers Ate Corn Soaked in Whisky and Became Entirely Too Merry.

Sobering up after a bad night of it, says the Baltimore Sun, the fine turkeys on the farm of Joseph Hendrix, near Alburtis, Pa., are going around to-day showing every indication of having a bad headache. Someone had mixed whisky with their food and for a time the actions of the whole flock were something scandalous.

Mr. Hendrix came to town yesterday to make some purchases and open negotiations for the sale of one of the fattest flocks of turkeys ever raised in this section. When he was away some joker fed whisky-soaked corn to the turkeys. On his return Mr. Hendrix found his household in great excitement, the women having locked themselves up in the garret.

The old gobbler, they said, had suddenly gone crazy, and the whole flock followed suit. They gobbled, fought, tore around the yard and then, one by one, fell dead. If Mr. Hendrix didn't believe it he could look out in the back yard. There, lying where they had fallen in all sorts of helpless positions, were the turkeys, all stiffened out. The farmer examined them and finding no trace of injury, decided they had been poisoned.

Hendrix, with a heavy heart, worked for an hour digging a trench deep enough to hold 27 fat turkeys. He tossed a few of them in, then reached for the gobbler, when that old fellow opened one eye, winked at him, then went to sleep again. Investigation showed every turkey was blind drunk. Later they all recovered, but were in danger of bursting from drinking too much water in sobering off.

THIS CAT WAS SKEPTICAL.

It Refused to Believe That Desdemona and Other Stage Characters Were Dead.

The theater cat is always protruding its presence on the stage when it is least wanted, but the feline which keeps Chase's theater free of rats, says the Utica Observer, has a particularly erroneous idea of the eternal fitness of things. It was when the stock company was playing "Othello" that the cat rendered itself conspicuous, and therefore greatly disliked by its friends and actors.

Desdemona was dead, and all the other characters were dead that could conveniently die, and were stretched on the stage in various post mortem attitudes, when the theater cat suddenly made her way upon the stage.

She paused at the first prostrate body she came to, and apparently said to herself: "Ha! How is this?" Then she looked at the body hard and went up and sniffed delicately at its face to see if she could render any assistance.

"HA! HOW IS THIS?"

The body opened one eye and emitted something very much like a giggle; so the cat went on. No first aid to the wounded was needed there, at any rate. The next body was also suspiciously warm and smiling.

It did seem to this theatrical cat as if grown humans ought to be able to find something better to do than to lie rigidly on a draughty floor while a man held the center of the stage and talked. The cat moved on to another body, and was just about to nibble the ear of this one in a spirit of sportiveness—for it was breathing, too—when someone said something in a hoarse whisper, and the curtain went down amid a chorus of laughs.

WILD RACE ON SKIS.

FEROCIOUS BEAST ATTACKS A TRAPPER IN MOUNTAINS.

Downward Plunge Saves Life of an Intrepid Hunter—Hungry Fisher Was Determined to Secure His Fleeing Prey.

Homer Weston, an itinerant trapper of Canada and Vermont, was attacked by a fisher while returning from Killington peak and had a narrow escape from making a meal for the most ferocious animal that roams the northern woods.

Weston had gone up the mountain on snowshoes to visit an old hermit and credits the circumstance that he is still alive to the fact that he made the descent on skis. The snow was several feet deep and soft when the trapper left, but three days later a change in the weather caused a heavy crust to form. Being fond of skiing, he borrowed the old man's runners, and, strapping his snowshoes on his back, started home.

Weston left a point about a mile below the cone of the mountain at four p. m. and expected to be in the valley by five o'clock. At first he progressed carefully, owing to the roughness of the mountain, but finally came to more open territory, and was preparing for a long and rapid coast when one of the slippers became loosened and he was forced to stop and retie the thongs.

He was thus employed when he heard a low snarl back of him, and, looking over his shoulder, caught sight of a full-grown fisher scrambling up the trunk of a balsam tree not ten rods off. The next instant the animal was crouching on a low-lying limb, with his lips drawn back over lean and sharp fangs and his fierce and hungry eyes noting every move of the trapper. In summer a fisher will seldom attack a man, but in spring, when hard pressed for food, will take desperate chances, and Weston realized immediately that he was in a serious position. A jackknife was his only weapon, and this he immediately opened.

The next thing the trapper did was to release his snowshoes and grasp one of them firmly by the heel with his left hand. Then, keeping his eyes riveted on the fisher, he replaced the ski. The guide pole he trailed under his right arm and placed the open knife in his teeth.

"I never thought any animal could run so fast," said Weston, in relating what followed. "I don't know how rapidly I was going, but the trees shot by like blurred dots and I expected every moment to crash into one of them. But no matter how fast I went, that jet-black animal was close at my heels. Once I struck an up-grade and he leaped for my back. I was expecting this and warded him off with the snowshoe.

"The next instant I was going down hill again and he couldn't quite catch up. I had two great fears. One was that the crust on the lower slope of the mountain might weaken and the other was that I might fail to make the leap across a 20-foot brook just back of Ezra Wood's place. The hill comes down gradually to the water, and I knew that I would have to keep up an awful speed to clear it. Once on the other side I would be safe.

"How I managed to keep my feet over the next two miles I don't know, but I did, and when I came to the top of the hill leading to the brook I was going like lightning. The fisher was laying out like a pacer on the home stretch, with tongue hanging and his eyes glassy. He had stopped snarling and was saving his wind for running. But he hadn't weakened a mite. I could see the lights twinkling in Ezra's kitchen, and if ever I prayed it was to get safely to where they were burning.

"The fisher seemed to know it was his last chance, for he redoubled his efforts to get at me and sprang twice. Both times he stumbled, and this helped me, as I was losing speed. I saw a big crust drift near the brook to my right and I swung toward it, and the next moment was at the top. I gave a little spring, felt myself flying through the air, and in another moment had to turn quickly to save bumping into the henhouse close to Ezra's back door. I was too weak to shout or take off the skis, so I poled to the veranda and sat down.

"The fisher had stopped on the further bank of the brook and was panting and gasping for breath. I thought I would have a chance to shoot him after all with Ezra's gun, but he got his wind before I did and made up for the mountain. After it was all over I was so scared that I had nightmare all night."

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Beisel, of the Brandywine, Pa., team, and later of Roselle, has been taken in charge by Captain Driscoll, of the Hobokens, who hopes to develop a fine twirler. This is the man that wanted a chance to pitch for Alis and was turned down.

Captain Will Townley, of the firemen's baseball team, received word from Captain DuFlon, of the Brooklyn fire department team, yesterday, which sets the date for the firemen's return game on August 8. The game will be played in Brooklyn.

For the promotion of interest in baseball through the summer, the Common Council of Cape May has appropriated $300 to the Cape May Baseball Club in order that the organization may have sufficient funds to play every Saturday during the season.

Chauncey Burt, formerly of this city and a member of the Alis Club, has not forgotten how to twirl the leather sphere. Mr. Burt is now living in Philadelphia and on Saturday he pitched for the Salem, (N. J.) team, against Pennsville, winning by a score of 4 to 3. The Pennsville team secured three hits off of Burt, while Salem made seven safeties, one of which was made by Burt.

It is the general opinion of baseball scorers in the big league that the present scoring rules permit of too much laxity and for that reason there will be a meeting held at the close of the season to decide upon new rules. Under the present system it is difficult to find persons who score alike as regards base-hits, errors and other important plays of the game. At the meeting it is hoped to adopt more uniform rules.

As many fans are now commenting adversely on the laying of McGeoy the Alis right fielder, a glance at his record in the seventeen games he has played here, may be of interest. He has made fourteen base-hits, two two-baggers and one three-bagger. In only two contests, one against Rahway, Fourth of July morning and the other against the New York Colored Giants, July 16, has he failed to get a hit. He has put out thirty-two men of the opposing side, made ten runs, six errors and one assist.

No one doubts for a minute but that George Johnston has worked hard and faithfully for the success of the Alis team and that he has had much to contend with. There is probably no more conscientious manager to be found, but baseball crowds judge a man by results. Manager Johnston's failure to down Westfield is a hard knock for the fans. Early in the season the team had success in meeting aggregations not quite as strong, but when such nines as the Hobokens, Murray Hills and Westfield met the locals, there was a lowering of colors, much to the great disappointment of the supporters of the team.

GOLF.

An ardent devotee of the game of golf is Olaf Saugstad. During the latter part of last season he dropped out of the various competitions for business reasons, but this season finds him as active as ever and he already has a few points to his credit for the Golf Committee cup. Another familiar face missed from the course is that of Walter Peterson. Last season he played earnestly and regularly for the Golf Committee cup, only to lose by a small margin. This season he occasionally visits the course and takes part in the schedule competitions.

County Clerk Howard, of Union, will receive this week a large box containing election paraphernalia. This action in sending these boxes to the various county clerks in the State, is taken by Secretary of State S. D. Dickinson owing to the changed primary election law which prescribes that the blanks for conducting the primaries and elections must be in the hands of the election officers at least thirty days before the holding of the first primary.

More than one box goes to the county clerks in counties wherein are located the eight cities of the State, so that every facility may be afforded to the getting of the required amount of blanks in the hands of the various election officers.

HER FARE.

The summer sun was rising fast
As out from Jersey City passed
A trolley car, all new and nice,
Upon its dashboard this device:
"Trenton."

"Fares please," the young conductor said,
A damsel, hearing, raised her head
And with a sudden, startled look,
She fumbled at her pocketbook.
He waited.

Through Harrison the street car went,
Still, still above the purse she bent,
The blue-clad man in patience stood—
'Tis thus they earn a livelihood,
Conductors.

"All out for Broad and Market streets!
This car the Trenton trip completes."
The damsel breathed a heavy sigh;
A look distracted filled her eye.
"Ding-ding."

Across the fields of Jersey green
Elizabeth, her spires were seen.
The busy lass within the car
Not for a moment ceased to spar
With the reticule.

Cranford and Plainfield dropped behind,
Unseen by her whose eyes were blind
To all except her pocketbook,
Its card-case, nail-file, button-hook,
Etcetera.

"Bound Brook!" the weary fare man yelled,
And still his eager hand outheld
In vain, as by the Raritan
Relentlessly the trolley ran
"New Brunswick!"

Full many a secret cell she oped,
And through and through her fingers groped.
And when the car was slowing down
Amid the heart of Trentontown
She found her money.

"Eureka!" cried the roving maid.
"I beg your pardon; I'm afraid
I've kept you waiting. What a sin!
But any way, this trip has been Just lovely!"

SUIT AGAINST TOWNSHIP

ACTION AGAINST NEW PROVIDENCE TO RECOVER $75,000 ON BONDS.

In the Roland M. Smythe suit in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton against the township of New Providence, Union County, asking that the latter be compelled to pay $75,000 on bonds given on stock of the Passaic Valley and Peapack Railroad, the declaration states that the Legislature, in 1868, passed an act authorizing townships in Somerset, Morris, Essex and Union counties to issue bonds and buy stock from the railroad. The township appointed Jarvis Johnson, John Littell and Jonathan Bonnell as commissioners to carry out the provisions of the act.

Papers were signed in November, 1868, by a majority of the property owners of the township, authorizing an issue of $85,000 worth of seven per cent. bonds, the proceeds of which were invested in the stock of the railroad, the bonds being guaranteed by the township.

Smythe, who lives in New York, claims to have bought a number of the bonds prior to last April, and sues for the face value and unpaid interest. The interest on each $1,000 bond amounts to $1,700. Smythe says that he has thirty shares of the road, which is not being operated. The act provides that the bonds shall be paid within twenty-five years, and authorizes the levying and collection of a tax to pay whatever sums may be due at the expiration of that time, together with the interest. All bonds were required to be registered in the office of the clerk of the county. The act was approved April 9, 1868, and became effective immediately.

The Passaic Valley and Peapack Railroad Company was chartered in 1865 by a special act of the Legislature. The company had an authorized capital of 1,200,000 and was to build and operate a railroad in Union or Essex county, passing through Sprinfield Township, Union County, into New Providence Township, near the village of New Providence, then up the Passaic Valley at or near Basking Ridge to the village of Peapack, in Somerset County. In 1867 the charter was amended, permitting an extension to a point in Hunterdon County, between Milford and Frenchtown, and later another amendment was passed, giving the company the right to build a bridge across the Delaware at the western terminus. In 1870, by an act of the Legislature, the name of the company was changed to the New Jersey West Line Railroad Company.

There is no intimation in the bill to show why the defaults in payment occurred.

INSANE COLORED WOMAN'S SHRIEKS CAUSES DISTURBANCE.

"They're after me! They're after me! They want to murder me!" The above words were pealed out in the still and calm night air last night, by Mrs. Rose Scott, colored, who lives at 522 West Second street. Monday night Mrs. Scott was found on the front porch of a vacant house at the corner of West Front street and Plainfield avenue at 10 o'clock, by Officer Hamilton. She appeared at that time to be non compos mentis.

The policeman sent for the patrol wagon, and the woman was taken to headquarters. She was released by Detective McCarty at 11 o'clock and returned to her home with her husband, James Scott. She remained in the house about ten minutes when she came running out again yelling that some one was after her. She hunted up Officer Hamilton again and walked the street all night with him, saying that he was her protector.

About 4 o'clock yesterday morning she saw a milk wagon coming up the street and she started to run shrieking "here comes the students; they want to kill me." She flung her whole weight against the door of her cousin's house on Plainfield avenue and smashed it to pieces. The demented woman was again picked up on the street by Roundsman Higgins at noon yesterday, and taken to the police station. Again she was released.

The residents within four blocks of Mrs. Scott's home were awakened after midnight last night by her piercing screems. Officers Hamilton and Messler pulled the woman off of Joseph Bird's porch, where she was yelling at the top of her lungs, and escorted her to her home half a block away. Detective McCarty appeared on the scene and gave orders that if the demented woman caused any more trouble to send for the patrol wagon to take her to be examined.

It is said that Mrs. Scott was sun struck about a week ago, which has affected her brain.

This afternoon the woman was found on the Jersey Central tracks defying the trains and was in danger of being killed when the police took her in custody. She is now at headquarters and will probably be sent to an institution.

Improved Through Express Service Prevented by Lack of Crews to Run the Cars.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM

MANY OF THE MOTORMEN AND CONDUCTORS RESIDE HERE.

How the Local Service Crews in Various Sections Block the Through Expresses—Suggested Arrangements.

It has been generally reported that the Public Service Corporation would next week begin the operation of through cars between Jersey City and Trenton every hour. The improved service is not likely to be introduced, however, until the company secures a sufficient number of men to operate the cars. This, at present, is a serious problem confronting the concern. The present force of conductors and motormen is just large enough to run the number of cars now in use and does not provide for any extra help in case a man is ill or meets with an accident. As a matter of fact, the extra men have been doing regular duty.

One motorman from this city, taken on a few weeks ago, was number twenty-one in line for a steady run. Now he is number six and he has been constantly employed since taken on, not being obliged to lose scarcely any time.

Since the introduction of the through service to Trenton the company has had more or less trouble in getting either motormen or conductors who are willing to give up other runs for this one. The reason for this is that it requires that they change their residences, compelling them to live either in Jersey City or Trenton. Men with families do not like this and then the run is considered a long one for a single crew. It is said that some men have given up their jobs rather than go on the through service.

The company realizing the difficulty in getting men for these long runs, attempted an arrangement whereby the motormen and conductors could be at their own homes when off duty. This worked with partial success, although not entirely satisfactory. Now another arrangement is being considered. It is proposed to have the men take the cars over their division, changing crews at the end of each. This would permit the men to retain their present residence and it is believed would meet with the approval of the employes.

One motorman in speaking of the affair today said that at present nearly all of the men on the through service are from this city, and while they work well together they do not get along with those running other cars along the same lines. The motormen on the local service often forget to change the signal lights and will purposely hold up the through cars in other ways, it is said. This is another thing that has made it difficult to get crews for the through service.

As soon as the requisite number of men can be secured, the Public Service Corporation will start its hourly service, but in the meantime the travelling public will have to get along the best it can with the present number of cars.

St. Stephen's Picnic.

St. Stephen's church picnic will be held this Saturday, if weather permits. The church bell will then be rung at 1 o'clock and again at 1:20 in the afternoon, by which time all the children are to be at the church where they will form in line to march to the grounds of Hotel Netherwood. There will be games and sports in the afternoon. Supper and ice cream will be given to the children before they leave for home. All parents and friends are invited.

Capt. Martin on Team.

Capt. W. B. Martin, of Co. K, has been chosen as one of the members of the State rifle team to shoot for the National trophy at Fort Riley, Kansas. The New Jersey team will leave on Thursday, August 18, arriving at Fort Riley in time for practice before the shoot.

Will Inspect the Giraud Bridge.

The bridge committee of the Union County Freeholders will meet on the Giraud avenue structure this afternoon, for the purpose of inspecting the work and learning exactly what has to be done before accepting it. The contractors have practically completed it.

SOCIAL AT PASTOR'S HOUSE

OUTDOOR GAMES A FEATURE AT HOPE Y. P. A. ENTERTAINMENT.

Members of the Young People's Association, of Hope chapel, and many of their friends enjoyed a delightful social at the home of Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard on West Fifth street, last evening. In all forty were in attendance and progressive games, music and other features were continued until a late hour. In the early part of the evening the guests assembled on the lawn where outdoor games were played.

Prizes for the progressive games were won by Miss Frances Hill and Peter Sweeney. George E. Firstbrook was awarded the booby prize. A musical programme rendered consisted of piano selections by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and vocal numbers by B. C. Firstbrook, James Kermode, William Feiring and Archibald Hacquer. Refreshments were served at the close.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the affair consisted of Mrs. A. B. Lewis, Mrs. L. R. Howard, Miss Lillie Breakey and Miss Belle Slorah.

CARING FOR LITTLE ONES

KING'S DAUGHTERS DOING A GOOD WORK AT BABY CAMP.

The work of the King's Daughters baby camp on the mountain is one that is engaging the sympathy and support of everyone in the city. Those in charge have secured increased accommodations this year and a greater number of children and mothers are now cared for each week. At present there are about twenty-two at the camp. This number includes fourteen children. The benefits derived by the little ones in these outings cannot be calculated. Under the present arrangement it is possible to keep the children and a few mothers at the camp for a week.

In nearly every case a stay at the camp has been a blessing to the children as well as the mothers and they have returned home much improved. Miss Olive DeLany, the city nurse, is at the camp daily attending to the wants of the babies in cases of illness, while she is ably assisted by her mother and another trained nurse from Brooklyn.

The needs for this work are many and liberal contributions are gratefully received at all times. Mrs. Howard J. Runyon is chairman of the camp work this year, and any information concerning it can be obtained from her. Visitors at the camp are always made welcome and it is indeed a pretty sight to see the little tots enjoying the cool bracing air and the many forms of amusement provided for them.

COLORED EXCURSION.

Calvary Baptist and Mt. Zion A. M. E. People Had a Good Time.

A total of $35 was cleared from the Calvary Baptist and Mount Zion A. M. E. excursion to South Beach, yesterday. It will be divided between the two churches. This is the first time a local colored excursion has resulted so profitably.

The Plainfield Colored Cadets, belonging to the Calvary Baptist church, gave some evolutions on North avenue after the return last night. The salt air had evidently affected their drilling manual as despite proddings from Captain James Boylan's sword and hoarse shouts from a colored major the company was unable to form a straight line. The performance was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators which only added to the confusion of the recruits.

An Opportunity Presented.

While extensive alterations and improvements are being made at his clothing store, Harry Werner, of West Front street, will offer special bargains in suits for men and boys, suitable for summer wear. His stock is large and very desirable. The alterations at Mr. Werner's store will include a handsome new front with large plate glass, and when completed the place will be modern in every respect.

W. W. Warnock's Gift.

The children at the Netherwood camp were made happy yesterday with ice cream and cake aplenty. Forty quarts of the frozen delicacy and dozens of cakes were given them, the whole being the gift of W. W. Warnock, the West Front street confectioner, who frequently remembers them in this way.

FEW HOUSEKEEPERS VIOLATE HEALTH RULES

Leonard W. Gavett Engaged in Inspecting Dwellings Finds Sanitary Condition Good.

WORK IS PROGRESSING

INSUFFICIENT FUNDS WILL DELAY THE PRESENT TASK.

It is Expected That Work Will Have to be Stopped August 1—Board to Hold Meeting Tuesday.

The house-to-house sanitary inspection which is being made under the direction of the Board of Health, is progressing favorably, although it is likely that the work will have to be stopped temporarily at the end of this month. Not too liberal a sum was appropriated for this inspection at the outset and in view of the fact that it will require the best part of a year to complete it, an idea can be gained as to the scope of the work. The funds appropriated will carry the work to August 1.

L. W. Gavett is engaged in the work and he has given excellent satisfaction. In only a limited number of instances has he found gross violations of the health ordinances. As a general rule householders are more careful about the way their premises are kept. It is only in certain sections that there is any tendency to disregard the rules, and a visit of the inspector generally corrects this.

The general sanitary condition of the city today is said to be better than ever, even though the Board of Health was unable this year to secure an adoption of the municipal collection of garbage. The scheme has not been given up though, and during this year plans will be laid for carrying it into effect early next year. The Board argues that the increased cost in tax for the property-owners would be comparatively small, in fact, many instances much less than the present system is costing them.

The August meeting of the Board of Health will be held on Tuesday, when it is expected that interesting reports will be presented regarding the sanitary inspection now being made.

AGAIN WHITEWASH WESTFIELD

TRENTON Y. M. C. A. RUBS IT IN GOOD AND HARD THIS TIME.

For the second time this season, Westfield was shut out by the Trenton Y. M. C. A., at Trenton, yesterday, the score being 8 to 0. Two weeks ago the Mt. Aarat delegation was whitewashed 2 to 0. Yesterday's contest was replete with sharp plays. Ray Egner was in the points for the home team, and the visitors had to be satisfied with three hits. On the other hand the association boys tapped "Red" Waller for six safeties. Hickman, Cotter and Waller each got a single, but the clever work of the home team prevented them from tallying.

A feature of the contest was the pitching of Egner. He struck out fifteen men. Mike Leonard, of the Hobokens, covered right field for Westfield and Supple was on second base in place of Battam. Denman's pets are credited with having made five errors.

The score by innings:

Trenton..... 2 1 0 0 0 0 0 0 x—8
Westfield..... 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0

Batteries—Egner and McCune, Waller and Cotter.

Elizabeth Boys Released.

James Delaney, Joseph Heck, Robert Cameron and John O'Donnel, the four Elizabeth young men arrested for trespassing on New Jersey Central trains, were let go by City Judge Runyon yesterday afternoon. The Judge's action was partly impelled by the youthfulness of the prisoners and the fact that they had caused no great damage. All promised readily to remain off the railroad and left for home by trolley.

Lucky Fishermen.

Drs. A. H. Dundon, D. C. Adams, J. Hervey Buchanan, C. R. Thiers and John P. Powers, H. C. VanEmburgh and Mr. Smith, all of this city, had a successful fishing trip yesterday. The party went to South Amboy, where they secured a naptha launch. During the three hours on the water a large mess of weak fish and flounders was caught.

REFUSE CONSENT TO SYCAMORE ST. WIDENING

Property Owners Object to Ordinance Introduced at Common Council Meeting.

SCHEME AS PROPOSED

REPORT TO BE MADE AT NEXT SESSION OF CITY FATHERS.

No Action to be Taken Until An Agreement is Reached—Mr. Hand Favors the Improvement.

Property owners on Sycamore street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, met last evening with the members of the street committee at Street Commissioner Gavett's office, and strongly voiced their sentiments in opposition to the ordinance introduced at the last Common Council meeting regarding the proposed widening of that thoroughfare for the accommodation of traffic between Fifth street and the railroad station.

All owners of property were there or sent proxies to fight the measure with the street committee. The ordinance provides for the widening of the street to fifty feet, to more easily accommodate traffic. Sycamore street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, is now fifty feet wide, the widest street in the vicinity, and to carry out this provisions it would be necessary for each property owner to forfeit five feet of property to the thoroughfare. Of the property owners convened last evening, Charles H. Hand was the only one to consent to this and to favor the widening of the street. The other property owners were unanimous in their refusal.

V. W. Nash, Jr., Esq., who appeared for several of the property owners, and W. R. Coddington, Esq., who also came as a proxy, entered into the informal discussion for the defeat of the measure. The original issue of the measure, that the Fourth street entrance to the station made a broad approach necessary from Fifth street, was contested and the fact that the street is at present broader between Fourth and Fifth streets than it is between Fifth and Sixth streets, that it is broader than either Fourth or Fifth streets, and even broader than Park avenue between North avenue and Front street, were used as arguments to question the traffic as greater than on these thoroughfares mentioned.

After this discussion, which was carried on somewhat at length, the committee of Councilmen announced that they would consider the arguments presented and that opportunity for further discussion of the matter would be presented. At the next Council meeting they will formally report the feeling of the property owners and no action will be taken by the city until some agreement is effected.

LIGHTNING HIT ROGERS' PLANT

VALUABLE MACHINERY DESTROYED DURING STORM THIS AFTERNOON.

During the heavy electrical storm which passed over the city this afternoon, the tall brick chimney at the Rogers' Silver Corporation plant was struck by lightning. The bolt ran down the brick work into the boiler room, demolishing the greater part of the machinery. Believing the place to be on fire as it was filled with smoke, J. P. Mosher pulled fire box 41, but the wires had been struck a short time before and the gong did not work. Word was sent to headquarters by messenger and the department with Chief Doane responded. The men found nothing to do as the smoke was left after the lightning bolt had passed off.

Linemen were immediately placed at work on the alarm circuit and found most of the wires in the West End circuit were out of order. They were replaced within a short time and the entire system is now in good condition.

So far as could be learned the lightning caused no other damage in the city limits.

Mrs. Scott Not Committed.

Mrs. James Scott, who has caused much excitement on the streets by her demented actions, was not committed to the State hospital yesterday. Her husband begged the police to give her one more trial and they placed her in his custody. He had her taken home and said he would keep her where she would make no further trouble.

TO COMMEMORATE FEAST OF SANTA MARIA

Italians Plan to Hold Another Big Two-Days Celebration at Concert Park Next Month.

PYROTECHNIC DISPLAY

SALVE VELAR IS CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON ARRANGEMENTS.

Carabinieri Band to be Here Again—Two Concerts to be Given—Francis J. Blatz Treasurer.

Despite the fact that the celebration of the local Italians on the occasion of the feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel resulted in the financial loss to the committee, Salve Velard, the Italian leader, has announced that such interest was shown in the festival that a similar demonstration will be held in this city to commemorate the sacred feast of Santa Maria, Mother of God, on Wednesday and Thursday, September 7 and 8.

Arrangements are already under way for this celebration, which will be more elaborate than the recent one. Velard has already secured the services of the Garabinieri Band which gave such satisfaction with their music last week. Bandmaster S. Nardiello promises to have five additional players here in September, some of whom are accomplished soloists. Band concerts will be held in Concert Park on the evenings of both days of the celebration and the band will give local concerts by day throughout the city. The fireworks display, which were so much enjoyed at last week's celebration, will also be repeated both nights on a far more elaborate scale. The display on the two nights will be of competitive nature, a different company having charge on each night. A variety of elaborate set pieces will be set off at these displays.

At the request of Velard, Francis J. Blatz, Esq., has assumed charge of the finances of the celebration. This has been effected to rouse enthusiasm on the part of the towns-people and so that subscriptions may be started to clear expense incurred at the celebration. Much interest has already been shown by local tradesmen over the affair.

L. V. F. RANDOLPH HONORED

PLAINFIELDER MADE EXECUTOR OF THE S. J. TILDEN ESTATE.

Former Mayor L. V. F. Randolph, of East Front street, president of the New York Consolidated Petroleum and Stock Exchange, was yesterday appointed an executor of the estate of the late Samuel J. Tilden, who was defeated for President of the United States by a Congressional commission, in place of the late Andrew H. Green, former Mayor of New York. The application was made on the application of John Bigelow and George Smith, the surviving executors.

Mr. Randolph has for years been connected with affairs of the Tilden estate and is especially well qualified to serve as an executor. Shortly after the death of Andrew H. Green, Mr. Randolph was named as one of the executors of his estate. His business training as president of the Atlantic Trust Company gave him a peculiar executive ability that has made his services very valuable in the settlement of estates.

How "Ham" Was Treated.

Hamilton Kean, brother of Senator Kean, is a New York banker, with many European connections. Speaking the other day of the "imperialistic" issue, he said: "I know this has occurred in the last six years: Anything American now gets prompt and courteous attention in London, Paris or Berlin. One does not have to cool his heels waiting in the outer office of a London banker now, but gets an interview with the senior partner at once. Everything American is now important enough to get attention, and this country has risen to the position of a first-class power in business and finance, since its government has stood up firmly for American rights."—Newark Evening News.

Elizabeth Party's Outing.

A large party of young folks from Elizabeth enjoyed a trolley ride to this city in a special car, last night. The car was run in on the Grant avenue tracks, between Front street and the railroad bridge, where a half-hour's stop for refreshments was made.

METHODISTS AT THE SHORE

SEVENTEEN CARLOADS, BOUND FOR ASBURY, LEFT HERE THIS MORNING.

The Sunday-schools from the First M. E., Grace, Monroe Avenue and Dunellen M. E. churches held their annual excursion to Asbury Park, today. Fifteen coaches composed the original train when it started from Dunellen, but the crowd was so large that it was necessary to attach two extra coaches. This was arranged for by Charles English, passenger train master, who, in anticipation of a large number of excursionists, had a second section ready in this city in charge of Conductor Walter Durling.

While it was not necessary to use the entire second section, two cars were taken from it and the remainder of the train returned to Jersey City.

William Dunham, of Dunellen, was the engineer of the excursion train, and Frank Webster, of Duer street, the conductor. Samuel Bingaman, of the First M. E. church, was chairman of the various committees from the four Sunday-schools. The excursion will leave the shore tonight at 7:10 and should arrive home between 8:30 and 9 o'clock.

YOUNG WOMAN BADLY BURNED

MISS ADDIE JOHNSTON HURT BY FIRE IN SCOTCH PLAINS HOME.

Trying to extinguish a small fire caused by an exploding oil stove in the kitchen of her parents' home on Forrest avenue, Scotch Plains, last evening, Miss Addie Johnston was severely burned about the hands. The young woman pluckily fought the flames and kept them down until the arrival of the fire department. She remained in the burning room until the last of the blaze was put out and only then did she consent to have her burns attended to.

The fire was started by grease boiling over a pan and dropping on the burner of the oil stove. Flames spread in all directions and a serious conflagration was prevented by Miss Johnston's timely action. The damage will about to $100, covered by insurance. The young woman is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Johnston.

WESTFIELD CAMP NOTES.

First Presbyterian Church Society to Hold Service Monday Night.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church will have charge of the meeting at Camp Woolfe, Westfield's fresh air camp, Monday evening. Some twenty-five members of the church organization will visit the camp on that day and will spend the afternoon and evening with the children. The assistance of Percy Cannon, the blind chair carpenter, has been secured for the afternoon and he will render several musical selections. Mr. Cannon is an especially gifted musician and will take his "sweet potato" with him to the camp to furnish music for the little city visitors. The Christian Endeavor committee in charge of the affair plans to make the afternoon's programme of entertainment and the evening meeting very simple, thinking thus to rouse and hold the children's attention.

Funeral of Dorothy Templin.

Funeral services of little Dorothy Templin, the six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Templin, of East Ninth street, were conducted at the receiving vault at Hillside Cemetery by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Sobenck, of Trinity Reformed church. The ceremony at the home was prevented by the fact that the little girl died of diphtheria. Only the family and immediate relatives were present at the services at the vault. The interment will subsequently be made in Hillside Cemetery.

LANDED IN JAIL FOR ASSAULTING WIFE

Thomas Kane Signalized His Return From Prison by Madly Attacking His Spouse.

BEFORE JUDGE CLARK

BRUTE STRUCK THE WOMAN REPEATEDLY.

Has Figured in Other Escapades—Well-Known to the Local Police—Now at Elizabeth Jail.

On a charge of assault with intent to kill preferred by his wife, Thomas Kane, of this city, better known as "Cooday," was arraigned before Judge Clark at Scotch Plains yesterday. Evidence produced by the woman bore out her statement and the husband was committed to Elizabeth in default of $300 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

Kane was released from jail yesterday morning on completing a ten-day sentence imposed by a Westfield justice, and returned to the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, at Graceland. He was in an ugly mood and in a short time began quarreling with Mrs. Kane. Words were followed by blows and finally the infuriated man seized a beer bottle and hurled it at her head. She avoided it by jumping to one side and as it struck against the opposite wall it smashed into a thousand pieces, so great was the force with which it was thrown. This only served to increase his anger and as he struck at the woman repeatedly he shouted:

"I'll do you yet if I get twenty years for it."

Interference resulted in Kane's ejectment from the house before he could make good his threat and he was arrested yesterday at Elizabeth. The facts of the affair were brought out at his hearing and Mrs. Kane related further cruelties to which she had submitted in recent months. Judge Clark is familiar with Kane's past as he has been before him on several occasions and he expressed his contempt for the prisoner before committing him.

Kane has resided in this city nearly all his life and is well known to the local police. Three years ago he made a desperate attempt to escape from Patrolman Higgins when arrested for swimming beneath the Grant avenue bridge and he and the policeman fought for nearly an hour. He was finally conquered and landed at headquarters but not before both were bleeding in a dozen places and had the clothes torn almost entirely from them. At the trial which followed City Judge Runyon fined him $100 and sent him to jail for fifty-nine days.

PUBLIC INSTALLATION.

Ceremonies at Westfield Lodge Witnessed by Many Odd Fellows.

Odd Fellows from this city, Elizabeth, Cartaret, Perth Amboy and New York city convened at Westfield last evening with their friends on the occasion of the public installation of officers at Westfield Lodge, No. 169, I. O. O. F. The ceremony of installation, which it is very rarely the privilege of others than lodge members to witness, was completed by District Deputy Grand Master Crowther, of Perth Amboy, and his staff in the presence of more than 350 people, at the rooms of the Westfield lodge. Queen City Lodge, of this city, attended the ceremonies in a body, more than twenty-five in number. Large delegations from Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, and Friendship Lodge also attended.

After the installation, the Odd Fellows served refreshments to their visitors and musical entertainment was furnished by Leider Tahfel Lodge, of Elizabeth.

Quarantined in Borough.

While Mr. and Mrs. F. C. VanNorstrand, of Elizabeth, and their seven-year-old daughter were visiting at the home of Wm. Schafer, of Chatham street, ten days ago, the child was taken ill with diphtheria. Since then the house has been under quarantine, but it is hoped to have it raised soon to allow the girl's removal to Elizabeth. Mr. VanNorstrand has a host of friends in city and borough, having been for many years tax collector in North Plainfield township before the borough was formed.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On July 31 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:20 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40, and the round trip will cost but $1.50. NEIL OUTFOUGHT M'GOVERN.

Bantam Champion of the World Downed Brooklyn Boy In Sixth.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—Frankie Neil of San Francisco, bantam champion of the world, clearly outfought Hughey McGovern of Brooklyn at the National A. C. here last night. The fight throughout was the most vicious ever witnessed in this city between little men. There was scarcely a second during the six rounds that the boys were not in action.

At the close of the sixth round McGovern was almost out and was hanging on to Neil to avoid punishment. McGovern drew blood from the Californian's nose in the second round and opened a gash in his left cheek in the succeeding round.

Neil cut a gash in McGovern's left cheek in the fifth round, and toward the close of the round McGovern was very shaky on his feet. Both boys were under the required weight of 118 pounds.

NO AGREEMENT YET

Chicago Packers and Striking Butchers Cannot Settle.

UNIONS CHARGED WITH BAD FAITH

Labor Leaders Claim That Discrimination In Rehiring Men by the Packers Nullifies All Former Agreements.

CHICAGO, July 28.—"We had an agreement with Mr. Donnelly's organization and the allied trades which they have failed to live up to, and under the circumstances we do not care to make any further agreements with them."

This is the statement which was signed by the representatives of the packers and handed to the members of the state board of arbitration last night at the end of a conference between the two bodies, held at the request of the state board in an endeavor to bring about another meeting between the packers and the strikers.

The packers received the state board courteously and listened to their arguments for a peaceable adjustment of the difficulty. The announcement that the packers were opposed to any further peace negotiations with the strikers was handed to the board by Arthur Mekker and Thomas Connor, both of the Armour company, who represented the packers. While from their statement it would appear that the packers are opposed to meeting the strikers again on any terms, such is not the case.

At the last conference between the strikers and the packers the latter informed the union leaders that any time they expressed a desire to live up to the original arbitration agreement, signed a week ago, which provided for the reinstatement of the striking butchers inside of forty-five days and for all grievances to be submitted to arbitration, the packers would be willing to renew the agreement.

The contention of the packers is that this agreement is still in force, and as they are unwilling to offer any further concessions to the strikers they say a renewal of peace negotiations with the hope of securing better terms would be useless.

The labor leaders claim that when the butchers went on the second strike, because of alleged discrimination by the packers in rehiring the old employees, the arbitration agreement was nullified and that it is necessary to sign a new agreement before a settlement can be reached.

The latest acquisition to the strikers' ranks is 150 horseshoers and stablemen, who have gone out.

No Violence at Fort Worth.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 28.—The packing house strike situation here is without change. Manager Judd of the Armour plant says he has enough men to operate the plant. There has been no violence of a serious character. The strikers will open a commissary, and rations will be issued to such workmen as are in need.

Gas From the Cocoanut.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—An ingenious method employed in the Philippines to secure an adequate gas supply is reported by the Philippine bureau of government laboratories. This produces a very high quality of illuminating gas free from smoke and tar.

Washington Called on For Protection Against Raiders.

BRITAIN ASKS APOLOGY AND SALUTE

Senator Mitchell of Portland, Ore., Has Made Formal Complaint—Kuroki and Nogi to Cut Off Kuropatkin's Army.

LONDON, July 28.—The British government has sent instructions to Sir Charles Hardinge, British ambassador to Russia, to protest energetically against the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander by the Russian Vladivostok squadron.

Until the presentation of the note to the Russian government the greatest secrecy will be maintained regarding its contents, but it is known that Premier Balfour and his colleagues have decided to demand that the fullest reparation shall be made by Russia or measures will be taken to follow up the diplomatic demands.

A salute of the British flag must also be conceded and the future protection of neutral shipping assured.

The attitude of the British government is the result of the thorough consideration given to the reports received from Sir Claude Macdonald, British minister at Tokyo, and the examination of international law authorities by legal experts.

The dispatches from Sir Claude Macdonald confirm the reports that the Knight Commander had no contraband of war on board for Japan.

A Washington dispatch says that Senator John H. Mitchell, acting as attorney for the Portland Flour Milling company at Portland, Ore., has telegraphed a formal complaint to the state department protesting against the action of the Russian Vladivostok squadron in seizing the steamer Arabia, which was carrying a miscellaneous cargo, including a large shipment of flour consigned to individuals in Hongkong and other far eastern ports. The statement is made that the flour shipment is only one of the many made by the Portland Flour Milling company to regular consignees during the past two years and emphasizes the fact that the Arabia is a "neutral vessel, carrying the German flag and engaged in legitimate business on the high seas, carrying a legitimate cargo from an American port consigned to private parties in the port of Hongkong to private citizens and subjects of the Chinese empire."

Senator Mitchell requests the state department to take the necessary steps to secure indemnity and satisfaction for the owners of the flour and also to protect legitimate neutral trade from such serious interference as these attacks by the Vladivostok squadron.

It is reported here that all British naval maneuvers have been countermanded, that the various squadrons have been ordered not to move, that all leave of absence has been cancelled and that officers and men on furlough have been recalled.

The home and channel fleets had already been moved into a position to undertake important maneuvers.

A Chefu report says that Russian refugees who have arrived there report that the Lieutenant Burukoff and two other Russian torpedo destroyers were torpedoed and destroyed by the Japanese on the night of July 25.

Advices from Tientsin say that General Kuroki and General Nogi are endeavoring to form a junction so as to cut off General Kuropatkin's army between Liaoyang and Mukden.

A Tokyo report says that while advancing south of Tashichao General Oku found a superior force confronting him, while a heavy artillery fire from the enemy was checking his men. He thereupon decided to hold his position and attempt a night surprise. This was successful, the Japanese troops hustling the Russians into retreat to Tashichao. The Japanese had only 800 casualties. No estimate of the Russian losses is given.

The Takushan army did not participate in this fight, it being located to the east of Tashichao. Moving to the northwest, this Takushan force fought and won a separate action at Pauling. The commander of the Takushan army charged that the Russians violated the Japanese flag, which they hoisted in an attempt to deceive the Japanese, after which they fired a volley into the Japanese ranks.

The Japanese began the advance against the Russian positions south of Tashichao on Saturday. The Japanese deployed to the westward from the vicinity of Chuhiatun and, confronting the Russian line to the east of the railroad, advanced until their right had reached a bluff a little less than two miles from Taiping mountain. The Russian batteries posted in various positions on the heights opened with vigor, shelling the advancing Japanese line. The strength of the Russians gradually developed during the day, and General Oku estimated it at five divisions and 100 guns. The Russian fire prevented a general advance and determined General Oku to decide to await the advance of darkness to deliver a night assault.

Suddenly at 10 o'clock at night the entire Japanese right was hurled against the first Russian position east and west of Taiping mountain, and it was easily captured. At midnight the second position was attacked, and by daylight the Japanese occupied the eminence to the east of Shanchiatun, the Russians being in retreat toward Tashichao. In the morning the Japanese seized Chenyshishan without resistance and pursued the Russian force toward Tashichao.

A Newchwang report says that 150 Japanese cavalry who entered the city overnight had orders to return to Tashichao, but remained until morning at the urgent request of the British and American consuls.

The Japanese have not pursued the fleeing enemy, as they desire to cooperate with the First army in a decisive battle between Haicheng and Liaoyang which even in the opinion of Russian officers will result in a Russian defeat and will terminate the campaign.

British Flag Reholsted at Algiers.

ALGIERS, July 28.—At sunset the Russian flag was hauled down on the Malacca. The British flag will be reholsted on the vessel this morning. The landing of the prize crew and the interviews between the Russian and British consuls were conducted with the utmost cordiality.

Volunteer Fleet Passes Perim.

PERIM, Red Sea, July 28.—Two Russian vessels, supposed to be the volunteer fleet steamers St. Petersburg and Smolensk, have passed here bound for Jibutil, French Somaliland. They showed no colors.

TAMMANY AT ESOPUS.

At Judge Parker's Home Murphy and Hill Joined Hands.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 28.—Members of the Democratic national committee made an informal call on Judge Alton B. Parker and found him entertaining Leader Charles F. Murphy and other officials of Tammany Hall. Former Senator David B. Hill and Mr. Murphy joined hands on the Rosemount veranda, and others who have not been political friends for years put aside their differences and for the day at least met on common ground.

Mr. Murphy and his colleagues, State Senator Victor J. Dowling and Judge Morgan J. O'Brien of New York and Thomas P. Conway of Plattsburg, arrived first and were the last to go. Discussions of political questions, both national and state, were entered into by the visitors, and some surprising disclosures were made by reason of gossip indulged in without restraint.

The coming of the national committee was heralded far and wide, but no announcement had been made of the proposed visit of the Tammany delegation.

May Save the Rockland.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 28.—Should the weather conditions continue favorable for a sufficient time to enable the wreckers to patch the pierced hull of the stranded steamer City of Rockland it is believed that the vessel will be lifted from the Musselridge channel ledges, on which she now rests, and ultimately resume her coastwise trips. The steamer, however, is under a great strain, especially amidships, where nothing sustains the keel, and a stiff blow from any southerly quarter will rock her so easily that her back will very likely give way.

Believe Burns Was Murdered.

BOSTON, July 28.—Chief Joseph Shaw of the state police has ordered a systematic search of the region in which Frank J. FALL RIVER STRIKE.

Operatives Must Accept Reduction or Mills Will Remain Closed.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 28.—"Unless the operatives agree to come into the mills and work under the proposed 12½ per cent reduction it is doubtful if any attempt will be made by the manufacturers to run the mills before October."

This is the statement made by a prominent mill treasurer. In explaining this attitude he said that the whole matter was a question of finance, and the manufacturers have found that to continue operations under the old wage scale would mean a loss of money. They prefer therefore to have the mills closed than to have them run at a loss.

The strikers, too, seem to be of the opinion that the controversy will be long drawn out and the greatest care is being taken to husband the union funds. Strike benefits will not be distributed until such a course is absolutely necessary, and strike leaders in many instances are drawing only a portion of their allotted salaries.

No attempt has been made to open a single mill affected by the strike, and the strikers' ranks remain unbroken.

Archbishop of Canterbury's Visit.

BOSTON, July 28.—The archbishop of Canterbury will sail from England on the steamship Celtic Aug. 19, arriving in New York Aug. 27 or 28. He will go immediately to Canada to meet Lord Minto and visit the leading cities. Thence he will go to the coast of Maine and stop quietly with personal friends, for he has asked that during a part of his stay in this country he may have some rest. After this he will pay his respects to President Roosevelt and make other visits. While in New York he will preach in Trinity church. On Oct. 4 he will reach Boston for the sessions of the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church.

Peabody Said Now Call Off Strike.

DENVER, July 28.—Adjutant General Sherman M. Bell has expressed dissent from the opinion of Governor Peabody that the Cripple Creek district is sufficiently pacified to justify the withdrawal of the national guard. "I look for a clash now that military rule is ended," said he. "I have called off the militia," said Governor Peabody. "Now let the unions do the proper thing and call off the strike." William D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners, said, "The calling off of the militia has not the slightest logical bearing upon the proposition to call off the strike."

Whitecappers at Work.

LOCKHART, Tex., July 28.—A mob of masked whitecappers has killed one negro and severely beaten another, both being residents of this vicinity. The mob first visited Tom Coperton, who was taken from his home and mercilessly beaten. From Coperton's cabin the mob went to the home of John Larremore and endeavored to enter the house. Larremore's wife opened fire on the mob, which the whitecappers returned. After the fusillade Larremore was found dead in the hallway of his house.

Jealousy Led to a Tragedy.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 28.—James Good, a machinist, last night shot and killed his wife, Ella, and then put a bullet into his own brain, dying instantly. The couple had been married two years. Jealousy is said to have led to the tragedy.

Senator Vest's Condition Critical.

SWEET SPRINGS, Mo., July 28.—Former Senator George G. Vest's condition is again considered very critical. The senator's only nourishment now is eggnogg, the white of an egg and milk.

AT ROOSEVELT HOME

Cannon Announces Nomination to the President.

REPLY OUTLINES REPUBLICAN POLICY

McKinley's Last Speech Cited—Foreign Reciprocity, Race Question, Labor and Capital and Currency Treated Of.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 28.—Theodore Roosevelt has formally opened the political campaign of 1904 at his beautiful country home, Sagamore Hill. Standing on a spot made dear to him by the associations of a lifetime, surrounded by his family and relatives and friends, and in the presence of an assemblage of men distinguished in all walks of life, he formally received and accepted the nomination of the Republican party for president of the United States.

President Roosevelt's speech of acceptance was characteristically forceful and direct in argument and replete with epigrammatic passages. It was received with immense enthusiasm by his auditors. Prosperity may be said to have been the keynote of the address, while the achievements of the Republican party in statesmanship at home and abroad were depicted with the touch of a skilled hand. His satirical references to the Democratic party aroused laughter and applause.

Miss Alice Roosevelt looked very pretty in a white lawn gown, cut slightly low at the neck, while the sleeves were trimmed with lace.

The scene was a very pretty one. The house was almost hidden in bunting, and the fine weather made everything look cheerful.

Mr. Cannon's announcement speech lasted but eighteen minutes. He was applauded for a long time at the close.

President Roosevelt received a great ovation.

In his speech Mr. Roosevelt declared that he believed in reciprocity with foreign nations as outlined in President McKinley's last speech and cited the Cuban treaty as a splendid example. Touching briefly on the race question, he said that he had already shown that his policy is fair and equal justice without regard to race, creed or geographical location. With equal impartiality will he act toward labor and capital. He said:

"The humblest individual is to have his rights safeguarded as scrupulously as those of the strongest organization.

The Panama canal, one of the triumphs of the administration, of course came in for a conspicuous place, and Mr. Roosevelt felicitated himself and his party on the fact that they had acted in the spirit of largest generosity to those through whose territory the canal is to run.

He tersely disposed of the trust question in a brief paragraph, saying:

"In dealing with the great organizations known as trusts we do not have to explain why the laws were not enforced, but to point out that they actually have been enforced and that legislation has been enacted to increase the effectiveness of their enforcement."

He struck a strong note on stable currency, declaring that so long as the Republican party is in power the gold standard is settled. Tariff and high wages, he said, were intimately related.

"The standard of living of our wage workers is higher than that of any other country," he said, "and cannot so remain unless we have a protective tariff which shall always keep as a minimum rate of duty sufficient to cover the difference between the labor cost here and abroad."

Mr. Roosevelt said that he had shirked no duty, domestic or foreign; failed to undertake no necessary task and had tried to perform all tasks with reasonable efficiency.

"We have never pleaded impotence," he concluded.

When the president had finished everybody gathered around to extend their congratulations. More than once the president's far famed "delighted" was heard as he was introduced to one of the guests he had not met before.

Speaker Cannon then raised his hand for silence. Smilingly he began speaking.

"The committee and others present will please descend to the lawn to have their shadows taken before the substance fades."

He was greeted with a roar of laughter, and the next half hour was taken up by the president and everybody else being photographed in several positions.

Next on the programme was luncheon. The Roosevelt children busied themselves handing out sandwiches and salad to the assembled guests, finishing with ice cream, lemonade and cigars.

Early in the proceedings William Barnes, Jr., of Albany pinned a campaign button on the coat lapel of former Governor Black. While Black was conversing with the president Governor Odell approached and, seeing the button, inquired, "Black, when did you leave the Republican party?"

"Haven't left it," was the reply.

"Then why are you wearing that button around here?"

Glancing at the button and discovering that it bore a fine likeness of Judge Parker, with appropriate Democratic inscriptions, Mr. Black remarked, "That proves absolutely what sublime confidence we up state Republicans have in one another." The president enjoyed Mr. Barnes' joke immensely.

Today President Roosevelt will start for Washington by special train. He may return to Oyster Bay in two weeks, thus shortening his proposed stay at the national capital.

Plainfield, N. J., July 28, 1904.

Was that celebration at Oyster Bay in honor of "Strenuous Teddy" or "Uncle Joe?"

A man who can entertain "the sage of Woolfert's Roost" and Tammany's Chieftain at the same time is certainly a diplomat.

Henry Gassaway Davis rushes into print to deny the report that he is courting a Sheppardstown, W. Va., widow. Just now the octogenarian candidate is heaping his attentions upon Dame Democracy.

If the railroad companies violate their agreement with the Ocean Grove Association, they will receive the condemnation of the citizens of New Jersey who believe that principle is more to be esteemed than the seeking of pecuniary profit.

Headed by Senator Joseph Cannon, a committee journeyed to Oyster Bay, yesterday, and notified Roosevelt that he had been selected to lead the Presidential ticket. He was greatly taken back by the sudden announcement but reports say he recovered from his surprise to thank the members and the party at large for the honor accorded him.

Just think of this mixture of political ideas in the Parker Ready Relief Company, which promises to cure the ills of the Nation: Grover Cleveland, William Jennings Bryan, Richard Olney, Benjamin Tillman, Robert E. Pattison, David Bennett Hill, Charles Murphy, James Smith, Patrick McCarren and James P. Gorman!

The old time corset stay that has saved hundreds of women's lives by deflecting bullets fired at them by jealous husbands and lovers, has a rival. The celluloid collar worn by a Mount Vernon detective did the trick just as neatly when a burglar attempted to end his existence. In consequence heavy shipments of celluloid collars to the Far East are expected.

A great merchant says that "many small merchants in the cities doubt the value of advertising in their own case. These men fail to take into consideration the fact that in most instances the department store began as a neighborhood store and increased its business by judicious advertising. Advertising is just as profitable for the small business as for the large one. Newspaper publicity comes first."—Ex.

While the "Mayor" Smith automobile accident on West Front street is still a topic for conversation, it might be opportune to suggest that the practice of speeding these machines through the streets at a high rate, still continues. Accidents thus far have been few but it is due more to luck than management. Ponderous touring cars sent along by chauffeurs as though a speed ordinance never existed and the highway was meant for no one but themselves. An instance was witnessed on Park avenue last evening that should have met with the full rigor of the law, and yet it was only one of many.

Commissioner of Banking David O. Watkins issued a statement yesterday showing the condition of the fifty-eight trust companies, among which is the Plainfield Trust Company, doing business in this State on June 30, and the statistics gathered demonstrate that this branch of the banking business is steadily growing in New Jersey. The total resources reported by these institutions was $136,415,625.35 as against $119,461,388 01, which is an increase of more than $6,000,000 when compared with the figures reported half a year ago. During the same period the time deposits have increased from $39,415,031.67 to $41,919,586.58.

The Plainfield Press, which has been placed in the published lists of New Jersey newspapers which are supporting the candidacy of Judge Parker, declares that "there seems to be little possibility of the Democrats carrying New Jersey in the present campaign." Now the question is, Did the parties who made up the lists of the Parker supporters blunder, or has The Press committed itself to what it believes to be a losing cause?—Newark Evening News.

Just to satisfy the Paterson Guardian, the Newark Evening News and the author of Fitzgerald's Manual, we direct their attention to the standing statement at the head of this column that The Daily Press is independent in politics. Unless something unforeseen occurs, we do believe that Jersey will cast its vote for Mr. Roosevelt. The Daily Press favors neither Parker nor Roosevelt and has no great fears for the country in the event of the success of either candidate.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Baseball fans in this vicinity are overjoyed at the news that the New Market Y. M. A. and the Dunellen A. C. are to get together for another game. The contest will take place Saturday afternoon at Dunellen and both teams are in good trim for a hard game. After the last game which Dunellen won after eleven innings it seemed as if there was no prospect of the series of five games being continued. Since then, however, the two managers have been conferring together and have at last reached an agreement which assures the continuance of the interesting series. Both teams have lost a game since the last meeting and Saturday should see a record breaking crowd on hand to see them do battle. If New Market wins this game it will give them a fighting chance for the series.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Clarence D. Smalley were held yesterday afternoon from the residence on Front street. Rev. Frank Fletcher was in charge and interment was made in Hillside Cemetery. The pall bearers were Walter Nelson, John Nelson, George Schenck and William Dealaman.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The literary and musical entertainment arranged by the Misses Florence and Mildred Johnson and Miss Mabele Cubberley, held last night in Washington Hall, was patronized by a large audience. The programme as carried out was well rendered and pleased everyone. The contralto singer, Miss Edith Cobb, of Newark, and Fred Fullen, of Newark, baritone, gave some pleasing selections. Lewis Small, of Newark, more than pleased the audience with selections on the xylophone and comic songs. Miss Marguerite Phillips and Miss Kathleen Phillips, of Plainfield, also Miss Fanny Carr, of Plainfield, greatly assisted in the rendering of the literary part of the programme. The opening piece by little Miss Tessie Hannon delighted the audience, and was followed by an equally pleasing number by ten little girls entitled "Fete in Flowerland." Miss Florence Johnson next rendered in a novel and pleasing way an Athenian drill. Pictures from life, consisting of eighteen pretty posed girls within a large frame, decorated with evergreen came next on the programme. Then came a flag tableau, rendered by several young women, consisting of a representation of "Star Spangled Banner" and "Lead Kindly Light," which produced an impressive effect. The latter hymn being accompanied by a large picture of the late President McKinley in a frame, steadied by two little girls, Miss Marian Bigley and Miss Tessie Hanan. The scarf drill showed twelve little girls, brightly dressed and waving in many attitudes their colored scarfs, accompanied by the piano. The encore was answered in a graceful way by the two smallest girls. Norman Major excelled himself in rendering "The Puzzled Dutchman" and Miss Kathleen Phillips recited in a very pleasing manner "The Jelly Fish." The dialogue, "A Slight Mistake," was rendered by Miss Mildred Soper and Philip Smith. The concluding numbers on the programme were "The Shakespeare Club" and "The Burglar Alarm." These renderings showed careful and laborous preparation on the part of the young women who participated in them, and greatly delighted the audience.

Mrs. Mary Taylor, who has been caring for her daughter during her illness, is now confined to her bed by sickness.

Miss Kathleen Phillips and sister, of Plainfield, are being entertained a few days by Mrs. P. C. Johnson.

The farm recently owned by the late Dayton Melick, has been sold to Mr. Herron, of Metuchen.

REPUBLICAN.
For President—Theodore Roosevelt.
For Vice President—Charles W. Fairbanks.

DEMOCRATIC.
For President—Alton B. Parker.
For Vice President—Henry G. Davis.

POPULIST.
For President—Thomas E. Watson
For Vice President—Thomas W. Tribbles.

PROHIBITION.
For President—Silas C. Swallow.
For Vice President—George I. Carrol.

It is announced that the formal notification of Judge Parker will take place at Esopus on the afternoon of Wednesday, August 10.

The enthusiasm for E. C. Stokes for governor among the Republican leaders in South Jersey, and to a lesser extent among the party's rank and file, is due as much or more to sectional pride or jealousy as to the personal popularity of Stokes. New Jersey has never had but one Governor from a county farther south than Monmouth or Mercer, and the leaders and party workers, aside from their regard for Stokes and joy in the prospect of a Gubernatorial candidate from their own section, are looking forward with no little and poorly concealed anticipation to a probable liberality in the disbursement of plums of patronage for that end of the State with a South Jerseyman as Chief Executive. This feeling, coupled to the anxiety of the State leaders to make sure of a big Roosevelt majority in the State, the retention of the Governorship and the re-election of Senator John Kean next winter, for which purpose the return of a Republican Legislature is essential, is responsible for the heroic efforts being made to prevent factional differences or fights over nominations.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

Harvey R. Thorn, a recent visitor to the St. Louis Exposition, will give a talk concerning his trip at the meeting of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., tonight.

A watermelon sociable, under the auspices of Martha Washington Council, No 28, D. of A., will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred G. Welsh, on McKinley place, Tuesday evening.

The twenty-seventh annual session of the National Council, Daughters of Liberty, will be held in Portland, Me., August 23 and 24. It is said that the reports will show substantial gains in membership and finances. One new State council will be represented—North Carolina. Officers will be elected to fill all the positions excepting that of National secretary.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—All bills against the city should be in the hands of the city clerk tonight to insure payment at the August Council meeting.

—Osborne Halstead and family, of Bayonne, have rented C. H. Lyman's house in the borough for the remainder of the season.

—The State schools at Trenton are to have an infirmatory. A building formerly used as a stable, which is situated in the rear of the old Umpleby house site, is being altered in order to be fitted up as an infirmary. A building for the treatment and care of infirm or disabled students has never been connected with the school, although its need has been felt a number of times.

George J. Tobin and Jerome Leary, of Grant avenue, have returned from Belmar, where they have been spending a few days with their families.

LOCKED UP IN TOMB.

DEAD MAN AND HEIR BOTH PICKLED WITH RUM.

Coffin of Former Filled with the Liquid When He Was Buried—Replenished Regularly on Anniversary of His Death.

One of the old family founders in Somerset county, in northern Maine, left a heritage that just has proved a decidedly serious proposition to one of his heirs.

The family is among the wealthiest in the state. Years ago its pioneer went into Somerset county, and in time became the principal business figure of the section.

As he felt age approaching he put his men at work on the construction of a big tomb in the garden in the rear of the old mansion that stands as one of the show places in the town of Athens. On his deathbed he issued commands as to what his relatives should do with his body after dissolution. He ordered them to place him in the leaden coffin and after it had been stored in the tomb to pour the coffin full of Jamaica rum.

The will went on to explain that the testator couldn't bear the idea of being laid away in the tomb forever knowing that he would be left to molder forgotten. He wanted his relatives ever to bear him in mind, and his method of jarring their memory annually was this: The will directed attention to the little spout sticking up at the head of the casket. The command was that annually each June, on the anniversary of the squire's burial, the chief heir should enter the old tomb, bringing a jug of rum, and that he should replenish the supply in the coffin.

The family removed from the old mansion some years ago in order to afford the sons and daughters more advantages in one of the cities of Maine.

Recently the heir upon whom devolves the duty of carrying the jug of rum to the estimable and well-preserved old gentleman in Athens suspended his business engagements for a day and started on his annual trip. He went to Solon by train and, hiring a team at the stable, rode across country. The mansion stands a bit out of the village. When the heir turned in at the gate between the double rows of towering lilac bushes no one in the neighborhood happened to see him. The visitor hitched his horse at the rear of the house, out of sight of the road, and then proceeded toward the tomb. He let himself into it, and when the overflow from the spout indicated that the coffin was filled he started for the door.

Now it chanced, says the New York Press, that through age and heaving by the frost one of the flagstones with which the tomb is paved jutted its edge above its neighbors. In the gloom of the tomb the heir didn't see the stumbling block and he struck it and tripped. As he tripped he lunged forward and slammed full tilt against the inside of the half-opened door. The door banged shut and the great catch outside fell into place. The heir was a prisoner in the tomb of his ancestor.

The door fitted very snugly against the jamb. The victim broke his finger nails in the cracks trying to start the door, but it was no use. The portal was immovable. There wasn't an article in the tomb fit for a lever. As the prisoner crouched at the door feeling around him his hand came in contact with the jug he had partly emptied. He was a temperance man and a churchman, but he realized that this was a case where heroic remedies were required. He tipped up the jug and began to numb his sensibilities.

That night a telegram was started for Athens inquiring the whereabouts of the heir. He had neglected an important business engagement. The telegram was delivered to the postmaster in Athens the next forenoon by a messenger, who drove over in a team and who had rapped on the door of the mansion without getting a reply.

Of course the next thing was to open the tomb, and when the door was pushed back the heir was pushed back with it. He was lying against the portal with his jug clenched in his hand and he was fully as dead to the world as his venerable ancestor in the leaden coffin. Both were preserved in the same fluid, applied in different fashion. It took the doctor several hours to sober the heir off. A more gigantic load was never accumulated in that town. But the physician says if the man had not had that rum at hand during his wait in the tomb he would have been taken out a raving lunatic.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning July 31.

Topic.—An evening with Burma and Siam.—Isa. xxxv, 1-10.

China and India are two empires well known throughout the world. But between them, in the extreme southeast corner of Asia, is Indo-China, which is far less widely known. Siam occupies the central and larger part of this region, with Burma on the west and Cochin China on the east, including also the peninsula of Malay.

The people belong to the same family as the Chinese, having also some features of likeness to the natives of India. "They are a gentle, passive, rather weak race, given to dissimulation and very conceited, but they are reverential to the aged, especially to parents, are kind to their children, liberal in almsgiving, orderly and peaceable. They have quick but not very strong minds, and are said to be more receptive than the Chinese." The women have no limitations placed about them, as in most oriental countries. They may go about as they please, but they are considered so inferior to men that they are not educated. Polygamy exists, and divorces are easily obtained.

The climate is very genial and equable. The average temperature is 81 degrees. There are a rainy season and a dry season. Vegetable and animal life are abundant. "It claims to be the garden land of the world—the land of fruits and flowers and of never ending summer, with grand old trees overshadowing every hamlet, and plant life in fullest variety bursting on every side from the fertile soil. The water swarms with fish, and the air with insects, while all manner of tropical birds and beasts exist in teeming multitudes. Especially is Siam the land of elephants."

Siam is the stronghold of Buddhism. Though called a religion, yet it is not so, for it is atheistical, as it recognizes no God, in our sense of the word, and no soul. It teaches the doctrine of transmigration—the passage of life from one form to another until it at last reaches a state of unconscious existence, which is the Buddhist's heaven, Nirvana. The life produced by the Buddhist system is one of gross immorality and of spiritual darkness and despair.

Protestant missions were commenced in Siam by Ann Hazeltine Judson. She became interested in some Siamese at Rangun, where she then resided. She prepared a catechism in the Siamese language, translated the Burman catechism, a tract on Christianity and the gospel of Matthew into Siamese. But Siam even long after this was regarded simply as an avenue of approach into China. In 1828 direct Siamese work was begun by Dr. Carl Gutzlaff, then of the Netherland Missionary society. Others later entered the field, but today the Presbyterian church alone has missionaries in Siam. The darkness of Buddhism makes the light of Christianity imperative both to Siam and Burma. Let us "send the light" that they, too, may be won for Christ.

From Faraway China.

Rev. George Warren Hinman, M. A., is making an enviable record as general secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor for China. His home and headquarters are at Shanghai, and from this point he makes journeys into all quarters of the vast empire. A multitude of new societies attest his skill as an organizer. He has recently written and published a Christian Endeavor handbook in the Chinese tongue. To his indefatigable labors is due much of the foothold which Christian Endeavor is gaining in China.

REV. G. W. HINMAN.

With Foreign Flavor.

Germany is still the leading country of continental Europe in Christian Endeavor. The society has recently received legal standing there and is constantly reaching out into new territory. France has made decided and substantial progress, and Christian Endeavor is commended to French Protestantism.

The great impetus to the Christian Endeavor cause in South Africa has come from the return of the thousands of Boer prisoners of war from the prison camps in St. Helena, Ceylon, Bermuda and Portugal. There were many hundreds of Christian Endeavorers in those camps.

Raise the Standard.

Let Christian Endeavor raise the standard of loyalty to Christ and the church hold to its ideals of definite personal service and confession, welcome every expression of originality and enterprise in the application of the spirit of our movement in new plans and methods and stand for our inspiring interdenominational and international fellowship that in the past has been such a blessing to the young people of the world and that in the future mean so much to the universal church of Christ.—William Shaw, Treasurer United Society.

Christian Endeavor.

To strive in strength which Christ doth give,
And glorify Him ever;
To read His word with faith and prayer—
The heart, this of Endeavor.

July 31: "Missions in Latin Countries."—Ps. lxxii, 10-17.—The Work in Italy.

"All nations shall call Him blessed."

The so called Latin countries are nominally Christian. The Roman Catholic church has for centuries been a dominating force in them. In many of them the moral condition of the people is deplorable in its degradation. Whether this is the result of the presence of that form of religion or exists in spite of it is a question which it is useless for us now to debate. The fact remains that these lands are as truly missionary ground as any under the sun.

Italy in Europe, Mexico, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, Buenos Ayres, Uruguay, Paraguay, Brazil and Porto Rico in America are the principal countries we have entered where the Latin races have settled. Nearly all of those in America were settled by the Spanish and still speak that language or some modification of it. The Philippines were also Spanish settled.

The work in Italy, after years of struggle, has been placed on a firm basis. Dr. Leroy M. Vernon was the founder of the mission. He labored under many disadvantages and discouragements both by reason of the difficulties natural to the work and because of indecision on the part of the home church and division in sentiment as to the plans to be pursued by those in authority.

Bishop Gilbert Haven was always a strong advocate of progressive measures in this field and did much to secure thorough foundation for it. Dr. William E. Burt, the present head of the work, has been conspicuously successful. By his efforts a fine set of buildings has been secured in Rome in a most advantageous location. The principal one is an ornament architecturally as well as completely fitted for our work. The favorable notice of the royal family has more than once been shown to our institutions. In many other important centers of influence the church has been established and has gathered members and opened schools.

Those who know this work most thoroughly recognize it as one of the most truly needed missions under the management of our church.

The work in Buenos Ayres is one of the older missions of our church, which was prosecuted with varying degrees of success for a term of years, but recently has entered upon broader and more vigorous growth. Dr. Reid's history of our missions will give all needed facts for the use of our leagues in preparing papers and addresses on this field.

The missions in Chile and other parts of the west coast owe their origin to the labors of Bishop William Taylor. They were begun with the idea of self support on the part of the missionaries, who were to teach school as well as preach. Many excellences belonged to this plan, but its working revealed many weaknesses and fatal defects. After years of heroic work on the part of the missionaries and generous benefactions by the people at home, all this work has now been organized under the missionary board and is making good progress.

Mexico should have an evening for its presentation. The story is thrilling from the days of the founder, Dr. William Butler, to the last adventure of his son, Dr. John W. Butler, in a railroad wreck on his way to general conference.

Porto Rico and Dr. Charles W. Drees should have careful attention. He is the man for the place. Experience in Mexico and South America had fitted him the best of any man in the church to be founder of this mission.

The new book by Dr. Stuntz on our Philippine missions should be read in every league chapter.

The Chance of Pain.

There are no times in life when opportunity, the chance to be and to do, gathers so richly about the soul as when it has to suffer. Then everything depends on whether the man turns to the lower or the higher helps. If he resorts to mere expedients and tricks, the opportunity is lost. He comes out no richer or greater—nay, he comes out harder, poorer, smaller, for his pain. But if he turns to God the hour of suffering is the turning point of his life.—Phillips Brooks.

Unsaved.

I am not saved; spring's warmthful ray
Quickened the grain in fertile soil;
The harvest's long and generous day
Blessed bounteously the reaper's toil;
My thriftless hands have culled no sheaves;
My empty garner none receives—
I am not saved.

I am not saved; at vernal dawn
Many with precious seed went out;
Bedreamed, letting the hours glide on,
More sleep my languid eyes besought,
And now with joy the faithful reap,
While harvestless I sit and weep—
I am not saved.

Strange that the birds should sing in vain,
The early flowers in sweetness bloom,
The mellow clouds send genial rain,
And to my heart no teaching come;
When nature sprang to life, renewed,
I languished on in idle mood—
I am not saved.

Why have I suffered thus to pass
My golden opportunities?
Why indolent when swift, alas,
Life's fruitful summer season flies?
Though many voices come to me
And say, "The Master calleth thee!"
I am not saved.

Soon will the harvest time be gone,
The last sheaf borne in triumph home,
And I, unblest, afraid, alone,
Shall to the Lord of harvest come,
If yet my bed of ease I keep
And go not forth to sow and reap—
I am not saved.

Oh, shall I not begin today
And in the vineyard of the Lord
Toil till at evening He shall say,
"It is enough." At that sweet word
I'll with my harvest homeward haste
And enter into peaceful rest—
Jeweled and saved.
—Rev. A. Parke Burgess, D. D.

FASHIONABLE COLORS.

New Shades of Bluish Green—Yellow Much Worn.

The new shades of bluish green are particularly charming, especially in taffeta worn with quaint ruches and leghorn hats with Romney strings.

In Paris a curious amount of yellow is being worn. This is very effective worn with a big black hat and a chiffon pelerine.

Changeable taffetas of soft and supple quality really take on a variety of tints. Wash silks and satins have many possibilities for inexpensive gowns. After several visits to the cleaner's these white fabrics can be dyed blue or brown with good effect.

LINGERIE HAT.

Nothing quite takes the place of the taffeta gown, especially in deep blue and black. Several red taffeta gowns have also been seen at this season, but this fashion should only be worn by those who have many gowns in their wardrobe.

Accordion plaited nun's veiling, or, better still, voile, makes admirable house frocks. Nothing is more becoming to a slight figure than an accordion plaited frock, even if it has become a little ordinary.

Gray still holds its popularity and a great many tailor mades of this delightful color are to be worn in the early fall. There is a fondness just now also for combining gray with a tint of coral red, with which it blends very charmingly.

The picture shows a lingerie hat made of tiny ruffles of silk mousseline de sole edged with valenciennes. It is trimmed with blue ribbon.

FASHION HINTS.

Gowns of Lace and Soft Materials. Shaded Effects.

The princess gown of the moment is a charming affair of soft material made rich with embroideries and fine tucks. When hung up in the closet it resembles nothing so much as a rag, and yet when on the figure it sets off its charms in a remarkable manner. Some of these princess gowns have the waist laid in fine perpendicular tucks, the tucks flaring to give the fullness to the hips and skirt. This is managed to a nicety so that just the right curves shall be given.

In Paris they are wearing tunics of beautiful lace over linings of different shades. One such lining was of white satin messaline, the lace itself being of the finest mechlin. It had sleeves and a slightly open decolletage of folds of embroidered mousseline de sole. Another tunic was of point de venise and was worn at a wedding reception over beautiful rose oriental satin. The waist was encircled by a band of shaded old rose taffeta cut in pointed Marie Antoinette fashion and having a strass buckle at the back. Worn with this frock was a white chip hat trimmed with a single long pink ostrich plume.

Shaded effects are all the rage in hats, gowns and even parasols. The three shades of red are especially popular. They shade from a shrimp pink into a coral and finally a deep rich ruby red.

The straight brim sailor seems to be supplanting the French sailor in popular favor.

The cut shows a schoolgirl's tailor made of blue voile, trimmed with blue and white taffeta bands. The underblouse is of white mull.

RATTLER DEFIED CHARMER.

Was Too Much for East Indian Who Braved Cobras and Other Deadly Reptiles.

Saalleen Brandon, Hindu, who has braved the terrors of giant pythons, boa constrictors, cobras and sundry other reptiles of the jungle with no other protection than his glittering eye, fell to a common American "rattler" at Coney Island the other afternoon, and just now he is in the Emergency hospital, with doctors having grave doubts as to his living to charm another snake.

The New York World says that in an effort to save the life of the snake charmer, Dr. Hall and other surgeons literally drained his arm of almost every drop of blood, through an inch and a half incision, and then swathed the arm in compresses of powerful antiseptics.

Saalleen played with his king cobras, his boa constrictors and other snakes at the animal show while several hundred Royal Arcanum guests looked on and shivered. He had transferred all of the big ones back to their cages, and as a final act brought forth his prize diamond Arizona "rattler."

This snake is five feet long and has fangs that make it most dangerous. As he yanked it about, the little American snake sounded its rattles just once and then struck.

Saalleen wasn't quick enough to avoid the darting blow. The fangs buried themselves in his left wrist. Saalleen didn't lose his head, but quietly put the rattler back in the cage. A few minutes later he was writhing on the floor of his dressing room. Dr. Hall was called and hurried him off to the hospital. It's only an even chance that the Hindu will get well.

FINDS BIG SNAKE IN BED.

Reptile Five Feet Long Selects Little Boy for Bedfellow and Enjoys a Good Rest.

The little five-year-old son of Mrs. Nannie Cannon, residing at Limestone, East Tennessee, woke at ten o'clock in the night and told his mother that a snake was in his bed. The mother, regarding it as only a fancy of the child, due probably to dreaming, scoldingly insisted that the little fellow should be quiet and go back to sleep. Sobbing with fear, the little fellow soon became quiet, but in a short while his mother was again aroused by the cries of the child, who insisted that a snake was in the bed. The mother was still unwilling to believe that it was anything more than a fancy, and vehemently scolded the child, until he again became quiet. At intervals through the night she was aroused by the sobbing of the child, whose fear had thrown him into a state of terror. Thte mother still had no faith in the story, and the night wore away without an investigation.

At daybreak, when Mrs. Cannon arose to go about her household duties, remembering the fretting of the little boy during the night, she turned the cover down where the child lay asleep, and there, coiled up beside the youth, lay an unusually large black snake, about five feet in length. Seizing her boy, the mother lifted him from the bed. The disturbnce aroused the snake, and before Mrs. Cannon could find any instrument suitable to kill the reptile with it had left the bed, which was in an upstairs chamber, and crawled up the wall into the garret. The snake has not been seen since, and the family have been in nightly dread of the reptile. The child was not in any way injured by its hideous companion.

THE TIME WILL COME.

When the Advice of This Plainfield Resident Will Help You.

Very few people are entirely free from backache. It does not take much to derange the kidneys. A little cold, a strain, stooping positions and hard work overtaxes those delicate organs and many aches and pains promptly follow. A Plainfield citizen tells you here how every kidney ill can be relieved and cured. Read about it:

O. E. Hepburn, of 123 Duer street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have my endorsement for they cured me of a long standing case of backache which annoyed me very much, especially if I took cold, for at such times I was in pretty bad shape. I heard different people speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills, concluded to try them, got a box from my druggist, L. W. Randolph, and used them according to directions with the above results. I do not hesitate to give my endorsement of a preparation like Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

An Ideal Location
Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE
LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible
2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,
14 MILES FROM NEW YORK
On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

HE GOT THE HALF DOLLAR.

How a Wise Dog Secured Its Master's Property in Most Extraordinary Circumstances.

The following dog story is vouched for by the Nashville Banner. The narrator of the anecdote was driving in a town in Mississippi with the owner of the dog. To show the animal's cleverness he got out of the carriage, held his pocketbook to the dog's nose, and then taking therefrom a half-dollar, hid it under a large rock. The men drove on for a mile, and then the dog was commanded to fetch the half-dollar.

The animal, without the least hesitation, started back on a run, and my friend explained that as the rock was heavy the dog would be unable to turn it over, so would have to scratch under it to reach the piece of money, and it would naturally take him some time. It did, for he had not appeared when we retired, about ten o'clock.

Early the next morning we heard a sharp bark at the door. When the door was opened in rushed the dog, dragging with him a pair of trousers which he dropped on the floor.

Of course we were mystified, but the explanation soon came in the shape of a neighbor who lived several miles distant. He rode up on a mule, and inquired if a dog with a pair of trousers in his mouth had come into the house. Just then the pointer walked out on the porch, and the man exclaimed: "Why, there's the dog now."

The caller said that late in the afternoon of the day before he found the dog scratching under a large rock near the road, and thinking he was after a rabbit, stopped and lifted the rock up and to his surprise found a half-dollar underneath. He put the money in his pocket, and the dog followed him home.

Early in the morning, the man said, he got up and opened the window, and the instant he did so the dog seized his trousers and, jumping out of the window, fled with them. The man followed as soon as he could get his mule.

Of course my friend searched the pockets of the trousers which the dog had brought, and there found the half-dollar.

OLD FELLOW HAD 'EM FOUL.

How a Tennessee Justice Was Elected in Spite of a Strong and Popular Opposition.

Gov. Benton McMillin of Tennessee likes to tell this story of a J. P. in his state: "It chanced that this justice of the peace lived in a little town in a far recess. He was the only republican in the district, yet he happened, by some trick of fortune, to hold office.

"At length, when political excitement had reached an unwonted pitch, a project was formed to oust him from his office and put in a democrat. The election was held in an old distillery and the ballot box was a large one. The squire was early on the scene, clad in the roughest of clothes.

"I'LL BURN 'EM UP."

"'Fellow-citizens,' he said. 'I've been a-lookin' 'round here to see plain enough what's a-goin' on. I know what you want. I've been justice of the peace here goin' on 20 years, and a good many times I've saved many of you from goin' to the penitentiary, an' now you're tryin' to put me out of office.

"'But I just want to tell you something. I've got the constitution and the laws of the state of Tennessee in my pocket, and just as sure as you turn me out of office I'll burn 'em up—blame me if I don't—and you may all go to ruin together!'

"The effect of this speech was overwhelming. The ruin threatener was elected by a handsome majority. To be in a state without a constitution and laws was too great a calamity to be thought of."

ONE OF THE FINEST.

FLAHETY'S SMILE ONE THAT WON'T COME OFF.

Policeman Took Great Pride in His Appearance — Momentary Excitement Failed to Break Habit of a Lifetime.

Speaking of a noted member of the Kansas City police force, the Star of that city describes him as big and fat and goes on to say that Patrolman Flahety's blue uniform hung limply from the shoulders to the baggy trouser knees. Flahety's pride was his hair. It was always brushed flat and slick on his large head, with a carefully constructed part down the middle.

Every now and then Flahety withdrew to some secluded spot to brush the few stray locks over the bald place that was just appearing on the crown. Some day, he feared, that bald spot would be discovered. For years he had walked that one beat in the heart of the city, always smiling and always polite. That was how he came to be there.

He had almost memorized the battered little directory in his vest pocket, and he gave a smile free with every word of information. That was why Flahety always wore a flower in his buttonhole as he strolled along his beat. No one ever saw the person give him the flower, but it was a fresh new bloom every day, and the big officer wore it until it had come to be regarded as a part of his uniform. The afternoon was hot, as Flahety paused at the door of the drug store. The boy at the soda water fountain noticed the officer and grinned.

"Have one, Flahety?" he asked.

Flahety grinned in reply and sat where the street car crossing was in plain view.

"Gimme a root beer, Freddie," he answered.

He drank the cool draught in silence and mopped the froth from his rough red mustache with a sky blue handkerchief.

"Much obleeged; hot, ain't it?" he said.

The boy at the fountain stooped to wash the glass, and Flahety passed on out into the sun, fanning his face with his helmet. A barefoot boy passed him, with an armful of papers. Flahety stopped the boy to glance at the headlines of the topmost sheet.

"WHERE IS IT?"

"Gosh!" he muttered. "Blamed if thet ain't a good catch. Got 'em right in this block, too—en—en—on my beat."

He read the story half way down, then the boy passed on with the paper. Flahety still smiled, but he did it unconsciously, for within his mind was filled with gloom.

"I've been right here on this same ol' beat for nine years," he muttered, "but none ov them big catches ever comes my way. I'm gittin' tired ov helpin' kids and women on an' off cars. I'm goin' to do somethin' the next chance. They ain't no use in just being a 'competent' officer fer year in an' year out."

Flahety unconsciously straightened up, and he thought, and the blue uniform drooped more dejectedly. Then, swinging his club, Flahety walked with a soldier-like bearing down the street in search of a chance.

It came sooner than he had expected. Pondering deeply on the antics of fate he wandered around the corner where the big office building rose into the smoke-stained sky. A woman's wild scream, from somewhere above him, made visions of murder crowd before the officer's gaze. With a wild dash Flahety ran up the steps and into the building. A girl stenographer stood on the first landing, looking wonderingly up the stairs.

"Where is it?" gasped Flaherty. The girl pointed slowly to the second floor and the big policeman dashed away. A faint moan reached him as he paused in the hallway above. It seemed to come from an office with the door closed. Flaherty's courage surged to the front in an instant and he opened the door, then paused aghast. A woman sat in a dentist chair, moaning faintly.

"The other one will come easier," said the dentist, when Flaherty closed the door. For a moment he stood in the hallway wiping the sweat from his face. Suddenly the smile came again to his face and he drew a glass and comb from his pocket. Glancing furtively around to see that no one was looking, Flaherty removed his helmet and smoothed the hair across the small bald spot on the crown of his head.

Ammonia Puts Out Flames.

In these warm days, when gas, oil and gasoline stoves are so much used, a gallon bottle of ammonia should be always on hand as a safeguard against fire. Flames yield readily to a shower of ammonia.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Supporters of the Plainfield ball team should go to Westfield on Saturday and root good and loud for Alis.

"Bad Bill" Dahlen, the famous short-stop on the New York Nationals, who is is claimed has a few if any superiors, has been converted and will give up baseball, according to a story in last night's New York Globe. Dahlen's conversion is due to the work of two evangelists who have been writing him letters and lately conferring with him. The popular player has been led to believe that Sunday baseball is wrong, and as he cannot stay in the game and not play on Sunday, he has decided to give up the sport and devote the rest of his life to preaching. A few years ago "Billy" Sunday, of the Chicagos, quit the game in the same way and he has been preaching ever since. When McGraw learned of Dahlen's decision, he was much excited and for several hours tried to persuade the player to change his mind. Dahlen wants to be released on Saturday.

There are local baseball fans who are just as ardent supporters of the New York Nationals and Americans as any you will find in New York, and they follow closely the contests played by these two rival teams. Johnny McGraw, as well as Clark Griffith have their admirers here and many a heated argument is heard in sporting circles about the relative merits of the two baseball generals and their teams. The recent announcement made by McGraw, that in case his team wins the pennant he will not play the New York Americans, has caused bitter feeling among the supporters here. Those who pin their faith on the Giants can see why that team should play the Highlanders, while followers of the Americans say that the Giants are afraid to meet Griffith's men. McGraw says that barring accidents, he believes his team will win the pennant. If this comes true it will be the first time in fifteen years that the New York Nationals have won the flag. For the purpose every man on the team is playing the game of his life in the hopes of landing the flag. Another reason why the local cranks take unusual interest in the New York Nationals is that Christy Mathewson, of this city, is numbered among the team's best pitchers and they hope to see him finish the season in a blaze of glory.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Wilbur Randolph, of Duer street, is engaged in building a row boat, fourteen feet long, which he expects to use on Lake Hopatcong, when he takes his vacation. The boat is made of cedar, oak and cypress and the builder has received many flattering comments concerning its construction. Mr. Randolph hopes to have the boat completed in about two weeks.

ROD AND GUN.

Roy Phillips and H. C. Compton spent yesterday fishing at Boynton Beach. They returned with a large catch of weakfish.

ON THE TRACK.

W. J. Buttfield, of the borough, has entered his prize-winning thoroughbred in the Long Branch horse show.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Harry T. Edgar and daughter, Catherine, of El Paso, Texas, and Mrs. Edgar's father, Reuben Potter, of New Haven, Conn., have been spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Potter, of East Second street. Yesterday they left for New Haven, where they expect to meet Mr. Edgar, who is coming on from Texas.

Woods Let Go.

Sentence was suspended on Charles Woods in the city court this morning. He was arrested yesterday on Church street, where he was found in a drunken stupor.

EXCELLENT PROGRAMME OF POPULAR NUMBERS ARRANGED.

Band to Render Miss Mabel Maxson's "Sylvia"—The Vocal Selections—Programme in Detail.

Soloists will predominate at tomorrow evening's band concert in Concert Park, the first of the local series to be given in two weeks. "Billy" Murray was announced for the vocal contributions but being called suddenly to St. Louis Leader LaVere has secured three others in his stead. They are William Corcoran, who appeared once last year and who will sing "Play in My Yard" and "Blue Bell;" Edward Rubsam, the noted xylophone player, who will render his own compositions, and George Offerman, another local favorite, who has promised "Oysters and Clams" and "I've a Feelin' for You," both introduced in Plainfield by Murray.

Another feature of the concert will be the rendition for the first time by any band of Miss Mabel Maxson's march, "Sylvia," a composition that has already caught the fancy of instrumentalists. Being a Plainfield young woman and widely known for her musical abilities, Miss Maxson has many friends who are eager to hear the selection in the concert as it is the first time a local composer's work has had a place on the programme.

The programme in detail is as follows:

HAND'S BOND ALL RIGHT

JUDGE VAIL ASSURES LOCAL JUSTICE THAT HE NEED NOT RENEW IT.

In defense of the accusation brought against him last week regarding the legal value of his bond as justice of the peace, Judge Hezekiah Hand journeyed to Elizabeth and paid a visit to Judge Vail, at the Elizabeth District Court. In the interview with the Elizabeth judge, Hand proved his original bond as justice of the peace to be all that is legally necessary to guarantee his continuance in office.

At his appointment as justice of the peace, Judge Hand's bond was furnished by his son, Horace Hand, who is now dead. In the fracas in Hand's court last week, the original cause for dispute was the assertion by the visiting lawyer that, on the account of the death of his son, his bond as justice was void and a renewal of the same was necessary. Armed with a new bond, given by two local business men in case it should prove necessary, the justice went to Elizabeth prepared to renew it. The interview with the judge showed that Hand has complied with the law in giving bond within two months after his appointment as justice of the peace in 1901, and that there is no extent law providing for a new bond upon the death of a bondsman. Contrary to Justice Hand's idea, Judge Vail announced that the renewal of the bond might effect the justice's of the peace removal from office.

AN OVERTURNED LAMP STORY

WOMAN HURT AND SOFA BURNED IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD HALL.

During the progress of an entertainment in Washington Hall, South Plainfield, last evening, an overturned lamp started a small fire back of the stage that subsequently resulted in Mrs. Peter Johnson sustaining severe burns.

The lamp was seized by Hollis Cubberly, who was about to throw it through a window pane when he was prevented by Mrs. Johnson who saw that it might add to the danger. In doing so her arm was cut and her hands burned. She then hurried to a stairway to get water when she tripped and fell down receiving painful bruises.

Cubberly and others succeeded in throwing the lamp out and the blaze was killed before doing much damage. The floor was burned and a sofa was partially destroyed. The audience knew nothing of the accident, otherwise it may have led to a panic.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY DISCUSSED BY THE PRESS.

Esopian's Small Chance.

Democrats who are hoping for luck to help Judge Parker in his race for the Presidency overlook the fact that the judge's opponent is the luckiest man who ever stepped into American politics. No superstitious gambler would give a cent for the Esopian's chances. — New Brunswick Home News.

Not Doubtful States.

The figures that prognosticators are giving us nowadays showing the result of the Presidential election next November are speculative, of course, but so far as settling New Jersey, New York and Connecticut down in the Republican column is concerned, the mathematicians are right.—Trenton State Gazette.

Out Dowie Out.

The newspapers generally profess great contempt for the self-styled prophet, John Alexander Dowie, who has dumped himself upon this country again after a tour around the globe. The way to make this contempt effective is to cease giving the man's vagaries any publicity. If the newspapers would simply ignore him, he would soon disappear from public attention. No possible good can be done in any direction by reporting the sort of stuff that this man talks, and it is doubtful if any considerable number of people ever read it. The space which is given to this subject by the metropolitan press could be much better used.—Paterson Press.

Clark a Great Commoner.

If it should really be decided to place the name of Alvah A. Clark before the coming Democratic State convention, would Mr. Smith make the nominating speech? Supposing that he should, it might be expected that, following the example of the men who nominated favorite sons at St. Louis, he would refer to his choice as "that great commoner." There wasn't a man whose name went before the Democratic National convention who failed to have that distinction thrust upon him, and it came to be watched for by the auditors during every nominating speech just as much as did the yells which always greeted the playing of "Dixie" by the band. —Newark Evening News.

New Jersey's Income.

New Jersey has gathered in the snug little sum of $2,436,910.14, taxes for the year 1904, from concerns incorporated in this State and doing business here or elsewhere. It is not an enormous amount of money, as private and corporation fortunes go nowadays, but it is of great assistance in running the State institutions, and is large enough to cause other States much envy and to incite foreign newspapers to make censorious remarks about New Jersey's corporation laws. These invidious comments would make the State feel very badly, no doubt, were is not for two facts; first, all the adjacent States and a number of others, besides, have enacted laws even more liberal than those of New Jersey and, second, New Jersey still continues to get the corporations and the taxes.—Newark Evening News.

Usually on the Winning Side.

New Jersey's electoral vote since 1788, when George Washington received her six votes, have in nearly all cases gone to the successful candidate. It was given to Washington for both of his terms, next to John Adams, once to Thomas Jefferson, and again to James Madison. In the next election DeWitt Clinton, a defeated candidate, received the eight votes of the State. James Monroe twice achieved majorities in New Jersey Andrew Jackson was the successful candidate in 1828 and in 1832, and John Quincy Adams in 1824. Then followed William Henry Harrison. New Jersey voted in 1844 for Henry Clay, a defeated candidate, because his running mate was Theodore Frelinghuysen. Zachary Taylor in 1848, Franklin Pierce in 1852, and James Buchanan in 1856 all received New Jersey's electorial vote, which was then reduced to seven. In 1860 the vote was divided, on a fusion ticket, between Lincoln and Douglas, 4 to 3. In 1864, George B. McClellan, a defeated candidate, carried New Jersey, followed by Horatio Seymour, also defeated. General Grant received the electoral vote in 1872, and Samuel J. Tilden in 1876. Mr. Tilden was declared to have been defeated. In 1880 General Hancock got a majority in the State, and Grover Cleveland carried New Jersey for two terms, as did William McKinley, his successor. In six Presidential elections, including that of Tilden and Hayes in 1876, out of twenty-nine elections, New Jersey was on the side of the defeated candidates.—Newark Advertiser.

Better Roads.

The New Jersey stone road system is used as the best object lesson obtainable in all other States where efforts are being made to popularize road improvement. The strong point made in favor of this system is its constantly increasing popularity. Wherever road improvement laws have been longest in operation the benefits have been most marked and the demand for permanent stone roads is the greatest. It is impossible for this State to keep pace with the applications that come from all counties, asking for funds to build roads according to the law. There are enough new roads contemplated and enough applications already made to exhaust the State appropriation several times over. And yet other States are very slow to enter upon a system of permanent road building. New York and Massachusetts have done moderately well, though far behind New Jersey in this respect; but Pennsylvania has done little or nothing, though its State laws are three times as liberal as our own. The Agricultural Department at Washington has recently stated that it costs the farmers of this country $950,000,000 to move their products from their farms to the nearest railroad stations for shipment. If the old rocky, dusty, muddy, uneven, unreliable roads were abolished, and new, permanent roads were built, the farmers could move their products at from one-third to two-thirds the present cost. If, therefore, they spent on roads, in a single year, the sum they now waste on cartage, they could build several hundred thousand miles, but it seems impossible to make them see this plain truth.—Newark Evening News.

LITERARY.

George Horton, who traveled through Siberia not long ago, and who knows his Japan right well, has written a story for the September Red Book based on the experiences which befell an American globe trotter in Japan, just before the outbreak of hostilities with Russia. The story is a clever one and it has been happily illustrated by the Japanese artist, Y. Sayonara, whose pictures in the July Red Book found such general favor.

Ralph Connor begins a new novel, "The Prosecutor," in the August fiction number of Leslie's Monthly Magazine, and the first chapters promise a better story than either "The Sky Pilot" or "Black Rock." There are eleven other stories in this number, by such people as George Hibbard, Henry C. Rowland, Alice MacGowan, Holman F. Day, H. I. Greene and Rex B. Beach, and they cover nearly every variety of up-to-date fiction. J. Adam Bebe, the humorist of the House of Representatives, has a most amusing article on "The Spellbinders," whom we all expect to listen to during the next few months, in which he tells a number of good stories.

Thomas Nast's cartoon "Brains," that historic, unmistakable likeness of "Boss" Tweed with the money bag for a head, on the cover of August Pearson's draws attention to that particular one of Albert Bigelow Paine's article on Thomas Nast, which recounts the beginning of the fierce fight Nast made against the Tweed Ring. Mr. Paine tells the story with an easy vigor that makes delightful reading. It is too long a tale to be contained within the limits of one magazine article, so its conclusion will appear in the September issue, as we are informed by a note at the end of the August number.

SURVEYING FOR RAILROAD.

Two Young Plainfielders to Re-Engage in Work in Pennsylvania.

H. C. Smith, of this city, and Arthur Smith, of the borough, will soon return to Pennsylvania, where they were formerly engaged in civil engineering work on a railroad. While much is not known about this railroad, some are inclined to believe that it will be a part of George Gould's Wabash system.

During the past few years there have been frequent reports to the effect that the Wabash has been seeking an eastern terminal and despite repeated denials there are those who still think that there is more than rumor to the story. The Wabash some months ago opened its road into Pittsburg, where it is a strong rival of other railroads entering that city.

Railroad men do not deny that the Wabash will some day find its way to New York and they say it would not surprise them to hear of some important move in this direction at any time.

CAPTAIN MARTIN'S CALL TO HIS MEN

Desirous That Co. K Retain the Second Regiment Cup for Marksmanship.

HE IS QUITE OPTIMISTIC

ISSUES ORDER FOR ANNUAL PRACTICE ON STATE RANGE AT SEA GIRT.

Local Militia to Leave Here Tuesday, August 9—Every Man is Needed on That Day—Regimental Orders.

Captain W. B. Martin attended a meeting of Co. K in the armory last night and distributed the checks to those who recently spent a week at Sea Girt. Those who did not receive their checks last night can get the same from First Sergeant Charles H. Peterson.

All the guns were inspected by Captain Martin, preparatory to being used in rifle practice at Sea Girt and there were only two or three that needed attention to bring them up to standard.

The members of Co. K have received orders from Captain W. B. Martin regarding the part they are to take in the rifle practice at Sea Girt, this year.

Pursuant to regimental general orders No. 13, dated Trenton, July 13, Co. K will go to Sea Girt for rifle practice on Tuesday, August 9.

As it is necessary for Captain Martin to know exactly how many men are going to camp, those intending to make the trip are requested to notify First Sergeant Charles A. Peterson at company quarters on Thursday night, August 4, between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock.

The men will assemble in the armory in khaki uniforms on Tuesday, August 9. Notification of the time of assembly will be given not later than Sunday, August 7.

Captain Martin thus addresses his men: "It is useless to speak of the importance of this season's practice. We hold the regimental trophy, and it is up to the men of the company whether we hold it during the coming year or not. It is the desire of the captain to qualify every man and if the men will only go to Sea Girt and try, there does not seem to be any question but what Co. K will have more marksmen than ever before."

UNITY LODGE'S ENTERTAINMENT

PYTHIAN KNIGHTS HAD A PLEASANT TIME LISTENING TO SONG AND STORY.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., took the part of host last evening, and entertained its members and those of Perseverance Lodge in a pleasing manner. The affair was in the nature of a social evening and was not in honor of any particular event.

Included in the programme rendered were songs, guitar selections, stories and dancing by Professor Smith, of New York; vocal selections by B. C. Firstbrook and V. W. Nash, Jr.; selections by the Perseverance Jewsharp orchestra and addresses by David Bowden, Asa D. Pope, C. A. Brown, J. E. Flannery, William Feiring, Harry Werner and L. B. Woolston, the latter a charter member of Unity. Refreshments were served at the close.

The affair was in charge of a committee composed of Harry Werner, Frank Putnam, George Dean and Jere VanWinkle.

DEMOCRATIC BOOMS IN SOMERSET COUNTY

Cruiser, Anderson, Shurts and Carney Mentioned in Connection With the Shrievalty.

THE ASSEMBLYMANSHIP

MAJOR NELSON Y. DUNGAN MAY SUCCEED S. S. SWACKHAMER.

Mr. Swackhamer said to Have His Eye on Governorship or a Seat in Congress—Carney's Boom for Sheriff.

Judging from the number of aspirants for the shrievalty nomination on the Democratic ticket, this fall, in Somerset County the coming convention of that party will be a "hot one." Thus far four names have been mentioned in connection with this nomination. Party workers in Montgomery township, the home of Major Nelson Y. Dungan, who two years ago resigned the Senatorial nomination in favor of Samuel S. Childs, who was nominated at a second convention, claim they are entitled to something and are actively booming Eugene V. Cruiser. Deputy Sheriff John Anderson, a defeated candidate for county clerk last fall, expects the delegation from Bernards to again present his name for this honor. Bridgewater has as a candidate, Jacob Shurts, of Somerville, while the delegation from North Plainfield will probably urge the nomination of David J. Carney. Carney is given much credit in his home town for the defeat of the annexation proposition two years ago.

Major Dungan is prominently mentioned as a candidate for the Assembly. Samuel S. Swackhamer says that he will not be a candidate to succeed himself and efforts made by party workers to have him change his decision have been unavailing. It is believed that the North Plainfielder has his eye on something better. His friends say that the gubernatorial chair or a seat in the lower House of Congress would be more to his taste. When seen by a reporter for The Daily Press Mr. Swackhamer disclaimed coveting the governorship or a place in the halls of Congress, but those in a position to know say that he would not refuse a snug political berth where he would have an opportunity to advocate or carry out the principles of the Democratic party. Major Dungan is solid in North Plainfield and in every other section of Somerset county and if he would accept a nomination it is quite probable that the offer would be made unanimously.

HOTEL HIGGINS PLUNDERED

BURGLARS TAKE $100 WORTH OF STUFF FROM SOUTH PLAINFIELD HOSTELRY.

Prying open a rear window, burglars invaded Hotel Higgins, the well known South Plainfield hostelry, early this morning, and got away with money, liquors and clothing worth over $100 The stolen goods belonged to the proprietor, Morris Higgins, and his son, John F. Higgins. The family knew nothing of the visit until they arose at 4 o'clock.

From appearances the work was accomplished by several men as the plunder could not be removed by one. The cash drawer containing $12 was broken from its fastenings and taken away and a check was removed from Proprietor Higgins' clothing. The son fared badly as they took all his best clothing, evidently using the coats to wrap up bottles of wine and whiskey.

The robbery was evidently committed by a gang which was seen hanging about the Lehigh's freight and coal yards early last evening. They were chased away by the night watchman several times and they finally made their way to the village. All the street lights in the place were out on account of the storm and this served to aid them in their work.

LIGHTNING'S PRANKS THROUGHOUT THE CITY

Many Buildings Struck During Yesterday Afternoon's Heavy Electrical Storm.

ONE WOMAN HURT

FIRE DEPARTMENT TWICE CALLED OUT ON ALARMS.

Local Telephone and Telegraph Wires Damaged and Growing Crops Destroyed by Hail.

Five buildings struck by bolts, one woman hurt, fire alarm, telegraph and telephone wires crippled, scores of window panes broken by hail and a heavy downpour of rain, is the summary of a severe electrical storm which passed over the city yesterday afternoon. It was in reality two storms as there was a clear period intervening. In Washington Valley and parts of North Plainfield township, crops were badly damaged by hail and the farmers suffered thousands of dollars damage.

The buildings struck by lightning were the Rogers' Corporation factory on Madison avenue, the Campbell Press Works on East Third street and the residences of George VanNest on Monroe avenue, Mrs. O. E. Bloom on Mountain avenue and the barn of Grocer W. W. Wilson, on West Third street, used as a storage house.

The VanNest house was struck by a heavy bolt which ripped off boards and slates in many places and tore around the interior causing a large amount of damage. Mrs. VanNest was standing at the head of the stairs when the crash came and was severely shocked. She lost her balance and toppled part way down the stairs receiving further injuries. She was in a serious condition when assistance arrived but has since recovered to a certain extent. She still suffers from the effects of the lightning and the painful bruises received in falling. The bolt passed around three rooms, one of them being the kitchen, where the stove was wrecked and dishes thrown from a table. In another room a large hole was burned in the carpet, and in the third floor boards were ripped from the beams. The extent of the damage is being placed by insurance adjusters today.

The bolt at the Campbell shop came in on wires. It extinguished the electric lights and knocked down several men but none were seriously hurt. A large hole was torn in the cement flooring and bricks were knocked out of a side wall.

When Wilson's barn was struck, the bolt set fire to a large number of brooms stored in it and the flames quickly spread about. Charles O. Graves was directly behind the structure when it was hit and seeing the smoke sent in an alarm from box 84. Owing to a bad cross with an electric light wire it failed to reach headquarters but the companies in No. 1 and No. 3 houses responded. The quick arrival of the later prevented the destruction of the barn, the men being directed by Captain Feiring. The roof of the building was badly torn and the damage in all will amount to $100, covered by insurance.

The Rogers' Corporation silverware plant was forced to shut down as a result of the bolt which struck its chimney and passed into the boiler room. A hole as large as a man's body was knocked in the south side of the chimney and it was left in a weakened condition, so that warning signs have been posted about it. In the boiler room was a large heating apparatus, the doors of which were all burst open. The doors of the room were also burst open and bricks were knocked from the lower part of the chimney, scattering soot all about. The engineer had stepped out of the place a short time before, otherwise he might have lost his life.

The Bloom house was struck on one side and the weather boards were damaged. The bolt was a heavy one and was plainly felt all through the neighborhood, though no one was hurt.

In the borough and outlying districts large hail stones fell for several minutes but on this side of the brook very few were noticed. The hail broke window panes, cut down shrubbery and knocked fruit from trees. In Washington Valley oats were cut, corn was laid level with the ground and farms were left in a bad state.

A house on West Fourth street just over the city line, occupied by John Ward and owned by Lawrence Kerwin, was badly damaged by a lightning bolt. Boards were ripped off and thrown a great distance and holes were knocked in the structure in several places.

A large maple tree in front of the home of Richard W. Osland on Westervelt avenue, was shattered by a bolt of lightning during the second shower. The tree was badly split and a large branch was torn off. During the same shower, pedestrians on West Front street were alarmed by an unusually heavy bolt which struck the iron trolley pole in front of David Dreier's store, near Somerset street.

Early in the storm the lightning put the entire wiring service out of business at Hill & Shupp's store on West Front street Not only the lighting of the store, but also the elevator and telephone were crippled and it was some time before the effects of the lightning could be remedied and service renewed.

The fire alarm system was out of order during this morning because of the crossing of the electric light wires and the alarm wires. This crossing of wires caused two taps to be sounded at 12:45 this morning and a single tap at 9:20. These taps were not recorded on the sounder at headquarters but merely at the engine houses. Linemen were at work this morning trying to locate the trouble.

For a while after the storm had passed, communication by telephone and telegraph was almost impossible. Lightning played on the wires incessantly and scores of fuses were burned out. The fire alarm circuits in the West End were either opened or badly crossed. Linemen were placed at work before the storm was over and today the greater part of the damage had been repaired. Especial attention was paid to the fire alarm wires and this noon a test showed everything in shape.

FAMOUS CHARACTERS IN COURT

QUARTETTE OF PLAINFIELD "GENTS" SHIPPED TO HOTEL DODD.

Four of the city's most notorious "gentlemen of leisure," Barney Tracey, John Morecraft, George Moncton and Larry Wallace, were rounded up by Patrolman Overbaugh, last night, after they had sought to pummel a fifth celebrity, Michael Motley. They were landed in cells at headquarters and today City Judge Runyon bundled the quartette off to Elizabeth for fifty days.

The crowd had been having a beer party in the rear of Fairchild's alley and all were in a hilarious state when Motley "butted in." They didn't like the intrusion and only his decision to flee saved him from getting trounced. He receive several blows before he got away and the racket made in delivering them brought Patrolman Overbaugh on the scene. He caught the four together with George Waldron, another young man. The latter is not a regular member of the gang and took no prominent part in the disturbance so he was let go with a suspension of sentence.

PASTOR'S WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Congregation of Mt. Zion A. M. E. Church Celebrate the Event.

Rev. Henry C. Ashley, pastor of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, and his wife were visited by members of the congregation at the parsonage on West Fifth street last evening on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. The guests, nearly forty in number, were received at the home by Rev. and Mrs. Ashley, Miss Ida Ashley, Mrs. E. B. Maynard and Mrs. Henrietta Grobes. The couple received many tokens of remembrance from their friends in this city, Newark, Morristown, Camden and Philadelphia. Well wishers in the congregation presented a handsome oak sideboard. During the evening, Miss Edith Young, of Camden, Miss Alice Maynard and Miss Bessie Mitchell rendered piano selections and Howard Grobes gave some cornet solos. Refreshments were served to the company later in the evening.

Netherwood Home Services.

Despite the threatening weather conditions of last evening, there was a full attendance at the regular evening meeting at the Mary Morgan Home, Netherwood. The services were in charge of the Crescent Avenue Young People's Association, and Miss Mary Voorhees made the address of the evening, speaking on the topic "God's Call to Us." The theme was simply developed and presented in a way tangible to both the mothers and children at the camp. Selected hymns were sung with especial interest by the campers.

The meeting this evening will be conducted by the Baptist Christian Endeavor Society, of Roselle.

PLAINFIELD ANXIOUS TO DEFEAT WESTFIELD

Alis to Make Fourth Attempt Tomorrow to Win Victory From the Mt. Aarat Team.

SPORTING ATTACTIONS

COMPETITIONS AT THE HILLSIDE AND PARK GOLF CLUBS.

Clinton Avenue Team to Cross Bats With Perth Amboy—Clock Golf at Hillside—Westfield Golf.

No doubt a large crowd will go to Mt. Aarat tomorrow to witness the contest and cheer the Plainfield team on to victory. While it is not known who will pitch for Alis, it is confidently believed that Manager Johnston will not be caught as he was last Saturday. Otherwise it is expected that the lineup of Alis will be the same as in the last contest. Manager Denman says he is determined to make it four straight and it is generally believed that Westfield will be in the finest condition. The game takes place at Recreation Park.

The only baseball contest scheduled here tomorrow will be between the Clinton Avenue team and Emeralds, of Perth Amboy. This team recently was defeated by the Clinton Avenue boys by a close score and tomorrow's exhibition should be a good one, as the players are evenly matched.

The other sporting attractions for tomorrow include golf events on the local courses. At the Park Golf Club, there will be the weekly competition for the President's and Club cups. This competition is full of interest at present as several contestants are making a strong bid for first place for both trophies.

At the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club there will be the weekly competition for the Golf Committee cup, and in addition to this there will be a clock golf competition for women for cups offered by Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers. This is sure to attract a number of contestants who have not been taking an active part in other events.

Members of the Westfield Golf Club team will be the guests of the Arsdale Golf Club at East Orange, tomorrow afternoon, in a return match. It is the intention of Captain Baker to get even for the defeat his team received at Westfield two weeks ago.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL PRIZES.

Crosses as Rewards of Merit at St. Stephen's.

As an incentive to better scholarship in Sunday-school, a system of reward for application to Sunday-school work has been instituted at St. Stephen's church, Netherwood. Provision has been made by the rector for the reward of faithful pupils by the presentation of small silver and gold crosses. Close application to Bible study during the term of six months will entitle a pupil to a silver cross and special instruction in a higher grade, preparatory to teaching.

Satisfactory standing in this work again will bring reward by the presentation of a gold cross. A recipient of a gold cross will qualify as teacher in the school. This system was introduced last Sunday at the church and is a result of the grading of the Sunday-school. The pupils of all grades display considerable interest in the system.

Excursionists Had a Good Time.

Notwithstanding that it rained for the greater part of the day, the Methodists of this city and Dunellen enjoyed their trip to Asbury Park, yesterday. It did not rain so hard as to entirely spoil the pleasures of the excursionists and later in the afternoon the clouds passed away and the Methodists had some clear weather. Among those who enjoyed the trip were the children from the Children's Home. Through the generosity of friends the little ones were given the day's outing.

To Enlarge Greenhouse Plant.

Charles L. Stanley, the florist, has secured a permit for the erection of another greenhouse in the rear of his nursery on South avenue. The building will measure 16x16x35 feet. Work of erection will be commened immediately.

Lawn Party Postponed.

Owing to the threatening weather last night, the lawn party announced to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, of Marion avenue, was postponed. The affair will be held within a short time.

PLAINFIELD MAN AS A GLOBE TROTTER

Walter B. Rittenhouse Seeing the World Encounters interesting Experiences.

IN SOUTH AMERICA.

DESCRIBES CUSTOMS AND MANNERS OF THE PERUVIANS.

Sailed From Vancouver in January and Reached Callao in April—Has Crossed the Andes.

Partly in quest of health and also with a view to seeing as much of the world as possible, Walter B. Rittenhouse, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Rittenhouse, of Sandford avenue, has been having great experiences in his travels. A year ago last October he returned from a trip around the world, touching nearly all of the important ports. Upon his return he went to Duluth, where he remained for a year. He then decided to take another long trip. He sailed from Vancouver in January and was from that time until April in reaching Callao, Peru.

Letters written by Mr. Rittenhouse in May and June have been received by his parents and they give interesting accounts of his travels. The first came from Callao, and he describes the manners and customs of the Peruvians in an interesting way. Afterward with a young Englishman who was a sailor on the ship which carried him from Vancouvr, he started over the Andes and Cordilleras mountains in order to cross the continent. In a second letter dated May 16 he states that they left Callao and after the hardest kind of work succeeded in reaching the Pichis river. The trip was a perilous one and the two young men suffered great hardship but soon recuperated on reaching this spot. The letter states that Indians are building a raft for them on which they are to place their tent and float down the river a distance of six or eight hundred miles to a place called Iquites. From Iquites to the Atlantic the space intervening is equal to that between New York and London, thus showing the great distance the Plainfielder is covering. On the trip over they practically lived on bananas, oranges and pineapples which were to be had everywhere. He speaks of heat and sunshine as being plentiful but at times when they were in the mountains the weather was quite cool. Mr. Rittenhouse has his camera with him and he has already secured many excellent photographs to show when he arrives in Plainfield. When this will be he was unable to state in his letter as the journey before him required at least three months before he would reach salt water.

FAMILY STRANGELY AFFLICTED

COLUMBUS MADEN THREATENED WITH LOSS OF THIRD CHILD.

Proving fatal in two similar cases in the family a short time ago, Mr. and Mrs. Columbus Maden, of West Third street, are threatened with the loss of a third child from a peculiar form of stomach trouble. A few weeks ago a daughter was attacked by the disease and died within several days. Last week another daughter fell a victim to the trouble and her death ensued Monday. It has now been discovered that their eldest son, Fraser Maden, fourteen years of age, is suffering from the complaint in a serious form and death may result. He is to be removed to Muhlenberg Hospital today but his condition is very poor.

The disease is a stomach complaint akin to tuberculosis and is nearly always fatal. It made its appearance in a West End family last summer and two children died a few days apart while a third was saved after a long stay at Muhlenberg.

Elks Bid Brother Farewell.

About twenty members of the local lodge of Elks, partook of the farewell banquet tendered by Henri Pedelfous at his Warrenville home Wednesday evening, previous to his departure to visit his home in France. "Bon voyage" was tendered to the departing brother in speeches over the repast and a jolly evening was spent. Mr. Pedelfous left yesterday for Europe on the "Kaiser Wilhelm" and will be away for six or eight weeks.

Y. M. C. A. CONFERENCE HERE IN OCTOBER

Junior Members of This State to Consider Various Phases of Association's Work.

300 DELEGATES COMING

KENNETH ROBBIE IN CHARGE OF THE ARRANGEMENTS.

Banquet to be Held Oct. 28—Morning Afternoon and Evening Sessions—Programme Later.

Boy delegates from every Y. M. C. A. organization in the State will visit Plainfield the latter part of October to attend the annual association conference to be held in this city. According to the apportionment of delegates which is scaled according to the membership of the boys' department, nearly 300 delegates are expected to be present, and aside from these, it is expected that delegations of members will be sent from the nearest associations. Last year's conference was held in Newark, and it has been five years since Plainfield has entertained association delegates.

At this early date, no theme has been decided upon for conference discussion, but it is expected that this subject will be formally announced before many weeks. While the conference will be devoted to all phases of association work, special papers will be made on the conference subject and there will be addresses and discussions. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held at the Y. M. C. A. building and the committee in charge is seeking to secure one of the larger churches of the city for the evening sessions. On the evening of October 28, a banquet will be served to the delegates at the Y. M. C. A. building. The visiting delegates will be accommodated with lodgings at the homes of the local members of the boys' department.

Entire arrangements for the affair are in charge of Boys' Secretary Kenneth Robbie, of the local association, and the committee on boys' work composed of Orra S. Rogers, chairman; Dr. Norman H. Probasco, Dr. Charles Davis, Phillip Suffern and Lucius H. Biglow, Jr. This committee will be assisted in the work of reception by the boys' cabinet. Howard Freeman is president of the cabinet, Walter Caldwell, vice president, and Marshall Ward. Serving on the committee are Weston Gavett, Malcolm VanArsdale, William Taylor and Harold Robbins.

Further details of the conference are yet to be arranged by Mr. Robbie and the committees but all arrangements will doubtless be completed by the latter part of next month.

BOYS CAMPED AT WATCHUNG

CADET CORPS OF CHRIST CHURCH ELIZABETH SPENT YESTERDAY HERE.

The Cadet Corps of Christ Episcopal church, Elizabeth, composed of about fifty boys, camped out at Watchung Lake yesterday and last night, and this morning they started on their homeward journey. In charge of former Alderman Robert L. Patterson, of Elizabeth, the Cadets left home on Wednesday for a four days' tramp through this part of the county. Thursday they camped at Lake Feltville.

Yesterday they reached Watchung Lake and just as the tents were pitched the heavy storm arrived. The campers were able to keep fairly dry with a little difficulty and they were not inconvenienced to any great extent.

Today the Cadets marched toward home by way of Fanwood, Scotch Plains and Westfield, camping out at the latter place tonight. Tomorrow they will continue their journey, reaching Christ church in the afternoon. They paid a visit to this city today.

Lost Her Pocketbook.

While waiting at the North avenue station yesterday morning to take the excursion train to the shore, Mrs. Anna M. Cannon, of 837 East Second street, mother of Percy W. Cannon, the blind chair caner, in some way lost her pocketbook containing about $16. If the money has been found, Mrs. Cannon would appreciate its return.

—There are twenty-three patients at Muhlenberg Hospital, all of whom are improving.

BOMB FOR PLEHVE

The Czar's Great Minister Assassinated.

CARRIAGE DYNAMITED BY FINN

Many Persons Killed by Explosion at St. Petersburg.

ASSASSIN FATALLY HURT BY MISSILE

Terror of the Nihilists and Reputed Author of the Kishineff Massacre Slain In the Streets of the Capital. His Body Was Torn Apart and Fearfully Mutilated—Was a Great Power In Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 29.—W. K. Plehve, the czar's minister of the interior, was assassinated here at 10 o'clock yesterday.

A bomb was thrown under M. Plehve's carriage just as he arrived at the Warsaw railway station on his way to Peterhof, where the imperial family is now residing.

The minister was instantly killed. The driver of his carriage and several persons who were standing near by also met instant death, and a number of others were injured.

The assassin is a young Finn named Leglo and is thought to have been fatally injured by the bomb with which he killed Plehve.

An accomplice of Leglo, also apparently a Finn, but whose name is unknown, has been arrested. He had in his possession a bomb which he tried to throw, but he was overpowered by the police just in time to prevent great loss of life.

A cyclist detective arrested the assassin, who endeavored to escape, though wounded by splinters in the face, arms and abdomen. He made no attempt at resistance, however, when seized by the detective and confessed his crime, but refused to give his name.

The police immediately after the explosion arrested a suspicious individual who took refuge in a hotel opposite the scene of the tragedy. He carried a bomb similar to that thrown by Leglo. As soon as the police saw the bomb they scattered, but an employee of the hotel rushed up behind the accomplice and pinned his arms.

The explosive is believed to have been composed of pyroxylin, as it gave off little smoke. The force of the explosion was so terrific that it not only broke every window within a radius of half a mile, but reduced the heavy paving stones to powder, heaved up the pavement and flung a heavy piece of the ironwork of the carriage across the canal, severing the thick mast of a barge, which fell, stunning the captain of the barge. Everybody in the street was knocked down and more or less bruised.

So great was the force of the explosion that the windows of the railway station were smashed, the bridge at the railway approach to the station was damaged and the pavement was torn up.

In the confusion that followed the murder it was extremely difficult to obtain any connected account of what happened.

According to some of the bystanders, just before M. Plehve's carriage arrived a young man was noticed looking intently out of the window of a restaurant near the Warsaw railway station.

When the carriage was abreast of the restaurant the young man hurled a bomb. According to one account it fell under the carriage; according to another, inside the vehicle.

M. Plehve was blown to pieces in the explosion, his head, arms and legs being torn from the trunk. The coachman was blown from the box, and the carriage was shattered. Only the rear wheels of the vehicle could be found after the explosion.

The assassin, slightly injured by flying fragments, ran from the restaurant and tried to escape, but he was seized almost instantly. The police at once searched him and found another bomb in his pocket.

A crowd had gathered, but it scattered when the report spread that the murderer had another bomb. The police threw a cordon about the railway sation and covered with a cloth the remains of the murdered minister, which lay in the street.

Several dead bodies were lying in the street, and there was a large number of injured. Ambulances were summoned, and the injured were removed.

M. Plehve was reading some papers when he was killed, and they were still clutched in his hand as his dead body lay on the ground. It is said that they were documents which he was taking to the emperor.

Deputy Minister Durnovo has already assumed the duties of minister of the interior ad interim.

The assassin was said to be suffering from a wound in the stomach. It had not yet been possible for the police to interrogate him.

Yesterday was St. Vladimir's day, and it is thought the assassin counted on M. Plehve going to Peterhof to congratulate the Grand Duke Vladimir, uncle of the czar.

The minister's body remained in the street under police guard until certain legal formalities had been complied with. It was then placed in a car-place and taken to M. Plehve's late town residence.

For years Wjatscheslav Konstantinovitch Plehve was denominated by the outside world as the "most powerful man in Russia," the "man behind the throne," the black shadow that cast a sinister gloom over all the domestic economy of the Russian empire. A man of no charm of character, of absolutely no social brilliancy, of no accomplishments other than those of ceaseless labor and indefatigable perseverance, he became in the minds of those whom he persecuted to the death the personification of man's relentless hatred and pitiless vengeance.

When Czar Nicholas II. came to the throne Plehve was the most powerful man, in many respects, in Russia. In 1901 he was appointed secretary of state for Finland, which country he soon had in a state of revolt by reason of his now habitual cruelty in governing the people under him.

Plehve was called home and put in charge of home affairs in the early part of 1903. Since that time a long series of revolts and outbursts of popular indignation have taken place—riots at the universities, rebellious uprisings of the peasants in the provinces of Kiev, Saratoff, Tschanigoff, Cherson, Poltava and Charkoff, and the bloody massacre of Kishineff.

The massacre of Jews at Kishineff in the spring of 1903 raised about Plehve an almost worldwide storm of execration. He was denounced as the palliator, if not the instigator, of the outrage. It was said that he had caused it for deep political reasons, the most important that he wished to prevent the czar from carrying out certain reforms at Kishineff, which, if successful there, would have been extended throughout the empire.

M. Durnovo, who was M. von Plehve's assistant, has been appointed minister of the interior ad interim.

CHICAGO STRIKE.

Railroad Men Have Become Involved In Labor Trouble.

CHICAGO, July 29.—All the railroads entering Chicago have become involved in the stockyards strike. A general order was issued by Lawrence J. Curran, president of the Freight Handlers' union, notifying all members of the union employed by the various railroads throughout Chicago to refuse to handle any freight whatever for the packing houses where the men are now on strike. If the freight handlers live up to the order of their president it will work a severe hardship on the packers, as the notificatioon to the men states explicitly that no freight delivereed by or billed to the packing companies, whether delivered at the freight houses by teams or in cars, is to be touched by the members of the union. What the railroad officials will do in such an emergency is not known. A meeting of the railroad managers was held last night to discuss the situation, but what action, if any, was decided upon was not made public.

Both sides to the dispute at the stockyards are claiming a victory. According to the packers all the plants in Chicago are running at nearly the regular capacity. On the other hand, the labor leaders declare the packing industry in this city is completely demoralized and that business is almost at a standstill. That the statement of the labor leaders is not altogether true is evidenced by the fact that the packers are slaughtering thousands of animals every twenty-four hours. There were several desertions from the ranks of the strikers, but this loss was offset by an equal number of strike breakers quitting their new positions.

Situation at Fort Worth.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 29.—The strike situation here was very quiet. The strikers opened a commissary station today for those out of work. Managers of both plants asserted that the killing was in excess of the number slaughtered before the strike.

Nearly Killed Negro.

CHICAGO, July 29.—While thousands of stockyards workers were going home last evening Grant Taylor, colored, was set upon near the yards by a mob and was beaten nearly to death before the police, with drawn clubs, dispersed the assailants of the negro. As soon as Taylor recovered consciousness he told the police that he was a janitor employed by Swift & Co. Taylor's nose was broken, both eyes were closed, his jaw was crushed and one of his arms was dislocated at the shoulder.

Drowned In Sewer.

ELIZABETH, N. J., July 29.—During a heavy rain Patrick Meckessey, sixty years old, employed by the city, was drowned in a sewer which he was engaged in cleaning when the rain began. The downpour was so sudden and heavy that before the imprisoned man could get to a manhole the rush of water was upon him, and he was swept from his feet. His comrades attempted to save him, but were unsuccessful. The body was recovered after the rain ceased.

City of Rockland Lay on Old Wreck.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 29.—It has been discovered by wreckers from Boston that part of the steamer City of Rockland is lying on a section of a former wreck believed to be that of the City of Portland, which went to pieces on the Gangway ledges in 1881. The discovery of the old wreck was made by divers, who report that the chances are good for floating the stranded steamer.

Two Women Killed by Train.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., July 29.—The club train from Syracuse to Clayton struck and killed two women at Adams Center. They were farmer's wives who were driving across the track.

ST. VALENTINE AT BRIGHTON.

Lightning Struck Gravesend Stable Killing Woodtrace and C. W. R.

NEW YORK, July 29.—A heavy storm broke over Brighton Beach, and when the first race was run the water on the track was three or four inches deep. As a result the programme was ruined, owners scratching their horses, as they did not wish to risk them in the sloppy going.

In a close finish St. Valentine, the favorite, won the Iroquois stakes, one mile and a furlong, by a head from Gold Saint, who was two and a half lengths in front of Knight Errant. Gold Saint broke in front and led his field for a mile, when Redfern brought St. Valentine up with a well timed rush and won.

The steeplechase, which was second on the card, was run in a heavy downpour of rain.

During the storm lightning struck the stable occupied by E. L. Graves and Frank Clarkson at Gravesend, killing the two two-year-olds Woodtrace and C. W. R. Dinah Shad was reported killed, but she was only stunned. The stable was almost completely destroyed, the lightning tearing a hole through the center.

Racing at Saugus.

SAUGUS, Mass., July 29.—With four regular races besides the unfinished 2:09 pacing event on the programme at Old Saugus track the attraction was sufficient to draw a large attendance. Terrill S. was slightly the favorite in the postponed pace and had little trouble in taking the deciding heat, as Phoebon W. made a couple of short breaks and Effie Powers would not try. In all of the regular classes on the card the favorites headed the summaries. Vance Nuckols had horses in three races and won in all.

Kuntzman Won In Hard Drive.

CHICAGO, July 29.—Kurtzman won the Competition stakes at Hawthorne in a hard drive the full length of the stretch. At the finish the winner was going away from the Ellison entry, Miss Inez and John Smulski, winning by a good length. The stake was worth $2,370 to the first horse. The last race was declared off and a six furlong sprint substituted with eleven starters.

Reliable Brought $15,000.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The entire racing stable, including horses, blankets and saddles, the property of J. J. Ryan, was sold in the paddock before the races at Brighton Beach. The star of the sale was Reliable, the recognized champion sprinter and weight carrier. A. Shields, after some spirited bidding, secured the four-year-old for $15,000.

Whiskers Was a Good Thing.

ST. LOUIS, July 29.—An uncertain track made winners hard to pick at the fair grounds, Elle being the only pronounced favorite to win. Whiskers was a good thing in the second and won easily from the favorite, Mindora.

Guardsmen Prepared to Shoot.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., July 29.—Company K, First regiment West Virginia national guard, has left here with 3,000 rounds of ammunition under command of Captain Lynn Osborne and staff for Moundsville to assist in escorting George Williams, colored, from the penitentiary there to Charleston, where he will be tried on the charge of assaulting a white woman.

Sultan Will Lead His Army.

TANGIER, July 29. — The British cruiser Hermione has arrived here. According to news from Fez the sultan is collecting a big army outside that city. The imperial tent has already been pitched outside the walls of Fez, which is taken to indicate that the sultan will personally lead his forces against the pretender, who is active in the districts of Taza and Udda.

Six-year-old Drowned.

GENEVA, N. Y., July 29.—Leon Cole, six years old, ran away from home with two companions and went fishing along the shore of Seneca lake. He wandered away and did not return. After an all night search his body was found in a stagnant pool near the lake.

Russo-German Treaty Signed.

BERLIN, July 29.—The commercial treaty between Germany and Russia was signed by Count von Bulow, the imperial chancellor, in behalf of Germany and M. Witte, president of the Russian ministerial council, in behalf of Russia.

REPUBLICAN CONFAB

Odell Said It Was a Council In Party Affairs.

EX-SECRETARY ROOT WILL NOT RUN

Many Names Discussed For Governor of New York State—Lieutenant Governor Higgins Is a Favorite.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Upon the invitation of Governor Odell a number of up state members of the New York Republican state committee met at the Fifth Avenue hotel and considered the political situation in this state. At the conclusion of the conference Governor Odell, in response to many inquiries, said:

"It was a council in party affairs. We reached conclusions, but will not make them public at this time. The letter of Mr. Root to me will not be made public until he authorizes me to publish it. The letter was personal, and I will not give it out without his consent. I expect to see him today, and if he desires it I will make the letter public. No conclusion was reached regarding the governorship."

In answer to a direct question the governor said:

"Root is out of it."

In fact, that was the tenor of the letter which was read to the members of the state committee who were in the conference. Mr. Root said that he was not a candidate for the office of governor and could not accept if nominated. In fact, so emphatic was the letter that the members of the conference began the discussion of other candidates, contingent upon a reiteration of Mr. Root's position after Governor Odell had seen him and told him that it was the desire of the party leaders that he should accept the nomination and also it was their opinion that he was the strongest man that could be nominated.

All of those who have been mentioned in connection with the nomination were discussed. They include Lieutenant Governor Francis W. Higgins, Erastus C. Knight, former mayor of Buffalo; former Lieutenant Governor Timothy L. Woodruff and State Senator George R. Malby of Ogdensburg. The name of former Mayor Schieren of Brooklyn was mentioned, but as Woodruff comes from the same city some doubt was expressed as to whether it was advisable to bring Schieren forward.

General Anson G. McCook was mentioned as a possible dark horse candidate and a man upon whom all factions could unite. General McCook has a civil war record and was for many years secretary of the United States senate, but for the past ten years has not been prominently identified with politics, although a delegate to national conventions. He is one of the "fighting McCooks."

The impression which prevailed among those who participated in the conference was that if no man from Greater New York was selected for governor the nomination would go to Lieutenant Governor Higgins.

Brothers Charged With Murder.

HINDMAN, Ky., July 29.—The body of Taylor Hayne, aged seventy-one years, was found at the Collins distillery. He is said to have been addicted to drink. Hogs had eaten away one side of his face, but a fracture of the skull and other wounds could not have been inflicted by the hogs. The body showed evidences of having been terribly beaten with clubs and rocks. Silas, Jasper and McClellan Collins, three sons of Robert Collins, the distiller, have been arrested, charged with the murder.

Navy Yard Fire at Portsmouth.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., July 29.—The coal pocket at the Portsmouth navy yard was completely destroyed by fire last night, together with 6,000 tons of coal. The loss is estimated at $125,000. The cause of the fire is believed to have been spontaneous combustion. The pocket was quite new, being accepted within the past two months, and had a capacity of 10,000 tons. Fortunately no vessel was alongside the pocket at the time. The coal was still burning at a late hour.

Spencer Held For Comrade's Murder.

NEW YORK, July 29.—A few hours after the discovery in West Chester creek of the body of Joseph T. Bammett, a private of the Eightieth regiment, U. S. A., stationed at Fort Schuyler, Corporal Richard M. Spencer of the same company was placed under arrest. The nature of several wounds on the body indicates that Bammett was murdered. According to officers of the regiment, both men were members of wealthy southern families and close friends.

Another Poison Candy Case.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 29.—The police are investigating another poisoned candy mystery similar to the Margaret Cunningham case of last winter. Frederick Lamphier, bartender at the Ithaca hotel, ate four chocolate creams which had been left on the bar by an unknown person and which were in a small sack marked "Reddy," the young man's nickname. He became violently ill shortly afterward with symptoms of arsenic poisoning.

Miners' Strike Threatened.

SCRANTON, Pa., July 29.—There is grave fear that the executive board of District No. 1, United Mine workers, will order a strike involving approximately 75,000 men when it meets in special session here next Monday to consider the question of the refusal of the coal companies to accept check weighmen's wages.

Don't waste time reading the straw vote man's predictions. He's a harmless incident of every campaign.

Dispatches received say Japan expects a big battle. Maybe so, but it wont be a marker to the one headed this way and due in November.

Word comes from Winsted, Conn., that a hen up there laid an egg weighing four pounds. The Winsted city weigher has been derelict in his official duties and he should be made to order a general overhauling of all scales at once.

"We have used magazines and we have tried outdoor display, "says the head of a large shoe business, "but we have withdrawn from these and other kinds of advertising, not because we were dissatisfied with them, but for the reason that we wished to expend as much of our appropriation as we could on the daily newspapers. The daily is the only medium that pounds constantly."—Ex

United States Senator John Kean says that Edward C. Stokes, of Cumberland County, will be the nominee of the Republican party to succeed Franklin Murphy, and he also declares he will be elected. What the smiling Senator says goes. For the sake of his own pocket book, which is always made use of in campaigns, what's the need of holding a convention? In fact what's the use of holding the election?

DEFENDS MINOR JUDICIARY

'SQUIRE HAND TAKES EXCEPTIONS TO OPINIONS OF LOCAL LAWYERS.

Justice of the Peace Hezekiah Hand takes exception to some statements made in an article in these columns which gave reasons advanced by local lawyers for the establishment of a district court in this city. Following is a communication from the 'squire:

Editor, The Daily Press:

I have noted in your paper the article in reference to establishing in our city a District Court. I am, and have been for years, heartily in favor of having a District Court established in this city; but it seems to me, the article in your paper tends to give one the impression that decisions are promiscuously made in justices' courts irrespective of what the evidence or law on the question may be. Just a word in defence of the office of Justice of the Peace, which was created in England in the time of Edward III, in the year 1327, and was established in our State of New Jersey, in the year 1657, which office has since been made a constitutional one, and can not be abolished. If the matter was investigated, I doubt very much whether we would find more decisions rendered in justices' courts reversed on appeal to the Common Pleas Court, than decisions made in other courts and carried by writs of error to higher courts. A justice does not like to have his decisions reversed any more than the judges of any other courts, therefore he is likely to exercise his best judgment and discretion in making his decisions. I find in my civil dockets, alone, that in the past three years 281 suits have been instituted in this court. From this number, nine have been appealed to, and disposed of, by the Court of Common Pleas; and of these nine appealed, the nearest to a reversal was a slight reduction in the amount of two verdicts rendered in this court, and one of those being brought in by a jury over which, of course, a justice has no control. Hezekiah Hand,

Justice of the Peace.

AMUSEMENTS.

Europe and America will vie with each other during the coming week to furnish entertainment for Keith's patrons. The best of foreign acts will be pitted against home production, which will mean a vaudeville show of the highest standard, while the perfect arrangements for keeping the house cool will add to the delight of all who attend. Chief among the many good numbers that will support the home standard will be Robert T. Haines and company in that clever offering, "Their Honeymoon." This farce comedy one act playlet is totally different from anything of the kind ever done in vaudeville, and the change from the beaten path will be a pleasing novelty.

—Note the display at Neuman Brothers' tomorrow: Fancy peas, Jersey sweet corn, lima beans, Jersey egg plant, Boston head lettuce and fancy table celery.

CONDITION OF A. O. U. W.

STATEMENT MADE BY GRAND RECORDER TO LOCAL LODGES OF THE ORDER.

Grand Recorder J. H. Lippincott, of the New Jersey A. O. U. W., has communicated with Central and Columbia Lodges, of this city, notifying them that in accordance with statements of May 28 last, he has received instructions from the Supreme Lodge to deduct from future remittances, on account of the guaranty fund, the full amount of the claim for deficiencies on the March deaths, amounting to $3,096. This makes the total deduction for January, February and March of this year, $10,664.

The claim for April will be $1,888 and for May, $1,436, making a total for five months of $13,988.

The last announcement informs the various lodges that there will be beneficiary assessment for next month, but there will be an assessment of fifty cents on each member in the State for the general fund of the Grand Lodge, payable on or before August 28 next.

This report accompanies the regular statement: Members on good standing June 1, 1904, entire order, 392,729; amount of beneficiary fund paid out in May, $939,410 72; grand total beneficiary fund disbursed by the order from organization to June 1, 1904, $138,965,287.01; new members admitted in May, 1,994.

—John Auten, the clerk at the Hotel Kensington, accompanied by his family, is planning to spend a week of his vacation at Little York, N. J.

—The tendency of new corporations to file papers in the State of Maine is claimed to be due to the lower taxation and fees in that State. In other words, new organizations, under the existing dull conditions are inclined to economize. A number of concerns that filed papers under the laws of the State of New Jersey, among them the Morris packing concerns of Chicago, have withdrawn from this State and have re-incorporated under the laws of the State of Maine. For a $1,000,000 corporation the Secretary of State's fees in New Jersey is $200 and the annual tax is $1,000. In Maine the State treasurer's fee is $100 and the annual tax $50.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Ginna, of Watchung avenue, are home from Rhode Island.

A STORY FROM LIFE.

DEVOID OF ROMANCE BUT ABOUNDING IN REALITY.

Told by the Wise Young Woman Who Presides Over the "Answers to Correspondents" Corner of a Newspaper.

One of her duties was to answer the letters from damsels whose complexions were not what they desired, whose sweethearts did not behave as they wished, who had doubts as to their religious belief and wanted cure for souls as well as freckles.

She was used to being asked the fashionable color of hair and the way to remove hair if superfluous. She gave her opinion as to the propriety of kissing games, gave advice as to dressing the bride and the graduate, but she did get desperately tired with the girl who would write 16 pages about "the gentleman who is keeping company with me."

In a burst of confidence she told this story. Said she to a New York Sun reporter:

"A letter came for me early last spring, written in the usual fashion, in which a girl said she had been keeping company with a young man for two years; that he hadn't much money, and did I advise her to marry him then or to wait a few months and collect enough furniture to make a little home for themselves?

"I was immensely interested. I wrote to that girl and advised her to wait three months and have a home to start with, and gave her a lot of advice and a few suggestions that I thought might help her along.

"I never heard from her again, but one day last week I was in a Twenty-third street store shopping, when a young woman tapped me on the shoulder and asked me very modestly:

"'Are you Mrs. Blank?'

"She wore a picture hat trimmed with roses and very long, wide, pale blue streamers down her back, a coat of tan, with enormous pearl buttons upon it, and white gloves. Upon her face was the most delighted expression possible. She looked so happy that it positively rested me. Then she explained herself.

"ARE YOU MRS. BLANK?"

"'I suppose I ought to be ashamed of myself, one lady speaking to another in this way without an introduction, but I am Mrs. Drongol—Mrs. John Drongol. Of course, you don't know me by that name, but last spring I wrote you a letter asking you whether I had better marry a young man with whom I was keeping company then or whether I had better wait until we had enough to set up housekeeping.

"'You wrote me a beautiful letter. You told me how to be noble and honorable with my husband, and to be affectionate and always glad to see him, and then you told me to wait for the home.

"'It was a mighty lucky thing you said that, for I had made up my mind to do exactly what you told me. I got the home, and you can see how I am dressed.

"'I am in here now buying some stuff for a new silk dressing sack. I think red would be pretty, don't you? Oh, you have done more for me than any woman in the world.'

"I can't tell you how this affected me. I felt the tears come into my eyes as I thought: 'After all, here is at least one case where my letters have done some good.' I took Mrs Drongol's hand in mine with a real genuine happy clasp as I said:

"'I can't tell you how glad I am! And how happy you and the young man must be!'

"'Good gracious!' she said. 'Why, I didn't marry him! That's just it. While I was waiting I did a heap better. I married his boss.'"

Her tone was sad, but there was a twinkle in the eye of the narrator as she completed her story.

Naughty Cat Was Forgiven.

To punish a cat for having stolen a flounder, John M. West, of Salt Lake, put the animal in a bag and secreted him under a seat of a car on the San Pedro & Los Angeles railroad. At Caliente, Nev., the cat was discovered and released. Tom, as the animal is called, made his way back to Salt Lake, a distance of 337 miles, and begged for food at his old home. Tom was forgiven.

A Gypsy Test of Honesty.

Gypsies are rogues, and steal even from one another. When one of them is deputed by the chief to take up a collection from visitors to their camp, a simple method is employed to check dishonesty. The collector is given a plate to hold in his right hand, and a live fly, which he has to keep imprisoned in his left.

WANTED TO KISS A SPIRIT.

Detective's Offer to Embrace and Fondle His Mother Puts End to Thrilling Seance.

If the spiritualist medium hadn't possessed such great regard for his wife that he objected vigorously to a policeman kissing her, a seance in the home of "the Rev." Clarence C. Howland, at Philadelphia, Pa., wouldn't have ended with a decidedly unspiritual combat with fists. The detective didn't really mean to kiss Mrs. Howland; simply, in his own terse language, he "made that bluff" to make Howland "come from under cover." He succeeded.

Hoagland, the sleuth who scorned the spirits, told his story to Magistrate

"ARE YOU MY MOTHER?"

Pullinger. His story of being tackled by unshadowy forms, with highly substantial fists and fingernails, was corroborated by Detective McCarthy. As a result Howland was held in $1,100 bail, on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses and assaulting a policeman. His wife was held in $600 on the first charge.

"We went to Howland's public meeting and paid 35 cents admission," testified Hoagland. "But there wasn't much doing there, so we went to the private seance in the Howlands' home. We paid one dollar to make ourselves solid. We let the spirits work that time, but last night we thought we'd take a hand.

"At last Howland called me up. He said he'd show me my mother. Sure enough, a tall figure came from the cabinet. It had on a white gown—this gown."

Hoagland held up a white china silk dress, which told mutely but eloquently of having passed through a sharp conflict.

"I said, 'Are you my mother?' and a faint voice said, 'Yes.' 'Well, if that's so I'm going to kiss you,' I said, and I made as if to grab her.

"Her husband didn't seem to like that a bit. 'Don't do that!' he shouted. 'You'll break the spell.' I gave him an uppercut, and he closed with me. He fought like a—a—well, like a champion heavyweight."

"I was scrapping with Mrs. Howland," said McCarthy, taking up the tale, "and she fought like mad. I followed her into the cabinet, as I wanted to arrest her in the white gown to get evidence. In the fight the thin stuff was torn off down to her waist."

HOUSE HAUNTED BY GOOSE.

Mystery of a Philadelphia Suburb Solved by Veteran Who Was Not Afraid of Ghosts.

The mystery of Germantown's "haunted" house has been solved.

For several days weird noises, emanating from the house, an unoccupied one on Chew street, filled the neighbors with alarm. Strange shadows were seen to flit across the closed blinds, and the patter of footsteps upon the bare floors sent a shudder through the passer-by.

The Philadelphia Inquirer says that none dared to enter or start an investigation, until William Harkins, of 613 Mechanic street, arrived on the scene. Harkins is a brave man, a veteran of the civil war, and he excited the admiration of the crowd in front of the house the other night by expressing a determination to locate the "ghost." He entered alone. A few minutes later there were sounds of a scuffle, then a weird scream, and terror seized upon those without. Suddenly Harkins appeared on the threshhold of the front door with a big goose in his arms.

"Here's your ghost," he said, laughing. And the crowd melted away. An investigation revealed the fact that the goose was the property of William Logan, who conducts a poultry farm, near by. It had escaped a few days before and had sought refuge in the house through an open cellar window.

MUCH TOO GOOD FOR HIM.

Chicago Woman Concludes That Police Station Is Too Luxurious for Boozy Husband.

The Chicago Inter Ocean says that the other day a well-dressed woman walked into an uptown station house and, after gazing curiously about her, glided up to the sergeant at the desk and said:

"So this is—a police station?"

"Yes, madam," replied the polite officer on duty. "What can I do for you?"

"Oh, I only wished to look around and ask a few questions that may be of benefit to me. You don't keep prisoners in this clean, well-lighted, pleasant apartment, do you?"

"SO THIS IS THE STATION!"

"No, madam," responded the sergeant, rising and leading the way to an inner room. "Here are the cells in which they are locked."

"How comfortable everything looks. Do you put iron chains and balls on their legs, handcuff and administer the cat-o'-nine-tails vigorously to unruly prisoners?"

"No; prisoners are only detained here temporarily while awaiting trial, and we never treat them as harshly as that."

"Well," said the visitor, with a disappointed expression, "I've a husband who occasionally comes home intoxicated, and when he begins to act like a maniac and abuse me I've often thought—"

"You ought to have him arrested."

"What! And locked up here?" she asked, almost scornfully.

"It might teach him a lesson."

"Never! You don't know John! Why, I often break a broomstick over his head, pull his whiskers and lock him in the coal bin over night, and a man that is used to such treatment at home would have too good a time here to suit me."

FAUCET WOULD NOT LIGHT.

Convivial Man's Better Half Informed Him That He Was Wasting Good Matches.

There is a man up in Capitol hill, says the Washington Times, who sups with a number of old college chums two or three times a year, and usually after one of these suppers he is fit to roost with boiled owls. The last gathering of the clan was about a fortnight ago, and before Mr.—we will call him Jenks—set out for it he promised Mrs. Jenks solemnly that no matter what the others did, he would drink nothing but charged water and lemonade. Mr. Jenks came home about two o'clock, walking very carefully and sedately. Mrs. Jenks was awake,

MRS. JENKS WAS AWAKE.

and she turned up the gas as he came in.

"Are you sure you didn't drink too much?" she asked.

"You hurt me when you speak like that," said Mr. Jenks, somewhat indistinctly. "I had only two small drinks."

Mrs. Jenks lay back on her pillow, regarding him. Under her gaze he was most careful to bestow all his belongings in their proper places. His feelings were hurt and he was determined to show his wife how unjust her suspicions were. He was standing at the stationary washstand in the corner of the room when she spoke again, and it was not so much the matter as the manner of her words that cut.

"Charles," said she, "you might as well stop trying to light the hot-water faucet. That's the third match you've wasted."

IN VANITY'S REALM.

Gowns In Princess Style—Wool Lace on Cloth Gowns.

There is an increasing demand for plain white satin of a heavy make for evening wear.

The pointed eighteenth century bodice still continues a prime favorite. This is enriched with all sorts of tucks. Flounces, insertions and edging of fine lace figure on all smart gowns.

Some of the newest gowns are cut princess style. Evening gowns of this description are sometimes embroidered with velvet leaves. Occasionally they are further enriched with precious stones. White and old rose are the leading evening shades abroad just now.

Once again there is a craze for old brocade, but this is not of the stiff variety.

Checked silk is used even for very dressy costumes, especially in a shade of coral and white. This is trimmed with bands or ruchings of coral silk, and it is very effective.

As far as best dresses go, this has been a most extravagant season, but the girl with a small income can pick up many pretty gowns at this time of the year for one-half the original price.

Thinner gowns are many of them in the dainty flowered effects with parasols to match.

The picture shows a lace dress, ecru in tone, trimmed with black chantilly applique on white mousseline de soie. The wide belt is of black silk. The elaborate parasol is of black and white chiffon.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS.

New and Attractive Lingerie Models. Brown Evening Coats.

If a woman purchases a smart evening coat, she has a good chance of being able to wear it another season, for the styles in evening coats change as little as do those in tea gowns. The loose front, with the semifitted or entirely loose back and the hanging sleeves, is sure to be in good style. The great thing is not to have an evening coat skimpy. White cloth ranks first in popularity. Next come all the pale colors, ecru and black.

Pretty brown silk or velvet evening coats will be a feature of the coming fall season.

A deep mulberry red crepe de chine seen recently had its corsage trimmed with dyed lace of the same shade. With this was worn a mushroom shaped hat trimmed all around the crown with hoops of the mulberry colored velvet intertwined with a vine of the berries.

For the slender woman nothing is better than the frilled corset cover.

CHILD'S HAT.

This, as its name indicates, is made with three or four bias ruffles across the bust, each ruffle being edged with lace. The corset cover itself blouses, and this is the proper thing to wear with the thin blouse waists now all the vogue.

A new combination chemise, drawers and short skirt has been invented. The drawers are cut very full, so that they show no division, something after the manner of a divided skirt. This is joined to the upper half by a beading through which half inch ribbon is run.

The picture shows a child's lingerie hat of cream mousseline de soie accordion plaited into tiny ruffles. It is trimmed with a large cream satin bow.

MADE HIM FEEL SAD.

TOUGH EXPERIENCE IN AN OLD GAMBLER'S CAREER.

Chicken-Hearted Drummer Made the "House" Give Up Every Dollar of Stake He Had Lost the Day Before.

"Yes," said a veteran of the sporting fraternity, to a Washington Star man, "though I'm on the retired list now, I confess I have been in my time an accomplished devotee to the cloth of green and have invaded the lair of the tiger with varying degrees of success." The old gambler was in no way reticent in these admissions to a party of friends and companions who were talking about times in this city when, as everyone knew, the town was, so to speak, "wide open," so far as faro, roulette, rouge et noir et id omne genus, were concerned.

"I suppose you have had hosts of all sorts of experiences," said one of his listeners. "What was the toughest of the trials you met?" he suggested.

The old sport looked in an oblique way at the man who made the interrogation. He evidently didn't appreciate the word "trials," but he was not an excitable character, and was convinced in his own mind that nothing offensive was to be inferred from the language and continued to talk.

"I can tell you the saddest experience I met in my career," he remarked. "It was such a sorrowful trial that I am almost inclined to shed tears even now at this late day, and it happened right here in this lovely burg. This was away back in the old reconstruction period, not very long after the close of the war. I was proprietor then of one of the most tony faro banks in this city, and there was a game on almost all the time. My clientele (if I may use that word) was a large and distinguished one. Of course I mention no names, but I tell you my place was every night graced by a distinguished group which included—well, I expect it's just as well not to say who comprised numbers of my friends.

"Well, there came one Saturday afternoon a middle-aged man, who showed a disposition to put on the gloves with us, and, naturally, he was accommodated. He was a regular personification of purple and fine linen. He wore as neat a silk tile as ever I saw on a man's headpiece, and had sparklers in his shirt bosom and on his fingers to beat the band. Too many by far to spot him as a regular honest gambling man, and his necktie was a downright kaleidoscope in the way of colors. It beat Joseph's coat a mile and a half, and he was proud and haughty, and ordered half pints of extra dry, while he was playing in a way to make the waiters think he was the count of Monte Cristo.

"Well, to shorten up this mournful story, the way that fellow made safe bets was harrowing in the extreme, and he cashed up Saturday night with $850, drank another half pint of champagne (at his own expense, of course), and stalked out of the house as supercilious and conceited as a peacock on dress parade.

"Well, next morning, Sunday morning, mind you, he came in and wanted to renew his triumphs, and perhaps I ought to be ashamed to admit, but I opened the game. There were several old fellows loafing about the room, and they joined in. But the tide turned, and the winner of the day before became the loser. He played the limit every time, and we soon had all our losings back and a cool thousand from him.

"This wasn't bad, but now comes the calamity. This proud man, who, as I learned, was a drummer for a jewelry house somewhere up north, sent for me Sunday evening, and actually cried, shed bitter, burning tears, and demanded that the money he had lost be returned to him. He said it belonged to his employers, and asserted that if I didn't give it back, he would report it to the police authorities. Well, I had no desire to get into trouble, and I gave it back, and at the same time gave him a piece of my mind. He had lost his stately and ostentatious mien of the day before, and showed up as low, ignoble, whining pup. That's what he was, and that, mister—that giving him back the shekels I fairly won from him after he had been stalking about with over $800 of my money in his pocket—was the saddest trial I ever experienced in my career as a sporting man."

First Mention of Shaving.

The first mention of shaving is in Genesis 41:14, when Joseph shaved himself just before setting forth to interview King Pharaoh.

DOG WAS PRESS AGENT.

Couldn't Be Lost No Matter Where He Was Taken and Turned Loose.

A dog fancier who lately moved into a semi-residence, semi-business district of the upper west side advertised his advent by means of a remarkably well-trained press agent from his own establishment, says the New York Times. The drummer was a large black and white dog that promenaded the boulevard and adjoining streets in lordly fashion, notwithstanding that the placards attached to his sides announced in conspicuous fashion that he was a "Lost Dog."

To make the description on the card appropriate the dog, of course, traveled alone, although the six-foot length of rope that dangled from his neck indicated that there might have been at one time a man attached to the other end of the string. The dog was a fine-looking, and passers-by, seeing him thus accoutred, stopped to look at him. Many of them spoke.

"Nice doggie," said the women. "Bully fine dog, that," said the men, and "Gee, ain't he a buster?" said the boys.

Occasionally some one, growing overbold, assumed a familiar air and patted the dog's head. Those simple evidences of affection tapped a vein of sentiment in the canine breast, and he squatted back on his haunches and howled dismally. Then people wondered who had lost him and how the owner could be found. At length quite a crowd collected around the sorrowing animal and suggestions for restoration to his happy home were exchanged volubly.

Presently the dog took the solution of the problem into his own paws. With a final prodigious howl he jumped up and went racing down the boulevard. He traveled at a rapid gait, but every man and boy in the crowd, and as many women as could keep the pace, pelted along after him. After turning several corners the dog brought up before the door of the newly arrived fancier. The man stood in the doorway to welcome him.

"Does that dog belong to you?" asked the foremost runner.

"Sure," said the dealer. "You can't lose him. Turn him loose anywhere and he will be sure to come back and bring the crowd with him. Walk right in, gentlemen. Here are a score more of dogs inside that are equally intelligent and trustworthy."

About half of the crowd accepted the invitation. "Well," said the foremost runner, "if that isn't the slickest game I've seen worked in a long while."

HAS TAME BUTTERFLIES.

California Genius Has Succeeded in Domesticating the Beautiful Creatures.

Miss Mable Adams Ayer, a prominent Sunshine club worker and a member of the Forum club, has succeeded in training butterflies, reports the San Francisco Post.

At first the idea seems almost absurb, but if one can see the way Miss Ayer handles her pets is seems the most natural thing in the world. In speaking of them to-day Miss Ayer said:

"Why, it doesn't seem at all strange to me. They are just like any other trained pet. They have their likes and dislikes, and they are really lovable little things when you come to know them.

"The first thing that started me to studying them was when I was asked to deliver a lecture before the Forum club. I chose for my subject "Butterflies and Rainbows,' and wishing to give something more than could be learned from books, I went into the garden and captured one or two of the butterflies. The more I studied them the more I loved them, and now they are almost like people to me.

"When I first get one I uncoil his tongue and feed him with sugar and water, and the rest—why, I don't know; they just come to know me, that's all. You know, the butterfly has six legs, and the two front ones he uses to wash his face and preen himself, much as a cat would.

"They live on sugar and water and I always keep plenty of flowers in the room for them. One big fellow called a "Morning Cloak' I was unable to do anything with. He seemed to have no affection. They are sensitive, and nervous temperaments affect them always. Some of them are quite playful, and two or three would run after and try to catch the end of a stickpin when I drew it in front of them.

"One evening I wore several of them on my shoulder as an ornament. Of course, it was in my own home, but they stayed on my gown all evening.

"I have had in all over 40 butterflies, but, you know, they live only three or four weeks, and most of them are dead now.

"No, I do not use a net for catching them. I simply go out and pick them up. I always breathe on them, and that seems to warm them, and they get so they will fly all around me and bathe or eat from my hand."

Rosedale and Linden Park Cemeteries

LARGEST IN THE STATE

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

2 Miles from Elizabeth, 7 Miles from Newark,

14 MILES FROM NEW YORK

On Main Line Pennsylvania Railroad

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL, PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER, AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

FOR INFORMATION concerning lots in these beautiful Park Cemeteries, and FREE transportation to prospective lot buyers, apply at once to any LEADING UNDERTAKER or offices of the Associations:

McCLELLAN AT ESOPUS.

Judge Parker Awaits Mayor of New York—Boy Traveler Arrives.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 29.—Mayor George B. McClellan of New York is expected at Rosemount to-day to pay his first visit to the Democratic candidate for president. In view of the denials that Judge Parker will take a hand in the selection of a state ticket it is uncertain what part the conference will play in Mayor McClellan's gubernatorial boom. Judge Parker is said to favor McClellan, but will not declare himself in favor of any candidate for the governorship.

The yacht Sapphire, owned by John B. McDonald of New York, will bring Mayor McClellan and such friends as may accompany him. This yacht has been the means of conveyance of several prominent political figures in their trips between New York and Esopus and was expected to carry the Tammany delegation back to New York, but failed to arrive.

Judge Parker took in a boy traveler last night, gave him a good supper, bed and breakfast. The boy was Harry F. Cahill of Montclair, N. J., whose father is acquainted with Fred Parker, the judge's brother. The boy started to walk from his home to Hunter, N. Y., where he has relatives. He is only fourteen years old, but he made the journey to Esopus in three days. He spent the last of his money at Marlborough, N. Y., but did not give up. Judge Parker commended the boy for his perseverance.

As Minister of Justice Muravieff was driving to the Peterhof palace to report to Emperor Nicholas the assassination of Minister of the Interior von Plehve stones were thrown at him, and his carriage windows were broken. The identity of the minister's assailants has not yet been discovered.

His majesty did not leave the palace during the entire day, although he had arranged to go to Oranienbaum, nineteen miles from St. Petersburg, to attend the consecration of the new harbor.

The empress has not been informed of the tragedy in view of the hourly expectation of the birth of an heir to the throne.

Democrats In Conference.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Chairman Taggart had a conference with William F. Sheehan and August Belmont regarding the executive committee which he is to name for the Democratic committee. Mr. Taggart expects to leave New York today and will return next Thursday. During his absence the temporary headquarters of the committee at the Hoffman House will be in charge of Secretary Woodson.

Governor Pennypacker to Be Orator.

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—Governor Pennypacker has accepted an invitation from the Pennsylvania commission to the Louisiana Purchase exposition to make the principal address at the ceremonies attending the observance of Pennsylvania day at the St. Louis world's fair. Pennsylvania day, Saturday, Aug. 20, is the anniversary of the battle of Fallen Timbers, when General Mad Anthony Wayne, a Pennsylvanian, then commander in chief of the United States army, achieved a great victory over the Indians of the northwest and made the settlement of that part of the country and the subsequent Louisiana purchase possible.

Six Jailbirds Got Away.

RALEIGH, N. C., July 29.—Six white men escaped from the jail at Hendersonville, N. C., between 11 and 4 o'clock. They unlocked the door of their cell with a key believed to have been smuggled into the prison and then cut their way through a brick wall to liberty.

FLEET TO WITHDRAW

English Premier Has That Assurance From Russia.

KOREA IS REPORTED CAPTURED.

Balfour States That Strongest Possible Exception Was Taken to the Raids Made In the Red Sea and Czar's Government Yielded.

LONDON, July 29.—A St. Petersburg dispatch says that Foreign Minister Lamsdorff has received the protest of the British government through Sir Charles Hardinge, the British ambassador, regarding the sinking of the British steamer Knight Commander. The protest declares the act to be contrary to the law of nations and asks that instructions be sent to the Russian commanders to prevent its recurrence. Count Lamsdorff has not yet replied to the protst, but it is believed that he ha salready sent assurances to the British government through the Russian ambassador at London, Count Benckendorff, that the necessary steps in this direction have been taken.

A Liaoyang dispatch says that Marquis Oyama, commander in chief of the Japanese field forces, was personally in command at Tashichao. The Russian retirement from that position was terribly galling to the rank and file, who, after two days' hard fighting, held their positions and believed themselves on the eve of a great victory.

The Russian artillery was better disposed than in any previous fight. The positions were selected having in view the lesson learned at Vafangow. The batteries scientifically supported each other, all of them being in a position to deliver the most effective fire. The Russians fired 4,016 shots and frequently smothered the Japanese fire and caused them to shift their batteries.

Colonel Paschenko, whose battery distinguished itself, had a marvelous escape. He was thrown bodily into the air by the explosion of a melinite shell, but picked himself up and continued to fight. Later he was wounded in the hand while waving a signal to the guns.

When the extreme left of the Russians was ordered to attack, the movement was anticipated by the Japanese, who huled themselves on the Russian position.

The war is expected to enter on a new phase by a Japanese invasion of the island of Sakhalin, a Russian convict settlement in the north Pacific. The Russians have already taken precautions in view of the this movement, and troops have been sent to the island.

The Japanese loss at Tashichao is estimated at from 4,000 to 5,000, resulting chiefly from their attempts to take intrenched positions in the face of a heavy artillery fire.

In the house of commons Premier Balfour said that the acute stage of the affair growing out of the Red sea incidents had passed and that Russia would withdraw the ships of the volunteer fleet.

"I have very little to add," said Mr. Balfour, "to what is now common property. The house will remember that the Malacca was seized by a steamer of the Russian volunteer fleet which issued from the Black sea. We took the strongest possible exception to that course, on the ground that no belligerent vessel could issue from the Black sea, and, in our judgment, the volunteer ships had either no right to issue or no right to act

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Johnston, of Alis, has been detained at home several days by illness.

Richardson, formerly of Alis, but now playing first base for Summit, is back in the game again, having recovered from a recent injury.

The most successful baseball managers in the big leagues declare that nothing is to be gained by fooling the public. They realize that it is the public that makes the game the success that it is and if the patronage is to be liberal the public must be kept informed of the team's doings.

Manager Frank Burke, of the Elizabeth Stars, as well as the manager of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A. team are both anxious to arrange a series of games with Manager Johnston. It is quite likely that these teams as well as the one in Somerville will be accommodated before the season is over.

Among the reports in circulation today as to the probable pitcher for Alis in the contest with Westfield tomorrow, was one that Lindeman, of the Hobokens, had been secured. Another report has it that Conroy will occupy the box, while still a third said that a National League man would do the twirling. It is confidently stated that Davis will not pitch and there is every reason to believe that a strong man will occupy the points.

In view of the talk about "Lefty" Davis, the Alis Club pitcher, a friend of the twirler remarked today that in the six or seven games he has faced Westfield last season and this, he has been successful in but one, and that was the contest at Scotch Plains, last year, when Westfield lost by a score of 6 to 3. Later he pitched a thirteen inning game for Scotch Plains at Westfield, losing by a score of 1 to 0. In the other contests the scores have been much larger in favor of Westfield.

SPECIAL PRIZE FOR CO. K

FRENCH CUP TO BE AWARDED WHEN LOCAL BOYS LEADS IN MARKSMENSHIP.

The qualifications necessary to win the silver trophy offered by Elston M. French have been misunderstood by some of the members of Co. K. It was thought that when the company led the regiment in marksmanship it would receive the trophy, but the conditions prescribe that the company shall lead the State. This it has failed to do since the offer was made, although the feat was accomplished the second year in camp. Last year the company was third or fourth in marksmanship.

The members will make a determined effort this year to lead the State militia and thereby win the trophy. Heretofore, the company has made an excellent showing on the State rifle range, special merit being accorded members for fine work in shooting.

ASBURY PARK WON.

Sunday Train Service to Seaside Resort to Begin at Once.

Asbury Park won its fight for Sunday trains yesterday afternoon. The Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association held an exciting meeting, at which a proposition was presented by the railroad companies to exclude the North Asbury Park station from the limit of prohibitive Sunday stops. The ministers and laymen discussed the proposition with fiery energy.

Treasurer Andrus, of Yonkers, and former Senator Skirm, of Trenton, led the fight for Sunday trains. They carried with them all but three of the members present. When the vote was announced on the motion to accept the new agreement all voted for it except E. N. Cole and Rev. J. R. Daniels, of Ocean Grove, and M. E. Blanchard, of Newark. The count stood at the close 16 for and 3 against. A letter of acceptance was mailed to the railroad officials, if time tables can be arranged on short notice. Sunday stops at North Asbury Park will be resumed next Sunday.

LITERARY.

Madame, for August, appears under the editorial management of Henry F. Harris, a well known Ohio journalist. Many improvements are to be seen in the magazine while others are in contemplation and will be announced in the near future.—The Ford Publishing Co., Indianapolis.

The family of President Roosevelt has other literary talent besides his own. Maude Roosevelt, his cousin, contributes a novelette, called "Social Leigo," to the August number of Lippincott's Magazine which substantiates the talent of her race. It is a tale of the somewhat sordid life well-bred women have to lead in New York boarding-houses, but the heroine of Miss Roosevelt's story emerges through many thrilling social adventures to the lot for which Nature planned her—a happy marriage.

JOSEPH W. YATES GONE TO HIS REST

Prominent Citizen of Plainfield Died at Lake Minnewaska, N. Y., Last Night.

DEATH UNEXPECTED

ROSE TO POSITION OF INFLUENCE AND WEALTH THROUGH HARD WORK.

Active As a Democrat—For Years a Member of Chamber of Commerce—Survived by Wife and Four Children.

Joseph Washburn Yates, one of Plainfield's oldest and best known citizens, died last evening at Lake Minnewaska, N. Y., where he had been spending the summer according to his yearly custom. He left here a month ago and at that time was enjoying excellent health. Soon after his arrival he contracted a cold which developed complications and death soon followed. His wife and daughter, Miss Margaret Yates, were with him at the last.

By the death of Mr. Yates, New Jersey has lost one of her prominent and honored citizens and Plainfield one of its oldest and most esteemed residents, and in addition to the bereaved members of his family, many, who have looked upon him as their kind, sympathetic and helpful friend, will deeply mourn his loss.

Mr. Yates was born in Bristol, Maine, in 1826. He received such an education as could be obtained in the public and private schools in that vicinity. When he reached the age of ten years he lost his mother, and four years later his father. Soon thereafter he commenced to earn his own livelihood by following the sea, and developing considerable ability in this direction he was early placed in command of a vessel, which position he continued to fill until about 1854. During his life at sea, he improved his spare time by reading and study, thereby adding to his knowledge and education. In 1854 he settled in New York city and formed a partnership with Robert Porterfield, a firm which until within a few years carried on an exporting and importing business with the West coast of Africa and a general freighting business to most parts of the world. The founders of the house retired from active business in 1884.

In 1855 Mr. Yates married Susan Gray Jackson, a daughter of Samuel B. Jackson, of Providence, Rhode Island, and in 1865 moved to Plainfield, where he continued to reside for the remainder of his life. He took an active part in public affairs, serving the city as councilman and the State as legislator. He was among the first to organize the city government and secured for it much favorable legislation. He was one of the original trustees of the Plainfield Public Library, and continued to act in that capacity up to the time of his death.

For many years he was a trustee in the New York State Colonization Society and was one of the oldest members of the Chamber of Commerce, with which he became identified in the early part of his business career. In 1876, Governor McClellan appointed him a visitor of the State Agricultural College of New Jersey and for many years he had been Consul in this country for the Republic of Liberia.

Mr. Yates always took an active interest in the politics of his city, State and country and was conservative in the expression of his views and consistent in the adherence to his principles and to what he believed for the best interest of the people. Although urged by his friends several times to accept the nomination for mayor of his city, for congressman from his district and for other offices in the State, he never felt that the time had come when he would be able, if elected, to do full justice to the public and, at the same time, to those dependent upon him in private life. He was to the time of his death a close student, keeping fully abreast of the age and was considered one of the conservative, deep thinking, well read men of the present time, notwithstanding his advanced years, and his loss will be deeply felt.

He leaves a wife, three daughters, Mrs. C. Dudley Holman, of Pittsfield, Mass.; Mrs. Harry V. Borden and Miss Margaret G. Yates, of Plainfield, and two sons, Sam J. Yates, of San Francisco, Cal., and Frederick W. Yates, of Plainfield.

Peter Neuman, of East Seventh street, is sojourning at Belmar.

DEMOCRATS PLAN EXCURSION

PROMINENT MEN INVITED TO SPEND AUG. 25 WITH COUNTY DEMOCRATS.

All things are now in readiness for the annual Democratic outing and excursion to Point View Grove on Long Island Sound on Thursday, August 25. A number of Plainfield Democrats will go on the excursion.

It has been decided to charter the steamer Cygnus, one of the Iron Steamboat Company's fleet. It has been arranged to steam around Staten Island and then up the Long Island Sound to Point View Grove, where the excursionists expect to arrive at 2 o'clock.

A fine shore dinner will be served on landing, and a photograph taken of the excursionists by an Elizabeth artist.

The band on the boat has been enlarged this year to twenty-five pieces because of the size of the steamer. Last year there were 600 on board. This year, says Secretary Zior, the demand for tickets is coming from all over the State, and there will be a very large attendance.

An attempt is being made to arrange a series of games between the two parties. It is planned to have a tug-of-war, baseball game, fat man's race, etc. The prizes will be gold medals.

Invitations have been sent to many prominent Democrats, including Judge Alton B. Parker, Henry G. Davis, Thomas Taggart, chairman of the National Democratic Committee, Mayor George B. McClellan, of New York city, and former Congressman DeWitt Clinton Flanagan.

SHOCK IMPAIRED HEARING

MISS NORETTA CLAWSON INJURED AS RESULT OF LIGHTNING'S PRANKS.

As a result of the severe electrical storm that visited this city on Thursday afternoon, Miss Noretta Clawson, employed at the Rogers' Corporation plant on Madison avenue, as a bookkeeper, is likely to suffer impaired hearing as well as other injuries. She was in the building when a bolt struck the chimney. It will be remembered that the accident stopped the machinery and brought all work to a standstill.

Miss Clawson suffered a severe shock and for sometime afterward she was unable to hear the least sound. Her condition was such that she had to be taken to her home in Dunellen, where she is now under the care of a physician. Her entire right side has since become affected, similar to paralysis and it will probably be some time before she will recover.

Word has been received in this city of the death at Chicopee, Mass., of Mrs. Stephen H. Moore, who formerly resided on Liberty street, where Mr. Moore conducted a bakery. It occurred last Friday after a long illness and the interment was made Monday. Mrs. Moore was a member of Hope chapel and was very well known throughout the West End.

She leaves four sons, one of whom, William, is in a serious condition at the present time from a Fourth of July accident. The premature discharge of a cannon cracker injured his eyes and filled his face with powder. He is still under the care of a physician who is trying to save the sight of the optics.

CLARK WOULD BE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE

Former Congressman Not Adverse to Becoming Party's Nominee for Governorship.

CAMPAIGN'S ISSUES

HE REPUDIATED BRYAN AND BOLTED THE PARTY TICKET.

Says Equal Taxation and Republican Extravagance Should be Democratic Slogans in the State.

Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, father-in-law of former State Senator Charles A. Reed, of North Plainfield, is "in the hands of his friends" so far as his boom for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination is concerned.

"I cannot tell how the party shall consider me in relation to the Gubernatorial candidacy," said Mr. Clark. "While I can frankly say I am not a candidate for the nomination, I cannot say I would not accept if it should be tendered to me. But there may be many others who may be deemed to be stronger and more capable of making a successful fight than I. There are many essential things to be considered and we must trust to the wisdom of the party in the proper solution of the problems that confront it when the time comes to select the candidate.

"For instance, it would not do to name a man regardless of his character, simply because he may be willing to spend a large amount of money. On the other hand, money, added to character, might not be considered a serious handicap. But above and beyond all, the party must name a man in whom the people can have trust and faith that he will serve them honestly and capably. The campaign in New Jersey will be a very trying one; more so than usual in State, and even in national elections. The national issues and candidates will, of course, wield a great influence upon the election, but the State issues and candidates will also bear their full share of the battle."

Mr. Clark confessed inability to discuss, in a personal sense, other men whose names may have been suggested as Gubernatorial possibilities. Like former Senator Smith, he said that he does not know Mr. Black. He was even unfamiliar with the reputation of the Hudson man, except in a general way. His knowledge of Mr. Black has been entirely of the hearsay order, but it has impressed him into the belief that Mr. Black is a man of high character, learned in the law and a thoroughly good Democrat.

The dominant issues of the State fight, Mr. Clark believes, will be equal taxation and the extravagance of the Republican party in its administration of State affairs. In discussing these questions he gave the first place to the taxation issue, but was certain that the people had cause to rebuke the party in power for its too lavish use of the public money. There has been a tremendous increase in the appropriations in recent years, much of which, in his judgment, has been unnecessary and quite out of consonance with the principles of a government based on reasonable frugality in the handling of the public funds.

He does not believe that the people countenance wasteful outlays of the State's funds merely because it receives a very large annual income, most of which is received through the taxing of corporations. The time to acquire wealth, according to Mr. Clark's doctrine, is when the opportunity presents itself. New Jersey has that opportunity present now, he believes, and it is wrong to waste it by reckless use of the funds simply because they are available.

If Mr. Clark becomes the candidate of his party he will go before the people of the State under no false pretense regarding his attitude in the period when the party was dominated by the silver coinage idea. He has always been a gold standard advocate, and when the silver fallacy obtained the mastery over the sound money doctrine within the Democratic party, Mr. Clark not only refused to subscribe to the new conditions, but he repudiated the silver platform and the candidate who stood upon it.

CONGREGATION BIDS FAREWELL TO PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp is Given a Last Reception by Grace M. E. Church.

DR. CARROLL'S PRAISE

REFERENCE IS MADE TO GOOD WORK DONE BY RETIRING PASTOR.

Entertaining Programme is Given—Minister Preaches Here Tomorrow and Will Leave on Monday—His New Call.

Having resigned the pastorate in order to become professor of sociology in Syracuse University, Rev. Dr. Edwin L. Earp and the congregation of Grace M. E. church, formally bade farewell last evening. The gathering was very large and many regrets were expressed at the leavetaking, yet all wished Dr. Earp every success in the new field he is to enter.

William M. Warren presided as master of ceremonies and early in the evening called upon Dr. H. K. Carroll to convey to the retiring pastor the sentiments of the congregation. Dr. Carroll responded in a fitting way, laying stress on the fact that bidding farewell causes pangs especially where both parties have been in close contact for a long time. He referred to the good work accomplished by Dr. Earp during his pastorate of two and a half years, notably the raising of $2,500 for the organ fund and interior improvements, and the healthy growth which the church has enjoyed.

In responding to Dr. Carroll's remarks, Dr. Earp said there were two lines of thought suggested by the leavetaking, first his regret to leave the pastorate; second, the regret to go away from warm personal friends. He explained that he was quitting the pulpit but that he was entering the field of teaching which he considered the most important next to the ministry. He related something of the sociological chair which he is to occupy and stated that the city where he will make his home is very beautiful. Syracuse University, he said, is an important institution and he felt that he had been honored by his selection to become one of its professors. He closed with a heartfelt prayer for the welfare of the congregation and continued growth for it under his successor.

A programme of entertainment which followed was made up of the following numbers: Solos by Miss Bessie Martin, accompanied by Miss Van Fleet; violin and piano selections by Dyckman Winckler and Vincent Sokol. Refreshments were served and a social hour was spent.

The affair was under the auspices of the official board of the church and the arrangements were made by Mr. Warren.

Dr. Earp will occupy the pulpit at both services tomorrow for the last time. On Monday he will leave with his family for Maryland to spend a short time and from there they will visit Mrs. Earp's parents at Ridgewood. They will establish their home in Syracuse about the first of September.

Owls Disturb Neighborhood.

A trio of owls, who have been making their home in the belfry of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, have of late been a source of annoyance to residents in the vicinity. Their hoots can be heard at a great distance. No one has as yet made any attempts to capture the owls and their stay is likely to be indefinite.

INGENIOUS DEVICE OF F. E. KINSMAN

Plainfielder Invents An Appliance Adopted by the N. Y. Consolidated Exchange.

SIGNALS FOR BROKERS

EXPLANATION OF A CLEVER PATENT ARRANGEMENT.

Superior to Any Device Heretofore Used—Lamps Show Where Broker is Wanted—Gives Satisfaction.

F. E. Kinsman, of this city, who is well known in the electrical world as the inventor of many appliances, including the Kinsman block signal used in the New York subway, has had another honor conferred upon him. The New York Consolidated Exchange has adopted a new plan of signalling devised by him, which supersedes the long established drop announciator system. Mr. Kinsman's apparatus is complete in every detail and though a very large affair is a marvel of mechanical skill, reflecting the Plainfielder's wonderful genius.

For a long time in New York city, if a broker who happened to be on the floor was wanted at the telephone or at one of the entrances to the building, it was necessary to have a boy go about on the floor calling his name until he could be found, and the message delivered to him. An improvement over this method was effected when an arrangement was adopted exposing a shutter upon which a specified number appeared, directing the attention of the broker to the call. This method, however, has proved costly in maintenance, and also was productive of considerable noise when the drops were worked.

Mr. Kinsman was called upon to devise a new signaling system, and he conceived the idea of perfecting one which would be absolutely noiseless and would have such simple characteristics as would render maintenance charges very slight.

This was accomplished by placing upon an angle-iron framework, 414 eight-inch square, sheet iron signal boxes. Within these boxes, mounted upon porcelain pedestals which are screwed with an asbestos washer to the bottom of the box, are three eight-candle-power 118-volt lamps. Each of these lamps has a distinctive color. There is a green lamp, which announces a call for a broker at the Broadway entrance; a red lamp, announcing a call for the New street entrance, and a lavender lamp, which announces a telephone call. There is a switchboard located immediately behind the signal board, upon which are placed 414 switches. The attendants at each of the entrances are connected by telephones with the operator at his switchboard. When a broker is called for, his number is communicated to the switchboard attendant, who flashes the signal necessary. If a broker is wanted at the telephone, the attendant is called by the ringing of the bell, and, upon investigation, finds the proper instrument and gives the signal with a push-button switch. The broker answers the call, and, when through, destroys the signal by throwing off the switch above the telephone instrument.

The wiring arrangement has been worked up with a great degree of ingenuity and everything has been done in a most substantial manner. The system is working perfectly and giving great satisfaction to the members of the Exchange.

Pulpit Supplies.

Pastor A. E. Finn, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, and his family, will leave Monday for Jeffersonville, Montgomery county, Pa., where they will remain until September. During his absence there will be no evening service on Sundays and the supplies for the morning in August will be as follows: August 7, Rev. G. M. Shott, of Scotch Plains; August 14, Rev. J. A. Cubberly, of South Plainfield; August 21, Rev. B D. Steele, of Philadelphia; August 28, Rev. J. R. Ellis, of Coboes, N. Y.

Common Council Meeting Monday.

The Common Council will hold its August meeting on Monday night. It is expected that at that time a new ordinance providing for the paving of Watchung avenue, between North avenue and Second street, will be introduced. As there seems to be considerable opposition to wooden pavement, it is not improbable that some other pavement will be adopted.

THE BEST OF THE SEASON

LAST EVENING'S BAND CONCERT GREATLY PLEASED BIG CROWD.

"The best programme of the season" was the verdict of the several thousand people who heard last evening's band concert in Concert Park. In addition to the usual number of popular instrumental selections it included three soloists, George Offerman, William Corcoran and Edward Rubsam, the latter an expert xylophone player. He gave one of his own compositions with variations that was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

Offerman, who has become one of Plainfield's favorite vocalists, repeated his former successes by giving "Oysters and Clams" and "I've a Feelin' for You." His voice was never heard to better advantage and the songs took well. Corcoran is a newcomer to Plainfield but he made a "hit" with the audience immediately. He has a rich, far-reaching voice that he knows how to handle. "Play in My Yard" and "Blue Bell," which he gave, are adapted to it. Miss Mabel Maxson's march, "Sylvia," was another feature of the programme that was very pleasing.

Owing to the electric light fuse blowing out during Thursday's storm, the Park was not illuminated and the musicians were unable to commence the programme until nearly 9 o'clock when lights were procured. While waiting the band played many of the well known airs and the audience did not mind the delay in the least.

CRONIN TO PITCH.

Lineup of Alls for Its Contest Against Westfield Today.

Friends of the team think Alls should win today's contest with Westfield. The weak points have been strengthened, Basford, the fine fielder and heavy hitter of the Murray Hills, taking McGeoy's place in right field and Cronin, formerly of the Cincinnati team, will occupy the points.

This is the lineup:

Cusick, 2b; Oregan, lf; Courtney, 3b; Dietrich, cf; , Cronin p; Farmer, c; Basford, rf; Smith, 1b; Walton, ss.

Manager Denman was in town last night and announced that his lineup would be the same as last Saturday with the possible exception of Mallen, who injured his shoulder early in the week. The Westfield manager feels sure of winning today, making the fourth. It is reported, however, that "Red" Waller will not be in the box.

NO HIGH LICENSE FEE FOR BOROUGH

Judge Schenck Refuses Application Made by the Council of North Plainfield.

GIVES HIS REASONS

"LICENSE FEES WILL STAND AS THEY ARE" SAYS COURT.

Belated Decision Not a Surprise to Boroughites—Cause of Petition Was Difference in Rates Here.

Judge Louis H. Schenck has decided that the liquor license fee in North Plainfield will remain as it is. The present rate is $350 for retail and $400 for wholesale. The decision was rendered yesterday at the Somerville county court.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the matter since last April, when Former Senator Charles A. Reed, counsel for the borough, presented a resolution asking the Court to increase the retail liquor license fee in the borough to at least $600. In support of this he stated that in Plainfield, where the fee is $700, the saloons are obliged to close at 11 p. m., while in North Plainfield, where the fee is 350, the saloons and hotels can keep open all night if they wish to and the people from this city, after the saloons and hotels close, can step over the brook and get a drink.

Judge Schenck, in giving his decision, said that he had allowed the matter to rest a long time, as he had been trying to secure a conference with Justice Garretson about it, believing his wishes in regard to the same should be respected. He said that he and Justice Garretson went over the whole situation thoroughly and had come to the conclusion that, in view of the fact that North Plainfield already pays higher license fees than any other part of the county and that only recently the borough fees were raised to $100, it would be unfair to make another increase, therefore the fees will stand as they are for the present. The Judge added that he might at any time reconsider the matter, if considered necessary, and take the affair up with a different result.

Mr. Reed is not in town today and his opinion regarding the decision could not be obtained. Mayor Smalley, when questioned said:

"The decision is just as I expected it would be. The people in North Plainfield who favor annexation, also favored the increase in the license fee, and in view of the fact that Judge Schenck is opposed to annexation no other decision could be expected. Our redress cannot be secured at Somerville and Judge Schenck's decision means that the fight in the borough and county will be continued with greater determination. We believed that our request was fair and should be granted."

Mayor Smalley also said that so far as he is concerned no further action will be taken in the matter at present.

Sunday Excursion to Mauch Chunk.

There is no more popular resort for a Sunday than Mauch Chunk, and to reach it entails a delightful rail journey, and at Mauch Chunk there is a diversity of amusements, the chief of which is a ride over the Switchback. This journey occupies more than one hour, and leads over and around the mountains with widely changing scenes at every turn. The Switchback is a gravity road, and the speed attained is close to a mile per minute. Another feature is Flagstaff, the summit of which is reached by trolley, and from its pinnacle point there is a view extending over miles and miles of beautiful country. An interesting spot close at hand is Glen Onoko, a short distance above Mauch Chunk, and, as its name implies, is a beautiful glen, with falls, cataracts, mountain paths leading to cool and delightful places. On July 31 the New Jersey Central is to run a popular excursion to Mauch Chunk from Plainfield by special train leaving at 9:30 a. m., returning train will leave Mauch Chunk at 5:40, and the round trip will cost but $1.50. Frequent train service will be in effect between Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, and trains on the Switchback run every few minutes

RAILWAYS IN ALASKA

FOUR SYSTEMS NOW BUILDING OR IN OPERATION.

Travel in the Great Northern Territory Now a Matter of Ease and Comfort — More Lines Proposed.

There is a vast difference between journeying in Alaska to-day and journeying in Alaska a few years ago. When the first rush of the gold seekers occurred there was no means of communciation between the Klondike and the outside world but the dog sledges and the rivers. To get to the gold fields men suffered untold hardships and after they were there paid starvation prices for food. When the Nome fields were discovered men traveled to the peninsula in boats, but to get inland meant many hours of hard walking. In the interior of the great territory one was as completely shut off from the world as though stranded upon a desert island in the middle of the ocean. Of news there was none save at long intervals when brought in by newcomers, and it was weeks old before it reached the camps.

To-day the telegraph wire carries its messages throughout all the gold camps, and the result of the big battles in the far east may be known at Dawson almost as soon at it is in Chicago. In modes of transportation the dog sled has given place to the railroad train, and travel in the far north is now a luxury instead of a hardship.

A glance at the map will give one an idea of the railroads now in operation under construction or proposed. So great has been the recent development of Alaska that there are now four distinct railroad systems in full or partial operation in the territory, two others in a preliminary stage of construction and several projected. All of the principal centers of population are connected with the outside world by telegraph, and a military cable line, 1,300 miles in length, will be completed this summer between Seattle and Juneau, giving an alternate route for commercial business.

The construction of the Council City & Soloman River railroad, the first of standard gauge to be put in operation in Alaska, has demonstrated the possibility of building in the far north a roadbed practically as solid as that of any of the best equipped systems in the United States. The tundra, or Arctic bog land, has been conquered by a system of thorough drainage.

The railroads now building and projected in northwestern Alaska will completely gridiron Nome peninsula.

EXISTING AND PROPOSED RAILWAYS AND TELEGRAPHS IN ALASKA.

The first road put in operation there was called the "Wild Goose Railroad" and has lately been acquired by the Nome-Arctic Railway company. The first rails were laid in the summer of 1890 and the enterprise was a financial success from the start.

During the last few months the Nome-Arctic company has extended the line to Dexter Creek, and securing a franchise to enter Nome has built a station in a central part of the city and added three spurs to facilitate the handling of freight. This spring work was begun on a line to Council City. The owners of this road are mostly men who have made their money in Alaska.

A railroad project of even greater importance to Alaska than the Council City & Solomon is the Alaska Central railroad, work on which was begun late last summer, but which will not be completed for another year or more. Trains, however, will be running regularly over the southern section late this summer.

The Alaska Central is built from Resurrection bay north and west to Cook inlet and thence in almost a straight line to Rampart, on the Yukon river, a total distance of about 600 miles. About 100 miles of the road are already practically completed.

The most ambitious of all Alaskan railway projects is that of the Trans-alaskan Railway company, which was incorporated at the department of the secretary of state at Washington about eight months ago. The Transalaskan railway will run from a point on Cook inlet to Port Clarence, on Cape Prince of Wales, the point where Alaska most nearly approaches to Siberia. Connection there will be made, according to the plans of the promoters, with a northern branch to be built from the Russian government's Trans-Siberian line.

An important link in the chain of Alaskan railroads will be a line which was built last summer from Dawson up Bonanza creek, and which is being extended this summer to the Stewart river and thence to Eagle City. At the latter point connection will be made with the Alaska Central. On the south connection is had from Dawson by river steamer with the White Pass & Yukon route.

OLYMPIC REGATTA.

St. Louis Crews Furnished the Feature of the Opening Day.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—St. Louis crews furnished the feature of the first day of the Olympic National Regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, held under the auspices of the Southwestern Rowing association on Creve Coeur lake, fifteen miles west of the city.

The decisive defeat of the Western Rowing club of St. Louis in the senior four oared shells was unexpected, and the Century Boat club four only won after a hard fought struggle with the Mound City crew that was decided within the last hundred yards.

Another reversal of form was the victory of the Seawanhaka Boat club representatives in the senior pair oared shells and the intermediate pair shells.

Autoists For St. Louis at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 30.—The Pope car arrived here at 1:12 p. m., ten minutes after the pilot car. The remainder of the party arrived in the following order: Harlan W. Whipple, Andover, Mass.; C. H. Gillette, New York; Carl Page, chauffeur for Windsor T. White; Augustus Post, New York; R. P. Scott, Baltimore; Charles J. Glidden, Boston; H. Frederick Lesh, Boston; Haynes-Apperson, Kokomo Ind. The riders made the Powers hotel their headquarters. They were received by a local committee, but there were no social demonstrations. The trip from Syracuse to Rochestter was very satisfactory. Fair roads and perfect weather made the run a good one. The tourists have left for Buffalo.

Tennis at Boston.

BOSTON, July 30.—B. C. Wright and H. Ward won an exciting five set match from R. D. Wrenn and B. L. Wrenn, Jr., in the semifinal round of the Eastern Doubles championship tennis tournament on the courts of the Longwood Cricket club. In the first set the persistent lobbing of the Wrenn brothers kept Ward and Wright constantly in the back courts, where they did not show to their usual advantage.

Racing at Brighton Beach.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Brush Up and Bound Brook were the only winning favorites at Brighton Beach. The fourth race, a handicap, one mile and a furlong, resulted in a good contest between Eugenia Burch and Rosetint, the former getting the decision by half a length.

American Cricketers In England.

YORK, England, July 30.—The cricket match between Haverford (Pennsylvania) and the Bootham School Old Boys has resulted in a draw. Bootham in their second innings made 182 runs, and Haverford in their second innings scored 162 runs for 8 wickets down.

Loretta M. at Fair Grounds.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—Loretta M., with top weight, went six furlongs in 1:14½ in the feature event at the fair grounds track. The track was more than two seconds slow.

Beheaded by Train.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 30.—While returning to her home from work Sarah Nichols, seventeen years old, was struck by a Hartford division express near the Cedar Hill station and instantly killed. Her head was severed from the body and she was otherwise terribly mutilated.

On Florida Reef.

NEW ORLEANS, July 30.—The Morgan line steamer El Rio from New York reports that five miles southwest of Alligator reef she passed a steamer ashore on Florida reef, apparently a cattle ship. The vessel was surrounded by wreckers.

REPORTED FALLEN.

Port Arthur, Under Heavy Assault, Said to Be Captured.

HAMMERED BY JAPS ON LAND AND SEA

Japanese Said to Have Lost a Cruiser and Gunboat by Night Through Striking Mines—The Steamer Arabia Is Released.

LONDON, July 30.—A dispatch from Weihaiwei says:

"It is reported here that Port Arthur has been captured and that the British fleet has sailed for Weihaiwei."

The basis for the report is that when Russia no longer occupies Port Arthur the British by the treaty will evacuate Weihaiwei, and the inference is that the British fleet is returning to Weihaiwei to remove the stores, etc., from that place.

Not much credence is attached for the moment to the Weihaiwei report, though similar rumors are flooding the continent.

At Weihaiwei there is a British wireless telegraph station, and the British warships are all equipped with this means of communication. It is possible that Weihaiwei has been in wireless communication with the fleet and that the information of the fall of Port Arthur was received in this manner.

It is known that Port Arthur was assaulted by land and sea on the east and northeast defenses on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, and the belief is general that a determined assault was delivered on Thursday. The bombardment was the heaviest experienced since the beginning of the siege, and the Russian forts can make very little reply to the Japanese fire.

Field Marshal Marquis Oyama, accompanied by his staff, left Port Dalny on Tuesday. He is conducting the Japanese operations in person.

The fresh meat supply in Port Arthur is exhausted. Only the troops are getting salt meat. Noncombatants are subsisting mainly on oatmeal and rice.

A Chefu dispatch says that the Japanese lost a cruiser and gunboat last Thursday night as a result of striking mines.

Newchwang advices say that heavy firing has been heard outside of Newchwang.

M. Grosse, the Russian administrator of Newchwang, has gone to Peking.

After the battle of Tashichao fourteeen trains were used to carry away the Russian forces engaged. It is said here that in this fight the Japanese did not come to close quarters, the battle being purely an artillery duel.

The Japanese torpedoed and sank the Russian torpedo boat destroyer Lieutenant Burukoff and damaged two other torpedo boat destroyers in Pigeon bay last Sunday.

A brief report has been received by the emperor at St. Petersburg from Vice Admiral Skrydloff announcing the arrival of the German steamer Arabia, captured by the Russian cruiser Gromoboi July 22, at Vladivostok and stating that the presence on the Arabia of cargo declared by the imperial government to be contraband, compelled Admiral Jessen to send the vessel to Vladivostok, as being the nearest Russian port, in order that the matter might be examined by the local prize court.

Advices from St. Petersburg say that the German steamer Arabia, which was captured by the Russian cruiser Gromboi off the Japanese coast, will be released as soon as the contraband of war in her cargo is identified and removed.

Leishman Gets at the Sultan.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Minister Leishman has cabled the state department from Constantinople that he had a long interview with the sultan. No details were given out, but it is assumed by the officials here that the interview was satisfactory. He has been trying many months to gain personal access to the sultan, so that he has made substantial progress.

Pretender Has Occupied Ujda.

TANGIER, July 30.—The French cruisers Kleber and Galilee have arrived here. It is believed that the Kleber has troops on board. The arrival of the warships caused considerable excitement among the Moors. It is rumored that heavy fighting has taken place between the forces of the pretender, Bu Hamara, and the imperial troops, and that the pretender has occupied Ujda.

BY FORCE OF ARMS

President Castro's Soldiers Seize Asphalt Lake.

VIKING ESCAPED TO PORT OF SPAIN

As Result of Suit Brought by Venezuelan Government Against New York and Bermudez Company All Their Property Is Held.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, July 30.—Ambrose Howard Carner, the former managing director of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company, who was recently appointed receiver of the company as a result of a suit brought by President Castro, accompanied by Attorney General Iribarren, went to Guanaco on the Venezuelan gunboat Bolivar and, backed by Venezuelan soldiers, took possession of the properties of the company, including the asphalt lake, against the energetic protests of Captain Cooley, the company's representative.

The steamer Viking, belonging to the company, escaped seizure and reached this port with the news of the government's drastic action.

Foreign companies residing in Venezuela are alarmed over President Castro's aggressive policy, which is directed also against French, British and German companies.

President Castro some weeks ago demanded $9,650,000 of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company, alleging that the company had given material aid to the late revolutionary movement, causing the Venezuelan government to expend that amount. The government, by a motion before the federal court on July 22, the defense being unrepresented, placed an attachment on all the properties of the company, especially on the asphalt lake at Guanoco, when Senor Carner was appointed receiver.

CANNOT UNDERSTAND IT.

Washington Will Take Steps to Protect All Vested Rights.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The action of the Venezuelan government in seizing the properties of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company has caused an unpleasant impression in government circles. Officials are unable to understand the reason for what appears to be such an arbitrary procedure, as the supreme court of Venezuela heretofore has upheld the claims of the company to its properties.

Following notice of the action of the Venezuelan government a few days ago in securing an attachment against the company with a view, it was understood, of obtaining damages because of aid alleged to have been given the revolutionists, United States Minister Herbert W. Bowen, at Caracas, was instructed to make a full and complete report to the state department of the various legal steps which have been taken by Venezuela, together with other information bearing on the subject that may be available and pertinent. His report is anxiously awaited, and on it will depend the course to be taken by the United States for the protection of the vested rights of the company, which seem to be so seriously endangered by the attitude of the Castro government.

Beat Turnkey and Escaped.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., July 30.—When Jeremiah Condo, a turnkey, went into the Center county jail at 9 o'clock last night to lock up the prisoners one of them beat him into insensibility with an iron bar, and four men—George Henderson, Ira Dillon, William Green and Dominick Constance—escaped. Sheriff Taylor is at the national guard encampment at Gettysburg. Posses have been organized and are now scouring the country for the escaped prisoners.

Destroyer Saves Two Lives.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 30.—The torpedo boat destroyer Lawrence, which left here bound east, cruising, made a timely rescue of two prominent young persons of this city who were clinging to the bottom of a canoe three miles off this place. They were Miss Emily Vinton, the daughter of Edgar B. Vinton, a contractor, and William Tompkins. Their canoe was capsized during a squall. Both were weak when the boats from the Lawrence picked them up.

Miners' Contention Not Sustained.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 30.—In a lengthy statement S. D. Warriner, a member of the mine conciliation board, says that no complaint has been received by the conciliation board from either the miners or operators of the Coxe Bros.' company with reference to check weighmen, but that a complaint has been received from the Pennsylvania Coal company. This matter was referred to an umpire, and the latter did not sustain the contention of the miners.

Fate of Breese With the Jury.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 30.—The fate of William E. Breese, charged with the fraudulent withdrawal of about $114,000 from the First National Bank of Asheville while president of the institution, has been committed to the jury after a trial lasting seventeen days. This is the fourth time the case has been heard in the United States district court.

Rockland Will Be Floated.

ROCKLAND, Me., July 30.—The weather has moderated later at low tide, and the steamer Rockland is practically free of water. An attempt will be made to float her at high tide today. William Metzke the builder of the Rockland, says the steamer after extensive repairs will be as good as new.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

R. G. Dun & Co. Report a Satisfactory Outlook.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The advices received this week from special agents of the International Mercantile agency at the leading trade centers of the country are, in the main, satisfactory. The spirit of optimism is growing, and confidence in a good fall and winter business increases from week to week. Current activity in the different industrial lines is not great, but it is better than it was a year ago, with the very wholesome influence of a faith in better things. A decided reaction has occurred in the movement of stocks, but this is not due to any material change in business prospects.

There has been good growing weather for the crops, which are approaching harvest under continued improved conditions. In the spring wheat sections of the northwest some rust has been discovered, which will reduce the yield. Harvesting is in progress in nearly all of the leading winter wheat states, and the results are better than farmers thought they would be two weeks ago.

The packing house strike casts a shadow over trade in Chicago, even with advance orders for clothing, men's furnishing, shoes and wearing apparel quite satisfactory. Indianapolis indicates some improvement in dry goods and shoes, though with hardware behind last year. The most gratifying trade statements of all are those from Pittsburg. This is due to the improvement that has come about in the iron and steel trade. The tone in this basic trade is certainly much better than it has been in a year, and a sharp revival in it is not improbable after election.

According to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade, liabilities of commercial failures thus far reported for July aggregated $7,401,462, of which $3,175,214 was in manufacturing, $3,769,125 in trading and $457,123 in other commercial lines. Failures this week numbered 220 in the United States against 190 last year, and 18 in Canada compared with 19 a year ago.

DONNELLY ORDERS ALL OUT.

President Butchers' Union Has Extended Strike to the East.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Unable to arrange a conference with representatives of the New York packers, Michael J. Donnelly, president of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America, has ordered a strike of all the members of his organization employed in New York by Schwarzschild & Sulzberger and the United Dressed Beef company. The order, which was telegraphed to New York last night, does not go into effect until Sunday, as the men in the eastern packing plants do not report for work on Saturday.

The decision to extend the strike to the east was not taken until after Mr. Donnelly and his associates had spent the day in fruitless efforts to arrange a meeting with representatives of the eastern packers who came to Chicago to acquaint themselves with the situation here. The general belief was that the New York packers had come west to make terms with the butchers, but if such was the case they changed their minds after investigating the working of the plants with nonunion men.

OUTLAW CAPTURED.

Terror of Mount Vernon, Who Shot Reilly, Cornered In Freight Car.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 30.—Half starved and covered with mosquito bites, the bandit who shot Detective Reilly of Mount Vernon and who had caused two posses to chase him three days, during which twenty five shots were fired at him, was captured in a freight car on a siding a Tuckahoe, where he was hiding.

He was found by Policeman William J. Simpkins of the Tuckahoe force who, single handed, tackled him in the car. With his big revolver in his hand the officer shouted:

"Surrender! You are my prisoner!"

"I give up," the man said. "I am through. I shot the policeman, but only did it because he kicked me in the stomach. I have no name, no home and am penniless."

James Quinn, a brakeman, first discovered the desperado in the freight car. He was lying down with a big revolver in his hand. Mr. Quinn told a boy to tell the Tuckahoe police about the man, and while the Mount Vernon police with their rifles were marching knee deep in the mud of the Tuckahoe swamp Policeman Simpkins calmly walked into the car and captured the desperado, who appears to be an insane tramp.

When the man surrendered he pulled a six shooter out of his pocket and handed it to the officer, saying:

"I have no need for it any more."

He was taken to the Tuckahoe jail and locked up. He was barefooted and his clothing was covered with mud.

"I was driven to this," he said "through the force of circumstances."

He will be taken to Mount Vernon where he will be charged with attempted murder.

That the bandit had tried to disguise himself was shown by his robbing the room of John Olsen at Bronxville, where he secured a dark brown hat and a suit of clothes. At this place he left his much worn shoes.

The residents of Bronxville, where many wealthy New Yorkers have their country seats, were greatly alarmed by the presence of the desperado, and many purchased firearms.

PLEHVE'S ASSASSINATION.

St. Petersburg Police Have Been Aware That a Plot Was Hatching.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 30.—The police have not yet established the identity of the assassin of M. von Plehve or of his accomplice, though it has been ascertained that the former is a Little Russian, which accounts for his noticeable accent. The accomplice is a Jew.

It has developed that the police for some time past have been aware that a plot was maturing against the emperor and notified one of the ministers that a party of fifteen anarchists had arrived in St. Petersburg. Several arrests were actually made some days before the assassination of the minister of the interior, and the police had the assassin's house marked and a trap set for his arrest on the night of July 14, but he did not return home.

The bomb which the accomplice dropped in the canal after the assassination has been recovered by the police. It is foreign made, though it is believed to have been loaded in St. Petersburg. It is small and melon shaped and is believed to be fully as powerful as the one that killed M. von Plehve.

The requiem service at M. von Plehve's house was most impressive. Mme. von Plehve and her son were present at the ceremony, as also were many officials and diplomats. A nun in the habit of her order knelt before the coffin intoning prayers for the dead. These prayers will be continued without interruption until after the interment.

The funeral of Von Plehve will be held at the Novodevichy monastery, St. Petersburg, on Sunday afternoon. The emperor will be present.

No Settlement at Fall River.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 30.—The fifth day of the cotton mill strike, in which thirty-seven corporations controlling eighty-one mills and nearly 26,000 operatives are involved, passed as quietly as have the preceding days. Frequent rumors to the contrary, a settlement of the controversy appears distant. Attempts to operate the mills have been abandoned, most of the mill treasurers have left the city for their summer homes, and the operatives who remain here are bending their energies to secure a livelihood in any way which presents itself. Hundreds of the French Canadian element among the strikers have left for Canada, where they will remain until the mills reopen, and still greater numbers are expected to leave the city within the next few days.

Charged With $6,000 Robbery.

DETROIT, July 30.—A special from Hillsdale, Mich., says: "Ray Holcomb, Lewis McMurtee, Roscoe Holcomb and Ernest Stanafield, all of Allen township, are in jail on a charge of robbing Mrs. Anna Knopf of Allen village of $6,000 in cash, notes and other securities. Mrs. Knopf is proprietor of a hotel, and Ray Holcomb and McMurtee were employed by her. She kept the money and papers in a box in her room. Seventy dollars in money was recovered."

The Labor Trouble at Omaha.

OMAHA, Neb., July 30. — William Ryder and Joseph Korbe, strikers, were badly beaten by packing house watchmen while the latter were trying to unload a number of strike breakers from a train at Swift's packing plant. The strikers were trying to induce the newcomers not to go to work, and the watchmen began using their clubs. Several shots were fired, but nobody was seriously hurt.

SLOCUM HOLOCAUST

Federal Grand Jury Indicts Captain and Six Others.

TO ANSWER FOR NINE HUNDRED LIVES

Should Lundberg, Fleming and Van Schaick Be Found Guilty as Charged, Penalty Is Ten Years' Hard Labor.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The federal grand jury that for so many days heard testimony in the matter of the General Slocum disaster, which occurred on June 15 last, has presented to Judge Thomas in the criminal branch of the United States circuit court a large number of indictments in the Slocum case.

The men indicted are William Van Schaick, captain of the General Slocum; John J. Fleming, United States steamboat inspector; Henry Lundberg, probationary steamboat inspector until July 12; Frank A. Barnaby, president of the Knickerbocker Steamboat company; James K. Atkinson, secretary, F. B. Dexter, treasurer; Captain Pease of the Grand Republic.

Former Judge A. J. Dittenhoefer, speaking for himself, and Terence J. McManus addressed Judge Thomas on the subject of bail, saying:

"We represent between us Frank A. Barnaby, president; James K. Atkinson, secretary; Frank B. Dexter, treasurer of the Knickerbocker Steamboat company (which owned the General Slocum), and Captain Pease of the Grand Republic and commodore of the Knickerbocker line. Will your honor fix bail for them? We understand that they have been indicted."

"Assuming that you are right in your surmise," said General Burnett, "I cannot talk of bail until after the warrants have been served."

It was then agreed that on Monday Judge Thomas would fix bail for all those indicted.

After the proceedings before Judge Thomas had been adjourned General Burnett said:

"True bills have been found against Barnaby, Atkinson, Dexter and Pease. When the cases come up next Monday to have bail fixed I will demand $25,000 for each of them."

The Lundberg, Fleming and Van Schaick indictments are found under section 5344, which holds the persons deemed responsible for negligence that causes loss of life guilty of manslaughter. Upon conviction the penalty is ten years at hard labor. The officers of the company are, it is understood, indicted on the charge of "aiding and abetting," under the common law, which has never been seriously regarded in federal practice. The probabilities are, it is said, that such indictments will be thrown out upon the first demurrer of counsel for the defense.

Should the prosecution of those indicted fall through because of lack of proper provision by the federal statutes, the government officers concerned will take the trouble to revise the laws. They also expect that the present inadequacy in the inspection service will be remedied by congress.

PLEHVE WAS A FRIEND.

Through Him American Newspapers Now Get War News.

ST. LOUIS, July 30.—Jacob Godberg, Max Berkovitz and L. E. R. Robinson, constituting the new Russian commission to the world's fair, have arrived from St. Petersburg.

Mr. Godberg, who is editor of the Imperial Court Chronicle, and whose twenty years of service for the Russian government have given him an intimate acquaintance with M. von Plehve, the murdered minister, said:

"Von Plehve was a brave man. I worked under him, and I knew him well. He received every day a stack of anonymous letters, many threatening his life, but he paid no attention to them. He was too busy attending to the work of the government.

"The killing of Von Plehve, in my opinion, was not due to personal dislike of him. It was more of a protest against the manner in which the office of the minister of the interior is conducted. His predecessor in office was assassinated in a similar way.

"The revolutionists evidently thought it would be an opportune time to disturb the country when so many of the troops are at the front.

"American newspapers have been none too kind to Von Plehve. As a matter of fact, Von Plehve helped American newspapers. He removed the censorship from the correspondents. When Mr. Stone and Mr. Thompson of the Associated Press called on him at the beginning of the war, he agreed to let the American correspondents copy all the war bulletins as fast as they came to the government. Previously they could not see them at all. It is a result of Von Plehve's act that American newspaper readers get the St. Petersburg war dispatches."

Engineer Killed Near Sharon, Pa.

SHARON, Pa., July 30.—A passenger train and a freight train on the Pennsylvania railroad collided near here and both trains were wrecked. Engineer James Robinson was instantly killed, Fireman McWilliams fatally hurt and two other trainmen badly injured. The cause of the accident is not known.

Taggart at Rosemont.

ESOPUS, N. Y., July 29.—Chairman Thomas Taggart of the Democratic national committee stopped at Esopus last night on his way back to Indianapolis. Chairman Taggart and Judge Parker went into close conference at once, as Mr. Taggart had to catch the 10:20 train and had but little time for his journey.

Plainfield, N. J., July 30, 1904.

The doctors of Morristown have banded together to keep up prices for house and office calls. Once the scale gets in operation the ranks of the Faith Curists will suddenly be enlarged.

The Elizabeth Evening Times, the other day told all it knew about the hard times (?) at present. Judging from the sheet it is putting out the newspaper is in a position to write on the subject.

With the price of beef hovering around thirty cents, the prodigal son would get a poor reception if he came home at this time. It might be made the occasion for a radish re-union or a spinach soiree.

It seems to be the general opinion that the St. Louis Fair's failure to attract the crowds is due to the fact that the managers did not appreciate the value of advertising. Just at present the exhibition is getting all the advertising it wants, but of the wrong sort.

Thirty years ago an agreement was made that no Sunday trains stop within a mile of Ocean Grove. After a long fight the Ocean Grove Association has consented to allow trains to be stopped at North Asbury station. It is to be regretted that the association made any concession whatever. It may be considered a small matter at present but in time it is likely to destroy the complexion of America's famous Christian resort.

Now, is anyone surprised in Judge Schenck's decision not to raise the liquor license fee in North Plainfield? We're not in the least, for we had little idea from the start that he would do it. North Plainfield's best interests demand that the license fee there be at least somewhat near the figure it is placed at in this city. It is generally believed that it will be a long day before Mayor Smalley's administration gets what it believes to be the best for the borough when application has to be made to Judge Schenck to grant it.

In the death of Joseph W. Yates Plainfield has sustained a loss. News of his death reaching here this morning was a great surprise to the community, for although he had been quite feeble of late, no one expected that he would be carried off so soon. His life had been eventful and he had lived among those who fully appreciated his true worth. Generous to a fault, ever willing to encourage his fellow men, upright in character and sound in his business, social and political conduct, Mr. Yates endeared himself to the entire community. He contributed according to his means to his party and to the church. Mr. Yates is gone but the memory of the good man will live in the hearts of those who knew him for many years to come.

There will be 476 votes in the Presidential electoral college—twenty-nine more than constituted the membership four years ago. Under the new apportionment each State is given as many members in the make-up of the college as it has United States senators and representatives. For instance New Jersey has ten congressmen and consequently it will have twelve votes in the college. New York has the largest representation, thirty-nine votes Pennsylvania comes second with thirty-four and Illinois third with twenty-seven. The representation of the other States will be: Ohio, twenty-three; Missouri, eighteen; Texas, eighteen; Massachusetts, sixteen; Indiana, fifteen; Michigan, fourteen; Georgia, thirteen; Iowa, thirteen; Kentucky, thirteen; Wisconsin, thirteen; North Carolina, twelve; Tennessee, twelve; Virginia, twelve; Alabama, eleven; Minnesota, eleven; California, ten; Kansas, ten; Mississippi, ten; Arkansas, nine; Louisiana, nine; South Carolina, nine; Maryland, eight; Nebraska, eight; Connecticut, seven; West Virginia, seven; Maine, six; Colorado, five; Florida, five; Washington, five; New Hampshire, four; North Dakota, four; Oregon, four; Rhode Island, four; South Dakota, four; Vermont, four; Delaware, three; Idaho, three; Montana, three; Nevada, three; Utah, three, and Wyoming, three.

SUBURBAN NEWS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

A few days ago as Dr. Platt was crossing the Washington avenue railroad crossing, his machine refused to work and he was left directly in front of an approaching express. He tried frantically to make the machine move but could not stir it until the train was almost upon him and he was preparing to leap for his life. When the engine was but a few feet away the machinery took hold and rolled him out of danger. The doctor is having his machine repaired so that in the future he will be able to go over railroad tracks without a stop.

NEW ROUTE TO INDIA

EIGHTEEN HOURS SAVED FROM LONDON TO BOMBAY.

A Through European Railway Line That Will Connect Greece with the Other Nations of the Continent.

In these days of rapid transit, when the journey from London to Bombay can be performed in a fortnight, every hour counts for more than it did in the old days, before the age of steam, and any scheme to bring India half a day nearer to London would be sure to attract attention. The new Greek railway which is now being constructed will, when finished, accomplish more than this, the precise saving in time in the journey to the east being calculated at 18 hours. In addition to this, it will form the sole railway communication between Greece and the rest of Europe, for, strange as it may seem, Greece has not yet been connected with the European railway system, the few short lines she possesses stopping short of the Turkish frontier. The new railway then will be an important factor in the commercial development of Greece, and with a direct service from Paris to Athens an immense tourist traffic will be assured, and students of art and archaeology will flock to the cradle of European civilization.

The line is of the ordinary European gauge and is to go from the Piraeus to Larissa, in Thessaly, via Athens, Skimatari, Thebes, Livadia, Dadi, Lamia and Demirly, with branches from Skimatari to Chalcis and from Lamia to Stylis. The question of the junction with the Ottoman system is at present the subject of negotiations with the Turkish government, and in all likelihood no great difficulty will be raised by the Porte to prevent the realization of a scheme in which all Europe is interested. The extension from Larissa would cross the Turkish frontier at Karalik Dervent, on the seacoast, and follow the coastline until near Gida, where it would join the existing railway from Monastir to Salonica.

There is indeed a line already in operation between Demirly and Kalabaka, near the Turkish frontier, and it is theoretically possible to make junctions with the Turkish system in this and other directions, but the physical difficulties are so great that in practice only the above route is available. The total length of the line from the Piraeus to Larissa is 217 miles, and the branches to Chalcis and Stylis are respectively 13 and 12 miles long, while the extension from Larissa to Gida will be 84 miles, the total distance from the Piraeus to Salonica being 328 miles.

The first part of the line from the Piraeus to Thebes, tapping the fertile plains of Boetia, and the branch from Skimarati to Chalcis, were inaugurated by King George on March 19 of this year, and recently another section—Thebes to Livadia—was opened to traffic, thus completing 100 miles of railway. On this portion of the line is Lake Copais, which was drained by an English company, the land so reclaimed being exceptionally fertile and capable of growing anything.

Work is being actively pushed forward on the line beyond Livadia and Dadi and Lamia, and the branch to Stylis, on the sea, is nearly complete.

In the mountainous country between Livadia and Lamia there are great engineering difficulties, including 17 tunnels and several viaducts over 300 yards long and nearly 200 feet high. Nevertheless this section will be finished next year. A large amount of tunnel work is also necessary between Lamia and Memirly, but the difficulties are not so great as on the previous section, while from Demirly to Larissa the work is quite easy.

When the line is completed, the journey from the Piraeus to Larissa will occupy ten hours, and in four more hours the traveler will reach Salonica, whence an improved service of trains will convey him to Nisch on the through route between Paris and Constantinople.

By those who have seriously studied the question, it is firmly believed that the line, even if it go no further than Larissa, would pay; but, of course, the real objective is a junction with the Turkish system of railways, so as to place the Piraeus in direct railway communication with the various capitals of Europe. The main route for passengers and mails to the east would then lie through Piraeus, which is 375 miles nearer to Port Said than is Brindisi.

Wasn't He Stupid?

TREES TABLE ORNAMENTS.

Japanese Gardeners Starve Forest Giants in Youth to Make Lilliputians.

The Japanese propensity for "miniaturizing" has of late led to experiments with many plants not native to the Flowery kingdom, and as a result there are shown heliotropes, impatiens, cacti, etc., from one and a half to four inches in height, which are not merely small examples of these different families, but wizened growths, of mature habits and proportion, perfect duplicates of the plants nature planned on a scale several hundred times larger.

The method by which this end is reached is nothing more nor less than starvation, says an authority. Poor soil, little water, and a ceaseless slipping of all new growth constitute the Spartan treatment to which the plants are subjected. As in sheer desperation at such thwarting of their natural growth, they flower profusely, doubly, continually.

The sturdy American oak, even, is undergoing the same process that makes the Japanese spruce or chabo a boudoir or dinner table ornament. In a few years the tiny acorn seedlings that are now subjected to this treatment will doubtless be sold as drawing-room decorations. Imagine a mountain oak or an arching elm, perfect, identical in outline with the giants of forest or college campus, and yet only six or 12 inches in height! And this is what Japanese nurserymen are experimenting with today. Tiny trays, pans of pebbles and miniature trees will then doubtless represent famous American gardens and homestead grounds, as the minute model gardens now sold by the dishful, one might say, represent historied gardens in Japan.

Besides the dwarfing of American plants and forest trees, Japanese ingenuity is at work on training them at the same time into the contortions so dear to the almond-eyed aesthete. Thus the miniature elm, a century old, which will form the center piece of a twenty-first century dinner table may occasionally show its drooping branches in long ringlets and inverted spirals, or the 50-year-old spruce in its thimble-like pot may display twigs trained in all the twists and curves of a Greek scroll.

Fine, threadlike wire is used for this purpose. The branch under training is held in the desired position by one workman, while the other threads its bonds back and forth like a network. And so it stands until years of starvation have robbed the frail tissues of all desire or ability to regain a normal shape. The acme of exquisite artificiality is the ideal of the Japanese horticulturist, and simple, luxurious, natural growth has small merit in his eyes.

Though not of an "interesting age," there are, nevertheless, already some samples of this particular grafting in oriental ways on American growths, and those who are interested in the curious departure may find them among almost any collection of Japanese plants, or the stock of any progressive nurseryman.

This profession—for the native of Japan dignifies the work to that rank—is attracting a rapidly increasing number of the mikado's subjects in this country. No other people have such patience with the slowness or the vagaries of the vegetable world. Not only has the number of country places and even small city gardens of Japanese landscape design grown astonishingly in the last few years, but Japanese gardeners for American grounds treated in American style are greatly in demand. These people, indeed, seem to have some secret understanding with the vegetable world, and to be peculiarly adapted to ferret out its unsuspected possibilities.

NEWSPAPER FOR A KING.

Emperor of Austria First Monarch to Introduce the Custom in Europe.

The emperor of Austria was the first royal personage to have a newspaper published for his own private perusal. About 30 years ago he thought it would be a nice idea to have each important article condensed by a competent writer, and the results written out on small square sheets, which are then slipped into a binding cover and laid on his majesty's breakfast table.

Nothing that concerns him, agreeable or disagreeable, is ever omitted, and to make certain nobody is fooling him he occasionally orders a fresh bundle of papers to see if his orders are obeyed. True, the emperor loses a lot of amusing things, as everyone does who cannot read a newspaper for himself; but he is now an old man and doesn't like to try his eyes too long at a time.

His royal newspaper was likewise adopted by other European monarchs, until the more modern kingships found that they were not getting all the news, and then they took to doing their own "condensing" and skimming. King Edward is an indefatigable newspaper reader, despite his "busy day" programme.

Old Chapel's Position.

The old chapel-of-ease at Tunbridge Wells stands partly in Kent and partly in Sussex; but, more than that, it also stands in three parishes. When the clergyman leaves the vestry he comes out of the parish of Frant, in Sussex; and if he is going to officiate at the altar he walks into the parish of Tunbridge, in Kent. If, on the other hand, he is going to preach the sermon he walks from Frant into the parish of Speldhurst.—London Tit-Bits.

California Beekeepers.

The greatest beekeepers in the world are to be found in this country. There are men in California, for instance, who own from 2,000 to 12,000 swarms of bees each, and during the flowering season they farm out these swarms to the owners of orchards.

SPORTS AND ATHLETICS

To the man who can, in the short space of five years, capture five open golf championships the golfing world must take off its cap. Willie Anderson, of the Apawamis Golf club, of New York, is the player to accomplish the feat and to earn the deference due a man of great golfing pedigree. At the Glen View club the North Berwick Scotchman recently won with comparative ease the tenth national open championship. His score for the 72 holes was 303 strokes, the best record yet made in the big event, the lowest figures in previous tournaments being 307 by himself at Baltusrol in 1903, and by Lawrence Auchterlonie at Garden City in 1902. Anderson has now the unique record of having won the national event three times. On the two previous occasions he won after ties with Alec Smith at Myopia Hunt and with David Brown last year at Baltusrol. This time he can read his title clear, as he had a clean margin of five strokes over Gilbert Nicholls, of St. Louis, his nearest opponent. As he annexed the western open championship at Grand Rapids only a week before, registering the score of 304 strokes in the competition, he is now monarch of all he surveys. His previous win of the western title was at Cleveland in 1902, when he won with a score of 299, figures which have never been beaten in this country. Anderson's recent performances stamp him as the greatest golfer in the country. For a time it looked as if his title might pass from him, but when the pressure of the final round and the presence of galleries began to affect the play of the contenders he rose to the occasion and came home with the best figures of the two days' play, his 72 being equaled only by one other player.

Willie Anderson.

Highball, champion two-year-old of the east last season, and winner of the 1904 American derby, is no more. The famous colt fractured his left foreleg in two places during the running of the Seagate stakes at Brighton Beach recently, and although veterinarians made an attempt to patch up the shattered limb and save the valuable colt for the stud, they failed, and the horse was shot two hours after the accident happened. Highball was the first eastern horse to win the American derby. But for the faith that "Bub" May, his trainer, had in his prowess he would not have been sent to Chicago for that prize, for only a few days before he had performed disappointingly in the Brooklyn derby and H. M. Scheftel had decided to keep the horse in New York. May maintained at the time that Hildebrand's handling of the colt was responsible for his defeat, so Grover Fuller was engaged to ride him in the western classic, and the result spoke for May's judgement. Highball's first effort after his return from the west was in the Advance stakes, in which he finished fourth to Irish Lad, Ort Wells and Bryn Mawr. A few days later he won the Spindrift handicap at Sheepshead Bay, a victory which netted his owners $4,115. His last start, previous to his fatal race, was in the record-breaking running of the Brighton handicap, in which he finished third to Broomstick and Irish Lad. That race saw Irish Lad's breakdown and it is regarded as singular that two of the three prominent contenders in that memorable contest should have so soon reached the end of their turf careers. Highball was a three-year-old colt by Ben Strome out of Strychnia. His sire was a son of Bend Or and through both sire and dam Highball's descent could be traced through many a famous strain of runners. Highball had one bad racing trick, a tendency to run out at the turns. Like all of his father's get, he was possessed of great speed, but he differed from many of them in that he also ran well over a distance of ground, and could, as turfmen say, "go the route."

Highball.

Philip Casey, who for 25 years held the title of champion handball player of the world, is dead.

Lawson N. Fuller, the first man to drive a six-horse team a mile in less than three minutes, and perhaps the only man ever to speed eight horses a mile, is dead.

The record in the hill-climbing automobile competition at Mount Washington, N. H., was broken recently. The contest was over a measured course of eight miles, with a grade varying from 5 to 20 degrees. The record for the distance, 48:59, was made by Otto Westman, and was cut by F. E. Stanley, of Newton, Mass., with a six-horsepower gasoline machine to 31:15.

John Flanagan, of the Greater New York Irish Athletic association, the American champion in throwing the 56-pound weight, has made a new world's record in hurling the missile with "unlimited run and follow." His distance was 40 feet 2 inches, or 21 inches better than the old record.

DETAILS OF DRESS.

Smart Summer Wraps—Flowered Muslin For Afternoon Gowns.

The three cornered shape is still considered extremely smart, and so is the marquise shape in chip and panama.

In general it may be said that millinery is simpler than it has been for some time. Straight brims are being affected, and often a large sailor hat will have no trimming on it save a bunch of roses or leaves and small berries. Coq feathers, too, are very smart, especially in white, and one sees great numbers of these on the midsummer millinery.

Very smart wraps are made of white linen trimmed with bias bands stitched and applications of coarse lace. Coarse linen embroidery combining different shades of dull red, blue and green is mounted on white silk and makes a striking trimming for white linen suits and coats.

Flowered muslin is among the smartest materials for afternoon gowns. It is either made up over white or the tint of the flowers with which it is ornamented. The flowered nets are often made up over contrasting shades, such as blue figurings over a pale green, lavender over pink, etc.

The picture shows a black china silk waist with a shirred arrangement giving a long shouldered effect. It has a smart V shaped yoke and a trimming of ball end tassels.

High Crowned Hats—Accordion Plaited Gowns of Chiffon.

The new high crowned hat trimmed with plumes is very pretty, but at the same time rather trying to some faces. This high crowned hat made in white or in black crinoline is one of the prettiest frames for a really pretty girl's face, and the coiffure arranged in loose waves really is particularly adapted to this.

A great many leading Parisiennes are wearing soft black gowns relieved by touches of pink. Rose pink is much in evidence now, from the palest to the deepest shades. It looks equally well in satin messaline, taffeta or muslin.

A pretty gown seen recently at a fashionable wedding was of embroidered mousseline de soie in black. It was worn with a beautifully pointed band of rose color, with revers of pink embroidered velvet and a picture hat of shaded rose chip, the brim of which was lined with pink chiffon and draped with black chantilly, the crown being trimmed with deeper rose colored plumes. Some bridesmaids' gowns also seen recently were of rose chiffon mounted over rose taffeta and finished with very wide, long chine sashes.

Many effective frocks for girls are made of accordion plaiting, and here again shaded chiffons are much in vogue. Blue and brown chiffons are also treated in the same way with incrustations of dainty dyed lace and pointed silk belts.

The picture shows a dotted linen dress trimmed with coarse linen lace and a red tie and belt.

A REAL HOSPITALITY

THE GENUINE KIND MAY BE FOUND IN SOUTH SEAS.

A Visitor in the Friendly Isles Seems the Center of the Universe to His Host—Elaborate Entertainment.

Nukualofa, Friendly Islands.—It has become such a habit among travelers to talk of southern hospitality that one might believe it to be indigenous to the soil or an attribute of sunny skies and dusky cheeks.

If this were indeed so, then the farther south we go the more hospitable would grow the land, till the equator would be the culmination of this most pleasing trait, and the Friendly Isles would come by their name by in order of sequence.

In these lovely isles a visitor is the center of the universe, the social circle revolves about him and each particular host vies with his neighbor in lavishing good will and good cheer upon the lucky stranger that is within their gates.

Straying along the winding paths, through shadowy, overhanging palms, banana and bread fruit trees, it is without a start that one feels soft fingers creep into his hand and hears a cooing voice bid him Talofa.

Tiny brown elves peep, wide-eyed, from every nook, while scattered amid the tangled bush, one tiny thatched hut fit for a fairy bower.

None of the squalor of poverty is ever known among these communists. What is mine is thine—all have in plenty of the good things of the land. Water is the nearest friend, so dirt and personal uncleanliness are practically unknown.

Catching sight of the wanderer the inhabitants of the little community will call from the huts, waving beckoning hands and proceeding, if you turn to enter, to don a few more garments, out of regard for the peculiar notions that white people seem to have. With an arm thrust carelessly through the sleeve of a mother hubbard, the main portion of which hangs down behind, a dusky dove-eyed maiden advances to take your hand.

As you stoop to enter the cool, shaded dwelling, beautifully-woven mats are thrown on the floor, and upon these you are expected to sit, and pass the compliments of the day.

The small boy of the family is dispatched to procure cocoanuts from one of the groves that sways its foliage over the little home; and fresh bananas and oranges are proffered.

The most engaging freedom of manner possesses all the company, and the size of your nose or ears is commented upon with much ease and good-natured criticism.

you, and many are the invitations to come again.

If you are of an enterprising spirit, the subject of trade is one easily opened in any assembly. Beads, shells, strings of bright beads, mats of all kinds and as different in price as in value or probably much more so, and much good-natured barter takes place when the nimble shilling is on the wing, for the language that money talks is easily translated even into the South sea island tongue. But the mercenary spirit, the looking upon the occasional traveler as fair prey for unscrupulous bargains is unknown in this fair land. What is for sale is yours if you wish to purchase; if not well and good, but in any case, you must accept their courtesy, their gentle politeness, their most friendly overtures.

Here in the true south is the unspoiled purple flower of love and kindliness still blooming in the hearts of Nature's noblemen.

OUR NEGRO POPULATION.

Of the Nine Millions in the United States Nearly Half Are Illiterate.

As a result of requests for information from all over the country, the census office has issued a bulletin on "Negroes in the United States," containing statistics with regard to the extent, character and condition of the negro population in the several states of the union. The summary of results given in the bulletin is in part as follows:

"The number of negroes in the United States (including Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico) is 9,200,000, perhaps a larger number than is found in any other country ouside of Africa. Nearly nine-tenths of the negroes in continental United States are found in the southern states. The largest number of negroes living in compact masses are found in certain urban counties, several of which lie outside of the great cotton growing states. The four, each having over 75,000, are the District of Columbia; Shelby county, Tenn., containing Memphis; Baltimore City, Md., and Orleans parish, La., coextensive with New Orleans.

"The district in which the proportion of negroes is greatest lies in the Mississippi alluvial region along both banks of the lower Mississippi, where five-eighths of the population is negro, the maximum being in Issaquena county, Miss., with more than 15 negroes to each white person. The center of the negro population is in DeKalb county, Ala., about four miles from the eastern boundary of Georgia and 35 miles south of the southern boundary of Tennessee.

"In the country districts as a whole the negro males outnumber the negro females slightly and in the cities the females outnumber the males decidedly. This disassociation of the sexes between city and country is far more marked among negroes than among whites and has increased since 1890.

"Among negroes 44.5 per cent. are illiterate. The percentage of illiteracy has decreased rapidly since 1890, when it was 57.1 per cent. Illiteracy among negroes is about seven times as common as among whites, and this ratio between the races has not altered materially in the last ten years. Illiteracy among southern negroes is about four times that among southern whites. If the per cent. of illiterates should fall in each succeeding ten years by as great an amount as it did between 1890 and 1900, an improbable assumption, it would reach zero about 1940.

"There was a decided increase between 1890 and 1900 in the proportion of marriages among young negroes. This increase of early marriages was yet more marked among southern whites of both sexes and was probably due to the great prosperity of the country just before 1900.

"There are nearly 4,000,000 negroes in the United States engaged in gainful occupations. Those persons, who may be called breadwinners, constitute 45.2 per cent. of the total negro population, while for the total white population the per cent. is 37.3 and for southern whites 34.3."

PLUCK OF INDIAN BANDIT.

The Renowned Raisuli Once Proved His Utter Indifference to Danger.

"At Tangier," said a Chicagoan, according to an exchange. "I once saw Raisuli. He looked as magnificent as an Indian Rajah, and a Frenchman told me that he had a foolhardy and reckless valor.

"This Frenchman said that Raisuli had entered the shooting gallery of Tangier one day while a Tunistan was trying a little pistol practice.

"The Tunistan was an excellent shot. He broke glass balls, rang bells, split pipe stems, and penetrated bull's eyes without number. At each shot a polite murmur of applause arose. The man was all puffed up with triumph.

"Raisuli looked on with a sneer, and finally he said in a loud voice:

" 'In a duel this gentleman wouldn't shoot so well.'

" 'We'll see about that,' yelled the Tunistan, and he challenged Raisuli, and ten minutes later they were on the field.

"They were to fight at 12 paces, each to fire one shot. Lots were drawn as to who should shoot first and Raisuli lost. He took his stand before the Tunistan calmly, and the latter lifted up his weapon, took careful aim and missed.

"Raisuli smiled. 'What did I tell you?' he said.

"And he thrust his pistol in his belt and strode away humming a French song."

Boys and College.

When a boy tells me he just yearns for an education, that he longs to go to college, but that he has no one to help him as other boys have; that if he had a rich father to send him to college he could make something of himself, I know perfectly well that the boy does not yearn for an education, but that he would simply like to have it if it could be gotten without much effort. When a boy today says that he cannot go to college, though deaf, dumb and blind girls manage it, I know that he has such a knack of seeing difficulties that he will not only miss college, but will probably also miss most of what is worth while in life.—Success.

Really a Wonder.

"Yes, Mr. Binkson is one of the most wonderful men I ever knew. He is really a genius."

"I didn't know he had ever written anything."

"Oh, he hasn't, but he can take a railroad time table and tell just when a train will start, where it is going, and when it will get there."—Chicago Record-Herald.

LINDEN, N. J.

Beautiful and Accessible

Why Lots in these Cemeteries commend themselves to Heads of Families and Investors

BECAUSE of the $1,000,000 Trust Fund provided for by the Trustees in each Cemetery, the income from which will keep the properties perpetually beautiful at NO EXPENSE TO LOT OWNERS.

BECAUSE such a guarantee, not found in any other cemetery, assures lot owners that the grounds WILL BE MAINTAINED PERMANENTLY AS BEAUTIFUL PARKS AFTER THE INCOME FROM THE SALE OF LOTS HAS BEEN EXHAUSTED.

LOTS SHOULD BE PURCHASED NOW

BECAUSE MORE ADVANTAGES ARE OFFERED TO LOT BUYERS in a new Modern Park Cemetery than in those established many years and, in most cases, no provision made for perpetual care without extra expense to lot owners. THERE ARE A GREATER NUMBER OF IDEAL LOCATIONS TO SELECT FROM, PRICES OF LOTS ARE ALWAYS LOWER AND TERMS MORE ADVANTAGEOUS.

BECAUSE life is most uncertain and EVERY ONE SHOULD ANTICIPATE THE INEVITABLE BY MAKING A CHOICE NOW OF A FINAL RESTING PLACE.

LOTS WILL PROVE A GOOD INVESTMENT

BECAUSE they are sure to increase in value and can be purchased NOW at the INITIAL or LOWEST PRICE and upon the most ADVANTAGEOUS TERMS.

BECAUSE the properties are ACCESSIBLE TO 4,000,000 PEOPLE, and considering the RAPID GROWTH OF GREATER NEW YORK and its TRIBUTARY CITIES and TOWNS, it is only a question of a SHORT TIME when LOTS in ROSEDALE and LINDEN PARK will EQUAL, IN VALUE those of our MOST NOTED cemeteries.

PRAISE FOR THE JAPANESE

Famous English Writer Is of the Opinion That They Are a Valuable Race.

George Meredith, whose commanding figure is almost the last survival of the literary giants of the Victorian age in the course of an interesting interview has given his views on current topics of the day, reports the New York Sun. Speaking of the Japanese, he said:

"They are a people capable of great ideas and exact mastery of detail. They have known what to do and have never botched or muddled. Besides, they are an artistic people, full of invention. The English people have little real love of nature. The highest English ideal of beauty in nature is a southerly wind and the cloudy sky that proclaim the hunting morning. In regard to the defeat of a European nation by Asiatics, that does not trouble me in the least. Their natures will give free play for the best to win.

"We think of the Russian chiefly as dogged, but Inkerman was always a mystery to me. If the Russians were really dogged and wanted to come on I cannot believe that the fellows of the foolish class our officers are drawn from could have defeated them. Of course, it has been called especially a soldiers' battle. All our battles are soldiers' battles. Our army will remain in chaos so long as it is controlled by a singularly unintellectual, ill-educated, unbusinesslike class. With their Buddhism, self-devotion, restraint, fearlessness of death and artistic sense, it may well be that the Japanese are a more valuable race from nature's point of view than the Russians.

Referring to the recent outcry against pagan England and pagan London, Mr. Meredith says: "It is curious that 40 years ago I had to give up going to church because I could no longer listen to the nonsense I heard spoken there. The parsons were worse than the uneducated. The deadly monotony of a Sunday sermon is constant and should have episcopal supervision. The church, like the army, is now a chaos of men without overseers. The clergy are drawn from the same narrow, incompetent class as the officers."

Talking of foreign affairs, Mr. Meredith declared that in speaking of a foreign nation we always try to realize what it has done for the world."

"Take America," he said. "She has been the shrewdest leader of men. She has given us Emerson, that very great writer. Americans have endowed the world with priceless inventions and a promise of great things to be expected from them, and they are a humane, large-hearted people, but are very young people still. Hitherto the country, perhaps, has been rather too large for them."

SWARM IN STRANGE PLACES

Bees Get Together and Settle Down Wherever the Mood Strikes Them.

Bees sometimes swarm in strange places. A swarm recently came from off the shore and installed itself in and about one of the ventilators on the upper deck of the British warship Diana as she lay alongside the Mole of Gibraltar, says the New York Sun.

One of the seamen, with the aid of an old soap box and a boarding pike, quickly hived the bees, and was afterward fortunate enough to dispose of his capture advantageously.

Some workmen upon fixing their ladders high on the south wall of the council chamber at Abingdon, England, found a swarm of bees. As no one appeared willing to remove them, the mayor ascended the ladder himself, fixed a hive over the bees, and after occupying his uncomfortable position for an hour, came down with the whole swarm nicely hived. His constituents had assembled to watch the operation and loudly cheered his descent.

At Dorchester, England, a large hive of bees swarmed into the brake van of the Southwestern express from Weymouth to London. The guards were compelled to fight the insects until the train reached its destination, when an apiarist came to the rescue and hived the whole swarm.

One swarm a few days ago took possession of a tree in the center of a pleasure park at Kansas City, Mo., and formed an interesting attraction of the place. Of the hundreds that saw them no one made any attempt to hive them until a farmer, named John Alcorn, came along.

"What'll you give me to take the bees away?" he asked the manager of the park.

"The bees," was the reply, and a bargain was struck right there.

Alcorn climbed up to the swarm, and swept all the bees he could into a nail keg. He must have got the queen with the first handful, for the bees did not object to the treatment. After he had got the bulk of them in the keg he turned it upside down on the ground and placed a stick under one side.

Then he beat on a tin pan, and the remainder of the bees left the tree and swarmed into the keg. Alcorn gathered up the keg and its buzzing occupants, and started for home.

Honor for a Bell.

The ship's bell of the famous Britannic—which ship has been broken up—has been given a place of honor in the offices of the White Star line in Liverpool. It is artistically mounted under a polished wood canopy, and bears on its surface a white star. During her 30 years' career the Britannic traveled 2,232,999 miles.

Use of Gas.

Natural gas is used for cooking in more than 500,000 homes and more than 4,500,000 persons use it as an illuminant, according to the report of the geological survey. It is the fuel in 8,000 factories and supplies the world with lampblack.

A LITTLE BEAR CUB

ITS PECULIAR ANTICS WERE AMUSING TO ITS MASTER.

Was Horrid When He Was Hungry, But Very Good After Being Fed—A Fight with a Muskrat.

Johnny, my pet cub, differed a little from the little girl who had a little curl, right in the middle of her forehead, for

When he was good, he was very, very good;
But when he was hungry, he was horrid.

When that satisfied feeling which followed a meal began to wear off, Johnny let us know it by an impatient muttering, and all attempts to divert his attention were useless. He was hungry and he wanted his food, and no one could persuade him that he didn't. If he was loose, he made straight for the kitchen door, and, opening as easily as any child could have done, he marched straight to the sink. Standing on his hind legs, he would stretch until he reached the edge with his fore paws, and then quickly hoisted himself up. Here he was very likely to find a pan of water and this might occupy him for a moment, though he would probably be grumbling all the time he was drinking. Then, turning round, he would let himself down backwards until his hind feet touched the floor. By this time, the housekeeper would be busy getting his dinner of bread and crackers, but he would start at once to hurry things up by growling and dancing on his hind legs in front of her. Another moment's delay and he would rush at her, and clasp her about the knees with his sturdy arms, biting and tugging at her skirts. She was not in the least afraid of him, and when all was ready she would sometimes try his patience, or rather his impatience, a little further, by holding the pan containing his dinner just above his head. He would stand on his hind legs, grumbling away, and making wild reaches for the pan. At last, he would manage to catch hold of it with one paw, and there there was no getting it away from him. His claws hung on to the rim like so many iron hooks, and if the pan was lifted any higher, Johnny went with it, and soon hoisted himself into it. Then, how he would attack that food, mumbling all the time as if he were badly used, and ending by cleaning the pan with his long tongue. Then he would probably be kittenish, tearing around the house, climbing on chairs, tables and shelves, and upsetting everything upsetable, in an effort to find out what it was made of. Like as not, a broom would end his frolic, and he would run for the barn and take a nap in the haymow.

The other day I took Johnny for a long walk, and he was certainly an entertaining companion. When we set out, I took one little black paw in my right hand, and he walked along on his hind legs like a little man. But he soon became tired of this method of locomotion, so I let him go on all fours.

By and by we came to a lake, and Johnny at once plunged in and took a short swim, after which he came out and shook himself like a dog. Then I sat down to see what he would do. He wandered away, paddling in the shallow water near the margin, until he was perhaps 25 yards away. On a flat stone, close to the bank, a muskrat was sitting, quietly rubbing his nose, and I expected to see him dive long before Johnny came near him. But he didn't move and Johnny failed to see him until they were close together. Then the little bear stuck out his nose to investigate, and the muskrat turned to face him, whereupon Johnny rose on his hind legs, and looked down on the muskrat, as though not quite sure what to do. Then he came down on all fours, and again advanced, sniffing for information. The muskrat, perhaps thinking it was time to resent his impudence, made a jump at the bear, snapped his teeth once and quickly turned to run. But he was not quick enough for Johnny, who struck out with one black paw and bowled the muskrat over on the bank. But the rat quickly recovered his balance and dived into the water.

Johnny's blood was up now, and into the lake he plunged. Just what took place then I cannot say, as there was such a splashing of water, but at any rate the muskrat turned and bit the little bear in the nose, and Johnny, perhaps realizing that he was at a disadvantage in the water, turned and fled howling and panic-stricken to the bank, and taking to his heels did not stop until he was safe in the branches of a tree. It was certainly a laughable sight, and it was a pity that Johnny could not enjoy it as much as I did. But he stayed up that tree and amused himself by chewing the leaves and bark.

SPORTING NEWS.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Dunellen baseball team will cross bats with the team from South Amboy at Riverside Park, on Tuesday afternoon.

Several local fans will go to Somerville this afternoon to witness the baseball contest between Somerville's new team and the Celluloids of Newark.

The N. A. C.'s, a team captained by "Man-eater" Mullen, wiped the lot with the Arlington Avenue A. C. yesterday afternoon by a score of 16 to 3. "Man-eater" did the twirling for his team and John Conklin, picked 'em off the stick behind the plate. The N. A. C. aggregation meets the Grant Avenue B. C. this afternoon at the grounds near Grant avenue.

Manager Johnston, of Alis, has signed Bassford, formerly of the Murray Hills, to play right field in place of McGoey. He had his choice between this player and Barry, of Paterson, and on the recommendation of good advisers, he picked Bassford. The new man will be with the team against Westfield today, and assurances are given that a strong man will be in the box for the locals. A change has been made in the Alis schedule. Instead of Aeolian playing here Saturday, August 6, the Westfield's will appear on Crescent Oval in the fifth game of the series.

These are some of the comments in this week's issue of the Washington Star, concerning Badgley, the Lehigh twirler, who played with Alis in three games, and who began pitching for the Washington team on Saturday: "Badgley didn't pitch the best ball of which he is capable, but was as steady and dependable as of old, showing up particularly strong when things grew dangerous for Washington. He struck out eleven men and did not give any bases on balls. * * * Badgley says that Grube is the best catcher that he ever had. * * * Badgley doesn't give an umpire much chance to roast him. When he wants to put a strike over the plate he cuts the centre so accurately that the umpire can't do anything else than call it a strike." On Tuesday Washington will meet the Cuban Giants at home, and today the Bangor, Pa., team will cross bats with the Warren County boys.

BOLD BAD BOY IN COURT

EDGAR WOODEN, WHO STABBED PLAYMATE. HELD BY JUDGE RUNYON.

"An incipient bad man and a cheerful liar" is the way the police described fourteen-year-old Edgar Wooden when he was arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning. Released only a short time ago after standing trial for stealing a wheel he was returned yesterday on a charge of stabbing Louis Parrot, a playmate in a quarrel. He resisted Special Officer Parsons and fought furiously when Doorman McCue attempted to place him in a cell.

When questioned by the Judge he related a remarkable tale of abuse on the part of the police and insisted that Doorman McCue had clubbed him, going so far as to reach through the cell bars to strike him on the head. Mrs. Wooden said Edgar had evidently "reached the end of his rope" and said the law could take its course. He was held to await the action of the Juvenile Court.

Edgar broke into a frenzy of sobs and an improvised camp meeting song in which he begged for release, food and his mother.

The stabbing was done with a pocket knife but the police say Parrot is not badly hurt, although Edgar meant that he should be.

They have rented the Hotel Breakwater at Wood's Holl, Mass., and are running it on a co-operative plan. Those included in the enterprise are: Mr. and Mrs. C. Ledyard Blair, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. H. Talmadge, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Percy R. Pyne, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay Turnbull and Mr. and Mrs. Junius Porter. These six families have the hotel all to themselves and will remain there six weeks, each family taking a turn in the management. Hotel Breakwater overlooks Buzzard's Bay.

HELD FOR STEALING PAPERS

MAX GOLDSTEIN MUST ANSWER CHARGE BEFORE GRAND JURY.

The longest session of court ever held by any local justice of the peace within a year took place at Justice Hand's court yesterday. The justice was on the bench from 10 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon with the exception of a noon recess.

The cases tried were in settlement of local newspaper deliverymen's disputes on claims of embezzlement and theft of papers. Samuel Turnansky, who owns a daily and Sunday newspaper route in this city brought two distinct charges against Max Goldstein, one on charge of fraud in collections to the amount of $60, and the other on charges of a theft of $30 worth of papers as carrier. Judge Hand dismissed the first case regarding the collections because of a legal technicality in the complaint. It appears that the money had not been taken in lump sums as the complaint read, but in small collections. This fact necessitated the re-arrangement of the complaint and the case will be brought up in the same court at a later date.

For the theft of the newspapers Goldstein was held in $150 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury at the October term of court in Elizabeth. W. S. Angleman, Esq., was lawyer for Goldstein and William Newcorn, Esq., represented the plaintiff.

WAR GAME IN SEPTEMBER

MEMBERS OF CO. K MAY TAKE PART IN BULL RUN PROGRAMME.

Unusual interest is being manifested now in the preparations for the Army War game to be held at Bull Run in September, and there is local interest by reason of the fact that eight members of Co. K have made application to be attached to the Fourth and Fifth Regiments of this State, which has been selected to represent New Jersey. They feel quite sure of being able to take part in these manoeuvres of the Department of the East.

The affair will be similar to the one held last year at Fort Riley, and it will include National Guardsmen, as well as regulars from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Connecticut and Virginia. It is estimated that there will be seventy-five thousand men engaged in the various drills.

The Fourth Regiment, including the companies in Hudson county, and the Fifth Regiment, comprising all those companies in Passaic county, weer recently picked to represent the State and as it is quite natural to suppose that there will be a number out of these companies who will be unable to make the trip, those from Co. K should have no trouble in being chosen. The outing will be for ten days and the programme will include everything in the line of drills, together with sham battles.

The men from Co. K are especially anxious to go because it is not likely that they will visit Sea Girt next summer. According to the present order the local company should go to the State camp every two years. In 1901, the year it was organized, the company was sent to Sea Girt and in 1902 it was given the usual outing of one week. Last year the members did not go into camp, and it is quite likely that they will not be sent next year.

Mrs. R. D. Moffett, of Orchard place, has returned from a pleasant visit with her daughter, Mrs. Tams, of Trenton.

Dog Scare in Borough.

A small fox terrier dog which gave every sign of being afflicted with rabies, was pursued by a crowd on Somerset street last evening until it took refuge in a store on Craig place. Chief Marshal Weiss lassoed the canine and taking it in the rear of the building ended its existence with a pistol shot.

BEHIND CLOSED PORTALS

HAPPENINGS OF THE LOCAL FRATERNAL ORDERS.

The Loyal Temperance Legion has discontinued its weekly meetings until fall.

Estimates were made up by Secretary Joseph Miller, of the Brewers' Exchange, of the beer that was consumed in Cincinnati during the week of the Elks' National Reunion over and above the normal quantity. The extra amount consumed was 1,620 barrels. There are thirty-two gallons to the barrel and sixteen glasses to the gallon, making 829,440 extra glasses drank, for which was paid to the retailers $41,472. The profit to the retailers on this beer was easily 100 per cent. Based on these figures it is estimated that more than $100,000 was expended in the saloons. The Cincinnati brewers, taking this as a basis, estimate that the visiting Elks expended $1,250,000 in Cincinnati.

PAINTERS' STRIKE.

Report That Men at Safe Works Will Go Out Is Denied.

A report was current on the streets today that the painters at the Manganese Steel Safe Company plant would go on strike Monday because of a reduction in wages. The men assert that the work has been so distributed by Superintendent Geissman that they are now able to make only half what they did formerly. An official of the company declared this noon that the firm had heard of the rumors but he did not believe that the men contemplated striking.
